

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE TO REVISED EDITION.

THE Publishers have again taken advantage of the opportunity offered by the necessary recasting of the plates of this book to cause such improvements to be made in it as the advance of grammatical knowledge and the experience of the schoolroom have shown to be advisable. The revising editors have endeavored to simplify and make plain the statement of principles, so far as could be done without sacrificing scientific correctness; but no concession has been made to the prevalent mechanical method of treating the science of language. Many additional explanations and suggestions have been made in the text and foot-notes, for the benefit of teachers and advanced scholars. The number and range of examples have been very considerably increased; and it is hoped that scholars will find no grammatical usage in their ordinary reading that is not provided for in the statements laid down.

The treatment of the formation of words has been much extended; and new light, it is hoped, has been shed upon this difficult and ever-advancing branch of the science. In cases where comparative philology is concerned, the editors have endeavored to set down the sure results of the so-called "New Grammar," but have been conservative about accepting doctrines which, though likely to be true, cannot yet be regarded as fully proved, and are certainly not universally accepted. In conformity with the modern practice all naturally long vowels, known to be such, including those whose natural quantity is concealed by position, have been marked throughout; but many suspected to be long have been left unmarked, where the evidence did not seem sufficiently convincing.

Some new doctrines will be found in regard to the order of words, which, though not generally accepted, will, the editors are persuaded, meet with more general approval, the better they are applied and understood. This subject has only just begun to receive the consideration it deserves.

No changes of any account have been made in the numbering of sections.

In conclusion, the editors hope that they have made still more plain some of the devious ways of Latin grammar, and feel that if their new efforts meet with anything like the same favor that has been shown to the book heretofore, they shall be amply rewarded.

PREFACE TO THE EDITION OF 1877.

THE editors have taken advantage of the re-casting of the plates to make some improvements in the present edition, which have grown upon their hands, until in fact a thorough revision of the book has been made.

The principal changes are the following: 1. The matter of each part has been cast in chapters, with sub-divisions by numbered paragraphs. 2. A considerable expansion has been given to several portions, especially to those on Phonetic Changes and the Formation of Words; inflectional forms have been more carefully exhibited, and sections have been added on the Syntax of Pronouns and Particles. 3. Strictly philological matter, not intended for class use, has been put in the form of marginal notes. 4. The several topics of the Syntax are introduced by brief prefatory notes, suggesting what we consider to be the true theory of the constructions; these are not designed for class use, and are not included in the numbered sections. 5. Some important additions and illustrations have been given in the Prosody. The substance of the book remains as before. The form of expression, however, has been carefully revised; and a few sections have been transferred to a different connection.

The proof-sheets have been submitted to several experienced teachers, who have generously aided us by their criticism, and have contributed many valuable practical suggestions. The editors have pleasure in acknowledging, also, their special indebtedness to Professor Caskie Harrison, of the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., whose correspondence has made a very full running commentary extending over the greater portion of the book, including all the Syntax, with copious discussion of numerous incidental topics. His notes have been of the greatest service to them; have sometimes modified their views and constantly supplemented them; have urged important points upon their attention, and have not seldom suggested valuable improvements through the very antagonism of opposing doctrine. Material less easy to specify in detail, but not less valuable or welcome, has been received from Professor M. W. Humphreys, of Nashville, from the principals of the academies at Andover, Exeter, and Quincy, and from others, to whom cordial thanks are due for the interest they have testified in the work

CAMBRIDGE, September 25, 1877.

NOTE.

FOR the convenience of those who may wish to follow up more minutely the study of the subjects treated in this book, a list of important works is given below.

ALLEN, F. D.: Remnants of Early Latin.

BOPP: Vergleichende Grammatik des Sanskrit, etc. [Indo-European languages.] 4 vols. 3d ed. Berlin: 1868-70.

The original standard work on Comparative Forms. Later researches have corrected some erroneous details. English translation (poor). London: 1862. The best form is a French translation, with Notes and Introductions by Michel Bréal. Paris: 1866.

BEZZENBERGER: Beiträge zur Kunde der Indo-Germanischen Sprachen. 1-13.

BRAMBACH: Lateinische Orthographie. 1868.

BRUGMANN: Grundriss der Vergleichenden Grammatik. Vol. I. Strassburg: 1886; Vol. II., 1889-92.

— Greek Grammar. See "Müller's Handbuch."

CORSSEN: Aussprache, Vokalismus und Betonung der Lateinischen Sprache. 2 vols. 2d ed. Leipzig: 1868.

The greatest work on Latin alone, treating the language in reference to its own individual development, particularly as to the sounds (Lautlehre). Must be used with caution.

CURTIUS, G.: Grundzüge der Griechischen Etymologie. 3d ed. Leipzig: 1869.

Treats of Latin only by comparison, but is one of the most valuable works on the general subject.

— Erläuterungen zu meiner Griechischen Schul-grammatik. 2d ed. Prag: 1870. English translation ("Elucidations"). London: 1870.

Notes giving in connection with the Greek Grammar the simplest view of the doctrine of forms.

— Das Griechische Verbum.

DELBRÜCK: Das Conjunctiv und Optativ, im Sanskrit und Griechischen. Halle: 1871.

Origin of the Moods treated scientifically. Should be read in connection with a notice in "North American Review," October, 1871, and "Analysis of the Latin Subjunctive," by J. B. Greenough (Cambridge: 1870).

— Ablativ, Localis, Instrumentalis im Indischen, etc. Berlin: 1867.

Origin of the various Ablative constructions.

FICK: Vergleichendes Wörterbuch der Indo-Germanischen Sprachen. Göttingen: 1870.

A Dictionary of Roots and Words supposed to have existed in the Indo-European tongue, with the corresponding words and derivatives in the various languages. It can be used without a knowledge of German. No such book, however, is safe to use without careful study of the laws of consonant and vowel changes.

HADLEY: Essays, Philological and Critical. New York (Holt & Williams) 1873.

HALE, W. G.: Cum Constructions. [Cornell Studies.]

— The Sequence of Tenses.

HOFFMAN: Die Construction der Lateinischen Zeitpartikeln. Vienna: 1860. [Pamphlet.]

MARX: Hilfsbüchlein für die Aussprache, etc. Berlin: 1883.

MEYER, G.: Griechische Grammatik. 2d ed. Leipzig: 1885.

MÜLLER: Handbuch der Klassischen Alterthums-wissenschaft. Vol. II. Griechische und Lateinische Sprachwissenschaft (by Brugmann, Stolz and Schmalz, and others).

NEUE: Formenlehre der Lateinischen Sprache. Stuttgart: 1875-92.

Storehouse of all Latin forms, 1200 pages, containing the result of late textual criticism. The standard work.

PAPILLON: A Manual of Comparative Philology, as applied to the Illustration of Greek and Latin Inflections. Oxford: 1876.

Behind the times, but a convenient synopsis of the doctrine of forms.

ROBY, H. J.: A Grammar of the Latin Language, from Plautus to Suetonius. London and New York (Macmillan): Vol. I., 1871; Vol. II., 1873.

Some errors have been pointed out in the "North American Review," January, 1872.

SCHLEICHER: Compendium der Vergleichenden Grammatik der Indo-Germanischen Sprachen. 4th ed. 1876.

Antiquated, but indispensable.

SEELMANN, E.: Die Aussprache des Latein. Heilbronn: 1885.

SIEVERS, E.: Grundzüge der Phonetik. 3d ed. Leipzig: 1885.

VANIČEK, A.: Etymologisches Wörterbuch der Lateinischen Sprache. Leipzig: 1874.

Suggestive, but to be used with caution.

WESTPHAL: Metrik der Griechen. 2d ed. 1867. 2 vols.

The great authority on the metrical systems of the ancients, with full literary and musical illustration. A convenient summary, with some modifications, will be found in SCHMIDT'S Rhythmik und Metrik, now translated by Prof. J. W. WHITE, and published by the publishers of this book.

WHEELER, B. I.: Analogy and its Scope in Language. [Cornell Studies.]

WHITNEY: Sanskrit Grammar. Leipzig: 1879.

The best grammar of the Sanskrit, without some knowledge of which language it is difficult to pursue the study of comparative grammar to advantage.

ZEITSCHRIFT für vergleichende Sprachforschung. Edited by Dr. A. KUHN. Vol. I., etc. Berlin: 1851 and subsequent years.

Indispensable to correct theories of individual investigators.

LATIN GRAMMAR.

LATIN GRAMMAR is usually discussed under three heads: 1. Etymology; 2. Syntax; 3. Prosody. Etymology treats of the form of separate words, as either written or spoken; Syntax of their function when joined together as parts of the sentence; Prosody of their arrangement in metrical composition.

PART FIRST.—ETYMOLOGY.

CHAPTER I.—Letters and Sounds.

Alphabet.

The Latin Alphabet, as the language is usually written, is the same as the English (which, in fact, was borrowed from it), except that it has no w.

Properly, it consists, however, of only twenty-three letters: a (called ah), b (be [bay]), c (ke), d (de), e (e [eh]), f (ef), g (ge), h (ha), i (ee), k (ka) [see § 6], l (el), m (em), n (en), o (o), p (pe), q (koo), r (er), s (ess), t (te), u, v (oo), x (ix), y (u Graeca?), z (zeta). Of these, y and z were added in Cicero's time to express the corresponding sounds (υ, ζ) in borrowed Greek words (cf. Cic. N. D. ii. 37). i and u (v) have a twofold value, which is often in modern writing indicated by a double form: i, j; u, v. See § 4.

Classification of the Letters.

1. The letters are divided, with reference to their sounds, into Vowels (litterae vōcālēs) and Consonants (litterae cōnsonantēs). Two vowels united so as to express one sound are called a Diphthong.

a. The VOWELS are a, e, i, o, u, y. The rest of the letters are Consonants. The Diphthongs are ae (æ), au, ei, eu, oe (œ), ui, and in Early Latin ai, oi, and ou.

NOTE.—All the divisions of the letters apply really to the sounds which the letters represent; but as the sounds in Latin very nearly correspond to the letters, no real confusion need arise if both are spoken of without distinction.

b. Vowels are Open (a, o), Medial (e, u), or Close (i), according to the position of the organs in pronouncing them.

NOTE.—The vowel a, as in father, is the most open (i.e. the organs are least constrained in pronouncing it). Starting from this sound, and narrowing the mouth sidewise, at the same time raising the middle of the tongue, we come through several gradations not always recognized, but no doubt always more or less existent in speech, to the sound of e (as in eh?) and i (ee, as i in machine). This sound, if enunciated rapidly with a following vowel, passes into the sound of English y (consonant). If, on the other hand, the mouth is narrowed up and down, and at the same time the back of the tongue is raised, we come in the same manner to o and u (oo in fool). If, starting with o, we contract in the first manner, we come through a common German sound (ö) to e. If, starting from u, we do the same, we come to French ü, German û, Greek υ, and Latin y. And this sound, in turn, approaches i.

These processes may be represented in a vowel scale as above.

2. CONSONANTS. — a. p, b, c (k), q, g, t, d, as also ch and th, are called Mutes (Explosives, Momentary sounds).

These are produced by an entire stoppage of the breath and a subsequent explosion. They are classified as follows:—

1. p, c (k), q, t, s, are called Surds (tenuēs).

These are without vocal tone.

2. b, g, d, z, are called Sonants (mediae).

These are accompanied by a slight vocal tone.

3. ch and th are called Aspirates.

In these a breath follows the explosion. They are found chiefly in words borrowed from the Greek. ph, which also was borrowed from the Greek, probably was never sounded as an aspirate in Latin.

b. m and n are called Nasals.

These are pronounced with the same position of the organs as b and d, except that the nasal passage is opened instead of closed. A third nasal, n adullerinum (like n in ink), corresponding in the same way to g, existed in the language, but had no separate sign.

3. From the organs of speech chiefly used in the utterance of the mutes and nasals they are divided into Labials (pronounced with the lips), Palatals (with the palate), and Linguals (with the tongue).

Their relations are seen in the following table:—

	SURD.	SONANT.	ASPIRATE.	NASAL.
Labial.	p	b	wanting	m
Palatal.	c (k), q	g	ch	n (as in ink)
Lingual.	t	d	th	n (as in rent)

a. Other useful special classes of sounds are distinguished as:—

Liquids: l, m, n, r.

Fricatives (Spirants): f, ph, th (not aspirate, as in thin), h, s, z.

Sibilants: s, z.

Double Consonants: x (cs), z (ds).

Semi-vowels: i, v (see § 4).

b. h is merely a breathing.

4. SEMI-VOWELS. — i and v (u) before a vowel in the same syllable are consonants and have the sound of English consonant y and w respectively. (Cf. i and u in pinion, issuing, rapidly pronounced.) They are sometimes called Semi-Vowels.

NOTE 1.—The Latin alphabet had no separate signs for the semi-vowels; but used i for both vowel and consonant i, and v or u (without distinction) for both vowel and consonant v (u). The character j was unknown in classical times, and u was but a graphic variation of v. In mediæval Latin j and v came to be used to indicate the consonant sounds of i and v (u), and this usage is often followed by modern editors in writing small letters. In writing capitals, however, the forms J and U are avoided. Thus iuvēnis, iuvēnis, or iuvēnis, — but IVVENIS.

In this book vowel and consonant i are both represented by the same character, i; but v is used for the consonant, u for the vowel sound of v (u). Thus iustus, vir, iuvēnis.

NOTE 2.—The English sounds of j and v did not exist in Latin in classical times, though consonant v (u) began no doubt to approach English v in many persons' speech.

NOTE 3.—In the combinations qu, gu, and sometimes su, u forms a compound sound with the preceding consonant, and is reckoned neither as a vowel nor a consonant. Thus aqua, anguis, cōnsuētus. (Cf. English quill, anguish, suave.)

5. The Romans distinguished Long vowels from Short in sound, but had no regular characters to express the difference. At various times attempts were made to mark this distinction, but none came into general use.

In modern times short vowels are marked thus : ă, ě ; and long, thus : ā, ē ; those that may be pronounced either long or short, thus : ǣ, ǿ. In this book all simple vowels not marked are supposed to be short. But final o and i are marked according to their prevailing length or shortness, though they sometimes vary from this quantity in poetry.

NOTE.—Vowels and consonants are not separated by any sharp line from each other, but form a continuous scale from the most open vowel (a) to the mutes, for which the mouth is entirely closed. The general tendency of phonetic changes in language has been from the two extremes towards the middle.

Early Forms.

6. The character c (surd palatal) originally stood for the sonant palatal (g). (Hence, a, b, c, but Alpha, Beta, Gamma.) This force it always retained in the abbreviations C. (for Gāius), and Cn. (Gnaeus).

NOTE.—In prehistoric times these two sounds were confounded, and c was used for both. The character k (surd palatal) was thus supplanted, except in a few words and abbreviations : as, Kal. (Kalendae), Karthāgō.

About 300 B.C. g was invented to distinguish the sonant again, but was put in the place in the alphabet once occupied by g, which at that time had dropped out of use. When z was afterwards restored (in Greek words), it was put at the end of the alphabet.

7. Till after the age of Augustus the use of u (vowel) after u (v) was avoided. This was done either by preserving o, when but for this tendency it would have become u, as in voltus (but cultus), servōs (but dominus), suōs (but meus), quom (but tum), reliquōs (but relictus) ; or in case of quu, by writing cu, as in cūr (for quōr), ecus (for equos, later equus), cum (for quom, very late quum), relicus (for reliquos, later reliquus). Compare c for qu in cotīdiē, written for quotīdiē.

Phonetic Variations.

8. Variations of sound are of two classes :—

1. Inherited differences of form in the same root (see § 22).

NOTE.—These variations of form in words connected with each other by derivation occur in other languages akin to Latin with great regularity and marked significance. They lost their importance in Latin, but have left traces throughout the language, so that its structure cannot be explained without taking them into account.

2. Unconscious alterations of sounds developed in course of time in the language itself.

NOTE.—Such alterations arise in every language after long use from careless articulation and an unconscious tendency to secure an easier utterance ; and they depend very much upon accent. This process is often called phonetic decay or euphonic change.

9. Inherited differences appear in variations of vowels, and less commonly in liquids connected with vowels.

a. Vowels vary between long and short of the same kind: as, emō, I buy, ēmī, I bought; legō, I read, lēgī, I read; tegō, I cover, tēgula, a tile; sonō, I sound, persōna, a mask (as sounded through); regō, I rule, rēx, a king; dux, a leader, ducō, I lead.

b. Vowels vary in quality: as, pendō, I weigh, pondus, weight; tegō, I cover, toga, a robe; fīdus, faithful, foedus, a treaty. (Cf. fall, fell; bind, band, bound.)

c. Vowels vary between a short vowel of one quality and a long vowel or diphthong of another: miser, wretched, maestus, sad; dare, to give, dōnum, gift; agō, I lead, ēgī, I led.

d. Liquids are transposed with vowels, sometimes with change of the vowel: as, spernō, I spurn, sprēvī, I spurned; sternō, I strew, strāvī, I strewed; gignō, I beget, (g)nātus, a son; fulgeō, I shine, flagrō, I burn.

10. Unconscious changes occur in both vowels and consonants.

a. Vowels and diphthongs are weakened, usually in the directions marked on the vowel-scale (see page 2): as, factus, made, cōnfectus, made up; lubet (old) it pleases, libet (later); āgmen, a march, āgminis, of a march; capiō, I take, incipiō, I begin; legō, I pick, colligō, I gather; caedō, I cut, cecīdī, I have cut; saliō, I leap, exsultō, I leap up and down (for joy); pellō, I drive, pulsus, driven; servos, a slave (early), servus, a slave (later); optumus, optimus (see § 12. d); eboris, of ivory, eburneus, made of ivory; vortō (early), I turn, vertō (later), I turn.

NOTE.—When vowels seem to be changed contrary to the direction of the vowel-scale, either both are changed in different degrees from some common vowel higher up the scale, or the change is due to some special cause: as, lēns, euntis (for teions,¹ telontis); volentem, but voluntās (for volont); similis, simul (for simolis, etc.); auceps, aucupis.

b. Two vowels coming together are very often contracted: as, cōgō for co-agō; obīt for obiit; nīl for nihil (see § 347. c); dē-beō for de-hibeō (de-habeō, see a, above); rūrsus, re-versus (re-vorsus, see c below); amārat (for amāverat); cūnctus (for colunctus); sūrgō (for sub-regō).

c. Vowels are often entirely lost between two consonants (syncope): as, audācter for audāciter; iūrgium for iūrigium; disciplīna for discipulīna; caldus (popular), calidus (literary); or at the end of a word: as, dīcō for dīce; satin for satisne; hōrunc for hōrunce.

d. Vowels are rarely inserted between two consonants in the effort to pronounce a difficult combination of sounds (cf. illum for elmi); as, Herculēs for Herclēs, drachuma for drachma, ager for agr(o) (see § 38).

NOTE. — In many cases in which a vowel is sometimes found it is impossible to tell whether it is original or developed: as, sæclum and sæculum.

e. Vowels found long in the earlier language are sometimes shortened later: as, fīdēī (later fīdēī), amāt (later amat: § 375. *g*³).

11. a. Consonants are unconsciously substituted one for another in accordance with regular tendencies of the language. Thus: —

1. r for s between two vowels or before m or n: as, eram (root ES), generis (for †genesis, from genus), maereō (cf. maestus), dirimō (dis-emō), diribeō (dis-habeō), veternus (vetus-nus), carmen (†casmen, cf. Casmēna). (Compare Eng. was, were.)

2. s for d or t, making an easier combination: as, cāsus (for cad-tus), cēssum (cēd-tum), mānsus (man-tus), passus (pad-tus and pat-tus), equester (equet-ter).

b. Consonants are omitted: as, exāmen (exāgmen), caementum (caed-mentum), sēmēstris (ses-mēstris), lūna (luc-na), dēnī (†dec-ni), hōc (abl. for hōd-ce), autumnus (auctumnus, root AUG), fulmen (fulg-men), pērgō (per-regō), līa (stīa), cōr (†cord), lāc (lact-), pēs (†peda).

1. Especially h: as, praebeō (prae-habeō), vēmēns (for vehemēns).

2. And consonant i and v: as, cōniciō (con-iaciō), prōrsus (prō-vorsus).

3. Also s at the end of a word after a short vowel.

NOTE. — This is limited to early Latin and colloquial usage: plēnu(s) fīdēī, quālist (quālis est).

c. Consonants are unconsciously inserted in passing from one sound to another: as, sūmō, I take, sūmpsī, I took, sūmptus, taken (for sūm-sī, sūm-tus); hiemps, winter, hiemis, of winter. Cf. Thompson (Tom's son).

NOTE. — These are called Parasitic sounds.

d. Consonants are transposed: mīsceō, mīxtus (for mīsc-tus).

e. Consonants and vowels are unconsciously changed (dissimilation) to avoid a repetition of the same sound in two successive syllables: parllia (for pallia, from Palēs), meridiēs (for medi-diēs), pietās (for ppiitās, as in cāritās).

NOTE. — In some cases this principle prevents changes which would take place according to other tendencies of speech.

f. A consonant is changed by the influence of a neighboring sound, —

1. Into the same sound as the neighbor (complete assimilation): as, cēssi (cēd-si), summus (sup-mus), sella (sed-la), puella (puer(u)-la), pressi (prem-si), occidō (ob-cadō), mīttissimus (for mīttius-timus).

2. Into a sound of the same organ or the same quality (or both) as the neighbor (partial assimilation) (see table of mutes, § 3): as, conterō (com-terō, labial to lingual), scriptus (scrib-tus, sonant to surd), sēgmentum (†secmentum, surd to sonant), imperō (in-perō, lingual to labial).

NOTE. — Sometimes the first consonant governs (regressive assimilation), sometimes the second (progressive assimilation).

3. These changes affect especially the final consonant of the preposition in Compounds: as, accēdō (ad-cēdō), afficiō (ad-faciō), occurrō (ob-currō), corruō (com-ruō), efferō (eo-ferō), suppōnō (sub-pōnō).

NOTE. — The rules for this assimilation may be given as follows: ad is assimilated before c, g, p, t; less regularly before l, r, s, and rarely before m; while before f, n, q, the form ad is to be preferred. ab is not assimilated, but may take the form a, au, or abs. In com (con, co), m is retained before b, p, m; is assimilated before l, n, r; is changed to n before c, d, f, g, j, q, s, v; sometimes becomes n before p; is sometimes assimilated (otherwise n) before l and r; com loses the final m in cōnectō, cōniveō, cōnitor, cōnūbium. in usually changes n to m before b, m, p; before l the better orthography retains n. ob and sub are assimilated before c, f, g, p, and sometimes before m; sub also before r; and, in early Latin, b of these prepositions sometimes becomes p before s or t. The inseparable amb loses b before a consonant, and m is sometimes assimilated. circum often loses m before l. s of dis before a vowel becomes r, and before a consonant is lost or assimilated. The d of red and sēd is generally lost before a consonant. In most of these cases the later editions prefer the unaltered forms throughout; but the changes given above have good authority. Others, which are corruptions of the middle ages (as assum for adsum), had better be avoided. Lexicons vary in the spelling of these combinations.

12. Variations of Spelling occur in manuscripts and inscriptions, and especially in modern editions. In the following lists the better forms are put first; objectionable forms in parenthesis.

NOTE.—These variations are generally mere mistakes in spelling. Many of them are due to the practice of writing from dictation, by which most MS. copies of the classics were made. A single reader dictated to several copyists, whose spelling was often corrupt. The tendency of the best editions is to restore, as normal, the forms of the late Republic or early Empire (the time of Cicero or Augustus),—so far as these may be determined from inscriptions, etc.,—but to preserve, in each author, any peculiarities that mark the spelling of his time. The choice among forms appears often to be arbitrary, for inscriptions of the same period sometimes differ considerably.

a. The letters and sounds of ci and ti are interchanged before a vowel: nūntiō (nūnciō), contiō (conciō), diciō (ditiō), condiciō (conditiō), suspiciō (suspitiō), tribūnīcius (tribūnītius).

NOTE.—This substitution began very early (in a few words) while the c still had the sound of k. But generally it belongs to a later period of the language, and is due to the disturbing influence of consonant i; nātiō (nafyo) became nacho, or nasio, or nasho. It is this disturbance that has produced the modern sibilant sound of c, as well as that of ti: as, nation (through the French) from nātiō; species, from speciēs.

b. Several words are written sometimes with and sometimes without an initial h: as, harēna or (arēna), erus or (herus), umerus or (humærus), ūmor or (hūmor).

c. In later Latin, ē, æ, and oe became alike in sound (like a in fate), and hence they are often confounded in writing: as, faenus (fēnus, foenus).

d. Other words variously spelled are: adulēscēns, adolēscēns; ahēneus, aēneus; ānulus, annulus; artus, (arctus); autumnus, (auctumnus); caelum (coelum); cum, quom, (quum); epistula, epistola; exsul, exul; fēcundus (foecundus); fēmīna, (foemina); lītera, littera; lubet, libet; lubīdō, libīdō; mīlia, millia; nequīquam, nequicquam, nequidquam; paulus, paullus; quicquam, quidquam; umquam, unquam; vertō, vortō; volnus, vulnus; proelium, (praelium); voltus, vultus; servos, servus. Also the gerundive-form -endus or -undus, and the superlative -imus or -umus.

e. At the end of a few words d was anciently written t: set for sed, aput for apud.

f. Some variations in spelling mark the changes in §§ 10 and 11.

Combinations.

13. Two words are often united in writing, and sometimes in sound. Thus,—

a. Conjunctions or other particles and pronouns are sometimes connected: as in etenim, ūnusquisque, iamdūdum, iamdiū, siquis, siquidem; also a few short phrases, as, quārē, quamobrem, rēspūblica, iūsiūrandum, paterfamiliās.

b. The verb est, is, is sometimes joined with the preceding word, especially in the old poets, when the two would be united by elision: as, homōst, periculumst, ausust, quālist (quālis est) (like thou'rt, I've).

c. Similar contractions are found in vīn' (vīsne), scīn' (scīsne), sīs (sī vīs), sōdēs (sī audēs), sūltis (sī vultis). So in English, don't, won't (wol not).

Syllables.

14. In Latin every word has as many syllables as it has vowels or diphthongs.

a. In the division of words into syllables a single consonant between two vowels is to be written and pronounced with the latter.

NOTE.—This rule applies also to v and consonant i.

b. This rule is sometimes extended to double consonants, or any combination of consonants which can be used to begin a word: as, ho-spes, mā-gnus, dī-xit.

c. In compounds, the parts should be separated: as, ab-est, oblātus.

d. A syllable preceded by a vowel in the same word is called pure, as pi-us; a syllable preceded by a consonant, impure, as cōn-stat.

e. Any syllable ending with a vowel or diphthong is called open; all others are called close. Thus in pa-ter the first syllable is open, the second close.

Kindred Forms.

15. In English words derived from the Latin, the original letters are retained (as ambition from ambitiō).¹ But in native English words which are cognate with the Latin (see Appendix), the original sounds are rarely represented by the same letters in the two languages, but usually by closely related letters which regularly correspond.

¹ Many words, however, coming through the French follow French changes: as, fashion, façon (factiō); chivalry, cheval (caballus); chimney, cheminée (camīnus).

LATIN	ENGLISH
c, k, qu	H, WH: quī, who ; cōs, hone ; carpō, harvest ; calō (kalendae), hail ; cord-, heart .
g	K, CH: genus, kin ; genū, knee ; gūstō, choose .
t	TH: tū, thou ; trēs, three ; tenuis, thin .
	T or D (rarely): stāre, stand ; torreō, dry .
d	T: duō, two ; dēns, tooth ; sedeō, sit .
p	F: pater, father ; pullus, foal ; pauci, few .
f (for bh)	B: ferō (φέρω), bear ; frāter (φράτηρ), brother .
f (for dh)	D: forēs (θύρα), doors ; fera (θήρ), deer .
h	G: vehō, wagon ; haedus, goat ; hostis, guest .
i cons., v	Y, W: iugum, yoke ; ovis, ewe .

Sometimes a consonant lost in the Latin appears in the English word. Thus, (s)niv-, snow; (h)ānser, goose; (s)nervo-, snare.

Sounds of the Letters.

NOTE.—The pronunciation of Latin is different in different countries. Among us, it usually follows one of two ways, which may be called the Roman (or Phonetic) and the English method.

16. By the Roman (or Phonetic) method, every letter has always the same sound.

NOTE.—A long vowel in our enunciation almost necessarily acquires a slightly different quality from a short one, as in boot and foot, machine and holiest. See also bs below.

VOWELS:	ā as in father ;	ǣ as in idea .
	ē as eh? (prolonged); they ;	ĕ as eh? (clipped).
	ī as in machine ;	ĭ as in holiest .
	ō as in holy ;	ŏ as in obey .
	ū as oo in boot ;	ŭ as oo in foot .
	y between u and i (German ü).
DIPHTHONGS:	ae like ay ; oe like oy ; au like ow in now .
	ei as in eight ; eu as eh'oo ; ui as oo'ee .
CONSONANTS, as in English, except that:	c and g are always hard, as in come , get . s is always sharp, as in sea , lips .
	i cons. is like y in young ; v (cons. u), like w in wing ; qu as in English.
	bs is like ps ; ch like k ; ph like f . n before s or f was combined with the preceding vowel somewhat as French nasal n , making the vowel long.
	z as dz in adze .
	th as in rathole , later as in thin .

NOTE 1.— In the ancient pronunciation, ph was distinguished from f by being sounded with the lips only, instead of lip and teeth.

NOTE 2.— In many words (as abietis, tenuis), i and u sometimes had the consonant sound, though usually in such words reckoned as vowels.

NOTE 3.— The diphthong æ was anciently sounded as above, but early in the time of the Empire acquired from popular or provincial use the long sound of e.

NOTE 4.— When two consonants come together (as in condō, postea), or a consonant is doubled (as in annus, ūllus, mittō), care should be taken to pronounce both letters distinctly. It was doubtless this distinct pronunciation of consonants that made a syllable with a short vowel long by Position (§ 18. d).

17. By the English method, the letters have the same sounds as in English; but —

a. Final a is pronounced as in America; but in the monosyllables ā, dā, quā, stā, sometimes as in pay; e in open syllables as in me, in close as in men; i in open syllables as in Hi! in close as in pin; o in open syllables as in tone, in close as in not; u as in pull or as in hull, without any definite rules, as ūllus (like gull us), but fullō (like full oh); y like i.

NOTE.— In this method of pronunciation, syllables are often treated as open or close according to the position of the accent: as, ī'-ter (open), īt-ī'-neris (close).

b. The diphthongs æ, œ, are pronounced like e; au like aw; eu like ew; ei and ui like i in kite; es and (in plural words) ōs at the end of a word as in disease, morose.

c. The consonants c and g are made soft (like s and j) before e, i, y, æ, œ, eu; ch is always hard, as in chasm, chemist.

NOTE.— The English method should be retained in Roman names in English, as Julius Caesar; and in familiar quotations, as e pluribus unum; viva voce; vice versa; a fortiori; veni, vidi, vici, etc.

Quantity and Accent.

18. Vowels are long or short (as affecting their pronunciation) only by nature. Syllables (as affecting accent and metrical value) are long or short, according to their vowel, but are also made long by Position through the obstruction of consonants. The length or shortness in both cases is called Quantity (cf. § 347).

NOTE.— Some of the rules of Quantity affect length by nature only, some length by position only, and some both.

a. A vowel before another vowel or h is short: as in vīa, nīhil.

b. A diphthong is long: as in āedēs, foedus. So, also, a vowel derived from a diphthong: as, exclūdō (ex-claudō).

c. A vowel formed by contraction is long: as, nīl (nihil).

d. A syllable in which a vowel is followed by two consonants (except a mute with l or r), or a double consonant (xx, zz), is long by Position; as in pingō, saxum, Mezentius. Before nf and ns, gn and gm, and i consonant the vowel itself becomes long by nature: as in Inferō, praesēns, māgnus, āgmen, hūius.

e. A syllable in which a short vowel is followed by a mute with l or r is common; i.e. it may be long in verse: as in alacris, latebrae.

f. A vowel before nd, nt is regularly short by nature: as, amānt, amāndus from amāre.

NOTE.—A vowel is lengthened before i cons. because another i (vowel) is developed as a vanish; thus ā(i)yo becomes āiō.

19. In Latin the accent in words of more than one syllable is on the Penult or Antepenult.

DEFINITION: The Penult is the last syllable but one; the Antepenult, the last but two.

a. Words of two syllables are always accented on the first syllable: Rō'ma, ve'hō, i'pse.

b. Words of more than two syllables are accented on the Penult, if that is long: as, amī'cus, praesen'tis; if it is short or common, on the Antepenult: as, do'mīnus, a'lacris, la'tebrae, conti'nūō, praete'rītum, dissociā'bilis.

NOTE.—In words of more than four syllables a secondary accent usually arises at a convenient distance from the main accent: as, nāvigā''tiō'nibus, pecū''liā'ria.

c. When an Enclitic is joined to a word, the accent falls on the syllable next before the enclitic, whether long or short: as, dēā'que, āmāre've, tibi'ne, itā'que (and . . . so), as distinguished from i'tāque (therefore). So (according to some) ex'inde, ec'quando, etc.

d. EXCEPTIONS: 1. Certain apparent compounds of faciō retain the accent of the simple verb: as, benefā'cit, calefā'cit (see § 169. a) (These were not true compounds, but phrases.)

2. In the second declension the genitive and vocative of nouns in -ius, and the genitive of those in -ium retain the accent of the nominative: as, Cornē'li, Vergī'li, inge'nī (see § 40. c).

3. Certain words which have lost a final vowel retain the accent of the complete words: as, illī'c for illī'ce, prōdū'c for prōdūce, sati'n for sati'sne.

NOTE.—The ancients recognized three accents, acute (´), grave (`), and circumflex (^). Accent no doubt originally consisted in a change of pitch,—elevation, depression, or both combined,—and not merely in a more forcible utterance (ictus). But in Latin this pitch accent had been supplanted by a stress accent in historical times.

CHAPTER II.—Words and their Forms.

Inflection.

20. INFLECTION is a change made in the form of a word, to show its grammatical relations.

a. Inflectional changes sometimes take place in the body of a word, or at the beginning, but oftener in its termination: as, vōx, a voice; vōcis, of a voice; vocō, I call; vocat, he calls; vocāvit, he has called; tangit, he touches; tetigit, he touched.

b. Terminations of inflection had originally independent meanings which are now obscured. They correspond nearly to the use of prepositions, auxiliaries, and personal pronouns in English; thus, in vocat, the termination is equivalent to he or she; in vōcis, to the preposition of or the like; and in vocet the change of vowel signifies a change of mood.

c. Inflectional changes in the body of a verb usually denote relations of tense or mood, and correspond to the use of auxiliary verbs in English: as, frangit, he breaks or is breaking; frēgit, he broke or has broken; mordet, he bites; momordit, he bit.¹

Root and Stem.

21. The body of a word, to which the terminations are attached, is called the STEM.²

The Stem contains the idea of the word without relations; but, except in the first part of a compound, it cannot be used without some termination to express them. Thus the stem vōc- denotes voice; with -s added it becomes vōx, a voice or the voice, as the subject or agent of an action; with -is it becomes vōcis, and signifies of a voice. The stem is in many forms so united with the termination that a comparison with other forms is necessary to determine it.

² The name Stem is sometimes incorrectly given to that part of a word — as serv- in servus — which is unchanged in inflection. This may be called the base.

22. A Root is the simplest form attainable by analysis of a word into its component parts. Such a form contains the main idea of the word in a very general sense, and is common also to other words either in the same or kindred languages.¹

Thus the root of the stem vōc- is VOC, which does not mean to call, or I call, or calling, but merely expresses vaguely the idea of calling, and cannot be used as a part of speech without terminations. With -ā- it becomes vocā-, the stem of vocāre (to call); with -āvi- it is the stem of vocāvit (he called); with -āto- it becomes the stem of vocātus (called); with -ātiōn- it becomes the stem of vocātiōnis (of a calling). With its vowel lengthened it becomes the stem of vōx- (a voice: that by which we call). This stem, again, with -ālis added, means belonging to a voice; with -ūla, a little voice.

NOTE.—In inflected languages, words are built up from Roots, which at a very early time were used alone to express ideas, as is now done in Chinese. Roots are modified into Stems, which, by inflection, become Words. The process by which roots are modified, in the various forms of derivatives and compounds, is called Stem-building. The whole of this process is originally one of composition, by which significant endings are added one after another to forms capable of pronunciation and conveying a meaning.

Roots had long ceased to be recognized as such before the Latin existed as a separate language. Consequently the forms which we assume as Latin roots never really existed in Latin, but are the representatives of forms used earlier.

23. The Stem is sometimes the same as the root: as in duc-is, of a leader, fer-t, he bears; but it is more frequently formed from the root—

1. By changing or lengthening its vowel: as in scob-s, sawdust (SCAB, shave); rēg-is, of a king (REG, direct); vōc-is, of a voice (VOC, call).

2. By the addition of a simple suffix (originally another root): as in fug-a, flight (FUG + a); fugi-s, you fly (FUG + ya); pangō, I fasten (PAG + na).

3. By two or more of these methods: as in dūc-it, he leads (DUC + a), tollō, I raise (TUL + ya).

4. By derivation and composition, following the laws of development peculiar to the language. (See Chap. VIII.)

24. Inflectional terminations are variously modified by combination with the final vowel or consonant of the Stem, leading to the various forms of Declension and Conjugation (see § 32).

NOTE.—A termination beginning with a vowel is called an open affix; one beginning with a consonant, a close affix. When a close affix is joined to a consonant-stem, there is usually either a euphonic change, as in rōxī for rēg-sī, or a vowel appears, as in rēg-l-bus. But, in most cases, what is called a connecting vowel really belongs to the stem, as in vocā-mus, rēg-l-mus (see § 123).

The Parts of Speech.

25. Words are divided into nine PARTS OF SPEECH: Nouns, Adjectives, Pronouns, Verbs, Participles, Adverbs, Prepositions, Conjunctions, and Interjections.

a. A Noun is the name of a person, place, thing, or idea: as, Caesar; Rōma, Rome; domus, a house; virtūs, virtue. Names of persons and places are PROPER NOUNS; other nouns are called COMMON.

b. An Adjective is a word that attributes a quality: as, bonus, good; fortis, brave, strong.

NOTE.—Etymologically, there is no difference between a noun and an adjective, both being formed alike. So, too, all names originally attribute quality, and any name can still be used to attribute a quality. Thus, King William distinguishes this William from other Williams, by the attribute of royalty expressed in the name King.

c. A Pronoun is a word used to distinguish a person, place, thing, or idea without either naming or describing it: as, is, he; quī, who; nōs, we.

d. A Verb is a word which asserts something: as, sum, I am; amat, he loves.

NOTE.—In all modern speech the verb is usually the only word that asserts anything, and a verb is therefore supposed to be necessary to complete an assertion. Strictly, however, any adjective or noun may, by attributing a quality or giving a name, make a complete assertion. In the infancy of language there could have been no other means of asserting, as the verb is of comparatively late development.

e. A Participle is a word that attributes a quality like an adjective, but being derived from a verb, retains in some degree the power of the verb to assert: as, Caesar cōsul creātus, Cæsar having been elected consul; Caesar Pompēium metuēns, Cæsar fearing Pompey.

f. An Adverb is a word used to express the time, place, or manner of an assertion or attribute: as, splendidē mendāx, gloriously false; hodiē nātus, born to-day.

NOTE.—These same functions are often performed by cases (see §§ 148, 149) of nouns, pronouns, and adjectives, and by phrases or sentences. In fact, all adverbs were originally cases or phrases, but have become specialized by use.

g. A Preposition is a word which shows the relation between a noun and some other word or words in the same sentence: per agrōs it, he goes over the fields; ē plūribus ūnum, one out of many.

NOTE.—Prepositions are specialized adverbs (cf. § 152). The relations expressed by prepositions were earlier expressed by cases.

h. A Conjunction is a word which connects words, phrases, or sentences without affecting their relations: as, et, and; sed, but.

NOTE.—Some adverbs also connect words, etc., like conjunctions. These are called Adverbial Conjunctions or Conjunctive Adverbs: as, ubi, where; dōnec, until.

i. Interjections are mere exclamations. They are not strictly to be classed as Parts of Speech: heus, halloo! ō, oh!

NOTE.—They sometimes express an emotion which affects some other things mentioned, and so have a connection like other words: as, vae victis, woe to the conquered! (alas for the conquered!)

26. Nouns, Adjectives, Pronouns, and Participles have inflections of declension, to denote gender, number, and case. Verbs have inflections of conjugation, to denote voice, mood, tense, number, and person.

NOTE.—Adjectives are often said to have inflections of comparison to indicate degree. These inflections are, however, properly stem-formations made by derivation (cf. § 89).

27. Those parts of speech which are not inflected are called PARTICLES: these are Adverbs, Prepositions, Conjunctions, and Interjections.

NOTE.—The term Particle is sometimes limited to such words as num, -ne, an (interrogative), nōn, nē (negative); si (conditional), etc., which are used simply to indicate the form or construction of a sentence.

Gender.

28. The genders distinguished in Latin are three: Masculine, Feminine, and Neuter.

a. The gender of Latin nouns is either natural or grammatical. Natural gender is distinction as to the sex of the object denoted: as, puer, boy; puella, girl; dōnum, gift.

NOTE.—Many nouns have both a masculine and feminine form to distinguish sex: as, cervus, stag, doe, cliēns, clienta, client; victor, victrix, conqueror.

Many designations of persons (as nauta, sailor), usually though not necessarily male, are always treated as masculine.

b. Grammatical gender¹ is a formal distinction as to sex where no actual sex exists in the object. It is shown by the form of the adjective joined with the noun: as, lapis māgnus (M.), a great stone; manus mea (F.), my hand.

NOTE.—A few neuter nouns are used to designate persons as belonging to a class: as, mancipium tuum, your slave.

Names of classes or bodies of persons may be of any gender: as, exercitus (M.), aciēs (F.), and āgmen (N.), army; operæ (F. pl.), workmen; cōplæ (F. pl.), troops.

Many pet names of girls (as Pægnium, Glycērium) are neuter.

General Rules of Gender.

29. 1. Names of Male beings, Rivers, Winds, Months, and Mountains, are masculine.

2. Names of Female beings, Cities, Countries, Plants, Trees, and Gems, of many Animals (especially Birds), and of most abstract Qualities, are feminine.

NOTE.—The gender of most of the above may be recognized by their terminations, according to the rules given under the several declensions.

a. A few names of Rivers ending in -a (as Allia), with the Greek names Lēthē and Styx, are feminine; others are variable or uncertain.

Some names of Mountains take the gender of their termination: as, Alpēs (F.), the Alps; Sōracte (N.).

Names of Months are properly adjectives, the masculine noun mēnsis, month, being understood: as, Iānuārius, January.

b. Some names of Towns and Countries are masculine: as, Sulmō, Gabiī (plur.); or neuter, as Tarentum, Illyricum.

A few names of Plants and Gems follow the gender of their termination: as, centaurēum (N.), centaury; acanthus (M.), bearsfoot; opalus (M.), opal.

¹ What we call grammatical gender is in most cases the product of the imagination in a rude age, when language was in the course of growth. Thus a River was seen, or a Wind was felt, as a living creature, violent and strong, and so is masculine; and the fable of Atlas shows how similar living attributes were ascribed to Mountains, which, in the northern fables, are the bones of giants. Again, the Earth, or a country or city, seems the mother of its progeny; the Tree shelters and ripens its fruit, as a brooding bird her nest of eggs; and, to this day, a Ship is always referred to by a feminine pronoun.

Again, in the East and South, the Sun, from its fierce heat and splendor, is masculine, and its paler attendant, the Moon, feminine; while, among Northern nations, the Sun (perhaps for its comforting warmth) is feminine, and the Moon (the appointer of works and days), masculine. The rules of grammatical gender only repeat and extend these early workings of the fancy.

c. Indeclinable nouns, infinitives, terms or phrases used as nouns, and words quoted merely for their form, are neuter: as, fās, right; nihil, nothing; gummī, gum; scīre tuum, your knowledge (to know); triste valē, a sad farewell; hōc ipsum diū, this very "long."

30. Many nouns may be either masculine or feminine, according to the sex of the object. These are said to be of Common Gender: as, exsul, exile; bōs, ox or cow.

a. If a noun signifying a thing without life may be either masculine or feminine, — as, diēs, day; finis, end, — it is sometimes said to be of Doubtful Gender.

b. Several names of animals have a grammatical gender, independent of sex. These are called Epicene. Thus lepus, hare, is always masculine, and vulpēs, fox, is always feminine. To denote a male fox we may say, vulpēs mascula; a female hare, lepus fēmina.

Number and Case.

31. Nouns, Pronouns, Adjectives, and Participles are declined in two Numbers, singular and plural; and in six Cases, nominative, genitive, dative, accusative, vocative, ablative.

a. The Nominative is the case of the Subject of a sentence.

b. The Genitive may generally be translated by the English Possessive, or by the Objective with the preposition of.

c. The Dative is the case of the Indirect Object (§ 177). It may usually be translated by the Objective with the preposition to or for; but sometimes by the Objective without a preposition.

d. The Accusative is the case of the Direct Object of a verb (§ 177). It is used also with many of the Latin Prepositions.

e. The Vocative is the case of Direct Address.

f. The Ablative may usually be translated by the Objective with from, by, with, in, or at. It is also often used with prepositions.

g. All the cases, except the nominative and vocative, may be used as object-cases; and are sometimes called Oblique Cases (cāsūs obliquī).

NOTE.—A more convenient arrangement of the cases is the following (see n., p. 205):

DIRECT CASES: Nominative, Vocative, Accusative.

INDIRECT CASES: Genitive, Dative, Ablative.

h. In names of towns and a few other words appear traces of another case (the Locative), denoting the place where.

i. Still another case, the Instrumental, appears in a few adverbs (§ 148).

NOTE.—As the proper inflectional terminations early became fused with the stem in many cases, Latin words are inflected practically by adding case-endings to a part of the noun called the base, which is invariable (see § 21, note 2). But the base and case-endings do not exactly correspond to the proper stem and termination.

CHAPTER III.—Declension of Nouns.

32. NOUNS are inflected in five Declensions, distinguished by the case-ending of the Genitive Singular, and by the final letter (characteristic) of the Stem.¹

DECL.	1.	Gen. Sing.	ae	Characteristic	ā (anciently ā)
"	2.	"	ī	"	ō
"	3.	"	is	"	ī or a Consonant
"	4.	"	ūs (uis)	"	ū

a. The Stem of a noun may be found, if a consonant-stem, by omitting the case-ending; if a vowel-stem, by substituting for the case-ending the characteristic vowel.

b. The Nominative of most masculine and feminine nouns (except in the first declension) is formed from the stem by adding s.²

NOTE.—But many, however, end in o, or in the liquids, l, n, r,—the original s (sometimes with one or more letters of the stem) having been lost by phonetic decay (§ 11). In some (as in servus, st. servo—) the stem-vowel is modified before the final s; or, as in ager, imber, st. agro-, imbri-, a vowel has intruded itself into the stem.

33. The following are general Rules of Declension:—

a. The Vocative is always the same as the Nominative, except in the singular of nouns in us of the second declension.³

¹ Declension is produced by adding terminations originally significant to different forms of stems, vowel or consonant. The various phonetic corruptions in the language have given rise to the several declensions; but it is probable that originally there was only one, with perhaps a few variations. The original terminations (answering to prepositions) can no longer be determined with certainty, except in a few cases. Most of the case-endings, as given in Latin, contain also the final letter of the stem.

Adjectives are, in general, declined like nouns, and are etymologically to be classed with them. But they have several peculiarities of inflection, and will be more conveniently treated in a group by themselves (see Chap. IV.).

² The s of the nominative is the remnant of an old demonstrative sa, which is found (with modifications) in the Sanskrit personal pronoun, in the Greek article, and in the English she.

³ In the first and second declensions the vocative ends in the weakened stem-vowel. Most of the words likely to be used in address are of these declensions; and, in practice, comparatively few other words have a vocative. It is given in the paradigms for the sake of symmetry, but may well be omitted in declining.

b. In neuters the Nominative and Accusative are always alike, and in the plural end in ā.

c. The Accusative singular of all masculines and feminines ends in m; the Accusative plural in s.

d. In the last three declensions (and in a few cases in the others) the Dative singular ends in ī.

e. The Dative and Ablative plural are always alike.

f. The Genitive plural always ends in um.

g. Final i, o, u of inflection are always long; final a is short, except in the Ablative singular of the first declension; final e is long in the first and fifth declensions, short in the second and third.

34. The Case-endings of the several declensions are the following, rare forms being given in parenthesis, Greek forms in italics :—

DECL. I.	II.	III.	IV.	V.
Sing.
N. ā, ē, ās, ēs	us, um, cr, os, on, eus s (or modified stem)		us, ū	ēs

D.A. īs (ābus)	īs (ōbus)	ibus	ibus (ūbus)	ēbus
A. ās	ōs	ēs (īs), a, ia, ēs	ūs, ua	ēs

FIRST DECLENSION.

35. The Stem of nouns of the First Declension ends in ā, and except in Greek nouns the nominative is like the stem.

Latin nouns of the First Declension are thus declined :—

	SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
NOM.	stellā, a (or the) star.	stellae, stars.
GEN.	stellae, of a star.	stellārum, of stars.
DAT.	stellae, to (or for) a star.	stellīs, to (or for) stars.
ACC.	stellam, a star.	stellās, stars.
VOC.	stella, thou star!	stellae, ye stars!
ABL.	stellā, with, from, etc., a star.	stellīs, with, from, etc., stars.

NOTE — The a- of the stem was originally long.

GENDER. — Nouns of the first declension are Feminine.

EXCEPTIONS: Nouns masculine from their signification: as, nauta, sailor. So a few family or personal names: as, Mūrēna, Scaevola.¹ Also, Hadria, the Adriatic.

36. CASE-FORMS. — a. The Genitive singular anciently ended in -āī, which is occasionally found: as, aulāī. The same ending occurs in the dative, but only as a diphthong.

b. An old genitive in -ās is preserved in the word familiās, used in the combinations pater (māter, filius, filia) familiās, father, etc., of a family (plur. patrēs familiās or familiārum).

c. The Locative form (§ 31. h) for the singular ends in -ae; for the plural in īs: as, Rōmae, at Rome; Athēnīs, at Athens.

d. The Genitive plural is sometimes found in -ūm instead of -ārum, especially in compounds with cōla and gēna, signifying dwelling and descent: as, caelicolūm, celestials; Trōiugenūm, sons of Troy; Aeneadūm, sons of Aeneas; so amphora and drachma.

e. The Dative and Ablative plural of dea, goddess, filia, daughter, end in an older form -ābus. So rarely with liberta, freed-woman; mūla, she-mule; equa, mare. But, except when the two sexes (as in formulas, documents, etc.) are mentioned together, the form in -īs is preferred in all but dea and filia.

f. The original ending of the Ablative -d is retained in early Latin: as, praedād, booty.

Greek Nouns.

37. Many nouns of the first declension borrowed from the Greek are entirely Latinized, but many retain traces of their Greek forms in various degrees.

	a court (F.).	Electra (F.).	a synopsis (F.).	the art of music (F.).
NOM.	aula	Ēlectrā (ā)	epitomē	mūsica (ē)
GEN.	aulae	Ēlectrae	epitomēs	mūsicae (ēs)
DAT.	aulae	Ēlectrae	epitomae	mūsicae
ACC.	aulam	Ēlectram (ān)	epitomēn	mūsicam (ēn)
VOC.	aula	Ēlectra	epitomē	mūsica (ē)
ABL.	aulā	Ēlectrā	epitomē	mūsicā (ē)

¹ A feminine adjective, used as a noun, meaning little left hand, but from being a name of a man it becomes masculine. Original genders are often thus changed by the use of a noun in another sense.

Andromache (F.). Æneas (M.). Leonidas (M.). a Persian (M.).

NOM.	Andromachē (a)	Aenēās	Leōnidās	Persēs (a)
GEN.	Andromachēs (ae)	Aenēae	Leōnidae	Persae
DAT.	Andromachae	Aenēae	Leōnidae	Persae
ACC.	Andromachēn (am)	Aenēān (am)	Leōnidam	Persēn (am)
VOC.	Andromachē (a)	Aenēā (ā)	Leōnidā (ā)	Persa
ABL.	Andromachē (ā)	Aenēā	Leōnidā	Persē (ā)

Anchises (M.). son of Æneas (M.). comet (M.).

NOM.	Anchisēs	Aeneadēs (ā)	comētēs (a)
GEN.	Anchisae	Aeneadae	comētae
DAT.	Anchisae	Aeneadae	comētae
ACC.	Anchisēn (am)	Aeneadēn	comētēn (am)
VOC.	Anchisē (ā, ā)	Aeneadē (ā)	comētā
ABL.	Anchisē (ā)	Aeneadē (ā)	comētā (ē)

Also Scīpiadam, from Scīpiadēs, in Horace.

a. Many Greek nouns vary between the first, the second, and the third declensions: as, Boōtae (gen. of Boōtēs, -is), Thūcȳdidās (acc. plur. of Thūcȳdidēs, -is). See § 43. a and § 63.

b. Greek forms are found only in the singular; the plural is regular: as, comētae, -ārum, etc. There are (besides proper names) about thirty-five of these words, several being names of plants, or names of arts: as, crambē, cabbage; mūsicē, music. Most have also regular Latin forms: as, comēta, but the nominative sometimes has the a long.

SECOND DECLENSION.

38. The Stem of nouns of the Second Declension ends in ō¹ (as of vir, virō; servos (-us), servō; dominus, dominō). The nominative is formed from the stem by adding s in masculines and feminines, m in neuters, the vowel ō being weakened to ū (see §§ 7 and 10).

In most nouns whose stem ends in rō- the s is not added, but o is lost, and e intrudes before r, if not already present (cf. chamber from chambre): as, ager, stem agrō-, Greek ἀγρός. Exceptions are hesperus, icterus, iūniperus, mōrus, numerus, taurus, umerus, uterus, vīrus, and many Greek nouns.

Latin nouns of the Second Declension are thus declined:—

Sing.	slave (M.).	boy (M.).	field (M.).	man (M.).	war (N.).
NOM.	servus (os)	puer	ager	vir	bellum
GEN.	servī	puerī	agrī	virī	bellī
DAT.	servō	puerō	agrō	virō	bellō
ACC.	servum (om)	puerum	agrum	virum	bellum
VOC.	serve	puer	ager	vir	bellum
ABL.	servō	puerō	agrō	virō	bellō
Plur.
NOM.	servī	puerī	agrī	virī	bella
GEN.	servōrum	puerōrum	agrōrum	virōrum	bellōrum
DAT.	servīs	puerīs	agrīs	virīs	bellīs
ACC.	servōs	puerōs	agrōs	virōs	bella
VOC.	servī	puerī	agrī	virī	bella
ABL.	servīs	puerīs	agrīs	virīs	bellīs

NOTE.—The earlier forms for nominative and accusative were -os, -on, and these were always retained after u and v up to the end of the Republic. The terminations s and m are sometimes omitted in inscriptions: as, Cornēllio for Cornēllios, Cornēlliom.

39. GENDER.—Nouns ending in us (os), er, ir, are Masculine; those ending in um (on) are Neuter. But—

a. Names of towns in us (os) are Feminine: as, Corinthus. Also many names of plants and gems, with the following: alvos, belly; carbassus, linen (plural carbasa, sails, N.); colus, distaff; humus, ground; vannus, winnowing-shovel. Many Greek nouns retain their original gender: as, arctus (F.), the Polar Bear; methodus (F.), method.

b. The following in us are Neuter; their accusative, as of all neuters, is the same as the nominative: pelagus (nom. acc. plur. pelagē), sea; vīrus, poison; vulgus (rarely M.), the crowd; so cētē, sea-monsters (nominative plural without nominative singular).

40. CASE-FORMS.—a. The Locative form of this declension ends for the singular in i: as, humī, on the ground; Corinthī, at Corinth; for the plural, in īs: as, Philippīs, at Philippi.

b. The genitive of nouns in ius or ium ended, until the Augustan Age, in a single i: as, filī, of a son; but the accent of the nominative is retained: as, ingēnī, of genius.¹ The same contraction occurs in the genitive singular and the dative and ablative plural of nouns in -āius and -ēius: as, Grāīs, for the Greeks; Pompēī, of Pompey.

¹ The genitive in īi occurs twice in Virgil, and constantly in Ovid, but was unknown to Cicero. The first i was probably retained in sound as y.

c. Proper names in -ius lose e in the vocative, retaining the accent of the nominative: as, Vergī'II; also, filius, son; genius, divine guardian: as, audī, mī fili, hear, my son.

d. Greek names in -ius have the vocative īe. Adjectives in -ius form the vocative in -ie, and some of these are occasionally used as nouns: as, Lacedaemonie, oh Spartan.

e. The genitive plural often has ūm or (after v) ōm (cf. § 7) for ōrum, especially in the poets: as, deūm, superūm, dīvōm, of the Gods, virūm, of men. Also in compounds of vir, and in many words of money, measure, and weight: as, sēvirūm, of the Sevirī, nummūm, of coins, iugerūm, of acres.

f. Deus, god, has vocative deus; plural: nominative and vocative dei or dī (for dīi); genitive deōrum, deūm; dative and ablative deīs or dīs (for dīīs). For the genitive plur. dīvūm or dīvōm (from dīvus, divine) is often used.

g. The original ending of the ablative -d is found in early Latin: as, Gnaivōd (later, Gnaeō), Cneius.

41. The following stems in ero-, in which e belongs to the stem, retain the e throughout:—

adulter, adulterer; gener, son-in-law; puer, boy; socer, father-in-law; vesper, evening.

Also, compounds in fer and ger (stem fero-, gero-): as, lūcifer, morning star; armiger, squire.

a. Some of these have an old nominative in -erus: as, socerus. So vocative puere, a boy, as from puerus (regularly puer).

b. Vir, man, has the genitive virī; the adjective satur, sated, has satūrī; vesper, evening, has abl. vespere (loc. vesperī, in the evening).

c. Līber (a name of Bacchus) has genitive Līberī; so, too, the adjective līber, free, of which līberī, children, is the plural (§ 82. b).

d. Ibēr and Celtibēr, barbaric names not properly belonging to this declension, retain ē throughout.

e. Mulciber, Vulcan, has -berī and -brī in the genitive.

42. The following not having e in the stem insert it in the nominative and vocative singular. (Cf. § 10. d.)

ager, field, st. agro; coluber, snake; magister, master; aper, boar; conger, sea-eel; minister, servant;

arbiter, judge; culter, knife; oleaster, wild-olive;

auster, south wind; faber, smith; onager (-grus), wild-ass; cancer, crab; fiber, beaver; scomber (-brus), mackerel.

caper, goat; liber, book;

[N.B. — For the corresponding forms of Adjectives, see Chap. IV.]

43. Greek nouns—including many names in -eus—are declined as follows in the Singular, the Plural being regular:—

a. Many names in -ēs belonging to the third declension have also a genitive in -ī: as, Thūcýdidēs, Thūcýdidī (compare §§ 37. b and 52).

b. Several names in -er have also a nominative in -us: as, Teucer or Teucrus. The name Panthūs has the vocative Panthū (§ 63. i').

c. The genitive plural of certain titles of books takes the Greek termination -ōn: as, Geōrgicōn, of the Georgics.

d. The termination -oe (for Greek -α) is sometimes found in the nominative plural: as, Adelphoe, the Adelphi (a play of Terence).

THIRD DECLENSION.

Nouns of the Third Declension are best classed according to their stems, as ending (1) in a Vowel (i), (2) in a Liquid (l, n, r), (3) in a Mute.

A few whose stems end in u, formerly long (grūs, sūs), were treated as consonant-stems.

1. Mute-Stems.

44. Masculine and Feminine nouns, whose stem ends in a Mute, form the nominative by adding -s. If the mute is a lingual (t, d), it is suppressed before -s; if it is a palatal (c, g), it unites with -s, forming -x: as,— op-is, ops, help; custōd-is, custōs, guardian; rēg-is, rēx, king.¹

Neuters have for the nominative the simple stem (with some modifications, see § 45).

capit-is, caput, head; poēmat-is, poēma, poem.

¹ In these the genitive is given first to show the stem as it occurs in practice.

45. The vowel before the final consonant of the stem is often modified : —

a. LABIALS. — Stems in -īp- have e before p in the nominative :¹ as, adīp-is, adeps. Most stems in -cip- are compounds of the root CAP (in capiō, take) : as, particip-is, particeps, sharer. In these the stem sometimes has the form cup- : as, aucup-is, auceps, fowler.

b. LINGUALS. — Stems in -īt- (M. or F.) have e (short) in the nominative : as, hospit-is, hospes. The neuter capit-is has caput. Neuter stems ending in two consonants, and those ending in -āt- (Greek nouns), drop the final lingual : as, cord-is, cor; poēmat-is, poēma.

c. PALATALS. — Stems in -īc- (short i) have the nominative in -ex, with a few exceptions (§ 67. e), and are chiefly masculine : as, apic-is, apex; indic-is, index. Those in -īc- (long i) retain ī, and are feminine : as, cornīc-is, cornīx.²

46. Nouns of this class are declined as follows : —

Sing. help (F.) king (M.). guide (C.).³ soldier (M.). head (N.).

¹ In these cases o is a less weakened form of the root (§ 10. a). A few whose root-vowel is i follow the analogy of the others : as, indic-is, index.

² In nix, nivis, the nominative retains a palatal lost in the other cases (original stem snig-, compare § 15. and ningit, § 146. a). Supellex (-ectilis) is partly a lingual, partly an i-stem. Of apparent s-stems in Latin, ās (assis) is an i-stem; and the original stem of os (ossis) is ostl- (cf. ὀστέον and Sanskrit asthi). Original s-stems have either (1) passed into r-stems (changed from s (§ 11. a. 1))¹ in most of the cases, as honor, -ōris, corpus, -ōris (see liquid stems); or (2) have broken down into i-stems, as mōlēs (cf. molestus), nūbēs (Sanskrit nabhas), sēdēs (cf. sedes), vīs (plur. vīrēs), etc., but vās keeps its proper form in the nominative.

³ Common gender, see § 30.

⁴ The singular (meaning help) is not used in the nominative, except as the name of a divinity. The dative singular occurs but once.

47. In like manner are declined —

prīnceps , -ipis (C.), chief ;	ariēs , -etis (M.), ram ;
lapis , -idis (M.), stone ;	iūdex , -icis (M.), judge ;

comes , -itis (C.), companion ;	poēma , -atis (N.), poem (§ 47. b).

a. Many apparent mute-stems,¹ having the genitive plural in -ium, are to be classed with i-stems (§ 54).

b. Greek neuters (as poēma), with nominative singular in -a, frequently end in the dative and ablative plural in -is, and in the genitive plural rarely in -ōrum.

c. A few nouns apparent i-stems belong here: canis, or canēs, gen. canis (stem orig. can-), dog.

2. Liquid-Stems.

48. In nouns whose stem ends in a Liquid (l, n, r), the nominative is the same as the stem, except when modified as follows:—

a. Stems in ōn- (M. and F.) drop n in the nominative: as in leōn-is, leō, lion; legiōn-is, legiō, legion.

b. Stems in dīn- or gīn- (mostly feminine) drop n and keep an original ō in the nominative: as, virgin-is, virgō, maiden. Also a few others:² as, homin-is, homō, man; turbīn-is, turbō, whirlpool; Apollīn-is, Apollō; carn-is, carō, flesh (see § 61); Aniēn-is, Aniō. Most other stems in īn- have e and retain n: as, cornicin-is, cornicen (M.), horn-blower; carmin-is, carmen (N.), song.³

c. Stems in tr- have -ter in the nominative: as, patr-is, pater, father; mātr-is, māter, mother.⁴

d. Many neuter stems in er- and or- (originally s-stems) have -us in the nominative: as, oper-is, opus, work; corpor-is, corpus, body. Some stems in er- have -is: as, cīnēr-is, cīnis, ashes.

A few masculine and feminine stems have the nominative in -s as well as -r: as, honōr-is, honōs (or honor); arbōr-is, arbōs (or arbor), tree.⁵

NOTE.—For some irregular nominatives of this kind, see § 5a.

¹ That is, as would appear from the nominative.

² All these had originally ō in the stem.

³ These differences are inherited from the parent speech, and depend upon different modifications of the same original vowel (§ 10).

⁴ These, no doubt, had originally tēr- in the stem, but this had become weakened to tr- in some of the cases even in the parent speech. In Latin only the nom. and voc. sing. show the e. But cf. Mārspitris and Mārspiteris (Mā(r)s-piter).

⁵ See Note 2, page 26.

e. Stems in ll-, rr- (N.) lose one of their liquids in the nominative: as, farr-is, far, grain; fell-is, fel, gall.

The following apparently liquid stems have the genitive plural in -ium, and are to be classed with the i-stems: imber, linter, ŭter, venter; fŭr, glŭs, lār, mās, mŭs, [trĕn]; also vīrēs (pl. from vīs: see § 61).

3. Vowel-Stems.

51. Vowel-stems of the Third Declension end in i- (as turris, stem turri-; mare, stem mari-). The nominative, except in neuters, is formed by adding -s to the stem.

a. Thirty-five nouns change ī to ē in the nominative,¹ and many others vary between i and ē: as, cīvēs or cīvis, citizen; canēs or canis.

b. The nominative of a few stems in bri- and tri- does not add -s, but loses i, inserting e before r. These are imber, linter, ŭter, venter (§ 54, and cf. ager).

c. The nominative of neuters is the same as the stem, with the change of ī to ē (as in mare). But when i was preceded by al or ar, the e was lost, as in animal (§ 53. c).²

b. Those in -er, except pater, māter, frāter, accipiter.

c. Neuters in -al, -ar (originally neuters of adjectives in -ālis, -āris) which have lost a final -e.¹

54. Many nouns with apparently consonant-stems were originally i-stems.² These are—

1. Monosyllables with stem apparently ending in two consonants: as, urbs, mōns (gen. montis), nox (gen. noctis), arx; together with imber, linter, ūter, venter (§ 51. b).

2. Stems in tāt- (as cīvitās, -ātis),³ or in d or t preceded by a consonant (including participles used as nouns); also the monosyllables dōs, [ffaux], fūr, glīs, līs, mās, mūs, nix, [frēn], strīx, vīs, acrobs (cf. § 50).

3. Nouns denoting birth or abode, having stems in āt-, īt-, originally adjectives: as, Arpīnās, -ātis (§ 164. c.), with penātēs and optimātēs (§ 76. 2).

² The i-declension was confused even to the Romans themselves, nor was it stable at all periods of the language, early Latin having i-forms which afterwards disappeared. There was a tendency in nouns to lose the i-forms, in adjectives to gain them. The nominative plural (-is) was most thoroughly lost, next the accusative form (-im), next the ablative (-ī); while the genitive and accusative plural (-ium, -is) were retained in almost all.

³ These, however, more commonly have the genitive plural in -um.

NOTE.—The declension of these nouns in the singular differs in no respect from that of consonant-stems, and in the plural in no respect from that of vowel-stems.

55. Vowel-stems show the i of the stem in the following forms :—

- a.* They all have the genitive plural in -ium (but some monosyllables lack it entirely). For a few exceptions, see § 59.
- b.* All neuters have the nominative and accusative plural in -ia.
- c.* The accusative plural (M. or F.) is regularly -īs.
- d.* The accusative singular (M. or F.) of a few ends in -im (§ 56).
- e.* The ablative singular of all neuters, and of many masculines and feminines, ends in -ī (see § 57).

56. The regular case-ending of the accusative singular of i-stems (M. or F.) would be -im : as, sītis, sitim (cf. stella, -am ; servos, -om) ; but in most nouns this is changed to -em (following the consonant declension).

- a.* The accusative in -im is found exclusively—
 1. In Greek nouns and names of rivers.
 2. In būris, cucumis, rāvis, sītis, tussis, vīs.
 3. In adverbs in -tim (being accusative of nouns in -tis), as partim ; and in amussim.
- b.* The accusative in -im is found sometimes in febris, puppis, restis, turris, secūris, sēmentis, and rarely in many other words.

57. The regular form of the ablative singular of i-stems would be -ī : as, sītis, sitī ; but in most nouns this is changed to -e.

- a.* The ablative in -ī is found exclusively—
 1. In nouns having the accusative in -im (§ 56) ; also secūris.
 2. In the following adjectives used as nouns : aequālis, annālis, aquālis, cōsulāris, gentīlis, molāris, prīmpilāris, tribūlis.
 3. In neuters (whose nominative ends in -e, -al, -ar) : except baccar, iubar, and sometimes (in verse) mare, rēte.

b. The ablative in -ī is found sometimes —

1. In avis, clāvis, febris, finis, ignis,¹ imber, nāvis, ovis, pelvis, puppis, sōmentis, strigilis, turris.

2. In the following adjectives used as nouns: affinis, bipennis, canālis, familiāris, nātālis, rīvālis, sapiēns, tridēns, trirēmis, vōcālis.

c. The ablative of famēs is always famē (§ 78. 1. e). The defective māne has sometimes locative mānī (§ 77. 2. e) used as ablative.

d. Most names of towns in -e, — as Praeneste, Tergeste, — and Sōracte, a mountain, have the ablative in -e. Caere has Caerēte.

e. For canis. see § 47. c.

58. The regular Nominative plural of i-stems would be -īs, but this is very rarely found in nouns. The regular Accusative -īs is common, but not exclusively used in any word. An old form for both cases is -eis (diphthong).

59. The following have -um (not -ium) in the Genitive plural: canis, iuvēnis (originally consonant-stems); ambāgēs, mare (once only, otherwise wanting), volucris; also (sometimes) apis, caedēs, clādēs, mēnsis, sēdēs, struēs, subolēs, vātēs, and (very rarely) patrials in -ās, -ātis; -īs, -ītis; as, Arpīnās, Arpīnātum; Samnīs, Samnītum.

4. Irregular Nouns.

60. In many nouns the stem is irregularly modified in the nominative or other cases. Thus —

a. The vowel-stems grū-, sū-, add -s in the nominative, and are inflected like mute-stems: grūs has also a nominative gruis; sūs has both suibus and subus in the dative and ablative plural.

b. In the stem bov- (bou-) the diphthong ou becomes ō in the nominative (bōs, bōvis). In nāv- (nau-) an i is added (nāvis, -is). In Iōv- (= Zeús) the diphthong (ou) becomes ū in Iū-piter (for -pāter), gen. Iōvis, etc.

c. In iter, itineris (N.), iecur, iecinoris (N.), supellex, supellec-tilis (F.), the nominative has been formed from a shorter stem, in senex, senis from a longer; so that these words show a combination of two distinct forms. The shorter form is found in the genitive iecor-is.

d. Of the many original s-stems, only vās, vāsīs (N.) (pl. vāsa, -ōrum) (see p. 26, foot-note 2), retains its proper form in the nominative (see § 48. d).

5. Case Forms.

62. The LOCATIVE form for nouns of the third declension ends in the singular in -ī or -e: as, rūrī, in the country; Carthāginī or Carthāgine, at Carthage; in the plural in -ibus: as, Trallibus, at Tralles.

NOTE.—The Locative singular in -e appears to have been first used in poetry.

a. An old ablative is found ending in -d: as, conventiōnīd, diotātōred (cf. praedād, § 36. f; Gnaivōd, § 40. g; magistrātūd, § 70. h).

6. Greek Forms.

63. Many nouns originally Greek—mostly proper names—retain Greek forms of inflection.

a. Stems in in- (i long): delphīnus, -ī (M.), has also the form delphīn, -inis; Salamīs, -is (F.), has acc. Salamīna.

b. Most stems in īd- (nom. -is) often have also the forms of i-stems: as, tigris, -īdis (-īdos) or -is; acc. -īdem (-īda) or -im (-in); abl. -īde or -ī. But many, including most feminine proper names, have acc. -īdem (-īda), abl. -īde,—not -im or -ī. (These stems are irregular also in Greek.)

c. Stems in on- sometimes retain -n in the nominative: as, Agamemnōn (or Agamemnō), -ōnis, accusative -ōna.

d. Stems in ont- form the nom. in -ōn: as, horizōn, Xenophōn; but a few are occasionally Latinized into ōn- (nom. -ō): as, Dracō, -ōnis.

e. Stems in ant-, ent-, have the nom. in -ās, -īs: as adamās, -antis; Simoīs, -entis. So a few in ūnt- (contracted from oēnt-) have -ūs: as, Trapezūs, -ūntis. Occasionally the Latin form of nominative is also found: as, Atlāns, elephāns, as well as Atlās, elephās.

f. Many Greek nouns (especially in the poets) have gen. -ōs, acc. -ā; plur. nom. -ēs, acc. -ās: as, āēr, aethēr, crātēr, hērōs (-ōis), lampas (-ādis or -ādos), lynx (-cis or -cōs), nāis (-idos), Orpheus (-eos: see § 43).

g. A few in -ys have acc. -yn, voc. -y, abl. -yē: as, chelys, -yn, -y; Capys, -yos, -yī, -yn, -y, -yē.

h. Several feminine names in -ō have gen. sing. -ūs, all the other cases ending in -ō; they may also have regular forms: as, Dīdō, gen. Dīdōnis or Dīdūs; dat. Dīdōnī or Dīdō, etc.

i. Several Greek forms are irregularly retained in the vocative: as, Panthūs, voc. Panthū; Orpheus, Orpheu; Atlās, Atlā; Daphnis, Daphnī; Periclēs, Periclē (cf. § 43).

64. Some of these forms are seen in the following examples:—

7. Rules of Gender.

65. The following are general Rules for the Gender of nouns of the third declension, classed according to the termination of the nominative.

a. Masculine endings are -ō, -or, -ōs, -er, -ēs (gen. -īdis, -ītis).

b. Feminine endings are -ās (gen. -ātis), -ēs (gen. -is), -is, -ys, -x, -s (following a consonant); also, -dō, -gō, (gen. -inis), -iō (abstract and collective), and -ūs (gen. -ūdis, -ūtis).

c. Neuter endings are -a, -e, -ī, -y; -c, -l, -t; -men (gen. -minis); -ar, -ur, -ūs (gen. -eris, -oris).

66. The following are general Rules for the Gender of nouns of the third declension, classed according to their stems.

a. VOWEL-STEMS. — Stems in i-, having -s in the nominative, are Feminine, except those mentioned below (§ 67. a). Those having -ē in the nominative and those in -al and -ar (which have dropped the -e) are neuter.

b. LIQUID-STEMS. — Stems in l- are Masculine, except sīl, fel, mel, and sometimes sāl (N.).

Those in min- are Neuter, except homō, nēmō, flāmen (M.). Others in in- are masculine, except pollen, unguen (N.). Those in ēn- are masculine. Those in dīn-, gīn-, iōn-, abstract and collective nouns, are feminine. Others in ōn-, with cardō, margō, ōrdō, ūniō, sēniō, quaterniō, are masculine.

Those in r- preceded by a short vowel are Neuter, except about 30 given below (§ 67. b). Those in r- preceded by a long vowel are masculine, except soror, uxor, glōs, tellūs (F.); crūs, iūs, pūs, rūs, tūs (thūs) (N.), in which the long vowel is due to contraction.

c. LABIAL STEMS (no neuters). — Stems in b- and m- are Feminine, except chalybs. Stems in p- are chiefly masculine (exceptions below, § 67. c).

d. LINGUAL STEMS. — Stems in ād-, ēd-, id-, ūd-, aud-, nd-, are Feminine, except dromas, vas (vadis), pēs, quadrupēs, obses, praeses, lapis (M.). Those in āt-, ūt-, are feminine, except patrials (as Arpīnās), and the masc. plur. penātēs and optimātēs. Those in ēd-, ēt-, are masculine, except mercēs and quiēs with its compounds (F.). Those in ēt-, īt-, are masculine, except abiēs, merges, seges, teges (F.), and those which are common by signification. Those in āt- are neuter; those in nt- various (see list, § 67. d); those in lt-, rt-, feminine. (For a few isolated forms, see list, § 67.)

e. PALATAL STEMS. — Stems in c- preceded by a consonant or long vowel are Feminine, except calx, decunx, phoenīx, storax, vervēx (M.). Those in c- preceded by a short vowel are chiefly masculine (for exceptions, see list, § 67. e); those in g-, masculine, except [īfrūx], lēx, phalanx, syrinx; also nix (nivis) (F.).

67. The following are the Forms of Inflection of nouns of the Third Declension, classed according to their Stems :

a. VOWEL-STEMS.

-ēs, -is : about 35 nouns (see list, § 51. a), feminine, except tudēs, vātēs, verrēs, M.

-is, -is : about 100 nouns, chiefly feminine, as fēlis, pellis.

Exc. — aedilis, amnis, anguis, C., annālis, antēs (pl.), assis, axis, būris, callis, C., canālis, C., canis, C., cassis, caulis, civis, C., clūnis, C., collis, crīnis, C., ēnsis, fascis, finis, C., follis, fūnis, C., fustis, hostis, C., ignis, iūvenis, C., lactēs (pl.), C., larēs (pl.), mānēs (pl.), mēnsis, molāris, nātālis, orbis, pānis, pedis, C., piscis, postis, sentis, C., sodālis, testis, C., torris, unguis, vectis, veprēs (pl.), C., vermis, M. [Those marked C. are sometimes feminine ; the rest are masculine.]

-ē, -is : upwards of 20 nouns, all neuter, as mare, cubile.

-āl, -ālis : -ār, -āris : 24 neuter, with several used only in the plural, as animal, Sāturnālia (see list, § 53. c ; for those in -ār, -āris, see Liquid Stems).

-ēr, -ris : imber, linter, ūter, venter, — all M. except linter, which is commonly F. [For other apparently consonant stems, see below.]

PECULIAR. — grūs, gruis, F. ; rhūs, rhois (acc. rhum), M. ; sūs, suis, C., hērōs, hērōis, M. ; misy, -yos, F. ; oxys, -yos, F. ; cinnabart, gummi, sināpl, N. (indecl.) ; chelys, -yn, -y, F. ; bōs, bovis, C.

b. LIQUID-STEMS.

-l, -lis : 9 nouns, masculine, as cōnsul, sōl, except stl, and (sometimes) sāl, N.

-ēn, -ēnis : [†rēn], splēn, M.

-ēn, -ēnis : Hymēn, M.

-ēn, -inis : 10 nouns, M., as tibicen ; except pollen, ungen, gluten, sanguen, N.

-mēn, -mīnis (verbal), as āgmen ; about 60 nouns, N. ; but flāmen, M.

-ōn, -ōnis (Greek) : canōn, daemōn, gnōmōn, M. ; aēdōn, alcyōn, ancōn, sindōn, F.

-ō, -ōnis : about 70 nouns, all masculine, as sermō ; with many family names, as Cicerō.

-iō, -iōnis (material objects, etc.), as pugiō : about 30 nouns, masculine.

-iō, -iōnis (abstract and collective), as legiō, regiō : upwards of 180, feminine, including many rare verbal abstracts.

-ō, -inis : homō, turbō, nēmō, Apollō, M.

- dō, -dīnis: nearly 70 nouns, as grandō, feminine except cardō, ordō, M.
 -gō, -gīnis: about 40 nouns, as compāgō, feminine; with margō, M. or F.
 -ār, -āris: baccar, iubar, nectar, N.; lār, salar, M.
 -ēr, -ris: accipiter, frāter, pater, M., māter, F.
 -ēr, -ēris (mostly Greek): crātēr, hallēr, prestēr, M., vēr, N.
 -ēr, -ēris: āēr, aethēr, M.
 -ēr, -ēris: acipenser, agger, anser, asser, aster, cancer, carcer, later, passer, vesper, vōmer, M.; mulier, F.; acer, cadāver, cicer, laver, papāver, piper, siler, siser, sūber, tūber, tüber, über, verber, N.
 -ēs, -ēris: Cerēs, F.
 -īs, -ēris: cinis, cucumis, pulvis, vōmis, M.
 -ōr (-ōs), -ōris: nearly 70 nouns (besides many denoting the Agent, formed upon verb-stems), as favor, drātor, all M. except soror, uxor, F.
 -ōr, -ōris: castor, rhētor, M.; arbor, F.; ador, aequor, marmor, N.
 -ōs, -ōris: flōs, mōs, rōs, M.; glōs, F.; ōs, N.
 -ūr, -ūris: fūr, C.
 -ūr, -ūris: 9 masculine, as vultur; with fulgur, guttur, murmur, sul- fur, N.

FOURTH DECLENSION.

68. The Stem of nouns of the Fourth Declension ends in u-. This is usually weakened to i before -bus. Masculine and feminine nouns form the nominative by adding -s; neuters have for nominative the simple stem, but with ū (long).

Nouns of the fourth declension are declined as follows:—

	hand (F.).	lake (M.).	knee (N.).
	STEM manu -	lacu -	genu - Sing.
NOM.	manus	lacus	genū

NOTE.—The fourth declension is only a modified form of the third. The relation is seen in the following parallel forms, uncontracted (of the third) and contracted (of the fourth).

manus	manuūs (ūs)
† manuīs (ūs)	manuum (um)

manum	† manues (ūs)
manus	† manues (ūs)
† manue (ū)	manubus (ibus)

69. GENDER.—a. Most nouns in -us are Masculine. The following are Feminine: acus, anus, colus, domus, fidūs (pl.), manus, nurus, porticus, quīnquātrūs (pl.), socrus, tribus, with a few names of plants and trees. Also, rarely, arcus, penus, specus.

b. The only neuters are cornū, genū, pecū (§ 78. 1. c), verū.

70. CASE-FORMS.—a. The uncontracted form -uis (sometimes -uos) is sometimes found in the genitive, as senātuos; and an old (irregular) genitive in -ī is used by some writers: as, ornātī, senātī.

- b.* The nominative plural has rarely the form -uus.
c. The genitive plural is sometimes contracted into -um.
d. The following retain the regular dative and ablative plural in -ibus: artus, partus, portus, tribus, verū; also dissyllables in -cus: as, lacus (but sometimes portibus, veribus).
e. Most names of plants, and colus, distaff, have also forms of the second declension.
f. Domus, house, has (either originally, or by mistake) two stems ending in u- and o- (cf. gen. in -ī, § 70. a), and is declined as follows:¹—

	SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
NOM.	domus	domūs
GEN.	domūs (domī , loc.)	domuum (domōrum)
DAT.	domuī (domō)	domibus
ACC.	domum	domōs (domūs)
VOC.	domus	domūs
ABL.	domō (domū)	domibus

g. The only locative form of the fourth declension is domul. But even this is rare, and domī is almost universally used instead.

h. An old form of the ablative ends in -d: as, magistrātūd (cf. § 62. a).

71. Most nouns of the fourth declension are formed from verb-stems, or roots, by means of the suffix -tus (-sus) (cf. § 163. b): as, cantus, song, CAN, canō, sing; cāsus (for cad-tus), chance, CAD, cadō, fall; exsulātus, exile, from exsulō, to be an exile (exsul). Many are formed either from verb-stems not in use, or by analogy: as, cōnsulātus (as if from †cōnsulō, -āre), senātus, incestus.

a. The Supines of verbs (§ 109. c) are the accusative and ablative (or dative, perhaps both) of derivatives in -tus (-sus): as, audītum, memorātū.

b. Of many verbal derivatives only the ablative is used as a noun: as, iūssū (meō), by (my) command; so iniūssū (populī), without (the people's) order. Of some only the dative: as, memorātūī, dīvisūī.

FIFTH DECLENSION.

72. The Stem of nouns of the Fifth Declension ends in ē-, which appears in all the cases. The nominative is formed from the stem by adding -s.

¹ The forms in parenthesis are less common. But the form domī is regular, ve, though genitive in Plautus; domōrum is poetic.

These nouns are thus declined.—

	SING. thing (F.) PLUR.		SING. day (M.) PLUR.		faith (F.).
	STEM rē-		STEM diē-		STEM fidē-

ACC.	rem	rēs	diem	diēs	fidem
VOC.	rēs	rēs	diēs	diēs	fidēs
ABL.	rē	rēbus	diē	diēbus	fidē

NOTE.—The ē has been shortened in the genitive and dative singular of fidēs, spēs, rēs, but in these it is found long in early Latin.

73. GENDER.—All nouns of this declension are feminine, except diēs (usually M.), day, and meridiēs (M.), noon. Diēs is sometimes feminine in the singular, especially in phrases indicating a fixed time, and regularly feminine when used of time in general: as, longa diēs, a long time; cōstitutā diē, on a set day; also in the poets: as, pulchra diēs, a fine day.

74. CASE-FORMS.—a. The Genitive singular anciently ended in -ēs (cf. -ās of first declension, § 36. b). The genitive ending -ēī was sometimes contracted into -ēi, -ī, or -ē: as, diī (Æn. i. 636), and the phrases plēbī-scītum, tribūnus plēbēī. An old Dative in -ī or -ē also is mentioned by grammarians.

b. The fifth declension is only a variety of the first, and several nouns have forms of both: as, māteria, -iēs; saevitia, -iēs.¹ The genitive and dative in -ēī are rarely found in these words.

c. The Locative form of this declension ends in -ē (cf. dative -ē under a). It is found only in certain adverbs and expressions of time: as, hodiē (for hoi-diē, cf. huic), to-day; perendiē, day after to-morrow; diē quārtō (old, quārtī), the fourth day; prīdiē, the day before.

d. Of nouns of the fifth declension, diēs and rēs only are declined throughout. Most want the plural, which is, however, found in the nominative and accusative in the following: aciēs, effigiēs, ēluviēs, faciēs, glaciēs, seriēs, speciēs, spēs.²

² The forms faciōrum, speciōrum, speciōbus, spērum, spēbus, are cited by grammarians, also spērēs, spēribus.

DEFECTIVE NOUNS.

75. Some nouns are ordinarily found in the Singular number only (singulāria tantum). These are —

1. Most proper names: as, Caesar, Cæsar; Gallia, Gaul.
2. Names of things not counted, but reckoned in mass: as, aurum, gold; āēr, air; trīticum, wheat.
3. Abstract nouns: as, ambitiō, ambition; fortitūdō, courage; calor, heat.

But many of these are used in the plural in some other sense. Thus —

a. A proper name may be applied to two or more persons or places, or even things, and so become strictly common: as, duodecim Caesarēs, the twelve Cæsars; Galliae, the two Gauls (Cis- and Trans-alpine); Castōrēs, Castor and Pollux; Iovēs, images of Jupiter.

b. Particular objects may be denoted: as, aera, bronze utensils, nivēs, snowflakes; or different kinds of a thing: as, āerēs, airs (good and bad).

c. The plural of abstract nouns denotes occasions or instances of the quality, or the like: as, quaedam excellentiæ, some cases of superiority; ōtia, periods of rest; calōrēs, frīgora, times of heat and cold.

76. Some nouns are commonly found only in the Plural (plūrālia tantum (cf. § 79. c)). Such are —

1. Many proper names: as, Athēnae, Athens, Thūrii, Philippī, Vēii, names of towns, Adelphoe (The Adelphi), the name of a play; but especially names of festivals and games: as, Olympia, the Olympic Games; Bacchānālia, feast of Bacchus; Quinquātrūs, festival of Minerva; lūdī Rōmānī, the Roman Games.

2. Names of classes: as, optimātēs, the upper classes; māiōrēs, ancestors; liberī, children; penātēs, household gods.

3. Words plural by signification: as, arma, weapons; artūs, joints; divitiæ, riches; scālae, stairs; valvae, folding-doors; forēs, double-doors.

These often have a corresponding singular in some form or other, as noun or adjective.

a. As noun, to denote a single object: as, Bacchānal, a spot sacred to Bacchus; optimās, an aristocrat.

b. As adjective: as, Catō Māior, Cato the Elder.

c. In a sense rare, or found only in early Latin: as, scāla, a ladder; valva, a door; artus, a joint.

77. Many nouns are defective in case-forms:—

1. Indeclinable nouns: fās, nefās, Instar, necesse, nihil, opus (need), secus.

2. Nouns found in one case only (monoptotes): as,—

a. In the nom. sing. glōs, F.

b. In the gen. sing. dicis, naucī, N.

c. In the dat. sing. memorātuī, M. (cf. § 71. b).

d. In the acc. sing. amussim, M.

e. In the abl. sing. pondō, N.; māne, N. (Both also treated as indeclinable nouns. Of māne an old locative form mānī is found.) iūssū, iniūssū, M. (§ 71. b).

f. In the acc. plur. infitiās, suppetiās.

3. Nouns found in two cases only (diptotes).

a. In the nom. and abl. sing. fors, forte, F.; astus, astū, M.

b. In the gen. and abl. sing. spontis, sponte, F.

c. In the dat. and acc. sing. vēnuī (vēnō in Tac.), vēnum, M.

d. In the acc. sing. and plur. dicam, dicās, F.

e. In the acc. and abl. plur. forās, forīs, F. (cf. forēs).

4. Nouns found in three cases only (triptotes).

a. In the nom., acc., and abl. sing. impetus, -um, -ū (M.); luēs, -em, -ē (F.).

b. In the nom., acc., and dat. or abl. plur. grātēs, -ibus (F.).

c. In the nom., gen., and dat. or abl. plur. iūgera, -um, -ibus (N., but iūgerum, etc., in the sing., cf. § 78. 1. b).

5. Nouns declined regularly in the plural, but defective in the singular.

a. Nouns found in the sing., in gen., dat., acc., abl.: dicīōnis, -ī, -em, -e (F.); frūgis, -ī, -em, -e (F.); opis, -ī (once only), -em, -e (F., nom. as a divinity, see § 46).

b. Nouns found in the dat., acc., abl.: precī, -em, -e (F.).

c. Nouns found in the acc. and abl.: cassem, -e (F.); sordem, -e (F.).

d. Nouns found in the abl. only: ambāge (F.); fauce (F.); obice (C., nom. obex rare).

6. Nouns regular in the singular, defective in the plural.

a. iūs and rūs have only iūra, rūra.

b. calx, cor, cōs, crux, fax, faex, lūx, nex, ōs, pāx, pīx, prae, rōs, sāl, sōl, tūs (thūs), vas, want the genitive plural.

c. Most nouns of the fifth declension want the whole or part of the plural (see § 74. d).

7. Nouns defective in both singular and plural.

- a.* Nouns found in the nom., acc. sing.; nom., acc., abl. plur.: sentis, -em; -ēs, -ibus.
- b.* Nouns found in the gen., acc., abl. sing.; nom., acc., dat., abl. plur.: vicis, -em, -e; -ēs, -ibus.
- c.* Nouns found in the gen., dat., acc., and abl. sing.; gen. plur. wanting: dapis, -ī, -em, -e.

VARIABLE NOUNS.

78. Many nouns vary either in Declension or Gender.

1. In Declension (heteroclitites, nōmina abundantia).

- a.* colus (F.), distaff; domus (F.), house (see § 70. f), and many names of plants in -us, vary between the second and fourth declensions.
- b.* Some nouns vary between the second and third: as, iūgerum, -ī, abl. -e, plur. -a, -um, etc.; Mulciber, gen. -berī and -beris; sequester, gen. -trī and -tris; vās, vāsis, and vāsum, -ī.
- c.* Some vary between the second, third, and fourth: penus, penum, gen. -ī and -oris, abl. penū.
- d.* Many nouns vary between the first and the fifth (see § 74. b).
- e.* requiēs has gen. -ētis, dat. wanting, acc. -ētem or -em; famēs has abl. famē (§ 57. c); pūbēs (pūbis, pūber) (M.) has -eris, -em, -e; pecus has pecoris, etc., but also nom. pecū, dat. pecuī; pl. pecua, pecuum, pecubus.
- f.* Many vary between different stems of the same declension: femur (N.), gen. -oris, also -inis (as from †femen); iecur (N.), gen. iecinoria, iecinoris, iecoris; mūnus (N.), pl. mūnera and mūnia.

2. In Gender (heterogeneous nouns).

- a.* The following have a masculine form in -us and a neuter in -um: balteus, cāseus, clipeus, collum, cingulum, pīleus, tergum, vāllum, with many others of rare occurrence.
- b.* The following have in the plural a different gender from the singular:
- | | |
|--------------------------|--|
| balneum (N.), bath; | balneae (F.), baths (an establishment). |
| caelum (N.), heaven; | caelōs (M. acc.). |
| carbasus (F.), a sail; | carbasa (N.), sails (-ōrum). |
| dēlicium (N.), pleasure; | dēliciae (F.), pet. |
| epulum (N.), feast; | epulae (F.), feast. |
| frēnum (N.), a bit; | frēnī (M.) or frēna (N.), a bridle. |
| iocus (M.), a jest; | ioca (N.), iocī (M.). |
| rāstrum (N.), a rake; | rāstrī (M.), rāstra (N.). |
| locus (M.), place; | loca (N.), locī (M., usually topics, spots). |

[For § 79. a, b (old edition) see § 78. 2. a, b.]

79 [79. c in old edition]. Many nouns have irregularities of Number either in their ordinary or occasional use.

a. Many nouns vary in meaning as they are found in the Singular or Plural: as, —

aedēs , -is (F.), temple ;	aedēs , -ium, house .
aqua (F.), water ;	aquae , a watering-place .
auxilium (N.), help ;	auxilia , auxiliaries .
bonum (N.), a good ;	bona , property .
carcer (M.), dungeon ;	carcerēs , barriers (of race-course).
castrum (N.), fort ;	castra , camp .
cōdicillus (M.), bit of wood ;	cōdicillī , tablets .
comitium (N.), place of assembly ;	comitia , an election (town-meeting).
cōpia (F.), plenty ;	cōpiae , troops .
fidēs (F.), harp-string ;	fidēs , lyre .
finis (M.), end ;	finēs , bounds, territories .
fortūna (F.), fortune ;	fortūnae , possessions .
grātia (F.), favor (rarely, thanks);	grātiae , thanks (also, the Graces).
hortus (M.), a garden ;	hortī , pleasure-grounds .
impedimentum (N.), hinderance ;	impedimenta , baggage .
littera (F.), letter (of alphabet) ;	litterae , epistle .
locus (M.), place [pl. loca (N.)] ;	locī , topics . (In early writers the regular plur.)
lūdus (M.), sport ;	lūdī , public games .
nātālis (M.), birthday ;	nātālēs , descent .
opera (F.), work ;	operae , day-laborers ("hands").
[ops] opis (F.), help (§ 46) ;	opēs , resources, wealth .
pars (F.), a part ;	partēs , part (on the stage), party .
plāga (F.), region ;	plāgae , snares .
rōstrum (N.), beak of a ship ;	rōstra , speaker's platform .
sāl (M. or N.), salt ;	salēs , witticisms .
tabella (F.), tablet ;	tabellae , documents, records .

b. The singular of a noun usually denoting an individual is sometimes used collectively to denote a group: as, Poenus, the Carthaginians; mīles, the soldiery; eques, the cavalry.

c. Of many nouns the plural is usually, though not exclusively, used (cf. § 76): as, cervicēs, the neck; Quirītēs, Romans; vīscera, flesh; faucēs, throat.

d. The poets often use the plural number for the singular, sometimes for metrical reasons, sometimes from a mere fashion: as, ōra (for ōs), the face; scēptra (for scēptrum), sceptre; silentia (for silentium), silence (cf. § 75. c).

PROPER NAMES.

80. A Roman had regularly three names, denoting the person, the gens, and the family.

a. Thus, in the name Mārcus Tullius Cicerō, we have Mārcus, the prænōmen, or personal name (like a Christian or given name); Tullius, the nōmen (properly an adjective), i.e. the name of the gens, or house, whose original head was a (real or supposed) Tullus; Cicerō, the cōgnōmen, or family name, often in its origin a nickname, — in this case from cicer, a vetch, or small pea.

NOTE. — When two persons of the same family are mentioned together, the cognomen is usually put in the plural: as, Pūblius et Servius Sullae.

b. A fourth or fifth name¹ was sometimes given. Thus the complete name of Scipio the Younger was Pūblius Cornēlius Scīpiō Āfricānus Aemiliānus: Āfricānus, from his exploits in Africa; Aemiliānus, as adopted from the Æmilian gens.

c. Women had commonly in classical times no personal names, but were known only by the nōmen of their gens. Thus, the wife of Cicero was Terentia, and his daughter Tullia. A younger daughter would have been called Tullia secunda or minor, and so on.

d. The commonest prænomens are thus abbreviated: —

A. Aulus.	L. Lūcius.	Q. Quīntus.
App. Appius.	M. Mārcus.	Ser. Servius.
C. (G.) Gāius (Caius) (cf. § 6).	M'. Mānius.	Sex. Sextus.
Cn. (Gn.) Gnaeus (Cneius).	Mam. Māmercus.	Sp. Spurius.
D. Decimus.	N. Numerius.	T. Titus.
K. Kaesō (Caeso).	P. Pūblius.	Ti. Tiberius.

e. A feminine prænomen is sometimes abbreviated with an inverted letter: as, Q for Gāia (Caiā).

¹ The Romans of the classical period had no separate name for these additions, but later grammarians invented the word āgnōmen to express them.

CHAPTER IV.—Adjectives.

INFLECTION.

ADJECTIVES and Participles are in general formed and declined like Nouns, differing from them only in their use. In accordance with their use, they distinguish gender by different forms in the same word, and correspond with their nouns in gender, number, and case. They are (1) of the First and Second Declensions, or (2) of the Third Declension.¹

1. First and Second Declensions.

81. Adjectives of the first and second declensions (ā- and o-stems) are declined in the Masculine like servus, in the Feminine like stella, and in the Neuter like bellum; as, —

SINGULAR.			PLURAL.
M.	F.	N.	M.	F.	N.
STEM bono-	bonā-	bono-
NOM. bonus	bonā	bonum	bonī	bonae	bona
GEN. bonī	bonae	bonī	bonōrum	bonārum	bonōrum
DAT. bonō	bonae	bonō	bonīs	bonīs	bonīs
ACC. bonum	bonam	bonum	bonōs	bonās	bona
VOC. bone	bona	bonum	bonī	bonae	bona
ABL. bonō	bonā	bonō	bonīs	bonīs	bonīs

¹ Most Latin adjectives and participles are either o-stems with the corresponding feminine ā-stems, or i-stems. Many, however, were originally stems in u- or a consonant, which passed over, in all or most of their cases, into the i-declension, for which Latin had a special fondness. (Compare the endings -ēs and -īs of the third declension with the Greek -es and -as; nāvis (nom.) with the Greek ναῦς; brevis with βραχύς; cornū with bicornis; lingua with bilinguis; cor, corde, corda, with discors, -di, -dia, -dium; suāvis with ἡδύς; ferēns, -entia, with φέρων, -οντα.) A few, which in other languages are nouns, retain the consonant-form: as, vetus = ἔτος. Comparatives also retain the consonant form in most of their cases.

a. The masculine genitive singular of Adjectives in -ius ends in -ii, and the vocative in -ie; not in -i, as in Nouns (cf. § 40. b, c): as, Lacedaemonius, -ii, -ie.

NOTE. — The possessive meus, my, has the vocative masculine mi (cf. § 98. 3).

82. Stems ending in ro- preceded by ō or a consonant (also satur) form the masculine nominative like noun-stems in ro- of the second declension (cf. puer, ager, § 38). They are thus declined: —

Sing.	miser, wretched .			niger, black .
	STEM	misero-, ā-, o-		nigro-, ā-, o-

V.	miserī	miserāe	miserā	nigrī	nigrae	nigra
Ab.	miserīs	miserīs	miserīs	nigrīs	nigrīs	nigrīs

a. Stems in ēro- (as prōcērus), with mōrigērus, propērus, have the regular nominative masculine in -us.

b. Like miser are declined asper, gibber, lacer, liber, prosper (also prosperus), satur (-ura, -urum), tener, with compounds of -fer and -ger: as, saetiger, -era, -erum, bristle-bearing; also, usually, dexter. In these the e belongs to the stem; but in dextra it is often omitted: as, dextra manus, the right hand.

c. Like niger are declined aeger, āter, crēber, faber, glaber, integer, lūdicer, macer, piger, pulcher, ruber, sacer, scaber, sinister, taeter, vafer; also the possessives noster, vester (p. 64. 3).

d. The following feminines lack a masculine singular nominative in classic use: cētera, īnfera, postera, supera. They are rarely found in the singular except in certain phrases: as, posterō diē, the next day.

NOTE. — A feminine ablative in -ō is found in a few Greek adjectives: as, lecticā octophorō (Verr. v. 11).

83. The following o-stems with their compounds have the genitive singular in -ius (one only having -ius) and the dative in -i in all genders: — alius (N. aliud), other .	tōtus , whole .	alter , ¹ -terius , the other .

nūllus , no, none .	ūllus , any .	neuter , -trius , neither .
sōlus , alone .	ūnus , one .	uter , -trius , which (of two) .

Of these the singular is thus declined:—

	M.	F.	N.	M.	F.	N.
NOM.	ūnus	ūna	ūnum	uter	utra	utrum
GEN.	ūnius	ūnius	ūnius	utrius	utrius	utrius

ACC.	aliūm	aliām	aliud	alterum	alteram	alterum
ABL.	aliō	aliā	aliō	alterō	alterā	alterō

a. The plural of these words is regular, like that of bonus (§ 81).

b. The i of the genitive-ending -ius, though originally long, may be made short in verse. Alterius is generally accented on the antepenult, as having the i permanently shortened.

Instead of aliūs, alterius is commonly used, or in the possessive sense the adjective aliēnus, belonging to another, another's.

In compounds—as alterūter—sometimes both parts are declined, sometimes only the latter. Thus, alterī utrī or alterutrī, to one of the two.

2. Third Declension.

Adjectives of the third declension are of one, two, or three terminations.

84. Adjectives of the third declension having stems in i—distinguished by being parisyllabic (§ 53. a)—have but one form for both Masculine and Feminine, and one for the neuter, and hence are called adjectives of two terminations. In the neuter the nominative ends in -e.

They are declined as follows:—

¹ The suffix -ter, in alter, uter, neuter is the same as the Greek comparative suffix -τερο(s). The stem of alius appears in early Latin and in derivatives as ali- in the forms alis, alid (for alius, aliud), aliter, etc. The regular forms of the genitive and dative (as in bonus) are also found in early writers.

² The genitive in -iūs, dative in -ī, and neuter in -d are pronominal (cf. § 101).

lēvis (stem levi-), light.

The following stems in ri- have the masc. nom. in -er: ācer, alacer, campester, celeber, equester, palūster, pedester, puter, salūber, silvester, terrester, volucer, and are called adjectives of three terminations. So also, celer, celeris, celere; and names of months in -ber (cf. § 51. b): as, Octōber.

These are declined as follows:—

NOTE.—This formation is comparatively late, and hence, in the poets and in early Latin, either the masculine or the feminine form of these adjectives was sometimes used for both genders: as, coetus alacris (Enn.). In others, as faenebris, fūnebris, illustris, lūgubris, mediocris, mullebris, there is no separate masculine form at all. Thus:—

illustris, brilliant.STEM illustri-

ABL.	illustrī	illustrī	illustribus	illustribus

b. CASE-FORMS.—Adjectives of two and three terminations, being true i-stems, retain in the ablative singular -ī, in the neuter plural -ia, in the genitive plural -ium, and in the accusative plural regularly -īs (see § 55 and p. 30, n. 2). But the forms of some are doubtful.

NOTE.—For metrical reasons, an ablative in -e sometimes occurs in poetry.

c. celer, swift, when used as a noun, denoting a military rank, has celerum in the genitive plural. The proper name Celer has the ablative in -e.

85. The remaining adjectives of the third declension are Consonant-stems; but all except Comparatives have the form of i-stems in the ablative singular -ī, the nominative, accusative and vocative plural neuter -ia, and the genitive plural -ium. In the other cases they follow the rule of Consonant-stems.

NOTE.—The ablative singular of these words often has -e.

These adjectives (except comparatives) have the same nominative singular for all genders, and hence are called adjectives of one termination.¹ All except stems in l- or r- form the nominative singular from the stem by adding -a.

a. Adjectives of one termination are declined as follows:—

¹ The regular feminine of these adjectives, by analogy of cognate languages, would end in -ia: this form does not appear in Latin adjectives, but is found in the abstracts āmentia (from āmēns), dēsidia (from dēsēs), sōcordia (from sōcors), etc., and in proper names, as Flōrentia (cf. Greek φύουσα for φύουτ-ια). The neuter would regularly have in the nominative and accusative singular the simple stem, as caput, cor(d-), ālēc, Greek φύου(τ-); but in all except liquid stems the masculine form in -s has forced itself not only upon the neuter nominative, but upon the accusative also, where it is wholly abnormal.

a. The stem of comparatives properly ended in os; but this became or in all cases except the neuter singular (N., A., V.), where s is retained, and o is changed to ū (cf. honōr, -ōris; corpus, -ōris). Thus comparatives appear to have two terminations.

b. The neuter singular plūs is used only as a noun. The genitive (rarely ablative) is used as an expression of value (cf. § 252. a). The dative is not found in classic use. The compound complūrēs, several, has sometimes neuter plural complūria.

All other comparatives are declined like melior.

4. Case-Forms.

87. In adjectives of Consonant stems the following Case-forms are to be remarked :—

a. The Ablative singular commonly ends in -ī; but adjectives used as nouns (as superstes, survivor) have -e. Participles in -ns used as such (especially in the ablative absolute, § 225), or as nouns, regularly have -e; but participles used as adjectives have regularly -ī.

The following have uniformly -ī: āmēns, anceps, *concor*s (and other compounds of cor), cōnsors (but as a substantive, -e), dēgener, hebes, ingēns, inops, memor (and its compounds), pār (in prose), perpes, praeceps, praepes, teres.

b. In the following, -e is the regular form of the ablative: caeles, compos, [†dēses], dīves, hospes, pauper, particeps, princeps, superstes, sospes; also in patrials (see § 54. 3) and stems in āt-, īt-, nt-, rt-, when used as nouns, and sometimes when used as adjectives.

c. The genitive plural ends commonly in -ium. The accusative plural regularly ends in -is, even in comparatives, which are less inclined to the i-declension.

d. The genitive plural ends in -um : —

1. Always in dīves, compos, inops, particeps, prīnceps, praepes, supplex, and compounds of nouns which have -um : as, quadru-pēs, bi-color.

2. Sometimes, in poetry, in participles in -ns : as, silentum concilium, a council of the silent shades (Virg.).

e. In vetus (gen. -ŕis), pūbes (gen. -ŕis), ŭber (gen. -ŕis), which did not become i-stems, the endings -e (abl. sing.), -a (neut. nom. acc. plur.), -um (gen. plur.) are regular. (Ūber has also -ī in abl.)

f. 1. Several adjectives vary in declension : as, gracilis (-us), hilaris (-us), inermis (-us), bicolor (-ŕus).

2. A few are indeclinable : as, damnās, frŭgī (really a dat. of service, see § 233), nēquam (originally an adverb).

3. Several are defective : as, (a) exspēs (only nom.), exlēx (exlēgem) (only nom. and acc. sing.), pernox (pernocte) (only nom. and abl. sing.); (b) prīmōris, sēminēcī, etc., which lack the nom. sing.

4. Potis is often used as an indeclinable adjective, but sometimes has pote in the neuter.

5. Special Uses.

88. The following special uses are to be observed : —

a. Many adjectives have acquired the meaning and construction of nouns : as, amīcus, a friend; aequālis, a contemporary; māiōrēs, ancestors (see p. 47, head-note, and § 188).

b. Many adjectives, from their signification, can be used only in the masculine and feminine. These may be called adjectives of common gender. Such are adulēscēns, youthful; [†dēsēs], -idis, slothful; inops, -opis, poor; sōspes, -ītis, safe. Similarly, senex, old man, and iuvenis, young man, may be called masculine adjectives.

c. Many nouns may be used as adjectives : as, pedes, a footman or on foot (see § 188. d). Such are especially nouns in -tor (M.) and -trix (F.), denoting the agent (§ 162. a) : as, victor exercitus, the conquering army; victrix causa, the winning cause.

d. Certain forms of many adjectives are regularly used as adverbs. These are, the accusative and ablative of the neuter singular (§ 148. d, e) : as, multum, multō, much; the neuter singular of comparatives (see § 92) : as, melius, better; levius, more lightly.

NOTE. — Adverbs ending in -ē and -ter were also once case-forms : as, cārē, dearly; leviter, lightly; ācerrimē, most eagerly (§ 148. a, b).

COMPARISON.

In Latin, as in English, there are three degrees of comparison: the Positive, the Comparative, and the Superlative.

1. Regular Comparison.

89. The Comparative is regularly formed by adding -ior (neuter *-ius*¹), the Superlative by adding -issimus (-a, -um) to the stem of the Positive, which loses its final vowel: as, — cārus, dear (st. cāro-); cārīor, dearer; cārissimus, dearest.

levis, light (st. levi-); levior, lighter; levissimus, lightest.
fēlix, happy (st. fēlic-); fēlicior, happier; fēlicissimus, happiest.
hebes, dull (st. hebet-); hebetior, duller; hebetissimus, dullest.

a. Adjectives in -er form the superlative by adding -rimus to the nominative. The comparative is regular: as, — ācer, keen; ācrior, ācerrimus.

miser, wretched; miserior, miserrimus.

So vetus (gen. veteris) has superlative veterrimus, from the old form veter; and mātūrus, besides its regular superlative (mātūri-simus), has a rare form mātūrrimus.

For the comparative of vetus, vetustior (from vetustus) is used.

b. The following in -lis add -limus to the stem clipped of its vowel: facilis (st. facili-), difficilis, similis, dissimilis, gracilis, humilis. The comparative is regular: as, facilis, easy; facilior, facillimus.

c. Compounds in -dicus (saying), -ficus (doing), -volus (willing), take in their comparison the forms of corresponding participles in -ns, which were anciently used as adjectives: as, — maledicus, slanderous; maledīcentior, maledīcentissimus.

malevolus, spiteful; malevolentior, malevolentissimus.

d. Adjectives in -us preceded by any vowel but u rarely have forms of comparison, but are compared by means of the adverbs magis, more; māximē, most: as, — idōneus, fit; magis idōneus, māximē idōneus.

NOTE. — But pius has piissimus.

¹ The comparative suffix (earlier -ios) is the same as the Greek -ιωρ, or the Skr. -īyans. That of the superlative (-issimus) is a double form; perhaps for -ios-timus (comparative and superlative), or possibly for -ist-timus (two superlatives). The endings -ilimus and -rimus are formed by assimilation (§ 11. f) from -timus and -simus. The comparative and superlative thus formed are new stems, and are not strictly to be regarded as forms of inflection.

Most derivatives in -icus, -idus, -ālis, -āris, -ilis, -ūlus, -undus, -timus, -īnus, -ivus, -ōrus, with compounds (as dēgener, inops) are also compared by means of magis and māximē.

c. Participles when used as adjectives are regularly compared: as, — patiēns, patient; patientior, patientissimus.
apertus, open; apertior, apertissimus.

f. A form of diminutive is made upon the stem of some comparatives: as, grandius-culus, a little larger (see § 164. a).

2. Irregular and Defective Comparison.

90. Several adjectives have in their comparison irregular forms: as, — bonus, melior, optimus, good, better, best. malus, pēior, pessimus, bad, worse, worst.

māgnus, māior, māximus, great, greater, greatest.
parvus, minor, minimus, small, less, least. multus, plūs (N.) (§ 86. b), plūrimus, much, more, most.
multī, plūrēs, plūrimī, many, more, most.
nēquam (indecl.), nēquior, nēquissimus, worthless (cf. § 87. f. 2) frūgī (indecl.), frūgālior, frūgālissimus, useful, worthy (cf. § 87. f. 2). dexter, dexterior, dextimus, on the right, handy.

NOTE. — These irregularities arise from the use of different stems (cf. § 89. c).

91. Some Comparatives and Superlatives appear without a Positive: ¹ —

a. The following are formed from stems not used as adjectives: — cis, citrā (adv. on this side): citerior, citimus, hither, hithermost. in, intrā (prep. in, within): interior, intimus, inner, inmost.
prae, prō (prep. before): prior, prīmus, former, first. prope (adv. near): propior, proximus, nearer, next.
ultrā (adv. beyond): ulterior, ūltimus, farther, farthest.

b. Of the following the positive forms are rare, except when used as nouns (generally in the plural): —

¹ The forms in -trā and -terus were originally comparative (cf. alter), so that the comparatives in -terior are double comparatives. Inferus and superus are comparatives of a still more primitive form (cf. the English comp. in -er).

The superlatives in -timus (-tumus) are relics of old forms of comparison; those in -mus like imus, summus, prīmus, are still more primitive. Forms like extrēmus are superlatives of a comparative. In fact, comparison has always been treated with an accumulation of endings, as children say furtherer and furtherest.

exterus, extērior, extrēmus (extimus), outer, outmost.
[Inferus], inferior, infimus (imus), lower, lowest (§ 82. d) [posterus], posterior, postrēmus (postumus), latter, last.
[superus], superior, suprēmus or summus, higher, highest.

The plurals, exterī, foreigners; inferī, the gods below; posterī, posterity; superī, the heavenly gods, are common

c. From iuvenis, youth, senex, old man (cf. § 88. b), are formed the comparatives iūnior, younger, senior, older. For these, however, minor nātū and māior nātū are sometimes used (nātū being often omitted). The superlative is regularly expressed by minimus and māximus, with or without nātū.

NOTE. — In these phrases nātū is ablative of specification (see § 253).

a. In the following, one or other of the forms of comparison is wanting:

1. The positive is wanting in dēterior, dēterrīmus; ōcior, ōcissimus; potior, potissimus.

2. The comparative is wanting in bellus, caesius, falsus, fīdus (with its compounds), inclutus (or inclitus), invictus, invītus, novus, pius, sacer, vafer, vetus (§ 89. a).

3. The superlative is wanting in āctuōsus, agrestis, alacer, arcānus, caecus, diūturnus, exīlis, ingēns, iēiūnus, longīnquus, obliquus, opīmus, prōclīvis, propīnquus, satur, sēgnis, sērus, supīnus, surdus, taciturnus, tempestīvus, teres, vicīnus, and in some adjectives in -īlis.

NOTE. — Many adjectives — as aureus, golden — are from their meaning incapable of comparison; but each language has its own usage in this respect. Thus niger, glossy black, and candidus, shining white, are compared; but not āter or albus, meaning absolute dead black or white (except that Plautus once has ātrior).

3. Comparison of Adverbs.

92. The comparative of Adverbs is the neuter accusative of the comparative of the corresponding Adjective; the superlative is the Adverb in -ē formed regularly from the superlative of the Adjective: as, — cārē, dearly (from cārus, dear): cārius, cārissimē.

miserē (miseriter), wretchedly (from miser, wretched): miserius, miserrimē.

leviter (from levis, light): levius, levissimē.

audācter (audāciter) (from audāx, bold): audācius, audācissimē.

benē, well (from bonus, good): melius, optimē.

malē, ill (from malus, bad): pēius, pessimē.

The following are irregular or defective: — diū, long (in time); diūtius, diūtissimē. potius, rather; potissimum, first of all, in preference to all.

saepe, often; saepius, oftener, again; saeplissimē.
satis, enough; satius, preferable.
secus, otherwise; secius, worse.
multum (multō), magis, māximē, much, more, most.
parum, not enough, minus, less, minimē, least.

4. Signification.

93. Besides their regular signification (as in English), the forms of comparison are used as follows: —

a. The Comparative denotes a considerable or excessive degree of a quality: as, brevior, rather short; audācior, too bold.

b. The Superlative (of eminence) often denotes a very high degree of a quality without implying a distinct comparison: as, māximus numerus, a very great number. With quam, vel, or ūnus it denotes the highest possible degree: as, quam plūrimī, as many as possible; quam māximē potest (māximē quam potest), as much as can be; virum ūnum doctissimum, the one most learned man.

c. With quisque, each, the superlative has a peculiar signification. Thus the phrase dītissimus quisque means, all the richest (each richest man); prīmus quisque, all the first (each first man in his order).¹

Two superlatives with quisque imply a proportion: as, — sapientissimus quisque aequissimō animō moritur (Cat. Maj. 23), the wisest men die with the greatest equanimity.

d. A high degree of a quality is also denoted by such adverbs as admodum, valdē, very, or by per or prae in composition (§ 170. c): as, valdē malus, very bad = pessimus; permāgnus, very great; praealtus, very high (or deep).

e. A low degree of a quality is indicated by sub in composition: as, subrūsticus, rather clownish; or by minus, not very; minimē, not at all; parum, not enough; nōn satis, not much.

f. The comparative māiōrēs has the special signification of ancestors (cf. §§ 88. a, 91. c).

g. The comparative minōrēs often means descendants.

¹ As in taking things one by one off a pile, each thing is uppermost when you take it.

NUMERALS.

1. Cardinal and Ordinal.

94. Cardinal numbers are the regular series of numbers used in counting. Ordinal numbers¹ are adjectives derived from these to express order or place.

NOTE.—Cardinal numbers answer the question quot? how many? Ordinal numbers, the question quotus? which in order? one of how many?

These two series are as follows:—

CARDINAL.	ORDINAL.	ROMAN NUMERALS.
1. ūnus, ūna, ūnum, one .	prīmus, -a, -um, first .	I.
2. duo, duae, duo, two .	secundus (alter), second .	II.
3. trēs, tria, three .	tertius, third .	III.
4. quattuor (quātuor)	quārtus	IV.
5. quīnque	quīntus	V.
6. sex	sextus	VI.
7. septem	septimus	VII.
8. octō	octāvus	VIII.
9. novem	nōnus	IX.
10. decem	decimus	X.
11. ūndecim	ūndecimus	XI.
12. duodecim	duodecimus	XII.
13. tredecim (decem et trēs)	tertius decimus	XIII.
14. quattuordecim	quārtus decimus	XIV.
15. quīndecim	quīntus decimus	XV.
16. sēdecim	sextus decimus	XVI.
17. septendecim	septimus decimus	XVII.
18. duodēvigintī (octōdecim)	duodēvīcēnsimus	XVIII.
19. ūndēvigintī (novendecim)	ūndēvīcēnsimus	XIX.
20. vigintī	vīcēnsimus (vīgēnsimus)	XX.
21. vigintī ūnus	vīcēnsimus prīmus	XXI.
(or ūnus et vīgintī)	(ūnus et vīcēnsimus, etc.)

¹ The Ordinals (except secundus, tertius, octāvus) are formed by means of the same suffixes as superlatives. Thus decimus (compare the form infimus) may be regarded as the last of a series of ten; prīmus is a superlative of the stem of prō; the forms in -tus (quārtus, quīntus, sextus) may be compared with the corresponding Greek forms in -τος, and with πρώτος, superlative of πρό; nōnus is contracted from novimus; while the others have the regular superlative ending -simus. Of the exceptions, secundus is a participle of sequor; and alter is a comparative form (compare -τερος in Greek). The multiples of ten are compounds of the unit with a fragment of decem: as, vigintī = dvī-gintī (duidecem-tī?).

CARDINAL.	ORDINAL.	ROMAN NUMERALS.

100. centum	centēnsimus	C.
101. centum (et) ūnus, etc.	centēnsimus primus, etc.	CI.
200. ducentī, -ae, -a	ducentēnsimus	CC.
300. trecentī	trecentēnsimus	CCC.
400. quadringentī	quadringentēnsimus	CCCC.
500. quīngentī	quīngentēnsimus	ID, or D.
600. sexcentī	sexcentēnsimus	DC.
700. septingentī	septingentēnsimus	DCC.
800. octingentī	octingentēnsimus	DCCC.
900. nōngentī	nōngentēnsimus	DCCCC.
1000. mille	millēnsimus	CID, or M.
5000. quīnque milia (millia)	quīnquiēns millēnsimus	ICD.
10,000. decem milia (millia)	deciēns millēnsimus	CCICD.
100,000. centum milia (millia)	centiēns millēnsimus	CCCCICD.

NOTE.—The forms in -ēnsimus are often written without the n: as, vicēsimus, etc.

a. For the inflection of ūnus, see § 83. It often has the meaning of same or only. The plural is used in this sense; but also, as a simple numeral, to agree with a plural noun of a singular meaning: as, ūna castra, one camp (cf. § 95. b).

The plural occurs also in the phrase ūnī et alterī, one party and the other (the ones and the others).

b. Duo,¹ two, and ambō, both, are thus declined:—

NOM.	duo	duae	duo
GEN.	duōrum	duārum	duōrum
DAT.	duōbus	duābus	duōbus
ACC.	duōs (duo)	duās	duo
ABL.	duōbus	duābus	duōbus

c. Trēs, tria, three, is an i-stem, and is regularly declined like the plural of levis (see § 84). The other cardinal numbers, up to centum (100), are indeclinable.

¹ The form in -o is a remnant of the dual number, which was lost in Latin, but is found in cognate languages.

The forms octōdecim, novendecim are rare, duodēviginti, ūndēviginti being used instead. Similar forms for higher numbers are occasionally found: as, duōdēquadrāgintā, thirty-eight; ūndēcentum, ninety-nine.

d. The hundreds, up to 1000, are o-stems, and are regularly declined like the plural of bonus.

e. Mille, a thousand, is in the singular an indeclinable adjective. In the plural (mīlia or millia, thousands), it is used as a neuter noun, with a genitive plural. Thus, cum mille hominibus, with a thousand men; but cum duōbus mīlibus hominum, with two thousand men.¹

NOTE.—The singular mille is sometimes found as a noun in the nominative and accusative: as, mille hominum misit; but in the other cases only in connection with the same case of mīlia: as, cum octō mīlibus peditum mille equitum, with eight thousand foot and a thousand horse.

f. The ordinals are o-stems, and are declined like bonus.

2. Distributives.

95. Distributive Numerals are declined like the plural of bonus.

NOTE.—These answer to the interrogative quotēni? how many of each, or at a time? as,—

1. singulī , one by one .	18. octōnī dēnī or	100. centēni
4. quaternī	ūndēvicēni	400. quadrīngēni
5. quīnī	20. vicēni	500. quīngēni
6. senī	21. vicēni singulī , etc.	600. sescentēni
7. septēni	30. tricēni	700. septīngēni
8. octōnī	40. quadrāgēni	800. octīngēni
9. novēnī	50. quīnquāgēni	900. nōngēni
10. dēnī	60. sexāgēni	1000. millēni
11. ūndēnī	70. septuāgēni	2000. bīna mīlia
12. duodēnī	80. octōgēni	10,000. dēna mīlia
13. ternī dēnī , etc.	90. nōnāgēni	100,000. centēna mīlia

Distributives are used as follows:—

a. In the sense of so many apiece or on each side: as, singula singulis, one apiece (one each to each one); agrī septēna iūgera plēbi divisa sunt, i.e. seven jugera to each citizen (seven jugera each), etc.

¹ Or, in poetry, cum bis mille hominibus, with twice a thousand men.

b. Instead of Cardinals, to express simple number, when a noun is plural in form but singular in meaning: as, bīna castra, two camps (duō castra would mean two forts). But the plural ūnī is used (instead of singulī), to signify one (see § 94. a), and trīnī (not ternī) for three.

c. In multiplication: as, bis bīna, twice two; ter septēnis diēbus, in thrice seven days.

d. By the poets instead of cardinal numbers, particularly where pairs or sets are spoken of: as, bīna hastilia, two shafts (two in a set).

3. Numeral Adverbs.

96. The Numeral Adverbs answer the question quotiens (quotiēs), how many times, how often.

1. semel, once .	12. duodeciēns	40. quadrāgiēns
2. bis, twice .	13. terdecīēns	50. quīnquāgiēns
3. ter, thrice .	14. quaterdecīēns	60. sexāgiēns
4. quater	15. quīndeciēns	70. septuāgiēns
5. quīnquiēns (-ēs)	16. sēdecīēns	80. octōgiēns
6. sexiēns (-ēs)	17. septiēsdecīēns	90. nōnāgiēns
7. septiēns (-ēs)	18. duodēviciēns	100. centiēns
8. octiēns	19. ūndēviciēns	200. ducentiēns
9. noviēns	20. viciēns	300. trecentiēns
10. deciēns	21. semel et viciēns, etc.	1000. miliēns
11. ūndeciēns	30. trīciēns	10,000. deciēns miliēns

NOTE.—They are used, in combination with mille, to express the higher numbers: as, ter et trīciēns (centēna milia) sēstertiūm, 3,300,000 sesterces. Forms in -ns are often written without the n: as, quīnquiēs.

4. Other Numerals.

97. The adjectives simplex, single, duplex, double, two-fold, triplex, quadru-, quīncu-, septem-, decem-, centu-, sēsqui- ($1\frac{1}{2}$), multi-plex, manifold, are called Multiplicatives.

a. PROPORTIONALS are: duplus, triplus, etc., twice as great, etc.

b. TEMPORALS: bīmus, trīmus, of two or three years' age; biennīs, triennīs, lasting two or three years; bimēstris, trimēstris, of two or three months; biduum, biennium, a period of two days or years.

c. PARTITIVES: bīnārius, ternārius, of two or three parts.

d. FRACTIONS: dīmidia pars (dīmidium), a half; tertia pars, a third.

NOTE.—But fractions are regularly expressed by special words derived from ās (a pound) and the numerals: as, triēns, a third; bēs, two-thirds.

e. Other derivatives are: ūniō, unity; bīniō, the two (of dice); prīmānus, of the first legion; prīmārius, of the first rank; dēnārius, a sum of 10 asses; bīnus (distributive), double, etc.

CHAPTER V.—Pronouns.

98. Pronouns have special forms of declension.

NOTE.—These special forms are, in general, survivals of a more primitive form of declension than that of nouns.

1. Personal Pronouns.

The Personal pronouns of the first person are ego, I, nōs, we; of the second person, tū, thou, vōs, ye or you.

FIRST PERSON.
NOM.	ego, I;	nōs, we;
GEN.	meī, of me;	nostrūm (trī), of us;
DAT.	mihi (mī), to me;	nōbīs, to us;
ACC.	mē, me;	nōs, us;
VOC.	—	—
ABL.	mē, by me;	nōbīs, by us.
SECOND PERSON.
NOM.	tū, thou;	vōs, ye or you;
GEN.	tuī, you;	vostrūm, vostri; vestrūm (trī)
DAT.	tibi	vōbīs
ACC.	tē	vōs
VOC.	tū	vōs
ABL.	tē	vōbīs

a. The personal pronouns of the third person—he, she, it, they—are wanting in Latin, a demonstrative being sometimes used (see § 101).

b. The plural nōs is often used for the singular ego; the plural vōs never for the singular tū.

c. Old forms are genitive, mīs, tīs; accusative and ablative mēd, tēd (cf. § 70. h).

2. Reflexive Pronouns.

Reflexive pronouns are used in the Oblique Cases to refer to the Subject of the sentence or clause (see § 196).

a. In the first and second persons the oblique cases of the Personal pronouns are used as Reflexives: as, mē contulī, I went (I betook myself); tē laudās, you praise yourself; nōbīs persuādēmus, we persuade ourselves.

b. The reflexive pronoun of the Third Person has a special form used only in this sense, the same for both singular and plural. It is thus declined:—

GEN.	suī , of himself, herself, themselves.
DAT.	sibi , to himself, herself, themselves.
ACC.	sē (sēsē), himself, herself, themselves.
ABL.	sē (sēsē), by himself, herself, themselves.

Sis (genitive) and sēd (accusative and ablative) are ancient.

3. Possessive Pronouns.

The Possessive pronouns are, for the first person: meus, my, noster, our; for the second person: tuus, thy, your, voster, vester, your; for the third person: suus, his, her, their. These are declined like adjectives of the first and second declensions (see §§ 81, 82). But meus has regularly mī (rarely meus) in the vocative singular masculine.

NOTE.—Suus is only reflexive, referring to the subject. For a possessive pronoun of the third person not referring to the subject, the genitive of a demonstrative must be used. Thus, pātrēm suum occidit, he killed his (own) father; but pātrēm ōis occidit, he killed his (somebody else's) father.

99. In the meaning and use of the Personal, Reflexive, and Possessive pronouns it is to be observed that—

a. To express Possession and similar ideas the possessive pronouns must be used, not the genitive of the personal or reflexive pronouns (cf. § 197. a). Thus, my father is pater meus, never pater mēi.

b. The forms nostrū, vostrū, etc., are used partitively: as,— ūnusquisque nostrū, each one of us; so vostrū omnium, of all of you.

NOTE.—The forms of the genitive of the personal pronouns are really the genitives of the possessives: mēi, tui, sui, nostrī, vestrī, gen. sing. neuter: nostrū, vostrū, gen. plu. masc. or neuter contracted. So in early and later Latin we find ūna vestrūrum, one of you (women).

c. The genitives mēi, tui, sui, nostrī, vestrī, are chiefly used objectively (see § 213. N.): as,— memor sis nostrī, be mindful of us (me).

mē tui pudet, I am ashamed of you.

d. The reciprocals one another and each other are expressed by inter sē or alter . . . alterum: as, — alter alterius ōva frangit, they break each other's eggs (one . . . of the other).

inter sē amant, they love one another (they love among themselves).

e. The preposition cum, with, is joined enclitically with the ablative of the personal and reflexive pronouns: as, tēcum loquitur, he talks with you.

f. To the personal and reflexive (and sometimes to the possessive) pronouns certain enclitics are joined for emphasis: -met to all except tū (nom.); -te to tū (tūte, also tūtimet); -pte to the ablative singular of the adjectives, and in early Latin to the others: as, — vōsmetipsōs prōditis, you betray your own very selves.

suōpte pondere, by its own weight.

4. Demonstrative Pronouns.

100. The Demonstrative pronouns are hic, this; is, ille, iste, that; with the Intensive ipse, self, and idem, same.¹

a. Ille is a later form of ollus (olle), which is sometimes used by the poets; a genitive singular in -ī, -ae, -ī, occurs in ille and iste.

b. Iste is sometimes found in early writers in the form ste, etc., with the entire loss of the first syllable; and the first syllable of ipse and ille is very often used as short in early poetry.

c. Ipse is compounded of is and -pse (for -pte, from the same root as potis) (cf. § 99. f.), meaning self. The former part was originally declined, as in reāpse (for rē eāpse), in fact. An old form ipsus occurs.

Idem is the demonstrative is with the affix -dem.

¹ These demonstratives are combinations of o- and i- stems, which are not clearly distinguishable. Hic is a compound of the stem ho- with the demonstrative enclitic -ce, which appears i- full in early Latin (hicē), and when followed by the enclitic -ne (hicīne). In most of the cases -ce is shortened to -c, and in many lost; but it is often appended for emphasis to forms that do not regularly retain it (as hūiusce). In early Latin -c alone is retained in some of these (hōruno). Ille and iste are sometimes found with the same enclitic: illō, illāc, illūo; also illōc (acc. or abl.: § 101. p. 67).

101. The demonstratives are used either with nouns as Adjectives, or alone as Pronouns. From their signification they cannot (except ipse) have a vocative. They are thus declined:—

hic, this.				is, that. iste, ista, istud, that (yonder), is declined like ille.

Ille and iste are combined with the demonstrative -ce. Thus:—

Sing.	M.	F.	N.	M.	F.	N.
NOM.	illīc	illaeo	illōc (illūc)	istīc	istaec	istōc (istūc)

ABL.	illōc	illāc	illōc	istōc	istāc	istōc
Plur.
N., ACC.	—	—	illaec	—	—	istaec

a. For the dative and ablative plural of hic the old form hibus is sometimes found; haec occurs (rarely) for hae.

b. The normal forms illī, istī (gen.), and illae, istae (dat.), are found; also the nominative plural istaee, illaece (for istae, illae).

c. The plural forms ī, īa, īdem, īdem, are often written īī, īīa, etc. Obsolete forms are eae (dat. for eī), and eābus or ībus (dat. plur. for īa). For eī are found also ēī and ēī.

d. By composition with ecce or ēn, behold! are formed eccum, eccam, eccōs, eccās; eccillum, ēllum, ēllam, ēllōs, ēllās; eccistam. These forms are dramatic and colloquial.

e. The combinations hūiusmodī (hūiuscemodī), ēiusmodī, etc., are used as indeclinable adjectives, equivalent to tālis, such: as, rēs ēiusmodī, such a thing (a thing of that sort: compare § 215).

102. In the use of these demonstratives it is to be observed that —

a. Hic is used of what is near the speaker (in time, place, thought, or on the written page). It is hence called the demonstrative of the first person. It is sometimes used of the speaker himself; sometimes for “the latter” of two persons or things mentioned in speech or writing; more rarely for “the former,” when that, though more remote on the written page, is nearer the speaker in time, place, or thought.

b. Ille is used of what is remote (in time, etc.); and is hence called the demonstrative of the third person. It is sometimes used to mean “the former” (see under hic, a); also (usually following its noun) of what is famous or well-known; often (especially the neuter illud) to mean “the following.”

¹ The intensive -ce is also found in numerous combinations: as, hūiusce, hūnce, hōrunce, hārunce, hōsce, hīsce (cf. n., p. 65), illiusce, īsce; also with the interrogative -ne, in hōcine, hōscine, istūcine, illūcine, etc. The intensive -pse is found in the forms eapse (nom.), eumpse, eampse, eōpse, eāpse (abl.).

c. Iste is used of what is between the two others in remoteness: often in allusion to the person addressed,—hence called the demonstrative of the second person. It especially refers to one's opponent (in court, etc.), and frequently implies a kind of contempt.

d. Is is a weaker demonstrative than the others and does not denote any special object, but refers to one just mentioned, or to be afterwards explained by a relative. It is used oftener than the others as a personal pronoun (see § 98. 1. a); and is often merely a correlative to the relative quī: as, eum quem, one whom; eum cōsulem quī nōn dubitet (Cic.), a consul who will not hesitate.

e. Ipse may be used with a personal pronoun of either person, as nōs ipsī (nōsmetipsī), we ourselves; or independently (the verb containing the pronoun, or the context implying it), as ipsī adestis, you are yourselves present; or with a noun, as ipsī fontēs (Virg.), the very fountains.

NOTE.—In English, the pronouns himself, etc., are used both intensively (as, he will come himself) and reflexively (as, he will kill himself): in Latin the former would be translated by ipse; the latter, by sē or sēsē.

f. The pronouns hic, ille, and is are used to point in either direction, back to something just mentioned or forward to something about to be mentioned. The neuter forms are especially used to refer to a clause, phrase, or idea: as, est illud quidem vel maximum animum vidēre (Tusc. i. 22, 52), that is in truth a very great thing to see the soul.

5. Relative Pronouns.

103. The relative pronoun quī, who, which, is thus declined:—

SINGULAR.			PLURAL.
NOM.	quī	quae	quod	quī	quae
GEN.	cūius	cūius	cūius	quōrum	quārum
DAT.	cui	cui	cui	quibus	quibus
ACC.	quem	quam	quod	quōs	quās
ABL.	quō	quā	quō	quibus	quibus

6. Interrogative and Indefinite Pronouns.

104. The interrogative or indefinite quis (quī), who? which? any, is declined in the Singular as follows:—

NOM.	quis (quī)	quae	quid (quod)
GEN.	cūius	cūius	cūius
DAT.	cui	cui	cui
ACC.	quem	quam	quid (quod)
ABL.	quō	quā	quō

The Plural is the same as that of the Relative. The singular quis is rare as an indefinite (see § 105. d).

NOTE.—The Relative, Interrogative, and Indefinite Pronouns are originally of the same Stem, and the forms for the most part are the same (compare § 103 with § 104). The stem has two forms, quo- and qui-.¹ The interrogative sense is doubtless the original one.

CASE-FORMS.—a. The relative has always qui, quae, quod. The interrogative and indefinite have quis, quae, quid, substantive, and qui, quae, quod, adjective: as, quis vocat? who calls? quid vidēs? what do you see? qui homō vocat? what man calls? quod templum vidēs? what temple do you see?

NOTE.—But qui is often used without any apparent adjective force; and quis is very common as an adjective, especially with words denoting a person: as, qui nōminat mē? who calls my name? quis diēs fuit? what day was it? quis homō? what man? but often qui homō? what sort of a man? nēsciō qui sis. I know not who you are.

b. Old forms for the genitive and dative are quōius, quōi.

c. The form qui is used for the ablative of both numbers and all genders; but especially as an adverb (how, by which way, in any way), and in the combination quicum, with whom, as an interrogative or an indefinite relative.

d. A nominative plural quēs (stem qui-) is found in early Latin. The dative and ablative quīs (stem quo-) is old, but not infrequent.

e. The preposition cum is joined enclitically to all forms of the ablative, as with the personal pronouns (§ 99. e): as, quōcum, quicum, quibuscum.

NOTE.—But occasionally cum precedes as with other words: as, cum quō (Juv. 4. 9).

f. The accusative form quom, cum (stem quo-) is used only as a conjunctive adverb, meaning when or since.

g. The adjective uter is used as an interrogative and indefinite relative. It is declined as an adjective of three terminations (see § 83).

NOTE.—This word is probably the comparative of the stem quo-; cf. intrā (p. 56, foot-note), and Greek πότερος.

105. The pronouns quis and qui appear in various combinations.

a. The adverb -cumque (-cunque) (cf. quisque) added to the relative makes an indefinite relative, which is declined like the simple word: as, quicumque, quaecumque, quodcumque, whoever, whatever; cuiuscunque, etc.

NOTE.—This suffix, with the same meaning, may be used with any relative: as, quaecumque, of whatever sort; quandocumque (also rarely quandōque), whenever; ubicumque, wherever.

b. The interrogative form doubled makes an indefinite relative: as, quisquis, whoever (so utut, however, ubiubi, wherever). Of quisquis both parts are declined, but the feminine is wanting in classic use: thus—

NOM.	quisquis (quīquī)	quidquid (quicquid)
ACC.	quemquem	quidquid (quicquid)
ABL.	quodquod quāquā	quodquod
Plur. NOM.	quisquī
D., ABL.	quibusquibus

NOTE.—This compound is rare, except in the forms quisquis, quicquid, and quodquod. The case-form quamquam is used only as a conjunction, meaning although (strictly however). Quiqui (nom. sing.) is an early and quāquā a late form. The grammarians give also a regular genitive and dative. Culculmodi is used like a genitive, but is probably locative.

c. Indefinite compounds are the following: quidam, a, a certain; quispiam, any; quivis, quilibet, any you please; quisquam, any at all. Of these the former part is declined like quis and qui, but they all have both quod (adjective) and quid (substantive) in the neuter.

d. The indefinite quis, otherwise rare, is found in the compounds aliquis, some one, and the combinations si quis, if any; nō quis, lest any, that none; ecquis, num quis, whether any, and a few others.

These are declined like quis, but have generally qua instead of quae, except in the nominative plural feminine. The forms aliquae, nominative singular feminine, occur rarely.

NOTE.—The compounds quispiam, aliquis, and quisquam are often used instead of quis with si, nō, and num, and are rather more emphatic, as si quis, if any one, si aliquis, if some one, si quisquam, if any one (ever, cf. h).

These compounds are thus declined:—

Sing.	aliquis, some .
NOM.	aliquis (aliquī)	aliqua	aliquid (aliquid)
GEN.		alicuius
DAT.		alicui
ACC.	aliquem	aliquam	aliquid (aliquid)
ABL.	aliquo	aliquā	aliquo

Plur.
NOM.	aliqui	aliquae	aliqua
GEN.	aliquorum	aliquarum	aliquorum
DAT.		aliquibus
ACC.	aliquos	aliquas	aliqua
ABL.		aliquibus

The forms in -qui and -quod are adjective; those in -quis and -quid, substantive: as, aliquod bonum, some good thing; but aliquid boni, something good (something of good).

NOTE. — Aliquis is compounded with ali-, old stem of alius (p. 49, foot-note). But the meaning other usually disappears.

e. The enclitic particle que added to the interrogative gives a universal: as, quisque, every one, uterque, either of two, or both. In this combination quis is regularly declined.

In the compound unusquisque, every single one, both parts are declined, and they are sometimes separated by other words.

Quotus quisque has the signification how many, pray? often in a disparaging sense.

f. The relative and interrogative have rarely a possessive adjective cuius (-a, -um), whose; and a patial cuius (cuius), of what country.

g. Quantus, how great, qualis, of what sort, are derivative adjectives from the same stem as the interrogative. They are used as interrogative or relative, corresponding to the demonstratives tantus, talis (§ 106).

h. Quisquam, with ullus, any, unquam, ever, usquam, anywhere, are chiefly used in negative sentences, or where there is an implied negative, as in interrogative or conditional sentences, or after quam, than; sine, without; vix, scarcely: as, necquisquam ex agmine tantō, and nobody from that great throng; si quisquam est timidus, is ego sum, if any one is timorous, I am the man; sine ullō dominō, without any master; an quisquam usquam gentium est aequē miser? why! is there anybody anywhere in the world so wretched?

i. Quisnam is emphatic: pray, who? ecquis and numquis are compounded from the indefinite particle en and the interrogative num; they mean not who, but any in a question: as, ecquis nōs videt? does any one see us? num quid hōc dubitās, do you at all doubt this?

7. Correlatives.

106. Many pronouns, pronominal adjectives, and adverbs have corresponding demonstrative, relative, interrogative, and indefinite forms. Such parallel forms are called CORRELATIVES. They are shown in the following table:—

DEMONSTR.	RELATIVE.	INTERROG.	INDEF. RELATIVE.	INDEF.

tālis, such	quālis	quālis?	(quālis cumque)	—
ibi, there	ubi	ubi?	ubi ubi	alicubi eō, thither	quō	quō?	quō quō	aliquō eā, that way	quā	quā?	quā quā	aliquā inde, thence	unde	unde?	(undecumque)	alicunde tum, then	quom, cum	quandō?	(cum cumque)	aliquandō tot, so many	quot	quot?	quot quot	aliquot totiēs, so often	quotiēs	quotiēs?	(quotiēs cumque)	aliquotiēs

a. The forms tot (originally toti), so many, quot, how (as) many, aliquot, several, totidem, as many, are indeclinable, and may take any gender or case: as, per tot annōs, tot proeliis, tot imperatōrēs (Cic.), so many commanders, for so many years, in so many battles.

b. The relative word in a pair of correlatives is often to be rendered simply as: thus, tantum argentī quantum aeris, as much (of) silver as (of) copper.

c. A frequent form of correlative is found in the ablative quō or quantō, by how much; eō or tantō, by so much, used with comparatives (rendered in English the . . . the)¹: as, — quō magis cōnāris, eō longius prōgrederis, the more you try, the farther on you get (by which the more, etc., by that the farther).

107. Certain relative and demonstrative adverbs are used correlatively as conjunctions: as, — ut (rel.) . . . ita, sic (dem.), as (while) . . . so (yet).

tam (dem.) . . . quam (rel.), so (as) . . . as.

cum (rel.) . . . tum (dem.), both . . . and; while . . . so also; not only . . . but also.

Compare et . . . et, both . . . and; aut (vel) . . . aut (vel), either . . . or; sive (seu) . . . sive; utrum . . . an, whether . . . or.

¹ In this phrase the is not the definite article but a pronominal adverb, being the Anglo-Saxon þy, the instrumental case of the pronoun þæt, that. This pronoun is used both as demonstrative and relative. Thus the . . . the corresponds exactly to quō . . . eō.

CHAPTER VI.—Verbs.

I.—INFLECTION OF THE VERB

1. Voice, Mood, Tense.

108. The inflection of the Verb denotes Voice, Mood, Tense, Number, and Person.

a. The VOICES are two: Active and Passive.

b. The MOODS are four: Indicative, Subjunctive, Imperative, and Infinitive.¹

c. The TENSES are six, viz.:—

1. For continued action, Present, Imperfect, Future.

2. For completed action, Perfect, Pluperfect, Future Perfect.

d. PERSON and NUMBER.—There are separate terminations for each of the three PERSONS, — first, second, and third, — both in the singular and in the plural.

2. Noun and Adjective Forms.

109. The following Noun and Adjective forms are also included in the inflection of the Latin Verb:—

a. Four PARTICIPLES,² viz.:—

Active: the Present and Future Participles.

Passive: the Perfect Participle and the Gerundive.³

b. The GERUND: this is in form a neuter noun of the second declension, used only in the oblique cases of the singular. A corresponding nominative is supplied by the Infinitive (see § 114. note).

c. The SUPINE: see §§ 71. a and 114. b.

3. Defective Forms.

110. Special forms for some of the tenses are wanting in certain parts of the verb:—

² The Participles are Adjectives in inflection and meaning (see § 25. e), but have the power of Verbs in construction and in distinguishing time.

³ The Gerundive is also used as an adjective, indicating necessity or duty (see § 113. d). In late use it became a Future Passive Participle.

a. The Subjunctive mood wants the Future and the Future Perfect. In most constructions, these tenses are supplied without ambiguity by the Present (or Imperfect) and the Perfect (or Pluperfect); for originally all tenses of the subjunctive referred to future time. In some constructions the want is supplied by the future participle with the proper tense of the verb signifying TO BE: as, cum sectātūrus sit, since he will follow.

b. In the Passive voice in all moods the tenses of completed action (Perfect, Pluperfect, and Future Perfect) are supplied by the Perfect Participle with the present, imperfect, and future of the verb signifying TO BE: as, occisus est, he was killed.

c. In the Imperative mood, the only tenses are the Present and the Future.

d. In the Infinitive mood the Present (active and passive) and the Perfect (active) only are formed by inflection. A Future in the active voice is formed by the Future Participle with the infinitive signifying TO BE: as, amātūrus esse, to be going to love; in the passive, by the Former Supine with Irī (infin. pass. of Ire, to go): as, amātum Irī, to be about to be loved. For the Perfect passive, see b above.

II.—SIGNIFICATION OF THE FORMS OF THE VERB.

1. Voices.

111. The Active and Passive Voices in Latin generally correspond to the active and passive in English; but—

a. The passive voice often has a Reflexive meaning: as, induitur vestem, he puts on his (own) clothes; Turnus vertitur, Turnus turns (himself).

NOTE.—This use corresponds very nearly to the Greek Middle voice, and is doubtless a survival of the original meaning of the passive (§ 118. note).

b. Many verbs are used only in the passive form, but with an active or reflexive meaning. These are called DEPONENTS (dēpōnentia), i.e., verbs which have laid aside (dēpōnere) the active form and the passive meaning (see § 135).

2. Moods.

112. The MOODS of the Latin verb are used as follows:

a. The Indicative Mood is used for direct assertions and interrogations: as,—valēsne? valeō, are you well? I am well; and also in some other idiomatic forms of predication.

b. The Subjunctive Mood has many idiomatic uses, as in commands, conditions, and various dependent clauses. It is frequently translated by the English Indicative; sometimes by means of the auxiliaries may, might, would, should; sometimes by the (rare) Subjunctive; sometimes by the Infinitive; and often by the Imperative, especially in prohibitions. Thus—eāmus, let us go.

cum vēnisset, when he had come.

adsum ut videam, I am here to see (that I may see).

tū nē quaesieris, do not thou inquire.

nēmō est qui ita existimet, there is no one who thinks so.

beātus sīs, may you be blessed.

nē abeat, let him not depart.

quid morer, why should I delay?

sunt qui putent, there are some who think.

imperat ut scribam, he orders me to write (that I write).

nesciō quid scribam, I know not what to write.

licet eās, you may go (it is permitted that you go).

cave cadās, don't fall.

vereor nē eat, I fear he will go.

vereor ut eat, I fear he will not go.

sī moneam audiat (pres.), if I should warn, he would hear.

sī vocārem audīret (imperf.), if I were (now) calling, he would hear.

quae cum dixisset abiit, and when he had said this, he went away.

NOTE.—The Latin Subjunctive is often translated, formally, by means of the English auxiliaries may, might, could, would, etc., to distinguish it from the Indicative, because the English has no subjunctive in general use. But the Latin uses the subjunctive in many cases where we use the indicative; and we use a colorless auxiliary in many cases where the Latin employs a separate verb with more definite meaning. Thus, I may write is often not scribam (subj.), but licet mihi scribere; I can write is possum scribere; I would write is scribam, scriberem, or scribere vellem (vellem); I should write, (if, etc.), scriberem (sī) . . . , or (implying duty) oportet mē scribere.

c. The IMPERATIVE is used for exhortation, entreaty, or command; but its place is often supplied by the Subjunctive (§§ 266, 269).

d. The INFINITIVE is used chiefly as an indeclinable noun, as the subject or object of another verb (§§ 270, 271. a). In special constructions it takes the place of the Indicative, and may be translated by that mood in English (see "Indirect Discourse," § 335 ff.).

NOTE.—For the Syntax of the Moods, see § 264 ff.

3. Participles.

113. The PARTICIPLES of the Latin verb are used as follows:—

a. The Present participle (ending in -ns) has commonly the same meaning and use as the English participle in -ING: as, vocāns, calling; legentēs, reading. (For its inflection, see egēns, § 85).

b. 1. The Future participle (ending in -ūrus) is oftenest used to express what is likely or about to happen.

NOTE.—When thus used with the tenses of the verb TO BE it forms what is called the First Periphrastic conjugation (see § 129): as, urbs est cāsūra, the city is about to fall; mānsūrus eram, I was going to stay.

2. It is also used, more rarely, to express purpose (see § 293. b): as, vēnit auditūrus, he came to hear (about to hear).

c. The Perfect participle (ending in -tus, -sus) has two uses:—

1. It is sometimes equivalent to the English Perfect Passive participle in -ED: as, tēctus, sheltered; acceptus, accepted; ictus, having been struck; and often has simply an adjective meaning: as, acceptus, acceptable.

2. It is also used to form certain tenses of the passive (§ 110. b): as, vocātus est, he was (has been) called.

NOTE.—There is no Perfect Active or Present Passive participle in Latin. The perfect participle of deponents, however, is generally used in an active sense, as secūtus, having followed. In the case of other verbs some different construction is used for these missing participles: as, cum vēnisset, having come (when he had come); equitātū praemissō, having sent forward the cavalry (the cavalry having been sent forward); dum verberātur, while he is (being) struck (= τυπτόμενος).

d. 1. The Gerundive (ending in -ndus) is often used as an adjective implying obligation or necessity (ought or must): as, audiendus est, he must be heard.

NOTE.—When thus used with the tenses of the verb TO BE it forms the Second Periphrastic conjugation dēligendus erat, he ought to have been chosen (§ 129).

2. In the oblique cases the Gerundive commonly has the same meaning as the Gerund (cf. § 114. a), though its construction is different. (For examples, see § 295 ff.)

e. The Participles may all be used as simple adjectives; and the present and perfect participles are sometimes compared as adjectives: as, amāns, amantior, more fond; dilēctus, dilēctissimus, dearest.

f. The Present and Perfect participles are (like adjectives) often used as nouns, especially in the plural (§ 188): as, regentēs, rulers (those ruling); mortuī, the dead.

g. As an adjective, the participle is often used predicatively to indicate some special circumstance or situation: as, moritūrī vōs salutāmus, we at the point of death (about to die) salute you.

4. Gerund and Supine.

114. The Gerund and Supine are used as follows:—

a. The GERUND is, in form, the neuter singular of the Gerundive. It is a verbal noun, corresponding in meaning to the English verbal noun in -ING (§ 295): as, loquendī causā, for the sake of speaking.

NOTE.—In this use the Gerund is found only in the oblique cases. A corresponding nominative is supplied by the Infinitive: thus, scribere est ūtile, writing (to write) is useful; but, ars scribendī, the art of writing.

b. The SUPINE is in form a noun of the fourth declension (§ 71. a), found only in the accusative ending in -tum, -sum and the ablative (or dative, probably both) ending in -tū, -sū. These are sometimes called the Former and the Latter Supine. The Former is used after verbs and the Latter after adjectives (§§ 302, 303): as,—

1. vēnit spectātum, he came to see.
2. mīrābile dictū, wonderful to tell.

5. Tenses.

115. The tenses of the verb are of two classes, viz.:—

1. Of continued action.

1. PRESENT: scribō, I am writing.
2. IMPERFECT: scribēbam, I was writing.
3. FUTURE: scribam, I shall write.
2. Of completed action.
4. PERFECT: scripsī, I have written, I wrote.
5. PLUPERFECT: scripseram, I had written.
6. FUTURE PERFECT: scripserō, I shall have written.

a. Tenses of the Indicative.

a. The tenses of the Indicative have, in general, the same meaning as the corresponding tenses in English; but are in some cases distinguished differently in their use. Thus—

1. The Future or Future Perfect is often used in subordinate clauses where we use the Present: as,— sī quid habēbō dabo, if I have (shall have) any thing, I will give.

cum vēnerō scribam, when I come (shall have come), I will write.

2. The Present and Imperfect are often used to express continued action where the English uses tenses of completed action: as, —

iam diū ægrōtō, I have long been (and still am) sick.

iam diū ægrōtābam, I had long been (and still was) sick.

NOTE. — Here the Perfect, ægrōtāvī, would imply that I am now well; the Pluperfect, that I was well at the past time designated.

b. The Imperfect is used to describe in past time a continued action or a condition of things: as, scribēbat, he was writing; ardēbat, it was on fire.

c. The Perfect, having two separate uses, is divided into the Perfect Definite and the Perfect Historical (or Indefinite).

1. The Perfect Definite represents the action of the verb as completed in present time, and corresponds to the English (present- or compound-) perfect: as, scripsī, I have written.

2. The Perfect Historical narrates a simple act or state in past time without representing it as in progress or continuing. It corresponds to the English past or preterite and the Greek aorist: as, scripsit, he wrote; arsit, it blazed up.

b. Tenses of the Subjunctive.

d. The tenses of the Subjunctive Mood are chiefly used in dependent clauses, following the rule for the Sequence of Tenses (see § 286); but have also special idiomatic uses (see Syntax, §§ 266 ff., 283, 308).

III.—PERSONAL ENDINGS.

116. Verbs have regular terminations¹ for each of the three Persons, both singular and plural, active and passive. These are:—

Sing.	ACTIVE.		PASSIVE.
1. -m (-ō or -ī):	am-ō, I love.	-r:	amo-r, I am loved.
2. -s:	amā-s, thou lovest.	-ris or -re:	amā-ris, thou art loved.
3. -t:	ama-t, he loves.	-tur:	amā-tur, he is loved.
Plur.	ACTIVE.		PASSIVE.
1. -mus:	amā-mus, we love.	-mur:	amā-mur, we are loved.
2. -tis:	amā-tis, you love.	-mini:	amā-mini, you are loved.
3. -nt:	ama-nt, they love.	-ntur:	ama-ntur, they are loved.

¹ These terminations are fragments of old Pronouns, whose signification is thus added to that of the verb-stem (compare p. 19, note 1). But the ending -mini in the second person plural of the passive is a remnant of the participial form found in the Greek -μενος, and has supplanted the proper form, which does not appear in Latin. It is thought by some scholars that -nt has a similar origin.

NOTE.—The present indicative of the active voice has lost the -m, and ends in the modified stem-vowel -ō except in sum and inquam (§§ 119, 144. δ). This ō stands for m blended in sound with a preceding vowel (amō = †amā-m). The perfect the future perfect, and the future in -bō have also lost the -m.

a. The Perfect Indicative active has the special terminations :—

- SING. 2. -stī: amāv-i-stī, thou lovedst.
 PLUR. 2. -stis: amāv-i-stis, you loved.
 3. -ērunt or -ēre: amāv-ērunt (-ēre), they loved.

b. The Imperative has the following terminations :—

Sing.	ACTIVE.	PASSIVE.
2. —:	amā, love thou .	-re: amā-re, be thou loved .
2. -tō:	amā-tō, thou shalt love .	-tor: amā-tor, thou shalt be loved .
3. -tō:	amā-tō, let him love .	-tor: amā-tor, let him be loved .
Plur.
2. -te:	amā-te, love ye .	-minī: amā-minī, be ye loved .
2. -tōte:	amā-tōte, ye shall love .	— —
3. -ntō:	ama-ntō, let them love .	-ntor: ama-ntor, let them be loved .

IV.—FORMS OF THE VERB.

117. Every Latin verb-form (except the adjective and noun forms) is made up of two parts, viz. :—

1. The STEM (see § 21). This is either the root or a modification or development of it.
2. The ENDING, consisting of—
 - a. the signs of mood and tense.
 - b. the personal ending (see § 116).

NOTE 1.—Thus in the verb vocā-vi-t, he called, the root is VOC, modified into the verb-stem vocā-, which by the addition of the tense sign -uī (-vī) becomes the perfect tense vocāvī; and to this is added the personal ending (-t) of the third person singular.

NOTE 2.—These endings are of various origin. In none of them, however, is the tense or mood sign strictly inserted between the root and the personal terminations. All verb-forms are either inherited from a time when the elements were still significant and could still be compounded, or are imitations of such inherited forms.

118. The Verb-endings, as they are formed by the signs for mood and tense combined with personal endings, are exhibited in the following table :—

ACTIVE.			PASSIVE.

Fut. -tūrus, -a, -um	Ger. -ndus, -a, -uus

GERUND.

-ndī, -ndō, -ndum, -ndō

SUPINE.

-tum, -tū

NOTE. — The i of the Perfect, which in early Latin is always long except before -mus, is of doubtful origin. It is probably in all cases a part of the stem, as it is in dedī, stetī, where it takes the place of the vowel a. In the suffixes -vī (of unknown origin) and -sī (akin to those of Greek ῥεῖν and Skr. adiksham), and in the perfects of consonant-roots, it seems to be, but probably is not, a mere connecting vowel. The s before -tī and -tis is also anomalous. Most scholars regard it as a remnant of es; but it may be, like the personal endings, of pronominal origin.

The Passive is a middle (or reflexive) form peculiar to Latin and Celtic, and of uncertain origin.

The Verb Sum.

119. The verb sum, be, is both irregular and defective, having no gerund or supine, and no participle but the future.

Its conjugation is given at the outset, on account of its importance for the inflection of all other verbs.

PRINCIPAL PARTS: Pres. sum, Infin. esse, Perf. fuī, Fut. Part. futūrus.

Plur.	1. fuerāmus, we had been.		fuissēmus
	2. fuerātis, you had been.		fuissētis
	3. fuerant, they had been.		fuissent

¹ All translations of the subjunctive are misleading, and hence none is given, see § 112. A Future Perfect.

- Sing.* 1. fuerō, I shall have been. Plur. 1. fuerimus, we shall have been.
 2. fueris, you will have been. 2. fueritis, you will have been.
 3. fuerit, he will have been. 3. fuerint, they will have been.

Future. 2. estō, thou shalt be. 2. estōte, ye shall be.
 3. estō, he shall be. 3. suntō, they shall be.

INFINITIVE.

- Present.* esse, to be.
Perfect. fuisse, to have been.
Future. fore or futūrus esse, to be about to be.

PARTICIPLE.

- Future.* futūrus, -a, -um, about to be.

a. The present participle, which should be †sēns (compare Sanskrit sant), appears in that form in ab-sēns, prae-sēns; and as ēns (compare ὄν) in pot-ēns. The simple form ēns is sometimes found in late or philosophical Latin as a participle or abstract noun, in the forms ēns, being; entia, things which are.

b. RARE FORMS.—Indicative: Future, escit, escunt (strictly an inchoative present, see § 167. a).

Subjunctive: Present, slem, siēs, siet, sient; fuam, fuās, fuat, fuant; Perfect, fūvimus; Pluperfect, fūvisset.

NOTE.—For essem, etc., forem, forēs, etc., are often used without difference of meaning.

120. The verb sum appears in numerous compounds, which will be treated under Irregular Verbs (§ 137).

NOTE.—The root of the verb sum is ES, which in the imperfect is changed to ER (see § 11. a. 1), and in many cases is shortened to S. Some of its modifications, as found in several languages more or less closely related to Latin, may be seen in the following table,—the “Indo-European” being the primitive or theoretic form, and the form syām corresponding to the Latin sim (slem):—

INDO-EUROPEAN.	SANSKRIT.		GREEK.	LATIN.	LITHUANIAN.
es-mi	as-mi	syām (opt.)	ἐμμι ¹	s-um	es-mi es-si	as-i	syās	ἐσσσι	es	es-i es-ti	as-ti	syāt	ἐσσι	es-t	es-ti s-masi	s-mas	syāma	ἐσμεν	s-umus	es-me s-tasi	s-tha	syāta	ἐσσι	es-tis	es-te
s-anti	s-anti	syus	ἐντι	s-unt	es-ti

The Perfect and Supine stems, ful-, futūro-, are kindred with the Greek ἐφύ, and with the English be.

The Three Stems.

121. The parts of the Latin verb may be formed upon three different stems (partly real and partly supposed), called the Present, the Perfect, and the Supine Stem (see notes, pp. 86, 119 ff.).

a. The tenses of continued action, both active and passive, together with the Gerund and Gerundive, are formed upon the PRESENT STEM, and collectively are called the Present System.

b. The tenses of completed action in the active voice are formed upon the PERFECT STEM, and are called the Perfect System.

c. The Perfect and Future Participles and the Supine are formed upon the SUPINE STEM, and are called the Supine System.

NOTE 1.—Since Latin verbs are commonly spoken of under the form of their present tense, the other parts are usually said to be derived from this. It is only in the verbs formed later in the language that this is true. Thus armāvi, I have armed, does come from armō, I arm; but sivī, I have allowed, does not come from sinō, I allow; but both sinō and sivī come from a common source, the root (see §§ 22, 123, 124), by different processes.

NOTE 2.—The Influence of Analogy. Many Latin verbs were not inherited from the parent speech, but formed during the separate existence of the language. The forms of these verbs are not strictly compounds of root or stem and ending, but are imitations of verbs already existing in Latin. For it is only by analogy that elements (parts of words) not complete and significant in themselves can be used to form new words in a developed language. When stems are not felt as significant, they cannot be used for composition. Thus a form like fugābat could be made only from a complete word fuga, or from some form in which fuga seemed to be a complete word; and must be regarded, not as a compound of stem and auxiliary, fugā- + bat (like arā- + bat), but as an imitation of forms like arābat, which originally were really compounds. Simple Perfects like dedī and compound forms like vēxī have both influenced, by analogy, the production of new forms, like momordī from mordeō, mānsī from maneō.

V.—REGULAR VERBS.

Latin verbs are classed as Regular or Irregular according as they do or do not follow the inflection of the Four Conjugations.

122. There are in Latin four principal forms of Present Stems, ending respectively in -ā-, -ē-, -ē-, -ī-. With this difference of stem most of the other differences of conjugation coincide

a. Verbs are accordingly classed in Four Regular Conjugations, distinguished by the stem-vowel which appears before -re in the Present Infinitive Active.

b. The PRINCIPAL PARTS of a verb, which determine its conjugation throughout, are —

1. The Present Indicative } showing the present stem and
2. The Present Infinitive } the conjugation.
3. The Perfect Indicative, showing the perfect stem.
4. The Supine (or the Perfect Participle), showing the supine stem.

c. The regular forms of the conjugations are seen in the following : —

First: Active, amō, amāre, amāvī, amātum, love.

Passive, amor, amārī, amātus.

Present- and Verb-stem amā-, Perfect-stem amāv-, Supine-stem amāt-.

Second: dēleō, dēlēre, dēlēvī, dēlētum, blot out.

Passive, dēleor, dēlērī, dēlētus.

Present- and Verb-stem dēlē-, Perfect-stem, dēlēv-, Supine-stem dēlēt-.

Third: tegō, tegēre, tēxī, tēctum, cover.

Passive, tegor, tegī, tēctus.

Root TEG, Verb-stem tegē-, Perfect-stem tēx-, Supine-stem tēct-.

Fourth: audiō, audīre, audīvī, audītum, hear.

Passive, audior, audīrī, audītus.

Present- and Verb-stem audī-, Perfect-stem, audīv-, Supine-stem, audīt-.

In the Second conjugation, however, the characteristic ē- rarely appears in the perfect and supine: the type of this conjugation is, therefore —

Second: moneō, monēre, monuī, monitum, warn.

Passive, moneor, monērī, monitus.

d. In many verbs the principal parts take forms belonging to two or more different conjugations (cf. § 134): as, —

1. 2, domō, domāre, domuī, domitum, subdue.

2. 3, maneō, manēre, mānsī, mānsum, remain.

3. 4, petō, petēre, petīvī, petītum, seek.

4. 3, vinciō, vincīre, vinxī, vinctum, bind.

Such verbs are referred to the conjugation to which the first or Present-stem conforms.

1. Present Stem.

NOTE. — The parent speech from which Latin comes possessed verbs with present stems of three different kinds. These verbs were formed as follows: —

First: From roots, by adding the personal endings.

Second: From noun-stems, by adding the personal endings. These noun-stems had been formed from roots by the addition of various suffixes, as a-, na-, ya-, ta-.

Third: From roots and stems, by adding a common suffix (probably -yami, etc., later -yomi) which already contained the personal endings.

Verbs of all these forms were inherited by the Latin. Of the first class few survive, and these are counted as irregular, except such as have been forced into some one of the four conjugations. Examples are: ēst, from edō; fert, from ferō; dās, from dō (dāre); flēmus, from fleō.

Of the second class a large number remain. In these the verb-stem ends in a short vowel, ē- (i-). This is a remnant of the original vowel ā- (ō-) of the noun-suffixes. Besides this, the consonant of the suffix is often preserved. Verbs of this form are often called primitive verbs, because the language lost the power of making new forms of this type except in a few cases. They make up the third conjugation. Examples are: ferō (stem feroe-) for bher-o-mi (cf. fert in the first class); sternimus (stem sternoe-) for star-no-mas; plectunt (stem plectoe-) for plec-to-nti; pellō (stem pelloe-) for pel-yo-mi. So dīscō (stem dīscoe-) for dī(c)sco-mi. This last form became the type for a large number of verbs called inceptive (see § 167. a).

Of the third class, those verbs in which any vowel (except u) came in contact with the suffix (-yami) suffered contraction so as to present a long vowel, ā-, ē-, i-, at the end of the stem. These became the types of the first, second, and fourth conjugations respectively. In imitation of these long vowel-stems numerous verbs were formed by the Romans themselves (after the mode of formation had been entirely forgotten) from noun and adjective stems. This came to be the regular way of forming new verbs, just as in English the borrowed suffix -ize can be added to adjectives to make a verb; as, modernize.

Those verbs of the third class in which a consonant or u came in contact with the suffix -yami suffered various phonetic changes. Such verbs fell partly into the third conjugation, giving rise to an irregular form of it, and partly into the fourth, and some have forms of both.

Examples are: (ōōn) spiciō, -spicere, for spek-yomi; veniō, venīre, for (g) ven-yomi; cupiō, cupere, but cupīvi; orior, oritur, but orīri. But pluō, pluere, for plu-yomi: and hence, by analogy, acuō, acuere.

But in all these cases many cross-analogies and errors as well as phonetic changes have been at work to produce irregularities. Hence has arisen the traditional system which may be practically represented as follows :—

123. The Present Stem is formed from the Root in all regular verbs in one of the following ways :¹—

a. In the First, Second, and Fourth conjugations, by adding a long vowel (ā, ē, ī) to the root, whose vowel is sometimes changed: as, vocā-re (VOC), monē-re (MEN, cf. meminī), sopī-re (SOP).

NOTE.—These verb-stems are almost all really formed from noun-stems on the pattern of older formations (see note, p. 86).

b. In the Third conjugation, by adding a short vowel (ĕ, ĭ) to the root: as, tegĕ-re (TEG), allĭ-tis (AL). This vowel may be preceded—

1. By n, t, sc, or the terminal consonant of the root repeated (a phonetic representative of original i): as, temne-re (TEM), plect-ō (PLEC), crēsce-re (CRĒ), pell-ō (for pel-i-ō, PEL), mitt-ō (MIT).

2. By i, which in most forms disappears in inflection (see § 126. c): as, fug-i-ō, fug-ĕ-re (FUG).

c. The root may also be changed—

1. By lengthening the vowel: as, dic-e-re (DIC), caed-e-re (CAD?).

2. By the repetition of a part of it (reduplication): as, gĭ-gn-e-re (GEN).

3. By inserting a nasal (m or n): as, find-e-re (FID); tang-e-re (TAG).

d. In some verbs the present stem is formed from a noun-stem irregularly treated as a root: as, statu-e-re (statu-s), aestu-ā-re (aestu-s); cf. acuō, acuere.

e. A few isolated forms use the simple root as a present stem: as, fer-re, fer-t; es-se; vel-le, vul-t. These are counted as irregular.

SANSKRIT.		SANSKRIT.		SANSKRIT.
1. vāch-ayā-mi	voc-(ā)-ō	2. vah-ā-mi	veh-ō	3. paç-yā-mi	-spic-i-ō vach-aya-si	voc-ā-s	vah-a-si	veh-i-s	paç-ya-si	-spic-i-s
vach-aya-ti	voc-a-t	vah-a-ti	veh-i-t	paç-ya-ti	-spic-i-t vach-ayā-mas	voc-ā-mus	vah-ā-mas	veh-i-mus	paç-yā-mas	-spic-i-mus
vach-aya-tha	voc-ā-tis	vah-a-tha	veh-i-tis	paç-ya-tha	-spic-i-tis
vach-aya-nti	voc-a-nt	vah-a-nti	veh-u-nt	paç-ya-nti	-spic-i-unt

In some cases there appears to be a connecting vowel not explained above; but this comes from the irregular use of a verb-stem in place of a root, as in oritūrus (cf. ortus), monitus (cf. mōns, mentis).

f. A few have roots ending in a vowel. These generally use as present stem the root without additions, but sometimes modified: as, da-mus (DA), flē-mus (stem flē-, root form unknown), sisti-mus (STA). But others, as rui-mus (RU), are formed with an additional vowel according to the analogy of d.

2. Perfect Stem.

124. The Perfect Stem is formed as follows:—

a. The suffix v (u) (see p. 120, c) is added to the verb-stem: as, vocā-v-I, audī-v-I; or to the root: as, son-u-I (sonā-re, root SON), mon-u-I (monē-re, MON treated as a root).

NOTE.—In a few verbs the vowel of the root is transposed and lengthened (see § 9, d): as, strā-v-I (sternō, STAR), sprē-v-I (spernō, SPAR).

b. The suffix s is added to the root: as, carp-s-I (CARP), tēx-I (for teg-s-I, TEG).

NOTE.—The modifications of the present stem sometimes appear in the perfect: as, finx-I (FIG, present stem finġō-), sax-I (SAC, present stem sanci-).

c. The root is reduplicated by prefixing the first consonant—generally with ē, sometimes with the root-vowel: as, ce-cid-I (cadō, CAD), to-tond-I (tondō, TOND).

NOTE.—In fid-I (for †fe-fid-I, find-ō), scid-I (for †sci-scid-I, scindō), the reduplication has been lost, leaving merely the root.

d. The root-vowel is lengthened: as, ēg-I (āg-ō), fūg-I (fūg-i-ō).

e. The root itself is used as the perfect stem: as, vert-I (vert-ō, VERT), solv-I (solv-ō, SOLV used as root).

f. Sometimes the perfect is formed from a lost or imaginary stem: as, petī-v-I (as if from †peti-ō, †petī-re, PET).

3. Supine Stem.

125. The Supine Stem¹ is formed by adding t- (or phonetically s-):—

a. To the verb-stem: as, amā-t-um, dēlō-t-um, audī-t-um.

b. To the root, with or without i: as, cap-t-um (capiō, CAP), moni-t-um (moneō, MON used as root), cās-um (for cad-t-um, CAD).

NOTE 1.—The modifications of the present stem sometimes appear in the supine: as, tīnc-t-um (tīngō, TIG), tēn-s-um (tēn-d-ō, TEN).

NOTE 2.—The supine is sometimes from a lost or imaginary verb-stem: as, petī-t-um (as if from †peti-ō, †petī-re, PET).

126. The forms of the several conjugations from which, by adding the verb endings in § 118, all the moods and tenses can be made are as follows:—

a. The First Conjugation includes all verbs which add ā- to the root to form the present stem:¹ as, amā-re; with a few whose root ends in a (dō, dāre; for, fārī; flō, flāre; nō, nāre; stō, stāre).

1. The stem-vowel ā- is lost before -ō (as, amō = †amā-ō), and in the present subjunctive is changed to ē: as, amē-s, amē-mus.

2. The perfect stem regularly adds v, the supine stem t, to the present stem: as, amā-v-ī, amā-t-um. For exceptions, see § 130.

b. The Second Conjugation includes all verbs which add ē- to the root to form the present stem, as monē-re; with a few whose root ends in ē (flē-ō, flē-re; neō, nē-re; re-or, rē-rī).

1. In the present subjunctive ā is added to the verb-stem: as, mone-ā-s, mone-ā-mus (cf. § 118).

2. A few verbs form the perfect stem by adding v (u), and the supine stem by adding t to the present stem: as, delē-v-ī, delē-t-um. But most form the perfect stem by adding v (u) to the root, and the supine stem by adding t to a weaker form of the present stem, having i for ē: as, mon-u-ī, moni-t-um. For lists, see § 131.

c. The Third Conjugation includes all verbs (not irregular, see § 137) which add ē- to the root to form the present stem: as, tegē-re, capē-re; with a few whose root ends in ē: as, se-rē-re for †se-se-re (reduplicated from se, cf. sātum).

1. The stem-vowel ē- is lost before -ō, becomes *u*² before -nt, and i before the other endings of the indicative and imperative: as, teg-ō, teg-it, tegu-nt; in the imperfect indicative it becomes ē: as, tegē-bam; in the future, ē: as, tegēs; in the present subjunctive ā: as, tegā-s.

Verbs in -īō retain the i before a, ō, u, and ē: as, *capi-at, capi-unt, capi-ēbat, capi-ēs, capi-et*³; but lose it elsewhere: as, cap-it (not †capi-it), cap-eret.

2. All forms of perfect and supine stems are found in this conjugation. See lists, § 132. But the perfect is never formed from the present stem, but always from the root (§ 121. n. 1).

¹ The present stem is thus the verb-stem. For exceptions, see § 130.

² The gerundive varies between -endus and -undus (§ 12. d).

³ The e in capiet, once long, was afterwards shortened.

d. The Fourth Conjugation includes all verbs which add I to the root to form the present stem: as, audī-re.¹ In these the perfect and supine stems regularly add v, t, to the verb-stem: as, audī-v-I, audī-t-um.² The endings of the third conjugation are added in the third person plural of the present (indicative and imperative), in the imperfect and future indicative, and in the present subjunctive: as, audi-unt, audi-ēbat, audi-ētis, audi-at.

e. The Pres. Imperative Act. (second pers. sing.) is the same as the present stem: as, amā, monē, tegē, audī. But verbs in -iō of the third conjugation omit i: as, capē (not †capie).

f. The tenses of completed action are all regularly formed by adding the tense-endings (given in § 118) to the perfect stem: as, amāv-I, amāv-eram, amāv-erō, amāv-erim, amāv-issem, amāv-isse.

g. The tenses of completed action in the Passive voice are formed by adding to the perfect participle the corresponding tenses of continued action of the verb esse: as, perf. amātus sum; plup. amātus eram, etc.

4. Synopsis of the Verb.

127. The following synopsis shows the forms of the verbs arranged according to the several stems. Amō, a regular verb of the first conjugation, is taken as a type.

¹ A few are formed from noun-stems, as finī-re (from finī-s), and a few roots end in i; but these are not distinguishable in form.

² For exceptions, see § 133.

128. The following special forms require notice :—

a. In tenses formed upon the perfect stem, v between two vowels is often lost and contraction takes place. Thus,—

1. Perfects in -āvi, -ēvi, -ōvi, often contract the two vowels into ā, ē, ō respectively: as, amāsse for amāvisse; amārim for amāverim; amāssem for amāvissem; cōnsuērat for cōnsuēverat; flēstis for flēvistis; nōsse for nōvisse. So in perfects in -vi, where the v is a part of the present stem: as, commōrat for commōverat.

NOTE.—The first person of the perfect indicative (as amāvi) is never contracted, the third very rarely.

2. Perfects in -ivi regularly omit v, but rarely contract the vowels except before st and ss, and very rarely in the third person perfect: as, audieram for audīveram; audisse for audīvisse; audistī for audīvistī; abiit for abīvit. The forms sīris, sīrit, sīrtis, sīrint, for sīveris, etc. (from sīverō or sīverim), are archaic.

b. In many forms from the perfect stem, is, iss, sis are lost in like manner when s would be repeated if they were retained: as, dixtī for dixistī (x = cs); trāxe for trāxisse; ēvāstī for ēvāsisstī; vixet for vixisset; ērēpsēmus for ērēpsissēmus. These forms belong to archaic and colloquial usage.

c. Four verbs—dīcō, dūcō, faciō, ferō—with their compounds, drop the vowel-termination of the imperative, making dīc, dūc, fāc, fēr; but compounds in -ficiō retain it, as cōnfice. The forms dīce, dūce, face (never ferē), occur in early Latin.

d. For the imperative of sciō, the future form scītō is always used in the singular, and scītōte usually in the plural.

e. The following ancient forms are chiefly found in poetry:—

1. In the fourth conjugation -ībam, -ībō for -iēbam, -iam (future). These forms are regular in eō, gō (§ 141).

2. In the present subjunctive -im: as in duim, perduim (for dem, †perdem), retained in religious formulas. This form is regular in sum and volō and their compounds (§§ 119, 138).

3. In the perfect subjunctive and future perfect -sim, -sō: as, faxim, faxō, iūssō, recēpsō, (= fēcerō, etc.); ausim (= ausus sim).

4. In the passive infinitive -ier: as, vocārier for vocārī; agier for agī.

5. A form in -āssō, -āssere is found used as a future perfect: as, amāssis, from amō; levāssō, from levō; impetrāssere, from impetrō; iūdicāssit, from iūdicō.

pandō, pandī, pāns- (pass-), open .	volvō, volvī, volūt-, turn .

NOTE.—The following have no perfect or supine:—

claudō, limp .	hīscō, yawn .
fatiscō, gape .	rabō, rave .
fulgō, flash .	tollō (sustulī, sublātum supplied from sufferō), raise .
glāscō, swell .	vergō, incline .
glūbō, peel .

² In these the perfect stem is the same as the verb-root, having lost the reduplication (§ 124. c. note).

133. There are — besides a few deponents and some regular derivatives in -ūriō, as ēsuriō, be hungry (cf. § 167. c) — about 60 verbs of this conjugation, a large proportion of them being descriptive verbs: like — crōciō, croak.	ganniō, yelp.	hirriō, snarl.	scatūriō, gush. cūcūriō, crow.	glūtiō, gulp.	mūgiō, bellow.	tinniō, tinkle. ōbulliō, bubble.	grunniō, grunt.	muttiō, mutter.	tussaiō, cough.

fritinniō, twitter.	hinniō, neigh.	singultiō, hiccup.	vāgiō, cry.

Those verbs not conjugated regularly like audiō, are the following:

amiciō, amixī (-cuī), amict-, clothe.	fulciō, fulsī, fult-, prop. aperiō, aperuī, apert-, open.	hauriō, hausī, haust- (haus-), drain. comperiō, -perī, compert-, find.	operiō, operuī, opert-, cover. farcīō, farsī, farct- (-tum), stuff.	rauciō, rausī, raus-, be hoarse. feriō, strike (no perfect or supine).	reperiō, repperī, repert-, find.

saepiō, saepiī, saept-, hedge in.	sarriō, -īvi (-uī), -itum, hoe. saliō (-siliō), salui (salī), salt- (-sult-), leap.	sentiō, sēnsī, sēns-, feel. sanciō [SAC], sānxi, sanct-, sanc- tion.	sepeliō, sepelīvi, sepult-, bury. sarciō, sarsi, sart-, patch.	singultiō, -īvi, singultum, sob. veniō, vēni, vent-, come. vinciō, vinxi, vinct-, bind.

The following are regular in the perfect, but have no supine stem. — caecutiō, be purblind.	gestiō, be overjoyed.

dēmentiō, be mad.	glōciō, cluck (as a hen).
ferōciō be fierce.	ineptiō, play the trifler.

Parallel Forms.

134. Many verbs have more than one set of forms, of which only one is generally found in classic use: as, — lavō, lavāre or lavēre, wash (see § 132. e). scateō, scatēre or scatēre, gush forth. lūdificō, -āre or lūdificor, -ārī, mock. fulgō, fulgēre or fulgeō, fulgēre, shins.

DEPONENT VERBS.

135. Deponent Verbs have the form of the Passive Voice, with an active or reflexive signification: as, —

1st conj. mīror, mīrārī, mīrātus, admire. 2d conj. vereor, verērī, veritus, fear. 3d conj. sequor, sequī, secūtus, follow.

a. Deponents have the participles of both voices: as, — sequēns, following. secūtūrus, about to follow. secūtus, having followed. sequendus, to-be-followed.

b. The perfect participle generally has an active sense, but in verbs otherwise deponent it is often passive: as, mercātus, bought; adeptus, gained (or having gained).

c. The future infinitive is always in the active form: thus, sequor has secūtūrus esse (not secūtum īrī).

d. The gerundive, being passive in meaning, is found only in transitive verbs, or neuter verbs used impersonally: as, — hōc cōfītendum est, this must be acknowledged. moriendum est omnibus, all must die.

e. Most deponents are neuter or reflexive in meaning, corresponding to what in Greek is called the Middle Voice (§ 111. a).

f. Some deponents are occasionally used in a passive sense: as, crīminor, I accuse, or I am accused.

g. About twenty verbs are, with an active meaning, found in both active and passive forms: as, mereō or mereor, I deserve.

h. More than half of all deponents are of the First Conjugation, and all of these are regular. The following deponents are irregular:—

adsentior, -īrī, adsēnsus, assent.	nāscor, -ī, nātus, be born. apiscor, (-ip-), -ī, aptus (-eptus), get.	nītor, -ī, nīsus (nīxus), strive. dēfeticor, -ī, -fessus, faint.	oblīviscor, -ī, oblītus, forget. expērgisor, -ī, perrēctus, rouse.	opperior, -īrī, oppertus, await. experior, -īrī, expertus, try.	ordior, -īrī, ōrsus, begin. fateor, -ērī, fassus, confess.	orior (3d), -īrī, ortus, (oritūrus), rise. faticor, -ī, gape.	paciscor, -ī, pāctus, bargain. fruor, -ī, frūctus (fruitus), enjoy.	pator (-petior), -ī, passus (-pe-sus), suffer. fungor, -ī, fūctus, fulfil.	-plector, -ī, -plexus, clasp. gradior (-gredior), -ī, gressus, step.	proficiascor, -ī, profectus, set-out. irāscor, -ī, irātus, be angry.	queror, -ī, questus, complain. lābor, -ī, lāpsus, fall.	reor, rērī, ratus, think. loquor, -ī, locūtus (loquūtus), speak.	revertor, -ī, reversus, return.
-miniscor, -ī, -mentus, think.	ringor, -ī, rictus, snarl. mētiar, -īrī, mēnsus, measure.	sequor, -ī, secūtus (sequūtus), follow. moriar, -ī (-īrī), mortuus (mori-tūrus), die.	tueor, -ērī, tuitus (tutus), defend. nānciscor, -ī, nactus (nactus), find.	ulciscor, -ī, ultus, avenge. ūtor, -ī, ūsus, use, employ.

NOTE.—The deponent comperior, -īrī, compertus, is rarely found for comperiō. Revertor, until the time of Augustus, had regularly the active forms in the perfect system, revertī, reverteram, etc.

i. The following deponents have no supine stem:— dēvertor, -tī, turn aside (to lodge).	medeor, -ērī, heal. diffiteor, -ērī, deny.	reminiscor, -ī, call to mind. liquor, -ī, melt (neut.).	vescor, -ī, feed upon.

NOTE.—Deponents are only passive (or middle) verbs whose active has disappeared. There is hardly one that does not show at some period of the language signs of being used in the active.

Semi-Deponents.

136. A few verbs having no perfect stem are regular in the present, but appear in the tenses of completed action as deponents. These are called semi-deponents or neuter passives. They are:—

audeō, audēre, ausus, dare.	gaudeō, gaudēre, gāvīsus, rejoice. fidē. fidēre, fīsus, trust.	soleō, solēre, solitus, be wont.

a. From audeō there is an old subjunctive perfect ausim. The form sōdēs (for sī audēs), an thou wilt, is frequent in the dramatists and rare elsewhere.

b. The active forms vāpulō, vāpulāre, be flogged, and vēnēō, vēnīre, be sold (contracted from vēnum īre, go to sale), have a passive meaning, and are sometimes called neutral passives. To these may be added fieri, to be made (see § 142), and exsulāre, to be banished (live in exile).

NOTE.—The following verbs are sometimes found as semi-deponents: īūrō, īūrāre, īūrātus, swear; nūbō, nūbere, nūpta, marry; placeō, placēre, placitus, please.

[For the regular Derivative Forms of Verbs, see § 167.]

IRREGULAR VERBS.

137. Several verbs add some of the personal endings of the present system directly to the root, or combine two verbs in their inflection. These are called Irregular Verbs (cf. p. 86). They are sum, volō, ferō, edō, queō, eō, fiō, and their compounds.

Sum has already been inflected in § 119.

a. Sum is compounded without any change of inflection with the prepositions ab, ad, dē, in, inter, ob, prae, prō (prōd), sub, super.

In the compound prōsum, prō retains its original d before e. Thus,—

	INDIC.	SUBJ.
Pres.	prōsum , I help .	prōsim
	prōdes	prōsis
	prōdest	prōsit

δ. Sum is also compounded with the adjective potis, or pote, able, making the verb possum. This is inflected as follows:—

	INDICATIVE.	SUBJUNCTIVE.
Pres.	possum , I can.	possim potes , you can.	possis potest , he can.	possit

F. P.	potuerō , I shall have been able.
INFIN.	Pres. posse	Perf. potuisse
PART.	potēns (adj.), powerful.

NOTE.—The forms potis sum, pote sum, etc., occur in early writers. Other early forms are potesse; possem, -ēs, -et; poterint, potisit (for possit); potestur (with pass. inf. cf. § 143. a).

138. Volō and its compounds are inflected as follows:—

volō, velle, voluī, wish.

nōlō (for nē volō), nōlle, nōluī, be unwilling.

mālō (for magis or mage volō), mälle, māluī, wish rather, prefer.

a. The compounds adeō, approach, ineō, enter, and some others, are transitive. They are inflected as follows in the passive:—

INDIC.		SUBJ.
Pres. adeor	Imperf. adībar	Pres. adear
adīris	Fut. adībor	Imperf. adīrer
adītur	Perf. aditus sum	Perf. aditus sim
adīmur	Plup. aditus eram	Plup. aditus essem
adīmini	F. P. aditus erō	INFIN. adīrī, aditus esse
adeuntur		PART. aditus adeundus

Thus inflected, the forms of eō are used impersonally in the third person singular of the passive: as, itum est (§ 146. d'). The infinitive irī is used with the supine in -um to make the future infinitive passive (§ 147. c. 1). The verb vēneō, be sold (i.e. vēnum eō, go to sale), has also several forms in the passive.

b. In the perfect system of eō the forms without v are more common, and in the compounds are regular: as, adīi, adieram, adīisse (adīsse).

c. The compound ambiō is inflected regularly like a verb of the fourth conjugation. But it has also ambībat in the imperfect indicative.

d. Prō with eō retains its original d: as, prōdeō, prōdīs, prōdit.

¹ Root I, cf. ελμι; the e stands for eī, lengthened form of the root I.

142. Faciō, facēre, fēcī, factum, make is regular. But it has imperative fac in the active, and besides the regular forms the future perfect faxō, perfect subjunctive faxim. The passive of faciō is — fiō, fierī, factus sum, be made, or become.

The tenses of the first stem of fiō are regular of the fourth conjugation, but the subjunctive imperfect is fierem, and the infinitive fieri.

a. Most compounds of faciō with prepositions change ā to i (present stem), or ē (supine stem), and are inflected regularly: as, — cōnficiō, cōnficēre, cōnfēcī, cōnfectum, finish.

cōnficior, cōnfici, cōnfectus.

b. Other compounds retain a, and have -fiō in the passive: as, benefaciō, -facere, -fēcī, -factum; pass. benefiō, -fierī, -factus, benefit. These retain the accent of the simple verb: as, bene-fā'cis (§ 19. d).

c. A few isolated forms of -fiō occur in other compounds: viz., —

cōnfīt, it happens.	dēfīt, it lacks.	Infīt, he begins (to speak).
cōnfiet	dēfiunt	Infliunt
cōnfiat	dēfiet	effieri, to be effected.
cōnfieret	dēfiat	interfieri, to perish.
cōnfieri	dēfieri	interfiat, let him perish.

DEFECTIVE VERBS.

143. Some verbs have lost their Present stem, and use only tenses of the Perfect, in which they are inflected regularly. These are —

a. Coepī,¹ I began; Infin. coeptisse; Fut. Part. coeptūrus; Perf. Pass. Part. coeptus.

The passive is used with the passive infinitive: as, coeptus sum vocārī, I began to be called, but coepī vocāre, I began to call (cf. § 144. g, note). For the present incipiō is used.

b. Ōdī, I hate;² perfect participle ōsus, hating or hated (perōsus, utterly hateful), future participle ōsūrus, likely to hate.

c. Meminī, I remember;³ with the Imperative mementō, mementōte; Part. meminēns.

NOTE.—Ōdī and meminī have a perfect form with a present meaning, and are called preteritive verbs. Nōvī and cōnsuēvī (usually referred to nōscō and cōnsuēscō) are often used in the sense of I know (have learned), and I am accustomed (have become accustomed), as preteritive verbs. Many other verbs are occasionally used in the same way (see § 279. Remark).

144. Many verbs are found only in the present system. Such are maereō, -ēre, be sorrowful (cf. maestus, sad); feriō, -īre, strike.

In many the simple verb is incomplete, but the missing parts occur in its compounds: as, vādō, vādere, invāsī, invāsum.

Some verbs occur very commonly, but only in a few forms: as,— a. Āiō, I say:—

INDIC. Pres. āiō, ais, ait; — — — aiunt

Impf. aiēbam (aiſbam), aiēbās, etc.

SUBJ. Pres. aiās, aiat, aiant

IMPER. ai

PART. aiēns

b. Inquam, I say (used only, except in poetry, in direct quotations, like the English quoth, which is possibly from the same root):—

inquimus, inquitis (late), inquiunt

Impf. inquiēbat

Fut. inquiēs, -et

Perf. inquistī, inquit

IMPER. inque, inquitō

c. The deponent fārī, to speak, forms the perfect tenses regularly: as, fātus sum, eram, etc. It has also —

INDIC. Pres. fātur, fantur

Fut. fābor, fābitur

IMPER. fāre

INFIN. fārī

Several forms compounded with the prepositions ex, prae, prō, inter, occur: as, *prae*fātur, *aff*ārī, *prō*fātus, *inter*fātur, etc. The compound infāns is regularly used as a noun (child). Infandus, nefandus, are used as adjectives, unspeakable, abominable.

d. Quaesō, I ask, beg (original form of quaerō, § 132. d), has —

INDIC.	Pres. quaesō , quaesūmus
INFIN.	quaesere

f. A few verbs are found chiefly in the Imperative: as, —

Pres. sing. salvē, plur. salvēte, hail! (from salvus, safe and sound). An infin. salvēre also occurs.

Pres. sing. avē (or havē), plur. avēte, Fut. avētō, hail or farewell.

Pres. sing. cedo, plur. cedite (cette), give, tell.

Pres. sing. apage! begone! (properly a Greek word).

g. Queō, I can, nequeō, I cannot, are conjugated like eō. They are rarely used except in the present.

Impersonal Verbs.

145. Many verbs, from their meaning, appear only in the third person singular, the infinitive, and the gerund. These are called Impersonal Verbs, as having no personal subject.¹ Their synopsis may be given as follows:—

CONJ. I. it is plain.	II. it is allowed.	III. it chances.	IV. it results.	PASS. CONJ. I. it is fought.

¹ With impersonal verbs the word IT is used in English, having usually no representative in Latin, though id, hōc, illud, are often used nearly in the same way.

146. Impersonal Verbs may be classified as follows:—

a. Verbs expressing the operations of nature and the time of day: as, pluit, it rains; ningit, it snows; grandinat, it hails; fulgurat, it lightens; vesperāscit (inceptive, § 167. a), it grows late; lūcet hōc iam, it is getting light now.

NOTE.—In these no subject is distinctly thought of. Sometimes, however, the verb is used personally with the name of a divinity as the subject: as, Iūppiter tonat, Jupiter thunders. In poetry other subjects are occasionally used: as, fundae saxa pluunt, the slings rain stones.

b. Verbs of feeling, where the person who is the proper subject becomes the object, as being himself affected by the feeling expressed in the verb (§ 221. b). Such are: miseret, it grieves; paenitet (poenitet), it repents; piget, it disgusts; pudet, it shames; taedet, it wearies: as, miseret mē, I pity (it distresses me).

NOTE.—Such verbs often have also a passive form: as, misereor, I pity (am moved to pity); and occasionally other parts: as, paenitūrus (as from tpaenidō), paenitendus, pudendus, pertaesum est, pigitum est.

c. Verbs which have a phrase or clause as their subject (§§ 270. a, 330, 332. a): as,— accidit, contingit, ēvenit, obtingit, obvenit, fit, it happens.

libet, it pleases.

licet, it is permitted.

certum est, it is resolved.

cōnstat, it is clear.

placet, vidētur, it seems good.

decet, it is becoming.

dēlectat, iuvat, it delights.

oportet, necesse est, it is needful.

praestat, it is better.

interest, rēfert, it concerns.

vacat, there is leisure.

restat, superest, it remains.

NOTE.—Many of these verbs may be used personally. Libet and licet have also the passive forms libitum (licitum) est, etc. The participles libēns and licēns are used as adjectives.

d. The passive of intransitive verbs is very often used impersonally: as, pūgnātur, there is fighting (it is fought); itur, some one goes (it is gone); parcitur mihi, I am spared (it is spared to me, see § 230).¹

¹ This use of the passive proceeds from its original reflexive meaning, the action being regarded as accomplishing itself (compare the French cela se fait).

Periphrastic Forms.

147. The following periphrastic forms are found in the inflection of the verb : —

- a. The so-called "Periphrastic Conjugations" (see § 129).
- b. The tenses of completed action in the passive formed by the tenses of esse with the perfect participle : as, amātus est.
- c. The future infinitive passive, formed as follows : —
 1. By the infinitive passive of eō, gō, used impersonally with the supine in -um : as, amātum iri.
 2. By fore (or futūrum esse), with the perfect participle (as amātus fore).
 3. By fore with ut and the subjunctive (cf. § 288. f).

NOTE.

Origin and History of Verb-Forms.

The forms that make up the conjugation of a verb are composed of formations from a root, originally separate, but gradually grouped together, and afterwards supplemented by new formations made on old lines to supply deficiencies. Some of these forms were inherited, already made, by the Latin language; others were developed in the course of the history of the language itself.

1. PRESENT STEM. — The Present stem is a modification or development of the root (see § 123). In regular forms of the First, Second, and Fourth Conjugations it appears in all the other parts of the verb (including noun and adjective forms) as well, and is accordingly called the Verb-Stem.

The tenses of the Present system are made from the Present stem as follows : —

a. In the Present Indicative the personal endings are added directly to the present stem. Thus root AR, present- (and verb-) stem arā-; arā-s, arā-mus, arā-tis.

b. In the Imperfect Indicative the suffix -bam, -bās, etc. (originally a complete verb), is added. bam is probably the imperfect of the root BHU (cf. fuī, futūrus, fiō, φύω, be), meaning I was. This was added to a complete word originally a case of a noun, as in I was a-ploughing, hence arā-bam. The form probably began in the second or the third conjugation and from that was extended to the others.

c. In the Future Indicative a similar suffix, -bō, -bis, etc., is added (by the same process). bō is probably a present form of the same root BHU, with a future meaning : as, arā-bō.

This form once in use in all the conjugations was later supplanted in the third and fourth by an inherited form, which was originally an optative mood, differing from the present indicative only in the final vowel of the stem (see § 126. c. 1): as, sugē-bō (old); sugam, sugēs (later).

d. In the Present Subjunctive the personal terminations were added to another form of present stem of great antiquity with a different vowel: as, amem, moneam, audiam.

e. In the Imperfect Subjunctive a suffix, -rem, -res, etc., was added. -rem is doubtless a very old modal form of sum diverted from its original use.

f. The noun and adjective forms of the Present system were originally separate formations made from the root by means of noun-suffixes. These forms being associated with the verb became types for the formation of new ones from the present stem, in cases where no such formation from the root ever existed. Thus regere is originally a dative (or locative) of a noun like genus, generis; but as regere seems to be rege + re, so arā-re was made in the same manner. Gerendus is the noun-stem gerōn-, i.e. GER + ōn- (gerō, -ōnis, § 162. c.) + du-; but it seemed to be gere + ndus, and thus gave rise to ama-ndus.

2. PERFECT STEM.—The Latin inherited from the parent Indo-European speech preterite forms of two kinds:—

a. In the real perfect (perfect with have in English) the proper terminations (see § 118) are added directly to a root-form, which was originally a reduplication (doubling) of the root with vowel change. Thus stō, root STA, perfect stetī (for †stesti); cf. pungō (root PUG), pupūgī (later pupugī).

b. In other inherited verbs the perfect was formed by a verbal auxiliary (some form of sum) added to the root (or later to the present stem). Thus dīcō, root DIC, perfect †dīc-sī (dīxī). This auxiliary being a complete verb-form, contained, of course, the personal terminations.

c. The remaining perfects were formed with a suffix -vī, of uncertain origin, but containing the personal terminations. But these formative processes had been forgotten long before the Latin language reached the stage in which we know it. The form in -vī, however, became the type for new Perfects. By the Romans, the first person singular of the Perfect (however formed), losing its final vowel, was treated as a new stem, from which other forms were developed by the use of added auxiliaries or by analogy with those already formed. This stem is called the Perfect Stem. Thus were formed the Pluperfect and the Future Perfect Indicative, the Perfect and Pluperfect Subjunctive, and the Perfect Infinitive. The terminations of these tenses are parts of sum in some form or other, but precisely how they are made is uncertain.

3. SUPINE STEM.—The Perfect and Future Participles and the Supine, though strictly noun-forms, each with its own suffix, agree in having the first letter of the suffix (t) the same and in suffering the same phonetic changes (by which the t becomes s, § 11. a. 2).

Hence these forms, along with several sets of derivatives (see §§ 162. a, 163. b, 164. m) used as nouns or adjectives, were felt by the Romans as belonging to one system, and are conveniently associated with the Supine Stem. Thus, — pingō, pīctum, pīctus, pīctūrus, pīctūra, pīctor.

rīdeō, rīsum (for rīd-tum), rīsus (part.), rīsus (noun), rīsūrus, rīsīō, rīsor, rīsibilis.

The signs of mood and tense are often said to be inserted between the Root (or verb-stem) and the Personal ending. No such insertion is possible in a developed language like the Latin. All true verb-forms are the result, as shown above, of composition; that is, of adding to the root or the verb-stem either pronouns (personal endings) or fully developed auxiliaries (themselves containing the personal terminations), or of adding similar auxiliaries to the perfect stem; or of imitation of such processes. Thus amābāmus is made by adding to amā-, originally a significant word, or a form conceived as such, a full verbal form †bāmus, not by inserting bā between amā- and -mus.

CHAPTER VII.—Particles.

Adverbs, Prepositions, and Conjunctions are called PARTICLES.

In their origin these words are either (1) case-forms, actual or extinct, or (2) compounds and phrases.

Particles cannot always be distinctly classified, for many adverbs are used also as prepositions and many as conjunctions (§§ 152 and 155), and interjections must be reckoned as particles (§ 27).

I.—ADVERBS.

1. Derivation.

148. Adverbs are regularly formed from adjectives as follows:—

a. From adjectives of the first and second declensions, by changing the characteristic vowel of the stem to -ē: as, cārē, dearly, from cārus, dear (stem cāro-).

NOTE.—The ending -ē is a relic of an old ablative in -ēd (cf. § 36. f).

b. From adjectives of the third declension by adding -ter to the stem. Stems in nt- (nom. -ns) lose the t-. All others are treated as i-stems. Thus,— fortiter, bravely, from fortis (stem forti-), brave.

ācritēr, eagerly, from ācer (stem ācri-), eager.

vigilanter, watchfully, from vigilāns (stem vigilant-).

prūdenter, prudently, from prūdēns (stem prūdent-).

aliter, otherwise, from alius (old stem ali-).

NOTE.—This suffix is probably the same as -ter in the Greek -τερος and in uter, alter (p. 49, n. 1). If so, these adverbs are neuter accusatives (cf. d).

c. Some adjectives of the first and second declensions have adverbs of both forms (-ē and -ter). Thus dūrus, hard, has both dūrē and dūriter; miser, wretched, has both miserē and miseriter.

d. The neuter accusative of adjectives and pronouns is often used as an adverb: as, multum, much; facilē, easily; quid, why.

So regularly in the comparative degree: as, ācrius, more keenly (positive ācritēr); facilius, more easily (positive, facilē)

NOTE.—These adverbs are strictly cognate accusatives (see § 240. a).

e. The ablative neuter or (less commonly) feminine of adjectives, pronouns, and nouns, may be used adverbially: as, falsō, falsely; citō, quickly; rēctā (ῥιᾶ), straight (straightway); crēbrō, frequently; fortē, by chance; spontē, of one's own accord.

f. Some adverbs are derived from adjectives not in use: as, abundē, plentifully (as if from †abundus, cf. abundō, abound); saepē, often (cf. saepēs, hedge, and saepiō, hedge in); propē, almost (as if from †propis).

NOTE. — Many adverbs and other particles are case-forms of nouns or pronouns. In some the case is not obvious, and in some it is doubtful. Examples may be seen in the following:—

α. Accusative forms: āctūtum, quickly; nōn (for nē ūnum), not; iterum (comparative of is), a second time; dēmum (superlative of dē, down), at last.

β. Ablative or Instrumental forms (§ 31. i): quā, where; contrā, on the other hand; intrā, within; quā, how; aliqui, somehow; volgō, commonly; frūstrā, in vain; foris, out of doors.

γ. Datives of adjectives and pronouns: as, quō, whither; adēō, to that degree; ultrō, beyond; citrō, this side (as end of motion); retrō, back; illōc (for illō-ce), weakened to illūc, thither.

REMARK. — Those in -trō are from comparative stems (cf. ūls, cis, re-).

δ. Locative forms: ibi, there; ubi, where; peregrī (peregrē), abroad; hic (for †hoi-ce), here; interim, meanwhile (cf. inter); indē, thence; tamen, yet; olim (from ollus, old form of ille), once. Also the compounds extrinsecus, outside; hodiē (hoi + diē), to-day; perendiē, day after to-morrow.

ε. Feminine accusatives: statim, on the spot; saltem, at least (generally saltem), from lost nouns in -tis (genitive -tis). Thus -tim became a regular adverbial termination; and by means of it adverbs were made from many noun and verb stems immediately, without the intervention of any form which could have an accusative in -tim: as, sēparātīm, separately, from sēparātus, separate. Some adverbs that appear to be feminine accusative are perhaps locative: as, palam, openly, perperam, wrongly; tam, so; quam, as.

ζ. Plural accusatives: as, aliās, elsewhere; forās, out of doors (as end of motion).

η. Of uncertain formation: (1) those in -tus (usually preceded by i), with an ablative meaning: as, funditus, from the bottom, utterly; divinitus, from above, providentially; intus, within; penitus, within; (2) those in -dem, -dam, -dō: as, quidem, indeed; quondam, once; quandō (cf. dōnec), when; (3) dum (probably accusative of time), while; iam (perhaps locative, cf. nam), now.

θ. Phrases or clauses which have grown together into adverbs (cf. notwithstanding, nevertheless, besides): antēā, old antideā, before (ante eā, probably ablative or instrumental); postmodo, presently (post modo, a short time after); dēnuō, anew (dē novō); prōrsus, absolutely (prō vorsus, straight ahead); quotannis, yearly (quot annis, as many years as there are); quam-ob-rem, wherefore; cōminus, hand to hand (con manus); ēminus at long range (ex manus); ob-viam (as in ire obviam, to go to meet); pridem (cf. prae and -dem in i-dem), for some time; forsan (fors an [est]) perhaps (it's a chance whether); forsitan (fors sit an), perhaps (it would be a chance whether); scilicet (sci, licet), that is to say (know, you may); videlicet (vidē, licet), to wit (see, you may).

2. Classification.

149. Adverbs are classified as follows:—

a. ADVERBS OF PLACE.¹

hic, here.	huc, hither.	hinc, hence.	hac, by this way.
ibi, there.	eō, thither.	inde, thence.	eā, by that way.
istīc, there.	istūc, thither.	istinc, thence.	istā, by that way.
illīc, there.	illūc, thither.	illinc, thence.	illā (illāc), “
ubi, where.	quō, whither.	unde, whence.	quā, by what way.
alicubi, somewhere.	aliquō, to, etc.	alicunde, from, etc.	aliquā, by, etc.
ibīdem, in the same place.	eōdem	indidem	eādem
alibi, elsewhere.	aliō	aliunde	aliā
ubiubi, wherever.	quōquō	undecunque	quāquā
ubivīs, anywhere.	quōvīs	undique	quāvīs
sīcubi, if anywhere.	sīquō	sīcunde	sīquā
nēcubi, lest “	nēcquō	nēcunde	nēcquā
usque, all the way to.		citrō, to this side.
usquam, anywhere.		intrō, inwardly.
nusquam, nowhere.		porrō, further on.
ūltrō, beyond (or freely, i.e. beyond what is required).
quōrsum (for quō vorsum, whither turned?), to what end?		retrōrsum, backward.
hōrsum, this way.		sūrsum, upward.
prōrsum, forward (prōrsus, utterly).		deorsum, downward.
intrōrsum, inwardly.		seorsum, apart.
		aliorsum, another way.

b. ADVERBS OF TIME.

quandō? when? (interrog.); cum (quom, quum), when (rel.); ut, when, as.
nunc, now; tunc (tum), then; mox, presently; iam, already; dum, while.

¹ The demonstrative adverbs hic, ibi, istīc, illīc, and their correlatives, correspond in signification with the pronouns hic, is, iste, ille (see § 102), and are often equivalent to these pronouns with a preposition: as, inde = ab eō, etc. So the relative or interrogative ubi corresponds with qui (quis), ali-cubi with aliquis, ubiubi with quisquis, sī-cubi with sīquis (see §§ 104, 105, with the table of Correlatives in § 106). All these adverbs were originally case-forms of pronouns. The forms in -bi, -īc, -inc, and -unde are locative, those in -ō and -ūc dative, those in -ā and -āc ablative or instrumental (p. 123, note).

primum (prīmō), first; deinde (postea), next after; postrēmum (postrēmō), finally; posteaquam, postquam, when (after that, as soon as).

umquam (unquam), ever; numquam (nunquam), never; semper, always.

aliquandō, at some time, at length; quandōque (quandōcumque), whenever; dēnique, at last.

quotiēns (quotiēs), how often; totiēns, so often; aliquotiēns, a number of times.

cotīdiē (quotīdiē), every day; in diēs, from day to day.

nōndum, not yet; necdum, nor yet; vixdum, scarce yet; quam primum, as soon as possible; saepe, often; crēbrō, frequently; iam nōn, no longer.

c. ADVERBS OF DEGREE OR CAUSE.

quam, how, as; tam, so; quamvis, however much, although; quōmodō, how.

cūr, quārē, why; quod, quia, quoniam (for quom-iam), because; eō, therefore.

ita, sic, so; ut (uti), as, how; utut, utcumque, however.

quamquam (quanquam), although, and yet; et, etiam, quoque, even, also.

d. INTERROGATIVE PARTICLES.

an, -ne, anne, utrum, utrumne, num, whether.

nōnne, annōn, whether not; numquid, ecquid, whether at all (ecquid intellegis? have you any idea? do you understand at all?).

utrum (num), -ne, whether; . . . an (annōn, necne), or.

— “ . . . -ne “

e. NEGATIVE PARTICLES.

nōn, not (in simple denial); haud (hau, haut), minimē, not (in contradiction); nē, not (in prohibition); nēve, neu, nor; nēdum, much less.

nē, lest; neque, nec, nor; nē . . . quidem, not even.

nōn modo . . . vērūm (sed) etiam, not only . . . but also.

nōn modo . . . sed nē . . . quidem, not only NOT . . . but not even.

sī minus, if not; quō minus (quōminus), so as not.

quīn (relat.), but that; (interrog.), why not?

nē, nec (in compos.), not; so in nesciō, I know not; negō, I say no (āiō, I say yes); negōtium, business (nec ōtium); nēmō (nē hōmō), no one; nē quis, lest any one; necopinātus, unexpected; neque enim, for . . . not.

f. ADVERBS OF MANNER (see § 148).

g. NUMERAL ADVERBS (see § 96).

3. Peculiar Uses of Adverbs.

150. Two negatives are equivalent to an affirmative:
as, —

nēmō nōn audiet, every one will hear (nobody will not hear).

a. Many compounds of which nōn is the first part express an indefinite affirmative: as, — nōnnūllus, some; nōnnūlli (= aliqui), some few.

nōnnihil (= aliquid), something.

nōnnēmō (= aliquot), sundry persons.

nōnnumquam (= aliquotiens), sometimes.

necnōn, also (nor not).

b. Two negatives of which the second is nōn (belonging to the predicate) express a universal affirmative: as, — nēmō nōn, nūllus nōn, nobody [does] not, i.e. everybody [does] (cf. nōnnēmō above, not nobody, i.e. somebody).

nihil nōn, everything.

numquam nōn, never not, i.e. always (cf. nōnnumquam above, not never, i.e. sometimes).

151. The following adverbs require special notice: —

a. Etiam (et iam), also, even, is stronger than quoque, also, and usually precedes the emphatic word, while quoque follows it: as, — nōn verbis solum sed etiam vi (Verr. ii. 2, 64), not only by words, but also by force.

hōc quoque maleficium (Ros. Am. 40), this crime too.

b. Nunc (for †num-ce) means definitely now, in the immediate present, and is not used as in English of past time. Iam means now, already, at length, presently, and includes a reference to previous time through which the state of things described has been or will be reached. It may be used of any time. With negatives it means (no) longer.

Tum, then, is correlative to cum, when, and may be used of any time. Tunc, then, at that time, is a strengthened form of tum (†tum-ce, cf. nunc). Thus — ut iam antea dixi, as I have already said before.

si iam satis aetatis atque roboris haberet (Ros. Am. 51, 149), if he had attained a suitable age and strength (lit. if he now had, as he will by and by).

nōn est iam lenitatis locus, there is no longer room for mercy.

quod iam erat institūtum, which had come to be a practice (had now been established).

nunc quidem dēlēta est, tunc florēbat (Lael. 4), now ('tis true) she [Greece] is ruined, then she was in her glory.

tum cum rēgnābat, at the time when he reigned.

c. Certō means certainly; certē (usually), at any rate: as, certō sciō, I know for a certainty; ego certē, I at least.

d. Prīmum means first, "firstly" (first in order, or for the first time), and implies a series of events or acts. Prīmō means at first, as opposed to afterwards, giving prominence merely to the difference of time: as,— hōc prīmum sentiō, this I hold in the first place.

aedēs prīmō ruere rēbāmur, at first we thought the house was falling.

In enumerations, prīmum (or prīmō) is often followed by deinde, secondly, in the next place, or by tum, then, or by both in succession. Deinde may be several times repeated (secondly, thirdly, etc.). The series is often closed by dēnique or postrēmō, lastly, finally. Thus,— prīmum dē genere bellī, deinde dē māgnitūdine, tum dē imperātōre dēligendō (Manil. 2), first of the kind of war, next of its magnitude, then of the choice of a commander.

e. Quidem, indeed, gives emphasis, and often has a concessive meaning, especially when followed by sed, autem, etc.: as,— hōc quidem vidēre licet (Lael. 15), THIS surely one may see. [Emphatic.] (sēcūritās) speciē quidem blanda, sed reāpse multis locis repudianda (id. 13), (tranquillity) in appearance, 'tis true, attractive, but in reality to be rejected for many reasons. [Concessive.]

Nē . . . quidem means not even or not . . . either. The emphatic word or words must stand between nē and quidem.

senex nē quod spēret quidem habet (C. M. 19), an old man has NOT anything to hope for EVEN.

sed nē Iugurtha quidem quiētus erat (Jug. 51), but Jugurtha was not quiet EITHER.

II.—PREPOSITIONS.

152. Prepositions¹ are regularly used either with the Accusative or with the Ablative.

¹ Prepositions are not originally distinguished from Adverbs in form or meaning, but only specialized in use. Most of them are true case-forms: as, the comparative instrumentals contrā, infṛā, supṛā, and the accusatives (cf. § 88. d) circum, coram, cum, circiter, præter (comp. of præ), propter (comp. of prope). Of the remainder, versus is a petrified nominative (participle of vertō); adversus is a compound of versus; while the origin of the brief forms ab, ad, dē, ex, ob, trāns, is obscure and doubtful.

a. The following are used with the Accusative:—

ad, to.	extrā, outside.	post, after.
adversus, against.	in, into.	praeter, beyond.
adversum, towards.	infrā, below.	prope, near.
ante, before.	inter, among.	propter, on account of.
apud, at, near.	intrā, inside.	secundum, next to.
circā, around.	iuxtā, near.	sub, under.
circum, around.	ob, on account of.	suprā, above.
circiter, about.	pene, in the power.	trāns, across.
cis, citrā, this side.	per, through.	ultrā, on the further side.
contrā, against.	pōne, behind.	versus, towards.
ergā, towards.

b. The following are used with the Ablative¹:—

ā, āb, abs, away from, by.	in, in.
absque, without, but for.	prae, in comparison with.
cōram, in presence of.	prō, in front of, for.
cum, with.	sine, without.
dē, from.	sub, under.
ē, ex, out of.	tenus, up to, as far as.

c. The following may be used with either the Accusative or the Ablative, but with a difference in meaning:—

in, into, in.	sub, under.

In and sub, when followed by the accusative, indicate motion to, when by the ablative, rest in, a place: as, — vēnit in aedēs, he came into the house; erat in aedibus, he was in the house.

disciplina in Britannia reperta atque inde in Galliam translata esse existimatur, the system is thought to have been discovered in Great Britain and thence brought over to Gaul.

sub ilice cōsederat, he had seated himself under an ilex.

sub lēgēs mittere orbem, to subject the world to laws (to send the world under laws).

153. The uses of the Prepositions are as follows:—

Ā, ab, AWAY FROM,² FROM, OFF FROM, with the ablative.

a. Of place: as, ab urbe profectus est, he set out from the city.

b. Of time (1) from: as, ab hōrā tertiā ad vesperam, from the third hour till evening; (2) just after: as, ab eō magistratū, after [holding] that office.

² Ab signifies direction from the object, but often towards the speaker; compare dē, down from, and ex, out of.

Idiomatic uses: ā reliquis differunt, they differ from the others; ab parvulis, from early childhood; prope ab urbe, near (not far from) the city; liberāre ab, to set free from; occisus ab hoste (periit ab hoste), slain by an enemy; ab hāc parte, on this side; ab rē eius, to his advantage; ā rēpublicā, for the interest of the state.

Ad, TO, TOWARDS, AT, NEAR, with the accusative (cf. in, into).

a. Of place: as, ad urbem vēnit, he came to the city; ad meridiem, towards the south; ad exercitum, with the army; ad hostem, toward the enemy; ad urbem, near the city.

b. Of time: as, ad nōnam hōram, till the ninth hour.

c. With persons: as, ad eum vēnit, he came to him.

Idiomatic uses: ad supplicia dēscendunt, they resort to punishment; ad haec respondit, to this he answered; ad tempus, at the [fit] time; adire ad rempublicam, to go into public life; ad petendam pacem, to seek peace; ad latera, on the flank; ad arma, to arms; ad hunc modum, in this way; quem ad modum, how, as; ad centum, near a hundred; ad hōc, besides; omnēs ad ūnum, all to a man; ad diem, on the day.

Ante, IN FRONT OF, BEFORE, with the accusative (cf. post, after).

a. Of place: as, ante portam, in front of the gate; ante exercitum, in advance of the army.

b. Of time: as, ante bellum, before the war.

Idiomatic uses: ante urbem captam, before the city was taken; ante diem quintum (a.d.v.) Kal., the fifth day before the Calends (the 3d day before the last of the month); ante quadriennium, four years before or ago; ante tempus, too soon (before the time).

Apud, AT, BY, AMONG, with the accusative.

a. Of place (rare and archaic): as, apud forum, at the forum (in the market-place).

b. With reference to persons or communities: as, apud Helvētiōs, among the Helvetians; apud populum, before the people; apud aliquem, at one's house; apud sē, at home or in his senses; apud Cicerōnem, in [the works of] Cicero.

Circum,¹ circā, circiter, ABOUT, AROUND, with the accusative.

a. Of place: circum haec loca, hereabout; circā sē habent, they have with them.

b. Of time or number (circā or circiter, not circum): as, circā eandem hōram, about the same hour; circiter passūs mille, about a mile. Especially about, in regard to: circā quem pūgna est (Quintil.), with regard to whom, etc.

Contrā,² OPPOSITE, AGAINST, with the accusative: as, — contrā Itāliam, over against Italy; contrā haec, in answer to this.

Often as adverb: as, haec contrā, this in reply; contrā autem, but on the other hand; quod contrā, whereas, on the other hand.

² Contrā is instrumental comparative of cum (con-).

Cum, WITH, TOGETHER WITH. with the ablative.

- a. Of place: as, vāde mēcum, go with me; cum omnibus impedimentis, with all [their] baggage.
 b. Of time: as, primā cum lūce, at early dawn (with first light).
 Idiomatic uses: māgnō cum dolōre, with great sorrow; commūnicāre aliquid cum aliquō, share something with some one; cum malō suō, to his own hurt; cōnfigere cum hoste, to fight with the enemy; esse cum telō, to go armed; cum silentiō, in silence.

Dē, DOWN FROM, FROM, with the ablative (cf. ab, away from; ex, out of).

- a. Of place: as, dē caelō dēmissus, sent down from heaven; dē nāvibus dēsilire, to jump down from the ships.
 b. Figuratively, CONCERNING, ABOUT, OF:¹ as, cōgnōscit dē Clōdī caede, he learns of the murder of Clodius; cōsilia dē bellō, plans of war.
 c. In a partitive sense (compare ex), out of, of: as, ūnus dē plēbe, one of the people.
 Idiomatic uses: multis dē causis, for many reasons; quā dē causā, for which reason; dē imprōvisō, of a sudden; dē industriā, on purpose; dē integrō, anew; dē tertiā vigiliā, just at midnight (starting at the third watch); dē mense Decembrī nāvigāre, to sail as early as December.

Ex, ē, FROM (the midst, opposed to in), OUT OF, with the ablative (cf. ab and dē).

- a. Of place: as, ex omnibus partibus silvae ēvolāvērunt, they flew out from all parts of the forest; ex Hispāniā, [a man] from Spain.
 b. Of time: as, ex eō diē quintus, the fifth day from that (four days after); ex hōc diē, from this day forth.
 Idiomatically or less exactly: ex cōsulatū, right after his consulship; ex ēius sententiā, according to his opinion; ex aequō, justly; ex imprōvisō, unexpectedly; ex tuā rē, to your advantage; māgnā ex parte, in a great degree; ex equō pūgnāre, to fight on horseback; ex ūsū, expedient; ē regiōne, opposite; quaerere ex aliquō, to ask of some one; ex senātus cōsultō, according to the decree of the senate; ex fugā, in [their] flight (proceeding immediately from it); ūnus ē filiis, one of the sons.

In, with the accusative or the ablative.

1. With the accusative, INTO (opposed to ex).

- a. Of place: as, eōs in silvās reiēcērunt, they drove them back into the woods.
 b. Of time, TILL, UNTIL: as, in lūcem, till daylight.
 Idiomatically or less exactly: in meridiem, towards the south; amor in (ergā or adversus) patrem, love for his father; in āram cōfūgit, he fled to the altar (on the steps, or merely to); in diēs, from day to day; in longitudinem, in length; in haec verba iūrāre, to swear to these words; hunc in modum, in this way; orātiō in Catilinam, a speech against Catiline; in perpetuum, for ever; in pēius, for the worse; in diem vivere, to live from hand to mouth.

¹ Of originally had the same meaning as dē (compare off).

2. With the ablative, IN, ON, AMONG.

In very various connections: as, in castris, in the camp (cf. ad castra, to, at, or near the camp); in mari, on the sea; in urbe esse, to be in town; in tempore, in season; in scribendō, while writing; est mihi in animō, I have it in mind; in ancoris, at anchor; in hōc homine, in the case of this man; in dubiō esse, to be in doubt.

Infra, BELOW, with the accusative.

- a. Of place: as, ad mare infā oppidum, by the sea below the town; infā caelum, under the sky.
- b. Figuratively: as, infā Homērum, later than Homer; infā trēs pedēs, less than three feet; infā elephantōs, smaller than elephants; infā infimōs omnēs, the lowest of the low.

Inter, BETWEEN (with two accusatives), AMONG: as, — inter mē et Scipiōnem, between myself and Scipio; inter ōs et offam, between the cup and the lip (the mouth and the morsel); inter hostium tēla, amid the weapons of the enemy; inter omnēs primus, first of all; inter bibendum, while drinking; inter sē loquuntur, they talk together; inter nōs, between ourselves.

Ob, TOWARDS, ON ACCOUNT OF, with the accusative.

- a. Literally: (1) of motion (archaic): as, ob Rōmam, towards Rome (Ennius); ob viam, to the road (preserved as adverb, in the way of). (2) Of place in which, BEFORE, in a few phrases: as, ob oculōs, before the eyes.
- b. Figuratively, IN RETURN FOR (mostly archaic, probably a word of account, balancing one thing against another): as, ob mulierem, in pay for the woman; ob rem, for gain. Hence applied to reason, cause, and the like, ON ACCOUNT OF (a similar mercantile idea), FOR: as, ob eam causam, for that reason; quam ob rem (quamobrem), wherefore, why.

Per, THROUGH, OVER, with the accusative.

- a. Of motion: as, per urbem ire, to go through the city; per mūrōs, over the walls.
- b. Of time: as, per hiemem, throughout the winter.
- c. Figuratively, of persons as means or instruments: as, per hominēs idōneōs, through the instrumentality of suitable persons; licet per mē, you (etc.) may for all me. Hence, stat per mē, it is through my instrumentality. So, per sē, in and of itself.
- d. Weakened, in many adverbial expressions: as, per iocum, in jest; per speciem, in show, ostentatiously.

Prae, IN FRONT OF, with the ablative.

- a. Literally, of place (in a few connections): as, prae sē portāre, to carry in one's arms; prae sē ferre, to carry before one (hence figuratively), exhibit, proclaim, ostentatiously make known.
- b. Figuratively, of hindrance, as by an obstacle in front (compare English for): as, prae gaudiō conticuit, he was silent for joy.

c. Of comparison: as, prae māgnitūdine corporum suōrum, in comparison with their own great size.

Praeter, ALONG BY, BY, with the accusative.

1. Literally: as, praeter castra, by the camp (along by, in front of); praeter oculos, before the eyes.
2. Figuratively, BEYOND, BESIDES, MORE THAN, IN ADDITION TO, EXCEPT: as, praeter spem, beyond hope; praeter aliōs, more than others; praeter paucōs, with the exception of a few.

Prō, IN FRONT OF, with the ablative: as, — sedēns prō aede Castoris, sitting in front of the temple of Castor; prō populō, in presence of the people. So prō rōstris, on [the front of] the rostra; prō cōtione, before the assembly (in a speech).

In various idiomatic uses: prō lēge, in defence of the law; prō vitulā, instead of a heifer; prō centum milibus, as good as a [hundred] thousand; prō ratā parte, in due proportion; prō hāc vice, for this once; prō cōsule, in place of consul; prō viribus, considering his strength; prō virili parte, to the best of one's ability.

Propter, NEAR, BY, with the accusative: as, — propter tē sedet, he sits next you. Hence, ON ACCOUNT OF (cf. all along of): as, propter metum, through fear.

Secundum,¹ JUST BEHIND, FOLLOWING, with the accusative.

1. Literally: as, ite secundum mē (Plaut.), go behind me; secundum litus, near the shore; secundum flūmen, along the stream (cf. secundō flūmine, down stream).
2. Figuratively, ACCORDING TO: as, secundum nātūrā, according to nature.

Sub, UNDER, UP TO, with the accusative or the ablative.

a. Of motion, with the accusative: as, sub montem succēdere, to come close to the hill.

Idiomatically: sub noctem, towards night; sub lūcem, near daylight; sub haec dicta, at (following) these words.

b. Of rest, with the ablative: as, sub Iove, in the open air (under the heaven, personified as Jove): sub monte, at the foot of the hill.

Idiomatically: sub eōdem tempore, about the same time (just after it).

Super,² ABOVE, OVER, with the accusative or ablative: as, — vulnus super vulnus, wound upon wound; supēr Indōs, beyond the Hindoos.

But, — super tāli rē, about such an affair. (See § 260. c.)

Suprā,³ ON TOP OF, ABOVE, with the accusative: as, — suprā terram, on the surface of the earth. So also figuratively: as, suprā hanc memoriā, before our remembrance; suprā mōrem, more than usual; suprā quod, besides.

² Comp. of sub.

³ Instrumental of superus, § 91. b.

Trāns,¹ ACROSS, OVER, THROUGH, BY, with the accusative.

- a.* Of motion: as, trāns mare currunt, they run across the sea; trāns flūmen ferre, to carry over a river; trāns aethera, through the sky; trāns caput iace, throw over your head.
b. Of rest: as, trāns Rhēnum incolunt, they live across the Rhine.

Ūltrā, BEYOND (on the further side), with the accusative: as, — cis Padum ūltrāque, on this side of the Po and beyond; ūltrā eum numerum, more than that number; ūltrā fidem, incredible; ūltrā modum, immoderate.

[Fqr Prepositions in Compounds, see § 170.]

NOTE.—Some adverbs appear as prepositions: as, intus, insuper.

III. — CONJUNCTIONS.

154. Conjunctions connect words, phrases, or sentences. They are of two classes: —

a. CO-ORDINATE, connecting co-ordinate or similar constructions (see § 180. a.). These are: —

1. Copulative or disjunctive, implying a connection or opposition of thought as well as of words: as, et, and.
2. Adversative, implying a connection of words, but a contrast in thought: as, sed, but.
3. Causal, introducing a cause or reason: as, nam, for.
4. Illative, denoting an inference: as, igitur, therefore.

b. SUBORDINATE, connecting a subordinate or dependent clause with that on which it depends (see § 180. b.). These are: —

1. Conditional, denoting a condition or hypothesis: as, si, if; nisi, unless.
2. Comparative, implying comparison as well as condition: as, sicut, as if.
3. Concessive, denoting a concession or admission: as, quamquam, although (lit. however much it may be true that, etc.).
4. Temporal: as, postquam, after.
5. Consecutive, expressing result: as, ut, so that.
6. Final, expressing purpose: as, ut, in order that; ne, that not.

NOTE 1.—Conjunctions, like adverbs, are either petrified cases of nouns, pronouns, and adjectives, or obscured phrases: as, sed, an old ablative (cf. rēd, prōd); quod, an old accusative; dum, an old accusative (cf. tum, cum); vērō, an old ablative of vērū; nihilōminus, none the less; proinde, lit. forward from there.

NOTE 2.—A phrase used as a conjunction is called a conjunctive phrase: as, quā propter, quō circā, wherefore.

155. Conjunctions are more numerous and more accurately distinguished in Latin than in English. The following list includes the common conjunctions¹ and conjunctive phrases:—

1. Co-ordinate.

a. COPULATIVE AND DISJUNCTIVE.

et, -que, atque (ac), and.

et . . et; et . . . -que (atque); -que . . . et; -que . . . -que (poet.), both . . . and.

etiam, quoque, neque nōn (necnōn), quinetiam, itidem (item), also.

cum . . . tum; tum . . . tum, both . . . and; not only . . . but also quā . . . quā, on one hand . . . on the other hand.

modo . . . modo, now . . . now.

aut . . . aut; vel . . . vel (-ve), either . . . or.

sive (seu) . . . sive, whether . . . or.

nec (neque) . . . nec (neque); neque . . . nec; nec . . . neque (rare), neither . . . nor.

et . . . neque, both . . . and not.

nec . . . et; nec (neque) . . . -que, neither . . . and.

b. ADVERSATIVE.

sed, autem, vērū, vērō, at, atquē, but.

tamen, attamen, sed tamen, vērū tamen, but yet, nevertheless.

nihilōminus, none the less.

at vērō, but in truth; enim vērō, for in truth.

cēterum, on the other hand, but.

c. CAUSAL AND ILLATIVE.

nam, namque, enim, etenim, for.

quia, quod, because.

quoniam, quippe, cum (quom, quum), quandō, quandōquidem, siquidem, utpote, since, inasmuch as.

propterea (. . . quod), for this reason (. . . that).

quāpropter, quārē, quamobrem, quōcircā, unde, wherefore, whence.
ergō, igitur, itaque, ideō, idcircō, proinde, therefore, accordingly.

NOTE.—Of these quia, quod, quoniam, quippe, cum, siquidem, often introduce subordinate clauses. As all subordinate clauses have been developed from clauses once co-ordinate (p. 164), the distinction between co-ordinate conjunctions and subordinate is often obscure.

¹ Some of these have been included in the classification of adverbs. See also list of correlatives, § 106.

d. CONCESSIVE.

quidem, to be sure, it is true.

2. Subordinate.

e. CONDITIONAL.

sī, if; sīn, but if; nisi (nī), unless, if not; quod sī, but if. modo, dum, dummodo, sī modo, if only, provided. dummodo nē (dum nē, modo nē), provided only not.

f. COMPARATIVE.

ut, uti, sicut, velut, prout, praeut, ceu, as, like as. tamquam (tanquam), quasi, utsī, āc sī, velut, veluti, velutsī, as if. quam, atque (āc), as, than.

g. CONCESSIVE.

etsī, etiamsī, tametsī, tamenetsī, quamquam (quanquam), al- though. quamvis, quantumvis, quamlibet, however much. licet (properly a verb), ut, cum (quom, quum), though, suppose, whereas.

h. TEMPORAL.

cum (quom, quum), cum primum, ubi, ut primum, postquam (posteaquam), when. prius . . . quam, ante . . . quam, before, nōn ante . . . quam, not . . . until. quandō, simul atque (simul āc), simul, as soon as. dum, usque dum, dōnec, quoad, until.

i. CONSECUTIVE AND FINAL.

ut (utī), quō, so that, in order that. nē, ut nē, lest (that . . . not, in order that not); nēve (neu), nor. quā (after negatives), quōminus, but that (so as to prevent).

156. The following are the principal conjunctions whose meaning requires to be noticed : —

a. Et, and, simply connects words or clauses; -que combines more closely into one connected whole. -que is always enclitic to the word connected or to the first or second of two or more words connected. Thus, cum coniugibus et liberis, with [their] wives and children. ferrō ignique, with fire and sword. [Not as separate things, but as the combined means of devastation.] aquā et igni interdictus, forbidden the use of water and fire. [In a legal formula, where they are considered separately.]

Atque (āc) adds with some emphasis or with some implied reflection on the word added. Hence it is often equivalent to and so, and yet, and besides, and then. But these distinctions depend very much upon the feeling of the speaker, and are often untranslatable: as, — omnia honesta atque inhonesta, everything honorable and dishonorable (too, without the slightest distinction).

ūsus atque disciplina, practice and theory beside (the more important or less expected).

atque ego crēdō, and yet I believe (for my part).

In the second of two connected ideas, and not is expressed by neque (nec): as, — neque vērō hōc solum dixit, and he not only said this.

Atque (āc), in the sense of as, than, is also used after words of comparison and likeness: as, — nōn secus (aliter) āc sī, not otherwise than if.

prō eō āc dēbui, as was my duty (in accordance as I ought).

aequē āc tū, as much as you.

haud minus āc iūssī faciunt, they do just as they are ordered.

simul atque, as soon as.

b. Sed and the more emphatic vērūm or vērō, but, are used to introduce something in opposition to what precedes, especially after negatives (not this . . . but something else). At introduces with emphasis a new point in an argument, but is also used like the others.

At enim is almost always used to introduce a supposed objection which is presently to be overthrown. At is more rarely used alone in this sense. Autem, however, now, is the weakest of the adversatives, and often has hardly any adversative force perceptible. Atquē, however, now, sometimes introduces an objection and sometimes a fresh step in the reasoning. Quod sī, but if, and if, now if, is used to continue an argument. Ast is old or poetic and is equivalent to at.

NOTE.—A concessive is often followed by an adversative either in a coordinate or a subordinate clause: as, etiāmsī quod scribās nōn habēbis, scribitō tamen (Cic.), though you have nothing to write, still write all the same.

c. Aut, or, excludes the alternative; vel (probably imperative of volō) and -ve give a choice between two alternatives. But this distinction is sometimes disregarded. Thus, — sed quis ego sum aut quae est in mē facultās, but who am I or what special capacity have I? [Here vel could not be used, because in fact a negative is implied and both alternatives are excluded].

quam tenui aut nullā potius valētūdine, what feeble health [he had], or rather none at all. [Here vel might be used, but would refer only to the expression, not to the fact].

aut bibat aut abeat, let him drink or (if he won't do that, then let him) quit. [Here vel would mean, let him do either as he chooses].

vita talis fuit vel fortūnā vel glōriā, his life was such either in respect to fortune or fame (whichever way you look at it).

sī propinquos habeant imbēcilliores vel animō vel fortūnā, if they have relatives beneath them either in spirit or in fortune (in either respect, for example).

cum cogniti sunt et aut deorum aut regum filii inventi, sons either of gods or of kings. [Here one case would exclude the other.]

implicati vel usu diuturno vel etiam officiis, entangled either by close intimacy or even by obligations. [Here the second case might exclude the first.]

Sive (seu) is properly used in disjunctive conditions (if either . . . or if), but also with alternative words and clauses, especially with two names for the same thing: as, — sive arridens sive quod ita putaret (De Or. i. 20, 91), either laughingly or because he really thought so.

Vel, even, for instance, is often used with no alternative force: as, — vel minimus, the very least.

d. Nam and namque, for, usually introduce a real reason, formally expressed, for a previous statement; enim (always postpositive), a less important explanatory circumstance put in by the way; etenim (for, you see; for, you know; for, mind you) and its negative neque enim introduce something self-evident or needing no proof.

(ea vita) quae est sola vita nominanda. nam dum sumus in his inclusi compāgibus corporis mūnere quōdam necessitātis et gravi opere perfungimur. est enim animus caelestis, etc. (Cat. Maj. 21).

hārum trium sententiārum nulli prorsus assentior. nec enim illa prima vera est, for of course that first one isn't true.

e. Ergo, therefore, is used of things proved formally, but often has a weakened force. Igitur, then, accordingly, is weaker than ergo and is used in passing from one stage of an argument to another. Itaque, therefore, accordingly, and so, is used in proofs or inferences from the nature of things rather than in formal logical proof.

All of these are often used merely to resume a train of thought broken by a digression or parenthesis. Idcirco, for this reason, on this account, is regularly followed (or preceded) by a correlative: as, quia, quod, si, ut, nē, and refers to the special point introduced by the correlative.

nē aegri quidem quia nōn omnēs convalēscunt, idcirco ars nulla medicinae est. primum igitur aut negandum est esse deōs . . . aut qui deōs esse cōcedant eis fatendum est eōs aliquid agere idque praeclārū; nihil est autem praeclārū mundi administratiōe, deōrum igitur cōsiliō administrātur. quod si aliter est, aliquid profectō sit necesse est melius et maiōre vi praeditum quam deus. . . . nōn est igitur nātūra deōrum praepotēns neque excellēns, si quidem ea subiecta est ei vel necessitati vel nātūrae quā caelum maria terrae regantur, nihil est autem praestantius deō, ab eō igitur mundum necesse est regi. nūlli igitur est nātūrae oboediēns aut subiectus deus: omnem ergō regit ipse nātūram. etenim si cōcedimus intelligentis esse deōs, cōcedimus etiam prōvidentis et rerum quidem māximārum. ergō utrum ignōrant quae rēs māximae sint quōque eae modō trāctandae et tuendae an vim nōn habent quā tantās rēs sustineant et gerant? (N. D. ii. 30.)
 malum mihi vidētur mors. est miserum igitur, quoniam malum. certē. ergō et ei quibus ēvenit iam ut morerentur et ei quibus eventūrum est miseri. mihi ita vidētur. nēmō ergō nōn miser. (Tusc. i. 5.) meministis enim cum illius nefarii gladiatōris vōcēs percrebuisent quās, etc. — tum igitur (Mur. 25, 50).

f. Quia, because, regularly introduces a fact; quod, either a fact or a statement. Quoniam (for quom iam), inasmuch as, since, when now, now that, has reference to motives, excuses or justifications, and the like. Quandō, since, is mostly archaic or late.

possunt quia posse videntur, they can because they think they can.

locus est ā mē quoniam ita Murēna voluit retrāctandus (Mur. 26, 54), I must review the point, since Murena has so wished.

mē reprehendis quod idem dēfendam (as he had not) quod lēge pūnierim (Mur. 32, 67), you blame me because [as you say] I defend the same charge which I have punished by the law.

reprehendis mē quia dēfendam (as he had) (Sull. 18, 50).

cūr igitur pācem nōlō? quia turpis est (Phil. vii. 3, 9), why then do I not wish for peace? Because it is disgraceful.

In the denial of a reason, nōn quō is used as well as nōn quod, nōn quia, and nōn quīn, but not nōn quoniam. Thus, — nōn quia multis dēbeō . . . sed quia saepe concurrunt aliquōrum bene dē mē meritōrum inter ipsōs contentiōnēs (Planc. 32, 78), not because I am indebted to many, but because, etc.

nōn quīn pari virtūte et voluntāte alii fuerint, sed tantam causam nōn habuerunt (Phil. vii. 2, 6), not that there were not others of equal courage and good-will, but they had not so much reason.

g. Cum (quom), when, is always a relative, and is often correlative with tum (see h. 1, below); quandō, when (rarely since), is used as interrogative, relative and indefinite: as, quandō? hodiē, when? to-day; si quandō, if ever.

h. 1. Conjunctions, especially those of relative origin, frequently have a correlative in another clause, to which they correspond: as,— ut sēmentem fēceris, ita metēs, as you sow, so shall you reap.

utī initium, sic finis est, as is the beginning, so is the end.

tum cum Catilinam ēiciēbam (Cat. iii. 2, 3), at the time when, etc.

2. Often the same conjunction is repeated in two co-ordinate clauses. Examples are:—

et . . . et, both . . . and.

iam . . . iam, now . . . now.

simul . . . simul, at once (this) and also (that).

quā . . . quā, both . . . and, as well . . . as, alike (this) and (that).

i. The concessives (etsī, quamvis, etc., although) may introduce either a fact or a mere supposition, and are often followed by the correlative tamen, yet, nevertheless; quamquam is regularly used to introduce an admitted fact and not a mere supposition.

Quamquam (and rarely etsī, tametsī), in the sense of though (and yet, but, however) are also used to introduce an independent statement made to limit or correct the preceding (quamquam correctivum): as,— ille volt diū vivere, hīc diū vixit, quamquam, ō dī bonī, quid est in hominis vitā diū? (Cat. M. 19, 68), the one wishes to live long, the other has lived long, though (after all) Good Heavens! what is there that is long in the life of man?

k. Autem, enim, and vērō are postpositive, i.e. they always follow one or more words of their clause; so generally igitur and often tamen.

INTERJECTIONS.

Ō, ēn, ecce, ehem, papae, vāh (of astonishment).

iō, ēvae, ēvoe, euhoe (of joy).

heu, ēheu, vae, alas (of sorrow).

heus, eho, ehodum, ho (of calling); st, hist.

ēia, euge (of praise).

prō (of attestation): as, prō pudor, shame!

CHAPTER VIII.—Formation of Words.

NOTE.—All formation of words is originally a process of composition. An element significant in itself is added to another significant element, and thus the meaning of the two is combined. No other combination is possible for the formation either of inflections or of stems. Thus, in fact, words (since roots and stems are significant elements, and so words) are first juxtaposed, then brought under one accent, and finally felt as one word. This gradual process is seen in sea change, sea-nymph, seaside. But as all derivation, properly so-called, appears as a combination of uninflected stems, every type of formation in use must date back of inflection. Hence words were not in strictness derived either from nouns or from verbs, but from stems which were neither, because they were in fact both; for the distinction between noun- and verb-stems had not yet been made.

After the development of Inflection, however, that one of several kindred words which seemed the simplest was regarded as the Primitive form, and from this the other words of the group were thought to be derived. Such supposed processes of formation were then imitated, often erroneously, and in this way new modes of derivation arose. Thus new adjectives were formed from nouns, new nouns from adjectives, new adjectives from verbs, and new verbs from adjectives and nouns.

In course of time the real or apparent relations of many words became confused, so that nouns and adjectives once supposed to come from nouns were often assigned to verbs, and others once supposed to come from verbs were assigned to nouns.

Further, since the language was constantly changing, many words went out of use, and do not occur in the literature as we have it. Thus many derivatives survive of which the Primitive is lost.

Finally, since all conscious word-formation is imitative, intermediate steps in derivation were sometimes omitted, and occasionally apparent derivatives occur for which no proper Primitive ever existed.

I.—ROOTS AND STEMS.

157. Roots¹ are of two kinds:—

1. Verbal, expressing ideas of action or condition (sensible phenomena).

2. Pronominal, expressing ideas of position and direction.

Stems are divided into (1) Noun- (including Adjective-) stems, and (2) Verb-stems.

NOTE.—Noun- and verb-stems were not originally different (see p. 163), and in the consciousness of the Romans were often confounded, but in general were treated as distinct.

158. Words are formed by inflection:—

1. From roots inflected as stems:—

a. Without change: as, duc-is (dux), duc; nec-is (nex); is, id. So in verbs: as, est, fert, est (cf. p. 86).

b. With change of the root-vowel: as, lūc-is (lūx), LUC; pāc-is (pāx). So in verbs: ī-s for īeis, from eō, īre; fātūr from for, fārl.

NOTE.—In these cases it is impossible to say with certainty whether the form of root in a or in b is the original one. But for convenience the above order is adopted.

c. With reduplication: as, fur-fur, mar-mor, mur-mur. So in verbs: as, si-stō (root STA).

2. From derived stems; see § 159.

II.—SUFFIXES.

159. Stems are derived from roots or from other stems by means of suffixes. These are:—

1. Primary: added to the root, or (in later times by analogy) to verb-stems. The root has either the weaker or the fuller vowel (cf. § 158. a, b).

2. Secondary: added to a noun- or adjective-stem.

Both primary and secondary suffixes are for the most part pronominal roots (§ 157. 2), but a few are of doubtful origin.

NOTE.—The distinction between primary and secondary suffixes, not being original (see p. 140, head-note), is constantly lost sight of in the development of a language. Suffixes once primary are used as secondary, and those once secondary are used as primary. Thus in hosticus (hosti + cus) the suffix -cus, originally kā (see § 160. λ) primary, as in paucus, has become secondary, and is thus regularly used to form derivatives; but in pudicus, apricus, it is treated as primary again, because these words were really or apparently connected with verbs. So in English -able was borrowed as a primary suffix, but also makes forms like clubbable, salable; -some is properly a secondary suffix, as in toilsome, lonesome, but makes also such words as meddlesome, venturesome.

1. Primary Suffixes.

160. The words in Latin formed immediately from the root by means of Primary suffixes, are few.

a. Inherited words so formed were mostly further developed by the addition of other suffixes, as we might make an adjective lone-ly-some-ish, meaning nothing more than lone, lonely, or lonesome.

b. By such accumulation of suffixes, new compound suffixes were formed which crowded out even the old types of derivation: thus—

A word like mēns, mentis, by the suffix ōn- (nom. -ō) gave mentiō, and this being divided into men + tiō, gave rise to a new type of abstract nouns in -tiō (phonetically -siō): as, lēgātiō, embassy.

A word like audītor, by the suffix io- (nom. -ius), gave rise to adjectives like audītōrius, of which the neuter is used to denote the place where the action of the verb is performed. Hence tōrio- (nom. -tōrium), N., becomes a regular suffix (§ 164. i. 5).

So in English such a word as mechanically gives a suffix -ally, making telegraphically, though there is no such word as telegraphical.

c. Examples of primary suffixes are:—

1. Vowel suffixes:—

- a,¹ found in nouns and adjectives of ā- and *o-*stems, as sonus, lūdus, vagus, scriba, toga (root TEG).
- i, less common, and in Latin frequently changed, as in rūpēs, or lost, as in scobis (scobis, root SCAB).
- u, disguised in most adjectives by an additional i, as in suā-vis (for ṣuādus, cf. ḡdús), ten-uis (root TEN in tendō), and remaining alone only in nouns of the fourth declension, as acus (root AK, sharp, in ācer, aciēs, ōkus), pecū (root PAC, bind, in paciscor).

2 Suffixes with a consonant:—

- a. ta (in the form to-) in the regular perfect passive participle, as tēctus, tēctum; sometimes with an active sense, as in pōtus, prānsus; and found in a few words not recognized as participles, as pūtus (cf. pūrus), altus (alō).
- β. ti in abstracts and rarely in nouns of agency, as messis, vestis, pars, mēns. But in many the i is lost.
- γ. tu in abstracts (including supines), sometimes becoming concretes, as āctus, lūctus.
- δ. na, forming perfect participles in other languages, and in Latin making adjectives of like participial meaning, which often become nouns, as māgnus (= māctus, root MAG), plēnus, rēgnum.
- ε. ni, in nouns of agency and adjectives, as ignis, sēgnis.
- ζ. nu, rare, as in manus, sinus.
- η. ma with various meanings, as in animus, almus, firmus, forma.
- θ. va (commonly uo-) with an active or passive meaning, as in equus, arvum, cōspiciuus, exiguus, vacivus (vacuus).
- ι. ra (or la, a passive participle termination in other languages), usually passive, as in ager, integer, plēri-que (= plēnus = plētus), sella (for sed-la, cf. ἔδρα).

¹ Observe that it is the stem, not the nominative, that is formed by the suffix, although the nominative is here given for convenience of reference. The vowel in these suffixes is given as ā to avoid puzzling questions of comparative grammar, though it had no doubt assumed the form o, even in the Parent Speech.

- κ. ya (forming gerundives in other languages), in adjectives and abstracts, including many of the first and fifth declensions, as eximius, audācia, Flōrentia, perniciēs.
- λ. ka, sometimes primary, as in paucī (cf. παῦρος), locus (for stlocus). In many cases the vowel of this termination is lost, leaving a consonant-stem: as, apex, cortex, loquāx.
- μ. an (in-, ōn-), in nouns of agency and abstracts: as, aspergō, compāgō (-inis), gerō (-ōnis).
- ν. man (men-: also used in the form men- as a conscious derivative) expressing MEANS, often passing into the action itself: as, āgmen, flūmen.
- ξ. tar, forming nouns of AGENCY: as, pater (i.e. protector), frāter (i.e. supporter), ōrātor.
- ο. tra, forming nouns of MEANS: as, claustrum, mūlctrum.
- π. as (sometimes phonetically changed into er-, or-), forming names of actions: as, genus, furor.
- ρ. ant, forming active PARTICIPLES: as, legēns, with some adjectives from roots unknown: as, frequēns, recēns.

The above, with some suffixes given below, belong to the Indo-European parent speech, and most of them were not felt as living formations in the Latin.

2. Significant Endings.

161. Both primary and secondary suffixes, especially in the form of compound suffixes, were used in Latin with more or less consciousness of their meaning. They may therefore be called Significant Endings.

They form: 1. Nouns of Agency; 2. Names of Action; 3. Adjectives (active or passive).

NOTE. — There is really no difference in etymology between an adjective and a noun, except that some formations are habitually used as adjectives and others as nouns (§ 25. b, note).

III.—DERIVATION OF NOUNS AND ADJECTIVES.

1. Nouns of Agency.

162. Nouns of Agency properly denote the agent or doer of an action. But they include many words in which the idea of agency has entirely faded out, and also many words used as adjectives. Their significant endings are:—

a. -tor (-sor), M., -trix, F., added to roots or verb-stems to denote the agent or doer of an action.

canō, sing (CAN, supine tcantum); cantor, singer; cantrix, songstress.

vincō (VIC, supine victum), conquer: victor, victrix, conqueror (victorious).

tondeō, shear (TOND as root, sup. *tōnsu*m): tōnsor, tōnstrix, hair-cutter.

petō, seek (petī- as stem, sup. petītum): petītor, candidate.

senātor (lost verb †senō, -āre), senator.

By analogy -tor is sometimes added to noun-stems, but these may be stems of lost verbs (cf. senātor above): as, viātor, traveller, from via, way (but cf. inviō).

NOTE 1. — The termination -tor (-sor) has the same phonetic change as the supine ending -tum (-sum) (p. 121. 3), and is added to the same form of root or verb-stem as that ending (see § 125).

NOTE 2. — The feminine form is always -trix. Masculines in -sor lack the feminine, except expulsor (expultrix) and tōnsor (tōnstrix).

NOTE 3. — -tor is an inherited termination (cf. §, p. 143). The feminine is a further formation in -ca which has lost its final vowel (cf. § 160. λ).

b. t- (originally ta-, cf. § 160. α), C., added to verb-stems making nouns in -es (-itis, -etis, stem -it-, -et-) descriptive of a character: as, — mīles (verb-stem mīle-, as in mille, thousand), a soldier (man of the crowd).

teges (verb-stem tege-, cf. tegō, cover), a coverer, a mat.

comes, -itis (con- and meō, go, cf. trāmes, sēmita), a companion.

c. -ō (gen. -ōnis, stem ōn-), M., added to stems conceived as verb-stems (but perhaps originally noun-stems) to indicate a person employed in some specific art or trade: as, — gerō (GES in gerō, gerere, carry, but compare -ger in armiger (squire), a carrier).

com-bibō (BIB as root in bibō, bibere, drink), a pot-companion.

NOTE. — This termination is also used to form many nouns descriptive of personal characteristics (cf. § 164. g).

2. Names of Actions.

163. Names of Actions are confused, through their suffixes, with real abstract nouns and nouns denoting means and instruments. They are derived (1) apparently or really from roots and verb-stems (primary) or (2) from noun-stems (secondary).

1. Significant endings giving real or apparent primary formations are:—

a. -or (st. ōr-, earlier ōs-), M., -ēs (gen. -is, st. i-, earlier es-), F., -us (st. ēs-, earlier es- or os-), N., added to roots or forms conceived as roots: as, — timeō, fear; tim-or, dread.

sedeō, sit; sēd-ēs, seat.

decet, it is becoming; dec-us, grace, beauty.

†facinō (old form of faciō, do); facin-us, a deed.

NOTE.—Many nouns of this class are formed by analogy from imaginary roots: as, facinus above (from a supposed root FACIN).

6. -iō (st. iōn-), -tiō (st. tiōn-), -tūra (st. tūrā-), F., -tus (st. tu-), M., (phonetically -siō, -sūra, -sus), apparently added to roots or verb-stems, making verbal abstracts which easily pass into concretes.

legō, gather, enroll; leg-iō, a legion (originally, the annual conscription).

regō, direct; reg-iō, a direction, a region.

Inserō (SA), implant; Insi-tiō, grafting.

vocō, call; v cā-tiō, a calling.

mōlior, toil; mōlī-tiō, a toiling.

pingō (PIG), paint; pīc-tūra, a painting.

sentiō, feel; sēn-sus (for sent-tus, § 11. a. 2), perception.

fruor, enjoy (for †fruguor); frūc-tus, enjoyment, fruit.

NOTE 1. — -tīō, -tūra, -tus are added to roots or verb-stems precisely as -tor, with the same phonetic change. Hence they are conveniently associated with the supine stem (see p. 121). They sometimes form nouns when there is no corresponding verb in use: as, senātus, senate (cf. senex); mentīō, mention (cf. mēns); fētūra, offspring (cf. fētus); litterātūra, literature (cf. litterae); cōsulātus, consulship (cf. cōsul).

NOTE 2. — Of these endings, -tus was originally primary (cf. § 160. 7); -lō is a compound formed by adding -ōn- to a stem ending in a vowel (originally 1): as, diciō (cf. -dīcus and dīcis); -lō is a compound formed by adding -ōn- to stems in ti-: as, gradātīō (cf. gradātīm); -tūra is formed by adding -ra, feminine of -rus, to stems in tu-: as, nātūra from nātus; statūra from statūs (cf. figūra, of like meaning, from a simple u-stem, figu-s; and matūra, Matūra).

c. -men, -mentum, -mōnium, N., -mōnia, F., apparently added to roots or verb-stems to denote ACTS, or MEANS and RESULTS of acts.

AG, root of agō, lead; āg-men, line of march.

So colu-men, pillar; mō-men, movement; nō-men, name.

fruor, enjoy ; frū-mentum, grain.

testor, witness; testi-mōnium, testimony.

queror, complain; queri-mōnia, complaint (but see note).

Also flā-men (M.), a priest (from flō, blow, in reference to the sacrificial fire).

REMARK: -mōnium and -mōnia are also used as secondary, forming nouns from other nouns and from adjectives: as, sancti-mōnia, sanctity (sanctus, holy); mātri-mōnium, marriage (māter, mother).

NOTE.—Of these endings, -men is primary (cf. § 160. v); -mentum is a further development of -men made by adding to-, and appears for the most part later in the language than -men: as, mōmen, movement (Lucr.); mōmentum (later). So elementum is a development from L-M-N-a, l-m-n's (letters of the alphabet), changed to elementa along with other nouns in -men. -mōnium and -mōnia are compound secondary suffixes formed from mo-, as in the series almus, fostering; Almōn, a river near Rome; alimōnia, support. But the last was formed from alō later, when -mōnia had become established as a supposed primary suffix.

d. -bulum, -culum, -brum, -crum, -trum, N., added to verb-stems or roots (rarely to noun-stems), to denote MEANS or INSTRUMENT: as,— pāscō, feed; pā-bulum, fodder.

stō, stand; sta-bulum, stall.

tūs (gen. tūris), incense; tūri-bulum, a censer.

vocō, call; vocā-bulum, a name, a word.

lateō, hide; lati-bulum, hiding-place.

vehō, carry; vehi-culum, wagon.

piō, purify; piā-culum, an expiation.

cernō (crēvi), sift; crī-brum, sieve.

flō, blow; flā-bra (pl.), blasts.

candēla, a candle; candēlā-brum, a candlestick.

ambulō, walk; ambulā-crum, place for walking.

sepeliō, bury; sepul-crum, tomb.

simulō, pretend; simulā-crum, image.

claudō, shut; claus-trum, a bar.

arō, I plough; arā-trum, a plough.

A few Masculines and Feminines of the same formation occur as nouns and adjectives: as,— for, speak; fā-bula, tale.

rīdeō, laugh; rīdi-culus, laughable.

faciō, make; fa-ber, smith.

lateō, hide; late-bra, hiding-place.

terō, bore; tere-bra, auger.

mulgeō, milk; mālo-tra, milk-pail.

ūrō, burn; Aus-ter, South wind.

NOTE.—These are no doubt compound nominal suffixes, bo- + lo-, co- + lo-, bo- + ro-, co- + ro-, to- + ro-, but the series cannot be distinctly made out. They had become fully welded into independent suffixes before the historical period.

2. Significant endings entirely secondary forming Abstract nouns are:—

e. -ia, -tia (-iēs, -tiēs), -tās, -tūs, -tūdō, F., added to adjective stems and a few to nouns. So -dō and -gō, F., but associated with verbs, and apparently added to verb-stems. Thus:—

audāx, bold; audāc-ia, boldness. So fidūc-ia, confidence (†fidūx) prūdēns, wise; prūden-tia, wisdom.

superbus, proud; superb-ia, pride.

tristis, sad; tristi-tia, sadness.

pauper, poor; pauper-iēs, poverty.

sēgnis, lazy; sēgni-tiēs, laziness.

bonus, good; boni-tās, goodness.

civis citizen; cīvi-tās, citizenship.

senex, old; senec-tūs, age.

sōlus, alone; sōli-tūdō, solitude.

dulcis, sweet; dulcē-dō, sweetness (probably from a lost stem dulcē-, cf. dulcē-scō).

cupiō, I desire; cupī-dō (as if from stem cupī-, cf. cupī-vī).

lumbus, the loin; lumbā-gō, lumbago (as if from †lumbō, -āre).

plumbum, lead; plumbā-gō, black lead.

rubus, bramble (red bush); rūbī-gō, rust (redness).

prūriō, itch; prūri-gō, itching.

albus, white; albū-gō, a disease of the eyes (whiteness, as if from †albuō).

Stems ending in o- or ā- lose these vowels before -ia (as superb-ia), and change them to i before -tās, -tūs, -tia (as boni-tās, above).

Consonant-stems often insert -i before -tās: as, loquāx (stem loquāc-), loquāci-tās; but hones-tās, māies-tās (as if from old adjectives in -es), ūber-tās, volup-tās. o after i is changed to e: as, pius (stem pio-), pie-tās; socius, socie-tās (see § 11. e).

NOTE.—Of these, -ia is inherited as secondary (cf. § 160. κ); -tia is formed by adding -ia to stems with a t-suffix: as, mīlitia, from mīles (st. mīlit-); molestia from molestus; clēmētia from clēmēns; whence by analogy, mali-tia, avāri-tia. -tās is inherited, but its component parts, ta- + ti-, are found as suffixes in the same sense: as, senectā from senex; sēmen-tis from sēmen. -tūs is tū- + ti-, cf. servitū-dō. -dō and -gō appear only with long vowels, as from verb-stems, by a false analogy; but -dō is do- + ōn-: as, cupidus, cupidō; gravidus, gravēdō (cf. gravē-scō); albidus, albēdō (cf. albē-scō); formidus, hot, formidō (cf. formidulōsus), (hot flash?) fear; -gō is possibly co- + ōn-; cf. vorāx, vorāgō, but cf. Cethēgus. -tūdō is compounded of -dō with tū-stems, which acquire a long vowel from association with verb-stems in u- (cf. volūmen, from volvō): as, cōnsuetū-dō, valētū-dō, habitū-dō, sollicitū-dō; whence servitūdō (cf. servitūa, -tūtis).

f. -ium, -tium, added to noun- and perhaps verb-stems, forming neuter abstracts, which easily pass into concretes denoting OFFICES and GROUPS: as, — hospes (gen. hospit-is), a guest; hospit-ium, hospitality, an inn.

servus, a slave; servi-tium, slavery, the slave class.

collēga, a colleague; collēg-ium, collegueship, a college.

auspex, a soothsayer; auspic-ium, soothsaying, an omen.

gaudeō, rejoice; gaud-ium, joy.

benefaciō, benefit; benefic-ium, a kindness (but cf. beneficus). dē-siderō, miss (from †dē-sidēs, out of place, of missing soldiers);

dē-sider-ium, longing.

effugiō, escape; effug-ium, an escape (cf. profugus).

ad verbum, [added] to a verb; adverb-ium, an adverb.

inter lūnās, between moons; interlūn-ium, time of new moon.

rēgis fuga, flight of a king; rēgifug-ium, flight of kings.

Vowel-stems lose their vowel before -ium, as collēg-ium, from collēga.

NOTE. — -ium, neuter of -ius (§ 164. g), -ia (cf. e), is an inherited primary suffix (cf. § 160. κ), but is used with great freedom as secondary; -tium is formed like -tia, by adding -ium to stems with t: as, exit-ium, equit-ium (cf. exitus, equitēs); so, by analogy, calvi-tium, servi-tium (from calvus, servus).

g. Less commonly -nia, F., -nium, -lium, -cinium, N., added to noun-stems, but confused with verb-stems: as, — pecū, cattle; pecū-nia, money (chattels).

conticēscō, hush; contici-nium, the hush of night augeō, increase; auxi-lium, help.

pecū, cattle; pecū-lium, private property (cf. pecūlor, implying a noun †pecūlum).

lātrō, robber; lātrō-cinium, robbery (cf. lātrōcinor, rob, implying an adj. †lātrōcinus).

3. Adjectives.

164. Derivative adjectives are Nominal (from nouns or adjectives) or Verbal (as from roots or verb-stems).

Their significant endings are: —

I. NOMINAL.

a. -ulus (-a, -um) (after a vowel -olus), -culus, -ellus, -illus, making an important class of adjectives, which are usually appropriated to one gender, that of the Primitive, and used as DIMINUTIVE NOUNS: as, — rivus, a brook; riv-ulus, a streamlet. gladius, a sword; gladi-olus, a small sword.

filius, a son; fili-olus, a little son.
filia, a daughter; fili-ola, a little daughter ātrium, a hall; ātri-olum, a little hall.
homō, a man; homun-culus, a dwarf.
auris, an ear; auri-cula, a little ear.
mūnus, N., a gift; mūnus-culum, a little gift.
†puera (cf. puer, a boy); puella (for †puer-ula), a girl.
cōdex, a block; cōdic-illī, writing-tablets.
miser, wretched; mis-ellus, rather wretched.
liber, a book; lib-ellus, a little book.
aureus (-a, -um), golden; aure-olus (-a, -um), golden. parvus (-a, -um), little; parv-olus (later parv-ulus), very small.
māior (old māiōs), greater; māius-culus, somewhat larger.

NOTE 1.— These are all formed by adding -Jus (originally -rus, cf. § 160. i) to various stems, forming adjectives. The formation is the same as that of -ulus in / below. But these words became settled as diminutives, and retained their connection with nouns. So in English the diminutives whitish, reddish, are of the same formation as bookish and snappish. -culus comes from -lus added to adjectives in -cus formed from stems in n- and s-: as, juven-cus, Aurun-cus (cf. Aurun-culōsus), pris-cus, whence the cu becomes a part of the termination, and the whole ending is used elsewhere, but mostly with n- and s- stems, in accordance with its origin.

NOTE 2.— Diminutives are often used to express affection, pity, or contempt: as, dēliciolae, little pet; mullercula, a poor (feeble) woman; homunculus, wretched man.

REMARK: -ciō, added to stems in n-, has the same diminutive force, but is added to masculines only: as, homun-ciō, a dwarf (from homō, a man).

ō. -adēs, M., -ās, F., -idēs, -idēs, M., -is, -ēs, F., -ūs, -eus, M., added to proper names, forming PATRONYMS to indicate descent or relationship.

These, originally Greek adjectives, have almost all become nouns in Latin: as, — Tyndareus: Tyndar-idēs, Castor or Pollux; Tyndar-is, Helen, daughter of Tyndarus.

Atlās: Atlanti-adēs, Mercury; Atlanti-adēs (Gr. pl.), the Pleiads.
Scīpiō: Scīpi-adēs, son of Scīpio.

Anchīsēs: Anchīsī-adēs, Aeneas.

Thēseus: Thēs-idēs, son of Theseus.

Tydeus: Tyđ-idēs, Diomedes, son of Tydeus.

Oilēus: Āiāx Oil-ūs, son of Oilēus.

Thaumās: Thaumanti-ās, Iris, daughter of Thaumās.

Hesperus: Hesper-ides (from Hesper-is, -idis), F. pl., the daughters of Hesperus, the Hesperides.

c. -ānus, -ēnus, -īnus; -ās, -ēnsis, -acus (-ācus), -icus; -ēus (generally shortened to -ēus), -ēius, -icius, forming adjectives with the sense of BELONGING TO.

1. So from common nouns: as, — mōns (st. monti-), mountain; mont-ānus, of the mountains.

vetus (st. veter-), old; veter-ānus, veteran.

ante lūcem, before light; antelūc-ānus, before daylight.

egēō, lack; eg-ēnus, needy (see note below).

terra, earth; terr-ēnus, earthly.

sērus, late; ser-ēnus, calm (of evening stillness).

collis, hill; coll-īnus, of a hill.

dīvus, god; dīv-īnus, divine.

libertus, one's freedman; libert-īnus, of the class of freedmen.

vitulus, a calf; vitul-īna (sc. carō), veal.

quis, who? cūi-ās, of what country?

infimus, lowest; infim-ās, of the lowest rank.

forum, a market-place; for-ēnsis, of a market-place, or the Forum.

merum, pure wine; mer-ācus, pure.

cīvis, a citizen; cīv-īcus, civic, of a citizen.

fullō, a fuller; fullōn-īcus, of a fuller.

fēmina, a woman; fēmin-eus, of a woman, feminine.

lāc, milk (st. lacti-); lact-eus, milky.

plēbēs, the commons; plēb-ēius, of the commons, plebeian.

pater, father; patr-icius, patrician.

2. But especially from proper nouns (names of places, peoples, and persons), denoting BELONGING TO or COMING FROM: as, —

Rōma: Rōm-ānus, Roman.

Sulla: Sull-ānī, Sulla's veterans.

Cyzicus: Cyzic-ēnī, Cyzicenes, people of Cyzicus.

Liguria: Ligur-īnus, of Liguria.

Arpinum: Arpīn-ās, of Arpinum (cf. Samnium: Samnīs, gen. -ītis, a Samnite).

Sicilia: Sicili-ēnsis, Sicilian.

Īlium, Troy; Īli-acus, Trojan (a Greek form).

Platō: Platōn-īcus, Platonic.

Aquila: Aquil-ēius, a Roman name; Aquilēia, a town in Italy.

3. Many derivative adjectives with these endings have by usage become nouns. Thus,— silva, woods; Silv-ānus, M., a god of the woods.

membrum, limb; membr-āna, F., skin.

Aemilia (gēns); Aemili-ānus, M., name of Scipio Africanus.

lanius, butcher; lāni-ēna, F., a butcher's stall.

†Aufidius (Aufidus), M.; Aufidi-ēnus, a Roman name.

incola, an inhabitant; inquil-inus, M., a lodger.

caecus, blind; Caec-ina, used as M., a Roman name.

gallus, a cock; gall-ina, F., a hen.

ruō, fall (no noun existing); ru-ina, F., a fall.

doctor, teacher; doctr-ina, F., learning.

NOTE.—Of these terminations, -ānus, -ēnus, -inus are compounded from -nus added to a stem-vowel: as, arca, arcānus; collis, collinus. The long vowels come from a confusion with verb-stems, as in plō-nus, flni-tus, tribū-tus, assisted by the noun-stem in ā—as, arcānus. A few nouns occur of similar formation, as from verb-stems in ō—(which were lost in the later language) and in ū—as, colōnus (colō, cf. incola), patrōnus (cf. patrō, -āre), tribūnus (cf. tribūō, tribus), Portūnus (cf. portus), Vacūna (cf. vacō, vacuus).

d. -ālis, -āris, -ēlis, -īlis, -ūlis, -nus, PERTAINING TO, of various modes of relation or possession, but not used as Gentile adjectives: as, nātūra, nature; nātūr-ālis, natural.

populus, a people; popul-āris, fellow-countryman.

patruus, uncle; patru-ēlis, cousin.

hostis, an enemy; host-īlis, hostile.

currus, chariot; sella cur-ūlis, curule chair.

vēr, spring; vēr-nus, vernal.

NOTE.—-nus is inherited (cf. § 160. δ) and used as secondary. The others are weakened forms of ra- (§ 160. ι) added to various vowel-stems. The long vowel comes partly from confusion with verb-stems, cf. Aprilis (aperiō), edūlis (edō), and the suffix is afterwards used indiscriminately, as in senilis (senex).

e. -ter (-tris), -ester (-estris), -timus, -ernus, -urnus, -ternus (-turnus), BELONGING TO, of places, times, and the like (but some are general adjectives).

palūs, a marsh; palūs-ter, of the marshes.

pedes, a footman; pedes-ter, of the foot.

sex mēnsēs, six months; sēmēs-tris, semi-annual.

silva, a wood; silv-ester, silv-estris, woody.

finis, an end; fini-timus, neighboring, on the borders.

herī (old hesī), yesterday; hes-ternus, of yesterday.

diū, long (in time); diū-turnus, lasting.

hodiē, to-day; hodi-ernus, of to-day.

diēs, day; di-urnus, daily.

NOTE. — Of these, -ester is formed by adding tri- (cf. tro-, § 160) to stems in t- or d- (phonetically s-). Thus pedet-tri- becomes pedestri-, and others follow the analogy. -ernus and -urnus are formed by adding -nus to *s-*stems: as, diur-nus (for †dius-nus), and hence, by analogy, hodiernus (hodiš).

f. -ātus, -ītus, -ūtus, PROVIDED WITH, making adjectives with participial ending, formed from nouns, but in reference to an imaginary verb-stem (cf. the English horned, crested, hooked).

barba, a beard; barb-ātus, bearded.

auris, an ear; aur-ītus, long-eared.

versus, a turning; vers-ūtus, crafty, adroit (full of turns).

So -tus, added directly to nouns without reference to any verb: as, — fūnus, death; fūnes-tus, deadly.

honor, honor; hones-tus, honorable.

favor, favor; faus-tus (for †faves-tus), favorable.

g. -eus, -ius, -āceus, -īcius, -āneus (-neus), -ticus, MADE OF OR BELONGING TO, forming adjectives of very various meanings: as, — aurum, gold; aur-eus, golden.

pater, a father; patr-ius, paternal.

uxor, a wife; uxōr-ius, uxorious.

rosa, a rose; ros-āceus, of roses.

later, a brick; later-īcius, of brick.

praesēns, present; praesent-āneus, operating instantly.

extrā, without; extr-āneus, external.

sub terrā, underground; subterr-āneus, subterranean.

salix, willow; salig-neus, of willow.

volō, fly; volā-ticus, winged (volātus, a flight).

domus, a house; domes-ticus, of the house, domestic.

silva, a wood; silvā-ticus, sylvan.

NOTE. — -ius is originally primitive (§ 160. κ); -īcius and -āceus are formed by adding -ius and -eus to stems in ī-c-, ā-c- (suffix co-, orig. ka-, § 160. λ); -eus corresponds to Greek -εῖος, -εος, and has lost a y-sound (cf. ya-, § 160. κ). -neus is no- + -eus (§ 160. δ); -āneus is formed by adding -neus to ā-stems. For -ticus, see § 159. n.

h. -ārius, -tōrius (-sōrius), BELONGING TO, making many adjectives often fixed as nouns (see i).

ōrdō, rank, order; ōrdin-ārius, regular.

argentum, silver; argent-ārius, of silver or money.

extrā, outside; extr-ārius, stranger.

meritus, earned; meri-tōrius, profitable.

dēvorsus, turned aside; dēvor-sōrius, of an inn (cf. z. 5).

NOTE. — Here -ius (§ 160. κ) is added to shorter forms in -āris and -or-: as, pecūliārius (from pecūliāris), bellātōrius (from bellātor).

i. Many fixed forms of the above adjective suffixes make nouns more or less regularly used in particular senses: as, —

1. -ārius (regular), person employed about anything: as, — argent-ārius, silversmith, broker (from argentum).

2. -āria, thing connected with something: — arēn-āriae, F. pl., sandpits (from arēna, sand).

Asin-āria, F., name of a play (from asinus, ass).

3. -ārium (regular), place of a thing (with a few of more general meaning): as, — aer-ārium, N., treasury (from aes, copper).

tepid-ārium, N., warm bath (from tepidus, warm).

sūd-ārium, N., a towel (cf. sūdō, -āre, sweat).

sal-ārium, N., salt money, salary (from sāl, salt).

calend-ārium, N., a note-book (from calendae, calends).

4. -tōria (-sōria): as, —

Agitā-tōria, F., a play of Plautus, The Carter (from agitātor).

vorsō-ria, F., a tack (from vorsus, a turn).

5. -tōrium (-sōrium) (regular), place of action (with a few of more general meaning): as, — dēvor-sōrium, N., an inn (as from dēvortō, turn aside).

audi-tōrium, N., a lecture-room (as from audiō, hear).

ten-tōrium, N., a tent (as from tendō, stretch).

tēc-tōrium, N., plaster (as from tegō, tēctus, cover).

por-tōrium, N., toll (cf. portō, carry, and portus, harbor).

6. -ile, animal-stall: as, — bov-ile, N., cattle-stall (bōs, bōvis, ox, cow).

ov-ile, sheep-fold (ovis, st. ovi-, sheep).

7. -al for -āle, thing connected with the primitive: as, — capit-al, N., headdress, capital crime (caput, head).

penetr-āle (esp. in pl.), N., inner apartment (cf. penetrō).

Sāturn-ālia N. pl. (the regular form for names of festivals), feast of Saturn (from Sāturnus).

8. -ētum, N. (cf. -ātus. -ūtus, see f), place of a thing: as, — querc-ētum, N., oak grove (from quercus, oak).

Argil-ētum, N., The Clay-pit (from argilla, clay).

9. -cus (sometimes with inserted i, -icus), -icus, in any one of the genders, with various meanings: as, — vīli-cus, M., vīli-ca, F., a steward (stewardess) (from villa, farm house).

fabr-ica, F., a workshop (from faber, workman).

būbul-cus, M., ox-tender (from būb-ulus, dim., cf. bōs, ox).

cant-icum, N., song (from cantus, act of singing).

rubr-ica, F., red paint (from ruber, red).

10. -eus, -ea, -eum, with various meanings: as, — alv-eus, M., a trough (from alvus, the belly).

capr-ea, F., a roe (from caper, he-goat).

flamm-eum, N., a bridal veil (from flamma, flame, from its color).

11. -ium, confounded with the primary suffix (see § 163. f).

12. -ter (stem tro-) and -ter (stem tri-), -aster -ester: as, —

Aus-ter, M., South wind (from ūrō, burn).

eques-ter, M., knight (for tequet-ter, see e, note).

sequ-ester, M., a stake-holder (from derivative of sequor, follow).

ole-aster, M., wild olive (from olea) (cf. surd-aster, from surdus).

k. -ōsus, -(o)lēns, -(o)lentus, FULL OF, PRONE TO: as, — flūctus, wave; flūctu-ōsus, billowy.

forma, beauty; form-ōsus, beautiful.

perīculum, peril; perīcul-ōsus, full of danger.

pestis, pest; pesti-lēns, pesti-lentus, pestilent.

vinum, wine; vīno-lentus, vīn-ōsus, given to drink.

II. VERBAL.

1. -āx, -idus, -ulus, -vus (-uus, -ivus, -tīvus), PRONE TO, FITTED TO, apparently¹ added to verb-stems, forming adjectives, to express the action of a verb as a QUALITY or TENDENCY. -āx, denotes a faulty or aggressive tendency; -tīvus is oftener passive. Thus, — pūgnō, to fight; pūgn-āx, pugnacious.

audeō, to dare; aud-āx, bold.

cupiō, to desire; cup-idus, eager.

bibō, to drink; bib-ulus, thirsty (as dry earth, etc.).

prōterō, to trample; proter-vus, violent, wanton.

noceō, do harm; noc-uus (noc-ivus), hurtful, injurious.

capīō, take; cap-tīvus, captive; M., a prisoner of war.

recidō, fall back; recid-ivus, restored.

¹ The forms felt as verbal are, like the nominal forms, derived from noun-stems, and the two are constantly confounded.

NOTE.—Of these, -ix is a reduction of -icus (stem-vowel i + -cus), become independent and used with verb-stems. Similar forms in -ox, -ōx, -lx, and -ūx are found or implied in derivatives: as, imbrex, M., a rain-tile (from imber); senex, old (from seni-s); ferōx, ferce (from ferus); atrōx, savage (from āter, black); celōx, F., a yacht (cf. cellō); fēlix, happy, orig. fertile (from fēlō, suck [?]); fidūcia, F., confidence (as from †fidūx); cf. also victrix (from victor). So mandūcus, chewing (from mandō).

-idus is no doubt denominative, as in herbidus, herb; tumidus, swollen (cf. tumu-lus, hill; tumul-tus, uproar); callidus, tough, cunning (cf. callum, tough flesh); mūcidus, slimy (cf. mūcus, slime); tābidus, wasting (cf. tābēs, wasting disease). But later it was used to form adjectives directly from verb-stems.

-ulus is the same suffix as in diminutives, but attached to verb-stems. Cf. æmulus, rivalling (cf. imitor and imāgō); sēdulus, sitting by, attentive (cf. domi-seda, home-staying, and sēdō, calm); pendulus, hanging (cf. pondō, abl., in weight); perpendicularum, a plummet; appendix, an addition; strāgulus, covering (cf. strāgēs); legulus, a picker (cf. sacri-legus, a picker up of things sacred). But they were thoroughly attached to verbs.

-vus seems originally primary (cf. § 160. θ), but -ivus and -tivus have become secondary and are used with nouns: as, æstivus, of summer (from æstus, heat); tempestivus, timely (from tempus); cf. domes-ticus (from domus).

m. -ilis, -bilis, -ius, -tilis, (-illis), expressing PASSIVE QUALITIES, but occasionally active: as, — fragō (FRAG), break; frag-ilis, frail.

nōscō (GNO), know; nō-bilis, well known, famous.

eximō, take out, select; exim-ius, choice, rare (cf. ē-greg-ius) agō, drive; ag-ilis, active.

habeō, hold; hab-ilis, handy.

alō, nourish; al-tilis, fattened (see note).

NOTE.—Of these, -ius is primary, but is also used as secondary (cf. § 163. f). -ilis is certainly secondary: as, similis, like (cf. ὁμός, Eng. same); agilis, active (cf. prōdīgus, σπαρτηρός, so agō + -lis); facilis, easy (cf. beneficus); fragilis, frail (cf. foederi-fragus). -bilis also is probably bo- + -lis (cf. -bus in morbus, bulum, bundus, brum, bris; cf. also -ilis and -tilis); in -tilis and -illis, -lis is added to to- (so-), stem of the perfect participle: as, fōssilis, dug up (from fōssus, dug); volātilis, winged (from volātus, flight).

n. -minus, -mnus. These endings are properly participial (cf. Greek -μενος, and amā-minī). They form a few nouns in which the participial force is discernible: as, —

FE. produce; fē-mina, woman (the producer).

alō, nourish; alu-mnus, a foster child, nursing.

o. -ndus (the same as the gerund-ending) forms a few active or reflexive adjectives: as, — sequor. follow; secu-ndus, second (the following), favorable.

rotō, whirl (from rota, wheel); rotu-ndus, round (whirling¹).

¹ Compare volvendis mēnsibus, in the revolving months (Virg.).

NOTE.—This suffix is no doubt on-+ -dus: as, †gerus (st. gerō, cf. armiger), gerō (st. gerōn-), †gerondus (cf. -bundus and -cundus; and turunda, a paste-ball).

p. -bundus, -cundus, with a participial meaning, but denoting continuance of the act or quality.

locus, a jest; iū-cundus, pleasant (cf. iuvō, -āre).

vītō, shun; vītā-bundus, dodging about.

tremō, tremble; treme-bundus, trembling.

moriōr, die; mori-bundus, at the point of death.

for, speak; fā-cundus, eloquent.

FE, produce; fē-cundus, fruitful.

So ira, anger; irā-cundus, irascible (cf. Irā-scor).

NOTE.—These must have been originally nominal: as in the series, rubus, red bush; rubidus (but no †rubicus), red; Rubicon, Red River (cf. Miniō, a river of Etruria; Minius, a river of Lusitania); rubicundus (as in averruncus, homunculus). So turba, commotion; turō, a top; turbidus, roily, etc. Cf. apexabō, longābō, gravēdō, dulcēdō.

III. IRREGULAR DERIVATIVES.

q. The primary suffix ōn- (nom. -ō) is used as secondary to form nouns denoting POSSESSED OF (originally adjectives), and so expressing a character, and often used as proper names:¹ as,— epulae, a feast; epul-ō, a feaster.

nāsus, a nose; nās-ō, with a large nose (also as a proper name).

-volus (in bene-volus), wishing; vol-ōnēs (pl.), volunteers.

frōns, forehead; front-ō, big-head (also as a proper name).

So cūria, a curia; cūri-ō, head of a curia (also as proper name).

restis, a rope; resti-ō, a rope-maker.

†vespertilis, of the evening; vespertili-ō, a bat.

r. Rarely suffixes are added to compound stems imagined, but not used in their compound form: as,— ad-verb-ium, adverb; ad, to, and verbum, verb, but without the intervening †adverbus.

lāti-fund-ium, large estate; lātus, wide, fundus, estate.

su-ove-taur-ilia, a sacrifice of a sheep, a swine, and a bull; sūs, swine, ovis, sheep, taurus, bull, where the primitive would be impossible Latin, though such formations are common in Sanskrit.

IV.—DERIVATION OF VERBS.

165. Verbs may be classed as Primitive or Derivative.

¹ This suffix is the same as in § 162. c, but not connected with a verb.

1. Primitive verbs are those inherited by the Latin from the parent speech.

2. Derivative verbs are those formed in the development of the Latin as a separate language. They are of two main classes:—

- a. DENOMINATIVE VERBS, formed from nouns or adjectives.
- b. Verbs apparently derived from the stems of other verbs (see § 167).

1. Denominative Verbs.

166. Verbs were formed in Latin from almost every form of noun- and adjective-stem.

a. 1. Verbs of the first conjugation¹ are formed directly from ā-stems, regularly with a transitive meaning: as, fuga, flight; fugō, put to flight.

NOTE.— No doubt originally particular forms of stem formed particular conjugations of verbs, but from changes of stem and from various cross-analogies the relation between conjugations and stem-forms became entirely confused. Thus poena should make †pūnāre, but it really makes pūnīre, in accordance with an i-stem, as in impūni-s; servus makes servāre in one sense, servīre in another.

2. Many verbs of the First Conjugation are formed from o-stems, changing the o- into ā-. These are more commonly transitive. Thus,— stimulus, a goad (stem stimulo-); stimulō (-āre), incite. aequus, even (stem aequo-); aequō (-āre), make even.

hibernus, of the winter (stem hiberno-); hibernō, pass the winter.
albus, white (stem albo-); albō (-āre), whiten.
pīus, pure (stem pio-); piō (-āre), expiate.

3. A few verbs, generally neuter, are formed by analogy from consonant- and u-stems, adding ā to the stem: as,— vigil, awake, vigilō (-āre), watch. exsul, an exile; exsulō (-āre), be in exile.

hiemps (stem hiem-), winter; hiemō (-āre), pass the winter.
aestus, tide, seething; aestuō (-āre), surge, boil.
levis (stem levi-), light; levō (-āre), lighten.

b. A few verbs of the Second Conjugation (generally intransitive) are recognizable as formed from noun-stems, but most are inherited, or the primitive noun-stem is lost: as,— albus, white; albeō, be white (cf. albō, -īre, whiten, under a 2). cānus (stem cāno-), hoary; cāneō, be hoary. tumulus, hill (implying † tumus, swelling); tumeō, swell.

 prō-vidus, foreseeing; prō-videō, foresee.
 But moneō, remind; cf. meminī, remember. algeō, be cold; cf. algidus, cold.

NOTE.—The second conjugation has undoubtedly been formed partly through the agency of stems like those of the fifth declension in ē-, originally ēs:- as, †sordēs, -is, filth; sordeō, be dirty, cf. Eng. swart; tābēs, -is, wasting; tābeō, waste away (cf. also pūbēs, pūbescō); rēs, thing; reor, reckon. But the traces of the original formation of these verbs are almost lost from the language.

c. Some verbs in -uō, -uere are formed from noun-stems in u- where probably an i has been lost: as, — status, position; statuō, set up metus, fear; metuō, fear.

 indu (old form of in), in, on; induō, put on.
 So, by analogy, exuō, doff, from ex, out of.

NOTE.—Many verbs in u are inherited, being formed from roots in u: as, fluō, fluere; solvō, solvere. Some roots have a parasitic u: as, loquor, locūtus.

d. Many verbs of the Fourth Conjugation are formed from i-stems: as, — mōlēs (-is), mass; mōlior, -īrī, toil. fīnis, end; fīniō, -īre, bound.

 sitis, thirst; sitiō, -īre, thirst. stabilis, stable; stabiliō, -īre, establish.

Some arise by confusion from other stems treated as if i-stems: as, — bullā, bubble; bulliō, -īre, boil. condus, storekeeper; condiō, -īre, preserve.

 insānus, mad; insāniō, -īre, rave.
 gestus, gesture; gestiō, -īre, show wild longing. custōs, guardian; custōdiō, -īre, guard.

NOTE.—Some of this form are of doubtful origin: as, ōrdior, begin, cf. ōrdō and exōrdium. The formation is closely akin to that of verbs in -iō of the third conjugation (p. 100)

2. Verbs from Other Verbs.

167. The following classes of verbs regularly derived from other verbs have special meanings connected with their terminations.

NOTE.—These classes are all really denominative in their origin, but had become so associated with verbs that new derivatives were often formed directly from verbs without the intervention of a noun-stem.

a. INCEPTIVES or INCHOATIVES add -scō to the present stem of verbs. They denote the beginning of an action. Of some there is no simple verb in existence. Thus,— caleō, be warm; cale-scō, grow warm.

labō, totter; labā-scō, begin to totter.

sciō, know; sci-scō, determine.

cupiō, desire; con-cupi-scō, conceive a desire for.

alō, feed; ale-scō, grow.

So irā-scor, get angry; cf. irā-tus.

iuvene-sco, grow young; cf. iuvenis, young man.

mīte-scō, grow mild; cf. mītis, mild.

vesperā-scit, it is getting late; cf. vesper, evening.

NOTE.—Inceptives properly have only the present stem, but many use the perfect and supine systems of simple verbs: as, calēscō, calui; proficiscor, profectus.

b. INTENSIVES or ITERATIVES end in -tō or -itō (rarely -sō), and denote a forcible or repeated action: as, — iaciō, throw; iac-tō, hurl.

dicō, say; dict-itō, keep on saying.

quatiō, shake; quas-sō, shatter.

They are of the first conjugation, and are properly denominative, derived from the participle in -tus (stem to-).

NOTE.—But they were originally denominatives from a noun of agency in -ta, like nauta, sailor. Hence some are formed from a stem different from the supine: as, agō, agitō (not †āctō); so, dictitō, not †dictātō, from dictō.

c. Another form of Intensives—sometimes called Meditatives, or verbs of practice—ends in -essō (rarely -issō). These denote a certain energy or eagerness of action: as, — capiō, take; cap-essō, lay hold on.

faciō, do; fac-essō, do (with energy).

petō, seek; pet-issō, seek (eagerly).

These are of the third conjugation, usually having the perfect and supine of the fourth: as, — laccēsō, laccēsōre, laccēsivī, laccēsītum, provoke.

d. DIMINUTIVES (derived from real or supposed diminutive nouns) end in -illō, and denote a feeble or petty action: as, — cavilla, raillery; cav-illor, jest cantō, sing; cant-illō, chirp or warble.

e. Desideratives end in -turiō (-suriō), and express longing or wishing. They are of the fourth conjugation, and only three are in common use:—

emō, buy; emp-turiō, want to buy.
edō, eat; ē-suriō, be hungry.
pariō, bring forth; par-turiō, be in labor.

Others are used by the dramatists.

NOTE.—Desideratives are derived from some noun of agency: as, empturiō, from emptor, buyer. Visō, go to see, is an inherited desiderative of a different formation.

3. Compound Words.

A Compound Word is one whose stem is made up of two or more simple stems.

Only noun-stems can be thus compounded. A preposition, however, often becomes attached to a verb.

168. New stems are formed by composition as follows:¹

a. The second part is simply added to the first: as, — su-ove-taurilia (sūs, ovis, taurus), the sacrifice of a hog, sheep, and bull (cf. § 164. r). septen-decim (septem, decem), seventeen.

b. The first part modifies the second as an adjective or adverb (Determinative Compounds): as, — lāti-fundium (lātus, fundus), a large landed estate.

c. The first part has the force of a case, and the second a verbal force (Objective Compounds): as, —

¹ In these compounds only the second part receives inflection. This is most commonly the proper inflection of the last stem; but, as this kind of composition is in fact older than inflection, the compounded stem sometimes has an inflection of its own (as, cornicen, -cinis; lucifer, -feri; iudex, -dicis), from stems not occurring in Latin. Especially do compound adjectives in Latin take the form of i-stems: as, animus, exanimis; nōrma, abnōrmis (see note, p. 30). In composition stems regularly have their uninflected form: as, igni-spicium, divining by fire. But o- and *ā-*stems weaken the final vowel of the stem to i-, as in ālt-pēs (from āla, st. ālā-); and i- is so common a termination of compounded stems, that it is often added to stems which do not properly have it: as, foederi-fragus (for †foeder-fragus: foedus, †fragus), treaty-breaking.

agri-cola (ager, †cola akin to colō), a farmer armi-ger (arma, †ger akin to gerō), armor-bearer.
 corni-cen (cornū, †cen akin to canō), horn-blower.
 carni-fex (carō, †fex akin to faciō), executioner.

d. Compounds of the above kinds, in which the last word is a noun, acquire the signification of adjectives, meaning possessed of the quality denoted (Possessive Compounds): as, — ālī-pēs (āla, pēs), wing-footed.

 māgn-animus (māgnus, animus), great-souled.
 con-cors (con-, cor), harmonious.
 an-ceps (amb-, caput), double (having a head at both ends).

NOTE. — Many compounds of the above classes appear only in the form of some further derivative, the proper compound being impossible in Latin (cf. § 164. r).

169. In many apparent compounds, complete words — not stems — have grown together in speech.

These are not strictly compounds in the etymological sense. They are called Syntactic Compounds. Examples are: — a. Compounds of faciō, factō, with an actual or formerly existing noun-stem confounded with a verbal stem in e-. These are CAUSATIVE in force: as, cōnsuē-faciō, habituate (cf. cōnsuē-scō, become accustomed); cale-faciō, cale-factō, to heat (cf. calē-scō, grow warm).

b. An adverb or noun combined with a verb: as, bene-dīcō (bene dīcō), to bless; sat-agō (satis agō), to be busy enough.

c. Many apparent compounds of stems: as, fidē-iubeō (fidei iubeō), to give surety; mān-suētus (manui suētus), tame; Iūppiter (†Iūs-pater); Mār-ci-por (Mār-ci puer), slave of Marcus.

d. A few phrases forced into the ordinary inflections of nouns: as, — prō-cōnsul, proconsul (for prō cōnsule, instead of a consul).

trium-vir, triumvir (singular from trium virōrum).

septen-triō, the Bear, a constellation (supposed singular of septem triōnēs, The Seven Oxen).

170. Many syntactic compounds are formed by prefixing a Particle to some other part of speech: —

a. Prepositions are prefixed to Verbs or Adjectives. In these compounds the prepositions retain their original adverbial sense: ¹ as, —

¹ The prepositions sometimes, however, have their ordinary force as prepositions, especially ad, in, circum, trāns, and govern the case of a noun: as, trānsire flūmen, to cross a river (see § 239. b. Rem.).

- ā, ab, AWAY: au-ferre (ab-ferō), to take away.
ad, TO, TOWARDS: af-ferre (ad-ferō), to bring.
ante, BEFORE: ante-ferre, to prefer; ante-cellere, to excel. circum, AROUND: circum-mūnīre, to fortify completely.
com-, con- (cum), TOGETHER OR FORCIBLY: cōn-ferre, to bring together; col-locāre, to set firm. dē, DOWN, UTTERLY: dē-spicere, despise; dēstruere, destroy.
ē, ex, OUT: ef-ferre (ec-ferō), to carry forth, uplift.
in (with verbs), IN, ON, AGAINST: in-ferre, to bear against.
inter, BETWEEN, TO PIECES: inter-rumpere, to interrupt.
ob, TOWARDS, TO MEET: of-ferre, to offer; ob-venīre, to meet.
sub, UNDER: sub-struere, to build beneath.
super, UPON, OVER AND ABOVE: super-fluere, to overflow; superstes, a survivor.

NOTE.—In these compounds short a of the root is weakened to i before one consonant, to e before two: as, faciō, cōficiō, cōfectus: iaciō, ēiciō, ēiectus. But long a is retained: as, perāctus.

b. Verbs are also compounded with the following inseparable particles, which do not appear as prepositions in Latin:—

- amb- (am-, an-), AROUND: amb-īre, to go about (cf. ἀμφί, about). dis-, di-, ASUNDER, APART: dis-cēdere, to depart (cf. duō, two).
por-, FORWARD: por-tendere, to hold forth, predict (cf. porrō, forth).
red-, re-, BACK, AGAIN: red-īre, to return; re-clūdere, to open (from claudō, shut); re-ficere, to repair (make-again).
sēd-, sē-, APART: sē-cernō, to separate (cf. sēd, but).

c. An Adjective is sometimes modified by an adverbial prefix.

Of these, per (less commonly prae), very; sub, somewhat; in-, not, are regular, and may be prefixed to almost any adjective: as, —

- | | |
|---------------------------------------|--------------------------------|
| per-māgnus, very large. | prae-longus, very long. |
| sub-rūsticus, rather clownish. | in-finitus, boundless. |

NOTE.—Per and sub, in these senses, are also prefixed to verbs: as, per-terreō, terrify; sub-rideō, smile. In ignōscō, in- appears to be the negative prefix.

d. Many Verbals are found compounded with a preposition, like the verbs to which they correspond. Thus, —

- per-fuga, deserter; cf. per-fugiō.*
trādūx, vine-branch; cf. trāns-dūcō.

PART SECOND.—USE OF WORDS (SYNTAX).

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

THE study of formal grammar arose at a late period in the history of language, and deals with language as fully developed. The terms of Syntax correspond accordingly to the logical habits of thought that have grown up at such a period, and have therefore a logical as well as a simply grammatical meaning. But Syntax as thus developed is not essential to language. A form of words—like ὁ πῦρ puerum pulcrum! oh! beautiful boy—may express a thought, and in some languages might even be a sentence; while it does not logically declare anything, and does not, strictly speaking, make what we call a sentence at all.

At a very early period of spoken language, Roots were no doubt significant in themselves, and constituted the whole of language,—just as to an infant the name of some familiar object will stand for all it can say about it. At a somewhat later stage, two simple roots put side by side¹ made a rudimentary form of proposition: as a child might say fire bright; horse run. With this begins the first form of logical distinction, that of Subject and Predicate; but as yet there is no distinction between noun and verb either in form or function. Roots were presently specialized, or modified in meaning, by the addition of other roots either pronominal or verbal, and Stems were formed; but the same stem could still be either nominal or verbal. In this period composition is the only form of syntax. Still later—by combination chiefly of different pronominal elements with verb-stems and with noun-stems—Inflections were developed to express person, tense, case, and other grammatical relations,² and we have true parts of speech.

Not until language reached this last stage was there any limit to the association of words, or any rule prescribing the manner in which they should be combined. But gradually, by custom, particular forms came to be limited to special uses, or were produced to serve those uses; and rules were established for combining words in what we now call Sentences. These rules are in part general laws or forms of thought (Logic), resulting from our habits of mind (General Grammar); and in part are what may be called By-Laws, established by custom in a given language (Particular Grammar), and making what is called the Syntax of that language.

² Sometimes called accidents: hence the “accidence” of the language. Compare pp. 19, note 1; 78, note 1; 119–21; § 118. note.

In the fully developed methods of expression to which we are almost exclusively accustomed, the unit of expression is the SENTENCE¹; that is, the completed statement, with its distinct Subject and Predicate. Originally every sentence is simple. But two simple sentences may be used together, without the subordination of either, to express a more complex form of thought than can be denoted by one alone. This is parataxis (arrangement side by side). In time two sentences, thus habitually used in connection, come to be regularly associated with each other, in certain relations, as parts of one logical idea, and the one is felt to depend upon the other. This is syntaxis (arrangement together). In this way, through various courses of development, which correspond to the growth of our habitual forms of thought, there are produced various forms of complex sentences. Thus timeō nō id accidat was originally two simple sentences: I fear. Let that not happen! and these, becoming attached, formed the complex sentence: I fear (lest) that may happen. The results of these processes constitute the subject-matter of Syntax as shown in the annexed Outline.

- I. A SENTENCE may be either Simple or Compound: viz.,
- | | |
|--------------|--|
| 1. SIMPLE: | { Containing a single statement (Subject and Predicate) (§ 180). |
| 2. COMPOUND: | { a. Containing two or more Co-ordinate Clauses (§ 180. a.).
b. Modified by Subordinate Clauses (complex) (§ 180. b.). |
- II. The Essential Parts of the Sentence are —
- | | |
|---------------------------------|--|
| 1. The SUBJECT: consisting of | { a. Noun or its equivalent (§ 174. 1).
b. Pronoun contained in verb-ending (§ 174. 2). |
| 2. The PREDICATE: consisting of | { a. Neuter (intransitive) Verb (§ 175. a.).
b. Copula with Predicate Noun or Adjective (§ 172. note).
c. Verb with Object (§§ 175. b. , 177). |
- III. The Subject and Predicate may be MODIFIED as follows: —

¹ The meaning of Sentence is "Thought" (sententia from sentire). The grammatical form of the sentence is the form in which the thought is expressed.

CHAPTER I.—The Sentence.

1. Definitions.

171. A SENTENCE is a form of words which contains a Statement, a Question, an Exclamation, or a Command.

a. A sentence in the form of a Statement is called a DECLARATIVE SENTENCE: as, equus currit, the horse runs.

b. A sentence in the form of a Question is called an INTERROGATIVE SENTENCE: as, equusne currit? does the horse run?

c. A sentence in the form of an Exclamation is called an EXCLAMATORY SENTENCE: as, quam celeriter currit equus! how fast the horse runs!

d. A sentence in the form of a Command, an Exhortation, or an Entreaty is called an IMPERATIVE SENTENCE: as, currat equus, let the horse run; I, curre per Alpēs, go, run across the Alps.

172. Every sentence consists of a Subject and a Predicate.

The SUBJECT of a sentence is the person or thing spoken of.

The PREDICATE is that which is said of the Subject.

Thus in equus currit, the horse runs, equus is the subject, and currit the predicate.

NOTE.—Every complete sentence must contain a subject (§ 174) and a verb. The verb itself is usually the predicate, but when any form of sum is used simply to connect a noun or adjective as an attribute with the subject, such word is called the predicate noun or adjective, and sum is known as the copula (or connective) (§ 176. a). Thus in Caesar cōsul erat, Caesar was cōsul, Caesar is the subject, cōsul the predicate noun, and erat the copula.

But sum in the sense of exist makes a complete predicate alone. It is then called the substantive verb: as, sunt viri fortēs, there are (exist) brave men.

2. Subject and Predicate.

173. 1. The Subject of a Finite verb is in the NOMINATIVE CASE: as, — equus currit, the horse runs. rēgina sedet, the queen sits.

2. The Subject of an Infinitive is in the ACCUSATIVE (see § 240. f).

NOTE.—A finite verb is a verb in the Indicative, Subjunctive, or Imperative. These are called finite moods to distinguish them from the Infinitive.

174. 1. The Subject of a sentence is usually a Noun or some word or phrase used as a Noun : as, — humānum est errāre, to err is human.

 quaeritur num mors malum sit, the question is whether death is an evil.
 venit, incertum est unde, he came, where from is uncertain.

2. But in Latin the subject may be implied in the termination of the verb (see § 206. a, b): as, — sedē-mus, we sit. curri-tis, you run. inq̄ui-t, says he.

175. Verbs are either Transitive or Intransitive.

a. An Intransitive (or Neuter) verb contains in itself an entire statement : as, — cadō, I fall (am falling).

 sōl lūcet, the sun is shining.
 sunt viri fortēs, there are brave men.

b. A Transitive (or Active) verb has or requires a Direct Object to complete its sense (see § 177): as, — frātre[m] cecidit, he slew his brother.

NOTE 1.—Among transitive verbs FACTITATIVE VERBS are sometimes distinguished as a separate class. These state an act which produces the thing expressed by the word which completes their sense. Thus mēnsam fēcit, he made a table (which was not in existence before), is distinguished from mēnsam percussit, he struck a table (which already existed).

NOTE 2.—A transitive verb may often be used absolutely without any object expressed : as, arat, he is ploughing, where the verb does not cease to be transitive because the object is left indefinite, as we see by adding, — quid, what? agrum suum, his land.

3. Predicate Noun.

176. An intransitive verb is often followed by a noun or adjective to describe or define the subject. This is called a Predicate Noun or Adjective : as, — mortuus cecidit, he fell dead.

 Quintus sedet iūdex, Quintus sits as judge.
 Caesar victor incēdit, Cesar advances victorious (a victor).

a. The copula sum especially is used with a predicate noun or adjective (§ 172. note). So also verbs signifying to become, to be made, to be named, to appear, whence these are called COPULATIVE (i.e. coupling) verbs.

NOTE.—A noun in agreement with some part of the predicate is sometimes a Predicate Noun (see § 185. c).

b. A Predicate noun or adjective after the copula sum or a copulative verb is in the same case as the subject (see § 185. a).

Rōma est patria nostra, Rome is our country.
stellae lūcidāe erant, the stars were bright (cf. stellae lūcēbant).
cōsul creātus est, he was elected consul.
mors fīnis esse vidētur, death seems to be the end.
dicit nōn omnēs bonōs esse beātōs, he says that not all good men are happy.

4. Object.

177. The person or thing immediately affected by the action of a verb is called the DIRECT OBJECT.

A person or thing indirectly affected is called the INDIRECT OBJECT.

Only transitive verbs can have a Direct Object; but an Indirect Object may be used with both transitive and intransitive verbs (§§ 225, 226). Thus:—

pater vocat filium (direct object), the father calls his son.
mihi (ind. obj.) agrum (dir. obj.) ostendit, he showed me a field.
mihi (ind. obj.) placet, it is pleasing to me.

NOTE.—The distinction between transitive and intransitive verbs is not fixed, but most transitive verbs may be used intransitively, and many verbs usually intransitive may take a direct object and so become transitive (§ 237. b).

a. When a transitive verb is changed from the Active to the Passive voice, the Direct Object becomes the Subject and is put in the nominative case: as, — Active: pater filium vocat, the father calls [his] son.

Passive: filius ā patre vocātur, the son is called by his father.
Active: lūnam et stellās vidēmus, we see the moon and the stars.
Passive: lūna et stellae videntur, the moon and stars are seen (appear).

b. With certain verbs, the Genitive, Dative, or Ablative is used where the English, from a difference in meaning, requires the Objective. Thus:—

hominem video, I see the man (ACCUSATIVE). homini servo, I serve the man (DATIVE, see § 227). hominis misereor, I pity the man (GENITIVE, see § 221. a). homine amico ūtor, I treat the man as a friend (ABLATIVE, see § 249).

c. Many verbs transitive in Latin are translated in English by an intransitive verb with a preposition: as, — petit aprum, he aims at the boar.

laudem affectat, he strives after praise.
cūrat valētūdinem, he takes care of his health.

NOTE.—One or more words, essential to the grammatical completeness of a sentence, but clear enough to the mind of a hearer, are often omitted. This omission is called ELLIPSIS, and the sentence is called an ELLIPTICAL SENTENCE: as, adest, he is here; quis? (sc. adest), who? miles (sc. adest), the soldier

5. Modification.

178. A Subject or a Predicate may be modified by a single word, or by a group of words (a Phrase or a Clause, see §§ 179, 180).

The modifying word or group of words may itself be modified in the same way.

a. A single modifying word may be an adjective, an adverb, an appositive (§ 184), or the oblique case of a noun. Thus in the sentence vir fortis patienter fert, a brave man bears patiently, the adjective fortis, brave, modifies the subject vir, man, and the adverb patienter, patiently, modifies the predicate fert, bears.

b. The modifying word is in some cases said to LIMIT the word to which it belongs. Thus in the sentence puerī patrem videt, I see the boy's father, the genitive puerī limits patrem (by excluding any other father)

179. A PHRASE is a group of words, without subject or predicate of its own, which may be used as an Adjective or an Adverb.

Thus in the sentence vir fuit summā nobilitate, he was a man of the highest nobility, the words summā nobilitate, of the highest nobility, are used for the adjective nobilis, noble (or nobilissimus, very noble), and are called an ADJECTIVE PHRASE. In the sentence magna celeritate venit, he came with great speed, the words magna celeritate, with great speed, are used for the adverb celeriter, quickly (or celerrime, very quickly), and are called an ADVERBIAL PHRASE.

180. Sentences are either Simple or Compound.

A sentence containing a single statement is called a SIMPLE SENTENCE.

A sentence containing more than one statement is called a COMPOUND SENTENCE, and each single statement in it is called a CLAUSE.

a. If one statement is simply added to another, the clauses are said to be CO-ORDINATE. They are usually connected by a Co-ordinate Conjunction (§ 154. a); but this is sometimes omitted (§ 208. b). Thus:

divide et imperā, divide and conquer. But, — vēni, vidi, vici, I came, I saw, I conquered.

b. If one statement modifies another in any way, the modifying clause is said to be SUBORDINATE, and the clause modified is called the MAIN CLAUSE.

This subordination is indicated by some connecting word, either a Subordinate Conjunction or a Relative (§ 154. b): as, — ōderint dum metuant, let them hate so long as they fear.

servum misit quem sēcum habēbat, he sent the slave whom he had with him.

A sentence containing one or more subordinate clauses is sometimes called COMPLEX.

NOTE. — A subordinate clause may itself be modified by another subordinate clause.

c. A clause introduced by a Relative pronoun or adverb is called a RELATIVE CLAUSE.

A clause introduced by an adverb of time is called a TEMPORAL CLAUSE. Thus: — dum tacent clāmant, while they are silent they cry aloud.

hominēs aegri morbō gravi cum iactantur aestū febrique, si aquam gelidam biberint primō relevāri videntur, men suffering with a severe sickness, when they are tossing with the heat of fever, if they drink cold water, seem at first to be relieved.

d. A clause containing a Condition, introduced by si, if, or some equivalent, is called a CONDITIONAL CLAUSE. A sentence containing a conditional clause is called a CONDITIONAL SENTENCE.

Thus, si aquam gelidam biberint, primō relevāri videntur (cf. c above) is a Conditional Sentence, and si... biberint is a Conditional Clause.

e. A clause expressing the Purpose of an action is called a FINAL CLAUSE.

edō ut vivam, I eat to live (that I may live).
misit lēgātōs quī dicerent, he sent ambassadors to say (who should say).

A clause expressing the Result of an action is called a CONSECUTIVE CLAUSE.¹

tam longē aberam ut nōn vidērem, I was too far away to see (so far away that I didn't see).

¹ Observe that the classes defined in a-e are not mutually exclusive, but that a single clause may belong to several of them at once. Thus a relative clause is usually subordinate, and may be at the same time conditional; and subordinate clauses may be co-ordinate with each other.

f. Sentences or clauses are regularly connected by means of CONJUNCTIONS; but frequently in Latin—more rarely in English—independent sentences are connected by Relative Pronouns or Adverbs. In this case, the relative is often best translated in English by a conjunction with a demonstrative (cf. §§ 201. e, 336. b. Rem.): as,— quō cum vēnisset, and when he had come there (whither when he had come). quæ cum ita sint, and since these things are so.

AGREEMENT.

181. A word is said to agree with another when it is required by usage to be in the same Gender, Number, Case, or Person.

182. The following are the general forms of Agreement, sometimes called the Four Concords :—

1. The agreement of the NOUN in Apposition or as Predicate (§§ 184, 185).

2. The agreement of the ADJECTIVE with its Noun (§ 186).

3. The agreement of the RELATIVE with its Antecedent (§ 198).

4. The agreement of the VERB with its Subject (§ 204).

a. A word sometimes takes the gender or number, not of the word with which it should regularly agree, but of some other word implied in that word. This use is called SYNESIS, or cōstrūctiō ad sēsum (construction according to sense).

I.—NOUNS.

183. A noun used to describe another, and denoting the same person or thing, agrees with it in CASE: as,— Servius rēx, Servius the king.

ad urbem Athēnās, to the city [of] Athens.

Cicerō cōsul creātur, Cicero is chosen consul.

The descriptive noun may be either an Appositive (§ 184) or a Predicate noun (§ 185).

1. Apposition.

184. The descriptive noun, when in the same part of the sentence with the noun described, is called an APPOSITIVE, and is said to be in APPPOSITION: as,— externus timor, m̄ximum concordiae v̄nculum, iungebat animōs (Liv. ii. 39), fear of the foreigner, the chief bond of harmony, united their hearts.

[Here the descriptive noun belongs to the subject.]

quattuor hic primum ōmen equōs vidi (Æn. iii. 537), I saw here four horses, the first omen. [Here both nouns are in the predicate.]

litterās Graecās senex didici (Cat. M. 8), I learned Greek when an old man.
[Here senex is in apposition with the subject of didici, and expresses the time, condition, etc., of the act.]

a. Words expressing parts may be in apposition with a word including the parts, or vice versa: as, — Gnaeus et Pūblius Scipiōnēs, Cneius and Publius, the Scipios.

b. An appositive generally agrees in GENDER and NUMBER when it can: as, — sequuntur nātūrā, optimā ducem (Lael. 19), they follow nature, the best guide.

omnium doctrinārum inventricēs Athēnās (De Or. i. 4), Athens, discoverer of all learning.

NOTE. — But such agreement is often impossible: as, — ōlim truncus eram ficulnus inutile lignum, I once was a fig-tree trunk, a useless log (Hor. Sat. i. 8. 1).

c. A common noun in apposition with a Locative (§ 258. c) is put in the Ablative, with or without the preposition in: as, — Antiochiāe, celebri quondam urbe (Arch. 3), at Antioch, once a famous city.

Albae cōstitērunt in urbe munita (Phil. iv. 2), they halted at Alba, a fortified town.

d. A possessive pronoun or an adjective implying possession may take an appositive in the genitive case agreeing in gender, number, and case with an implied noun or pronoun (§ 197. e): as, — in nostrō omnium flētū (Mil. 34), amid the tears of us all.

ex Anniānā Milōnis domō (Att. iv. 3) [= ex Anni Milōnis domō], out of Annius Milo's house.

e. A genitive is sometimes used instead of an appositive (see § 214. f). So also a dative in certain constructions (see § 231. b).

2. Predicate Agreement.

The Predicate noun may agree (1) with the subject, being connected with it by the copula or a copulative verb (§ 176. a), or (2) with the direct object of a verb.

185. A descriptive noun used to form a predicate is called a PREDICATE NOMINATIVE (or other case, according to the construction).

a. The case of the predicate after the copula and copulative verbs is the same as that of the subject (§ 176. b): as, — pācis semper auctor fui (Lig. 19, 28), I have always been an adviser of peace.

 quae pertinācia quibusdam, eadem aliis cōstantia vidēri potest (Marc. 10, 31), what may seem obstinacy to some, may seem to others consistency.
 eius mortis sedētis ultōres (Mil. 29, 79), you sit as avengers of his death.
 habeātur vir ēgregius Paulus (Cat. iv. 10, 21), let Paulus be regarded as an extraordinary man.

ego patrōnus exstiti (Rosc. Am. 2, 5), I have come forward as an advocate.

b. A predicate noun referring to two or more singular nouns is in the plural: as, — cōsulēs creantur Caesar et Servilius (B. C. iii. 1), Caesar and Servilius are elected consuls.

c. For Predicate Accusative, see under that case, § 239. a.

II.—ADJECTIVES.

1. Rules of Agreement.

186. Adjectives, Adjective Pronouns, and Participles agree with their nouns in Gender, Number, and Case.

vir fortis, a brave man.
 illa mulier, that woman.
 urbium magnarum, of great cities.
 cum ducentis militibus, with 200 soldiers.
 imperātor victus est, the general was beaten.

NOTE.—All rules for the agreement of adjectives apply also to adjective pronouns and to participles.

Adjectives are either Attributive or Predicate.

a. An Attributive adjective simply qualifies its noun without the intervention of a verb or participle, expressed or implied.

bonus imperātor, a good commander.
 stellae lūcidae, bright stars.

b. All other adjectives are called Predicate adjectives.

1. A predicate adjective, like a predicate noun, may be connected with the subject by esse or a copulative verb expressed or implied (see § 176. a): as, — stellae lūcidae erant, the stars were bright.

2. After verbs of naming, calling, making, etc., an adjective may be used as a predicative accusative like a noun (see § 239. a).

3. A predicate adjective may be used in apposition like a noun (see §, below).

c. Predicate adjectives in apposition follow the rules of agreement of other adjectives (see § 186, above): as, —

Scipiōnem vivum vidī, I saw Scipio in his lifetime (lit., living).

d. With two or more nouns the adjective is regularly plural, but sometimes agrees with the nearest (especially when attributive). Thus, Nisus et Euryalus primī (Æn. v. 294), Nisus and Euryalus first.

Caesaris omni et grātiā et opibus fruor (Fam. i. 9), I enjoy all Caesar's favor and resources.

NOTE. — An adjective referring to two nouns connected by cum, is occasionally plural: as, — Iuba cum Labiēnō captī (B. Afr. 52), Juba and Labienus were taken.

187. One adjective may belong in sense to two or more nouns of different genders.

a. In such cases, —

1. An attributive adjective agrees with the nearest: as, — multae operae ac laboris, of much trouble and toil.

vita mōrēsque meī, my life and character.

sī rēs, sī vir, sī tempus ūllum dignum fuit (Mil. 7), if any thing, if any man, if any time was fit.

2. A predicate adjective may agree with the nearest, if the nouns form one connected idea: as, — factus est strepitus et admurmuratiō (Verr. i. 15), a noise of assent was made (noise and murmur).

NOTE. — This is only when the Copula agrees with the nearest subject (§ 205. d).

b. But generally, a predicate adjective will be masculine, if nouns of different genders mean living beings; neuter, if things without life: as, uxor deinde ac liberi amplexī (Liv. ii. 40), then his wife and children embraced him.

labor (M.) voluptāsque (F.), societāte quādam inter sē nātūrālī sunt iūcta (N.) (id. v. 4), labor and delight are bound together by a certain natural alliance.

NOTE. — If nouns of different genders include both male beings and things without life, a predicate adjective is sometimes masculine, sometimes neuter, and sometimes agrees in gender with the nearest if that is plural: as, — rēx régiaque clāssis unā profectī (Liv. xxi. 50), the king and the royal fleet set out together.

nātūrā inimica sunt libera civitās et rēx (id. xlv. 24), by nature a free state and a king are hostile.

lēgātōs sortēsque ōrāculi expectandās (id. v. 15), that the ambassadors and the replies of the oracle should be waited for.

c. Two or more abstract nouns of the same gender may have a predicate adjective in the neuter plural (cf. § 189. c): as, — stultitia et temeritas et iniustitia . . . sunt fugienda (Fin. iii. 11), folly, rashness, and injustice are [things] to be shunned.

d. A collective noun may take an adjective of a different gender and number agreeing with the gender and number of the individuals implied (Synesis, § 182. a): as, — pars certare parati (Æn. v. 108), a part ready to contend.

 duo milia relictī (Liv. xxxvii. 39), two thousand were left.
 coloniæ aliquot deductæ, Prisci Latini appellati (id. i. 3), several colonies were planted (led out) [of men] called Old Latins.
 magna pars raptæ (id. i. 9), a large part [of the women] were seized.
 omnis ætās currere obvii (id. xxvii. 51), [people of] every age ran to meet them.

e. A superlative in the predicate sometimes takes the gender of the partitive genitive by which it is limited: as, — vēlocissimum animalium delphinus est (Plin.), the dolphin is the swiftest [creature] of creatures.

2. Adjectives used Substantively.

188. Adjectives are often used as Nouns (substantively), the masculine usually to denote men or people in general of that kind, the feminine women, and the neuter things: as, —

omnēs, all men (everybody).	omnia, all things (everything).
māiōrēs, ancestors.	minōrēs, descendants. Rōmānī, Romans.	barbarī, barbarians. liberta, a freedwoman.	Sabinæ, the Sabine wives sapiēs, a sage (philosopher).	amicus, a friend.
bonī, the good (good people).	bona, goods, property.

REMARK. — The plural of adjectives, pronouns, and participles is very common in this use. The singular is rare except in a few words which have become practically nouns. See below and § 189. a.

a. Certain adjectives have become practically nouns, and are often modified by other adjectives. Thus, — tuus vicinus proximus, your next-door neighbor.

 propinquī ceterī, his other relatives.
 meus æquālis, a man of my own age.
 familiāris tuus, an intimate friend of yours (cf. § 218. d').

δ. When any ambiguity would arise from the substantive use of an adjective, a noun must be added. Thus, — boni, the good; omnia, everything (all things); but, — potentia omnium rerum, power over everything. [omnium alone would mean all men.]

c. Many adjectives are used substantively either in the singular or the plural, with the added meaning of some noun which is understood from constant association: as, —

Āfricus [ventus], the south-west wind. vitulina [carō], veal (calf's flesh).
fera [bestia], a wild beast.
patria [terra], the fatherland.
Gallia [terra], Gaul (the land of the Galli). hiberna [castra], winter quarters.
trirēmis [nāvis], a three-banked galley, trireme.
argentarius [faber], a silversmith.
rēgia [domus], the palace.
Latinae [feriae], the Latin festival.
Tusci [fundi], a Tuscan estate.

NOTE. — These are specific in meaning, not generic like those in § 188, above.

d. A noun is sometimes used as an adjective, and may then be modified by an adverb: as, — victor exercitus, the victorious army.

servum pecus, a servile troop. admodum puer, quite a boy (young).
magis vir, more of a man (more manly).

e. A few adverbs appear to be used like adjectives. Such are: —

1. obviam: as, — fit obviam, he goes to meet (becomes in the way of).

2. contrā, contradicting some previous adjective, and so in a manner repeating it: as, — alia probabilia, contrā alia dicimus (Off. ii. 2), we call some things probable, others the opposite (not probable).

3. palam: as, — palam rēs est, the thing is all out.

4. So also, rarely, by a Greek construction — eri semper lēnitās (Ter. Andr. 175), my master's constant (always) gentleness.

189. Neuter adjectives are used substantively in the following special senses: —

a. The neuter singular may denote either a single object or an abstract quality: as, — raptō vivere, to live by plunder.

in aridō, on dry ground.

honestum, an honorable act, or virtue as a quality opus est mātūrātō, there is need of haste (cf. impersonal passives, § 146. d).

b. The neuter plural is used to signify objects in general having the quality denoted, and hence may stand for the abstract idea: as, — honesta, honorable deeds (in general).

praeterita, the past (lit., by-gones).

omnēs fortia laudant, all men praise bravery (brave things).

c. A neuter adjective may be used as an appositive or predicate noun with a noun of different gender (cf. § 187. c): as, — turpitūdō pēius est quam dolor (Tusc. ii. 13), disgrace is [a thing] worse than pain.

triste lupus stabulis, the wolf is a grievous thing for the sheepfold.

varium et mutābile semper femina, woman is ever a changing and fickle thing.

malum mihi vidētur esse mors (Tusc. i. 5, 9), death seems to me to be an evil (a bad thing).

d. A neuter adjective is used in agreement with an Infinitive or a Substantive Clause: as, — istūc ipsum nōn esse (Tusc. i. 6, 12), that very "not to be."

hūmānum est errāre, to err is human.

aliud est errāre Caesarem nōlle, aliud nōlle miserēri (Lig. 5), it is one thing to be unwilling that Caesar should err, another to be unwilling that he should pity.

3. Possessives.

190. Possessive and other derivative adjectives are often used in Latin where the English has the possessive case, or a noun with a preposition (compare §§ 184. d, 197. a): as, — pūgna Cannēnsis, the fight at Cannæ.

C. Blossius Cūmānus, Caius Blossius of Cumæ.

aliēna domus, another man's house.

Caesarina celeritās (Att. xvi. 10), despatch like Caesar's (Caesarian quickness).

a. Possessive and other derivative adjectives are often used substantively to denote some special class or relation (see § 197. d): as, — nostri, our countrymen or men of our party.

Sullāni, the veterans of Sulla's army.

Pompeiani, the partisans of Pompey.

b. A possessive or derivative adjective sometimes appears to be used for the Objective Genitive, see § 217. a.

4. Adjectives with Adverbial Force.

191. An adjective, agreeing with the subject or object is often used to qualify the action of the verb, having the force of an adverb : as, — primus vēnit, he came first (was the first to come).

nūllus dubitō, I no way doubt.

laetī audiēre, they were glad to hear.

erat Rōmae frequēns (Rosc. Am. 6), he was often at Rome.

sērus in caelum redeās (Hor. Od. i. 2), may'st thou return late to heaven.

5. Comparatives and Superlatives.

192. When two qualities of an object are compared, both adjectives are in the comparative : as, — longior quam lātiōr aciēs erat (Liv. xxvii. 48), the line was longer than it was broad (or, rather long than broad).

a. Where magis is used, both adjectives are in the positive : as, — clārī magis quam honestī (Jug. 8), more renowned than honorable.

b. A comparative and a positive, or even two positives, are sometimes connected by quam : as, — clārīs māiōribus quam vetustīs (Ann. iv. 61), of a family more famous than old.

vehementius quam cautē (Agric. 4), with more fury than good heed.

NOTE. — This use is rarer and less elegant than those before noticed.

193. Superlatives (and more rarely comparatives) denoting order and succession — also medius, cēterus, reliquus — usually designate not what object, but what part of it, is meant : as, — summus mōns, the top of the hill.

in ūltimā plateā, at the end of the place.

prior āctiō, the earlier part of an action.

reliqūi captivi, the rest of the prisoners.

in colle mediō (B. G. i. 24), half way up the hill (on the middle of the hill).

inter cēteram plānitiei (Jug. 92), in a region elsewhere level.

NOTE. — A similar use is found in such expressions as sēra (multā) nocte, late at night. But medium viāe, the middle of the way; multum diēi, much of the day, also occur.

III.—PRONOUNS.

NOTE.—A pronoun indicates some person or thing without either naming or describing it. Pronouns are derived from a distinct class of roots, which seem to have denoted only ideas of place and direction (§ 157. 2), and from which nouns or verbs can very rarely be formed. They may therefore stand for Nouns when the person or thing, being present to the senses or imagination, needs only to be pointed out. Some pronouns indicate the object in itself, without reference to its class, and have no distinction of gender. These are PERSONAL PRONOUNS. They stand syntactically for Nouns, and have the same construction as nouns. Others designate a particular object of a class, and take the gender of the individuals of that class. These are called ADJECTIVE PRONOUNS. They stand for Adjectives, and have the same construction as adjectives. Others are used in both ways; and, though called adjective pronouns, may also be treated as personal, taking, however, the gender of the object indicated.

1. Personal Pronouns.

194. The Personal Pronouns have, in general, the same constructions as nouns.

a. The personal pronouns are not expressed as subjects, except for distinction or emphasis (compare § 346. d): as, — tē vocō, I call you; but quis mē vocat? ego tē vocō, who is calling me? I (emphatic) am calling you.

b. The personal pronouns have two forms for the genitive plural, that in -ūm being used partitively (§ 216), and that in -ī oftenest objectively (cf. § 213. 2): as, — māior vestrū, the elder of you.

habētis ducem memorem vestrī, oblitum suī (Cat. iv. 8), you have a leader who thinks (is mindful) of you and forgets (is forgetful of) himself.

pars nostrū, a part (i.e. some) of us.

nostrī melior pars animus est (Sen.), the better part of us (i.e. of man) is the soul.

NOTE.—“One of themselves” is expressed by ūnus ex suis or ipsis (rarely ex se), or ūnus suūrum. The genitives nostrū, vestrū are occasionally used objectively (§ 217): as, cupidus vestrū (Verr. iii. 96), fond of you; cūstōs vestrū (Cat. iii. 12), the guardian of you (your guardian).

c. The Latin has no personal pronouns of the third person except the reflexive (se). The want is supplied by a Demonstrative or a Relative (§§ 180. f, 195, 201. e).

2. Demonstrative Pronouns.

195. Demonstrative pronouns are used either adjectively or substantively.

As adjectives, they follow the rules for the agreement of adjectives (§§ 186, 187).

As substantives, they are equivalent to personal pronouns. This use is regular in the oblique cases, especially of is. Thus :—

1. Personal :—

Caesar et exercitus ēius, Caesar and his army (not suus). [But, Caesar exercitum suum dimisit, Caesar disbanded his [own] army.]

sī obsidēs ab eīs darentur, if hostages should be given by them (persons just spoken of).

hīs Caesar ita respondit, to them Caesar thus replied.

ille minimum propter adolescentiam poterat, he (emphatic) had very little power, on account of his youth.

hī sunt extrā provinciam trāns Rhodanum primī, they (those just mentioned) are the first [inhabitants] across the Rhone.

2. Adjective :—

hōc proeliō factō, after this battle was fought (this battle having been, etc.).

eōdem proeliō, in the same battle.

ēius rei peritī, men acquainted with that business.

[For special significations of the demonstratives, see § 102.]

a. The demonstratives are sometimes used as pronouns of reference, to indicate with emphasis a noun or phrase just mentioned : as, — nūllam virtūs aliam mercēdem dēsiderat praeter hanc laudis (Arch. 11), virtue wants no other reward except that [just spoken of] of praise.

b. But the demonstrative as a pronoun of reference is commonly omitted, or some other construction is preferred : as, — memoriae artem quam obliuionis mālō, I prefer (like more) the art of memory to (than) [that] of forgetfulness.

Caesaris exercitus Pompēiānōs ad Pharsalum vicit, the army of Caesar defeated that of Pompey (the Pompeians) at Pharsalus.

c. When a quality or act is ascribed with emphasis to a person or thing already named, is or idem (often with the concessive quidem) is used to indicate that person or thing : as, — vincula, et ea sempiterna (Cat. iv. 4), imprisonment, and that perpetual. legiōnem neque eam plēnissimam dēspiciēbant (B. G. iii. 1), they despised the single legion, and that not a very full one.

tuus dolor hūmānus is quidem sed, etc., your grief is human, to be sure, but, etc.

per ūnum servum et eum ex gladiatōriō lūdō (Att. l. 16. 5), by means of a single slave, and that too one from the gladiatorial school.

Ti. Gracchus rēgnum occupāre cōnātus est, vel rēgnāuit is quidem paucōs mēnsēs (C. M. 12, 40), Tiberius Gracchus tried to usurp royal power, or rather he actually reigned a few months.

d. An adjective pronoun usually agrees with an appositive or predicate noun, if there be one, rather than with the word to which it refers (cf. § 199): as, — hīc labor hōc opus est, this is the toil, this the task [namely, revocāre gradum, which would regularly take a neuter pronoun].

rērum caput hōc erat, hīc fōns (Hor. Ep. i. 17. 45), this was the head of things, this the source.

eam sapientiam interpretantur quam adhūc mortālis nēmō est cōsecūtus [for id . . . quod] (Lael. 5), they explain that [thing] to be wisdom which no man ever yet attained.

e. Idem, the same, is often equivalent to an adverb or adverbial phrase (also, too, yet, at the same time): as, — ōratiō splendida et grandis et eadem in primis facēta (Brut. 79), an oration, brilliant, able, and very witty too.

cum [haec] dicat, negat idem in Deō esse grātiā (N. D. i. 43), when he says this, he denies also that there is mercy with God (he, the same man).

NOTE. — This is really the same use as in c, above, but in this case the pronoun cannot be represented by a pronoun in English.

f. The intensive ipse, self, is used with any of the other pronouns or a noun for the sake of emphasis: as, — turpe mihi ipsi vidēbātur (Cic.), even to me (to me myself) it seemed disgraceful.

id ipsum, that very thing.

quod ipsum, which of itself alone.

in eum ipsum locum, to that very place.

REMARK. — The emphasis of ipse is often expressed in English by just, very, mere, etc. (see above examples).

g. Ipse is often used alone, substantively, as an emphatic pronoun of the third person: as, — mihi satis, ipsis nōn satis (Cic.), enough for me, not for themselves.

omnēs boni quantum in ipsis fuit (id.), all good men so far as was in their power (in themselves).

beātōs illōs qui cum adesse ipsis nōn licēbat aderant tamen (id.), happy they who, when it was not allowed them to attend in person, still were there.

dī capiti ipsius generique reservent (Æn. vii. 484), may the gods hold in reserve [such a fate] to fall on his own and his son-in-law's head.

h. Ipse is often used alone, substantively, to emphasize an omitted subject of the first or second person: as, — vōbiscum ipsi recordāmini (Cic.), remember in your own minds (yourselves with yourselves).

i. Ipse, used substantively, sometimes refers to a principal personage, to distinguish him from subordinate persons: as, — ipse dixit (cf. αὐτὸς ἔφα), HE (the Master) said it.

Nōmentānus erat super ipsum (Hor.), Nomentanus was above [the host] himself [at table].

k. Ipsē is often, is rarely, used instead of a reflexive. See under Reflexives, § 196. i.

l. Ipsē usually agrees with the subject, even when the real emphasis is in English on a reflexive in the predicate: as, — mē ipse cōnsōlor, I console myself. [Not mē ipsum, as the English would lead us to expect].

m. For adverbs used instead of a demonstrative pronoun, see § 207. a.

3. Reflexive Pronouns.

196. The Reflexive pronoun (sē),¹ and usually its corresponding possessive (suus), are used in some part of the predicate to refer to the subject of the sentence or clause: as, — virtūs sē nōvit, virtue knows itself.

promisit sē ventūrum [esse], he promised that he would come.

Brūtus amicum suum occidit, Brutus killed his friend.

Caesar statuit: sibi Rhēnum esse transeundum (B. G. iv. 16), Cæsar decided that he must cross the Rhine (the R. must be crossed by himself).

a. In a subordinate clause of a compound sentence there is a double use of reflexives.

1. The Reflexive may always be used to refer to the subject of its own clause (Direct Reflexive): as, — ex quō iūdicārī potest quantum habeat in sē boni cōstantia (B. G. i. 40), from which it can be determined how much good firmness possesses (has in itself).

[Caesar] nōluit eum locum vacāre, nē Germānī ē suis finibus trānsirent (B. G. i. 28), Cæsar did not wish this place to lie vacant, for fear the Germans would cross over from their territories.

si qua significātiō virtūtis elūceat ad quam sē similis animus adplicet et adiungat (Cat. M. 14, 48), if any sign of virtue shine forth to which a similar disposition may attach itself.

¹ This seems to have been originally the personal pronoun of the third person (Skr. iva and Gr. σφεις), but it came by use to be purely reflexive.

2. If the subordinate clause expresses the words or thought of the subject of the main clause, the reflexive is regularly used to refer to that subject (Indirect Reflexive): as, — petiērunt ut sibi liceret (B. G. i. 30), they begged that it might be allowed them (the petitioners).

Iccius nūntium ad eum mittit, nisi subsidium sibi submittātur, etc. (B. G. ii. 6), sends him a message that unless relief be furnished him (Iccius), etc. quem salutem suam crēditūrum sibi (Q. C. iii. 8), who should trust his safety to him (Darius)?

[Caesar] his uti conquirerent et reducerent, si sibi pūrgāti esse vellent imperāvit (B. G. i. 28), Caesar ordered them (the Gauls) to hunt up and bring back [the fugitives] if they (the Gauls) wished to be free from fault towards him (Caesar).

hostium sē habitūrum numerō cōfirmat, si aut Ambiorigem aut eius lēgātōs finibus suis recēpissent, [Caesar] said that he should treat [them] as enemies if they received either Ambiorix or his envoys into their territories.

decima legiō ei grātiās ēgit, quod dē sē optimum iūdicium fēcisset (B. G. i. 41), the tenth legion thanked him because [they said] he had expressed a high opinion of them.

si obsidēs ab eis (the Helvetians) sibi (Caesar, who is the speaker) darentur, sē (Caesar) cum eis pācem esse factūrum (B. G. i. 14), [Caesar said] that if hostages were given him by them he would make peace with them.

Tarquinius dixisse ferunt sē intellēxisse quōs fidōs amicos habuisset, etc. (C. M. 15, 53), they say that Tarquin said that he understood, etc.

NOTE. — Sometimes is or ipse is used as an Indirect Reflexive either from careless writing or to avoid ambiguity (cf. i): as, — quī sē ex his minus timidōs existimāri vellent, nōn sē hostem verēri, sed angustias itineris et magnitudinem silvārum quae intercēderent inter ipsōs (the persons referred to by sē above) atque Ariovistum . . . timēre dicēbant (B. G. i. 39), those of them who wished to be thought less timid said they did not fear the enemy, but were afraid of the narrows and the vast extent of the forests which were between themselves and Ariovistus.

audistis nūper dicere lēgātōs Tyndaritānōs Mercurium quī sacris anniversariis apud eos colerētur Verris imperiō esse sublātum (Verr. iv. 39), you have just heard the ambassadors from Tyndaris say that the statue of Mercury which was worshipped with annual rites among them was taken away, etc. [Here Cicero wavers between apud eos colēbātur, a remark of his own, and apud sē colerētur, the words of the lēgātī. eos does not strictly refer to the ambassadors, but to the people — the Tyndaritānī.]

3. If the subordinate clause does not express the words, etc., of the main subject, the reflexive is not regularly used, though it is occasionally found. Thus: — sunt ita multi ut eōs carcer capere nōn possit (Cat. ii. 10, 22), they are so many that the prison cannot hold them. [Here sē could not be used.]

 ibi in proximis villis ita bipartitō fuērunt, ut Tiberis inter eōs et pōns interesset (Cat. iii. 2, 5), there they stationed themselves in the nearest farmhouses, in two divisions, in such a manner that the Tiber and the bridge were between them (the divisions). [Here inter sē might be used, but it would refer to a purpose of the soldiers.]

nōn fuit eō contentus quod eī praeter spem acciderat (Leg. Man. 9, 25), he was not content with that which had happened to him beyond his hope.

Compare: quī fit Maecēnās ut nēmō quam sibi sortem seu ratiō dederit seu fors obiēcerit illā contentus vivat (Hor. Sat. I. i. 1), how comes it, Maecenas, that nobody lives contented with that lot which choice has assigned him or chance has thrown in his way? [Here sibi is used to put the thought into the mind of the discontented man.]

But, — Metellus in eis urbibus quae ad sē dēfēcērant praesidia impōnit (Sall. Jug. 61), Metellus posted garrisons in those cities which had revolted to him. [The author vacillates between the thought of Metellus and his own.]

b. The reflexive in a subordinate clause sometimes refers to the subject of a suppressed main clause: as, —

Patet, omnēs librōs quōs frāter suus reliquisset mihi dōnāvit (Att. ii. 1), Patet gave me all the books which (as he said in the act of donation) his brother had left him (cf. a).

c. The reflexive may refer to any noun in its own clause, which is so emphasized as to become in a manner the subject of discourse (cf. the note): as, —

Sōcratem civēs suī interfēcērunt, Socrates was put to death by his own fellow-citizens.

qui poterat salūs sua cuiquam nōn probāri (Mil. 30, 81), how can any one fail to approve his own safety? [In this and the preceding example the emphasis is preserved in English by the change to the passive.]

hunc sī secūtī erunt suī comitēs (Cat. I. v. 10), this man, if his companions follow him.

NOTE. — Occasionally the clause to which the reflexive really belongs is absorbed: as, — studeō sārāre sibi ipsōs (Cat. ii. 8, 17), I am anxious to cure these men for their own benefit (i.e. ut sārī sibi sint).

suō sibi gladiō (Plautus), with his own sword. [Here the clause is, too indefinite to be supplied.]

d. The reflexive may follow a verbal noun or adjective: as, — suī laus, self-praise.

impotēns suī (Q. C.), without self-control.

homīnēs cum suī similibus servis (Phil. i. 2), men with slaves like themselves.

e. The reflexive may refer to the subject implied in an infinitive or verbal abstract used indefinitely: as, — bellum est sua vitia nōsse (Cic.), it is a fine thing to know one's own faults.

cui prōposita sit cōservatiō suī (Fin. 5, 13), one whose aim is self-preservation.

f. Inter sē, among themselves, is regularly used to express reciprocal action: as, — cohaerentia inter sē, things consistent with each other.

g. Suus is used for one's own as emphatically opposed to that of others, in any part of the sentence and with reference to any word in it: as, — suis flammis dēlēte Fidēnās (Liv. iv. 33), destroy Fidenæ with its own fires (the fires kindled by that city, figuratively). [Cf. Cat. i. 13, 32.]

h. For reflexives of the first and second persons the oblique cases of the personal pronouns (meī, tuī, etc.) are used (see p. 63): as, — morti mē obtuli (Mil. 34, 94), I have exposed myself to death.

hinc tē rēginae ad limina perfer (Æn. i. 389), do you go (bear yourself) hence to the queen's threshold. quid est quod tantis nōs in labōribus exerceāmus (Arch. 11, 28), what reason is there why we should exert ourselves in so great toils? singulis vōbis novēnōs ex turmis manipulisque vestri similes ēligite (Liv.
xxi. 54), for each of you pick out from the squadrons and maniples nine like yourselves.

i. Ipse is often (is rarely) used instead of an indirect reflexive, to avoid ambiguity; and in later writers is sometimes found instead of the direct reflexive (cf. a. 2 and 3): as, — cūr dē suā virtūte aut dē ipsius diligentia dēspērarent (B. G. i. 40), why (he asked) should they despair of their own courage or his diligence?

quī mortuō Dārēō ipsās tuerētur repperisse (Q. C. x. 5), we found one (said she) to protect us after the death of Darius.
omnia aut ipsōs aut hostēs populātōs (id. iii. 5), [they said that] either they themselves or the enemy had laid all waste.

4. Possessive Pronouns.

197. The Possessive pronouns are derivative adjectives, which take the gender, number, and case of the noun to which they belong, not that of the possessor: as, —

Caesar uxōrem suam repudiāvit, Caesar put away his wife.
haec sunt mea ornāmenta, these are my jewels. [mea is neut. pl., though the speaker is a woman.]

mei sunt ordinēs, mea dēscriptiō (C. M. 17, 59), mine are the rows, mine the arrangement. [mea is fem., though the speaker is Cyrus.] multa in nostrō collēgiō praeclāra (C. M. 18, 64), [there are] many fine things in our college. [nostrō is neut. sing., though men are referred to.]

a. The possessive pronouns are used instead of the genitive of a personal pronoun.

1. Always instead of the Possessive Genitive: as, — domus mea, my house. [Never domus mei.] pater noster, our father. [Never pater nostri.] patrimōnium tuum, your inheritance. [Not tui.]

NOTE 1. — In different languages the ideas associated with possessives are not always the same, and hence idiomatic uses differ. Thus my eulogist may, in Latin, be laudātor nostri (Att. i. 14, 6), or, like the English, laudātor noster (see Att. i. 16, 5), with a different conception of the relation.

NOTE 2. — The Possessive cūlus, -a, -um, is rare: as, cūlum pecus? whose flock? The genitive cūlus is generally used instead.

2. Rarely instead of the Objective Genitive (§ 217, cf. note 1, above). Thus, regularly: — suī dēspiciēs, disdainful of himself.

nōn solum suī dēprecātorem, sed etiam accūsātorem mei, not only a mediator for himself, but an accuser of me (Att. ii. 8).

But occasionally, — ea quae faciēbat, tuā sē fiduciā facere dicēbat (Verr. v. 68), what he was doing, he said he did relying on you (with your reliance). neque negligentia tuā, neque id odiō fecit tuō (Ter. Phorm. 1016), from neglect or hatred of you.

b. The possessives have often the acquired meaning of peculiar to, or favorable or propitious towards the person or thing spoken of: as, — [petere] ut suā clēmētiā ac mānsuētūdine ūtātur, they asked (they said) that he would show his [wonted] clemency and humanity.

tempore tuō pugnāsti, did you fight at a fit time? (lit., your own). ignōranti quem portum petat nullus suus ventus est (Sen. Ep. 70), to him who knows not what port he is bound to, no wind is fair (his own).

NOTE. — This use is merely a natural development of the meaning of the possessive, and may often be rendered literally.

c. The possessives are regularly omitted (like other pronouns) when they are plainly implied in the context: as, — amicum gratulatur, he greets his friend. [amicum suum would be distinctive, his friend (and not another's); suum amicum, emphatic, his own friend.]

d. Possessives are often used substantively (§ 190. a): as, — nostrī, our countrymen, or men of our party.

suōs continēbat (B. C. i. 15), he held his men in check.

flamma extrēma meōrum (Æn. ii. 431), last flames of my countrymen.

NOTE. — There is no reason to suppose an ellipsis here. The adjective becomes a noun like other adjectives (see § 188).

e. A possessive representing a genitive may have a genitive in apposition (§ 184. d): as, — meā sōlius causā, for my sake only.

nostra omnium patria, the country of us all.

suum ipsius rēgnum, his own kingdom.

f. A possessive representing a genitive may serve as an antecedent to a relative (see § 199. b. note).

g. For the special reflexive use of the possessive suus, see § 196.

5. Relative Pronouns.

NOTE. — A Relative pronoun is properly an Adjective, in agreement with some word expressed or implied either in its own clause, or (often) in the antecedent (demonstrative) clause. The full construction would require the antecedent to be expressed in both clauses, with more commonly a corresponding demonstrative to which the relative would refer: as, — iter in ea loca facere coepit, quibus in locis esse Germānos audiēbat (B. C. iv. 7), he began to march into those PLACES in which PLACES he heard the Germans were.

But one of these nouns is commonly omitted. The antecedent is, in Latin, very frequently (rarely in English) found in the relative clause, but more commonly in the antecedent clause. Hence relatives serve two uses: —

1. as Nouns (or adjectives) in their own clause: as, — eī quī Alesiae obsidēbantur, those who were besieged at Alesia.

2. as Connectives: as, —

T. Balventiō, quī superiōre annō primum pilum dūxerat, Titus Balventio, who the year before had been a centurion of the first rank.

In this latter use they are often equivalent merely to a demonstrative with a conjunction: as, — quae cum ita sint (= et cum ea ita sint), [and] since these things are so.

This connective force does not belong to the relative originally, but is developed from an interrogative or indefinite meaning specialized by use. The clauses were originally co-ordinate. Thus, quī quiētus animō est, is est sapiēns originally meant, Who is undisturbed in soul? That [man] is a sage.

A Relative pronoun indicates a relation between its own clause and some substantive. This substantive is called the Antecedent of the relative.

Thus, in the sentence—

eum nihil dēlectābat, quod fās esset, nothing pleased him which was right, the relative quod connects its antecedent nihil with the predicate fās esset, indicating a relation between the two.

198. A Relative agrees with its Antecedent in GENDER and NUMBER; but its CASE depends on the construction of the clause in which it stands: as, — puer quī vēnit abiit, the boy who came has gone away.

liber quem legis meus est, the book you are reading is mine.
via quā ambulat dūcit ad urbem, the path he walks in leads to the city.

This rule applies to all relative words so far as they are variable in form: as, quālis, quantus, quicumque.

NOTE.—The relative may be the subject or object of its own clause, or a modifier of either: as,— eōs enim civēs pūgna illa sustulerat quibus nōn modo vivis sed etiam vic-tōribus incolumis et florēns civitās esse posset (Phil. xiv. 8).

a. If a relative has two or more antecedents, it follows the rules for the agreement of predicate adjectives (§§ 186, 187): as, — filium et filiam, quōs valdē dilēxit, unō tempore āmisit, he lost a son and a daughter at the same time, whom he dearly loved. grandēs nātū matrēs et parvuli liberi, quōrum utrōrumque aetās misericor-diam nostram requirit (Verr. v. 49), aged ma'trons and little children, whose time of life in each case demands our compassion. ōtium atque divitiæ quæ prima mortālēs putant (Sall. Cat. 36), idleness and wealth which men count the first (objects of desire). eae frūgēs et fructūs quōs terra gignit (N. D. ii. 14), those fruits and crops which the earth produces.

199. A relative generally agrees in gender and number with an appositive or predicate noun in its own clause, rather than with an antecedent of different gender or number (cf. § 195. d): as, — mare etiam quā Neptūnum esse dicēbās (N. D. iii. 20), the sea, too, which you said was Neptune. [Not quod.] Thēbæ ipsæ, quod Boeōtiæ caput est (Liv. xxxii. 44), even Thebes, which is the chief city of Boeotia. [Not quæ.]

NOTE.—This rule is occasionally violated: as,— flūmen quod appellātur Tamesis (B. G. v. 11), a river which is called the Thames.

a. A relative occasionally agrees with its antecedent in case (by attraction): as, — si aliquid agās eōrum quōrum cōsuēsti (Fam. v. 14), if you should do something of what you are used to do. [For eōrum quae.]

b. A relative may agree in gender and number with an implied antecedent: as, — quārtum genus . . . quī aere vetere aliēnō vacillant (Cat. ii. 10), a fourth class, that are staggering under old debts.

ūnus ex eō numerō quī parātī erant (Jug. 35), one of the number [of those] who were ready.

coniūrāvere pauci . . . dē quā [i.e. coniūrātiōne] dicam (Sall. Cat. 18), a few have conspired . . . of which [conspiracy] I will speak.

NOTE. — So regularly when the antecedent is implied in a possessive pronoun (cf. § 197. f): as, — nostra quī adsumus salūs, the safety of us who are present. [Here quī agrees with the nostrū implied in nostra.]

200. The antecedent noun sometimes appears in both clauses; but usually only in the one that precedes. Sometimes it is wholly omitted. Thus —

a. The antecedent noun may be repeated in the relative clause: as, — locī nātūra erat haec quem locum nostri dēlēgerant (B. G. ii. 18), the nature of the ground which our men had chosen was this.

b. The antecedent noun may appear only in the relative clause: as, — quās rēs in cōsulātū nostrō gessimus attigit hic versibus (Arch. 11), he has touched in verse the things which I did in my consulship.

urbem quam statuō vestra est (Æn. i. 573), yours is the city which I am founding.

NOTE. — In this case a demonstrative (is, ille, or hic) usually stands in the antecedent clause: as, — istōs captīvōs duōs, heri quōs ēmi dē praedā . . . hīs inditō catēnās singulārīas (Plaut. Capt. 110), those two prisoners that I bought yesterday, — put fetters on them.

quae pars civitatīs calamitātem populō Rōmanō intulerat, ea princeps poenās persolvit (B. G. i. 12), that part of the state which had brought disaster on the Roman people was the first to pay the penalty.

In a sentence of this class the relative clause usually stands first in Latin (cf. § 201. c), as in the example.

c. The antecedent may be entirely omitted, especially if it is indefinite: as, — quī decimae legiōnis aquilam ferēbat (B. G. iv. 25), [the man] who bore the eagle of the tenth legion.

quī cōgnōscerent misit (id. i. 21), he sent [men] to reconnoitre (who should, etc.).

d. A predicate adjective (especially a superlative) agreeing with its antecedent in gender and number may stand in the relative clause: as, — vāsa ea quae pulcherrima apud eum viderat (Verr. iv. 27), those most beautiful vessels which he had seen at his house. [Nearly equivalent to the vessels of which he had seen some very beautiful ones.]

e. The phrase id quod or quae res is used (instead of quod alone) to refer to a group of words or an idea: —

[obtrectātum est] Gabiniō dicam ane Pompēiō? an utrique — id quod est vērius? (Manil. 19), an affront is offered — shall I say to Gabinius or to Pompey? or — which is truer — to both?

multum sunt in venātiōibus . . . quae res virēs alit (B. G. iv. 1), they spend much time in hunting, which [practice] increases their strength. [Cf. B. G. ii. 5.]

NOTE. — But quod alone often occurs: as, — Cassius noster, quod mihi māgnae voluptātī fuit, hostem reiēcērat (Fam. ii. 10), our friend Cassius — which was a great satisfaction to me — had driven back the enemy.

201. In the use of relatives, the following points are to be observed: —

a. The relative is never omitted in Latin, as it often is in English. Thus, — liber quem mihi dedisti, the book you gave me.

is sum quī semper fui, I am the same man I always was.

eō in locō est dē quō tibi locūtus sum, he is in the place I told you of.

b. A relative clause in Latin often takes the place of some other construction in English; particularly of a participle, an appositive, or a noun of agency: as, — lēgēs quae nunc sunt, the existing laws (the laws which now exist).

Caesar qui Galliam vicit, Caesar the conqueror of Gaul (who conquered Gaul).

iusta glōria quae est fructus virtūtis, true glory [which is] the fruit of virtue.

qui legit, a reader (one who reads).

ille qui petit, the plaintiff (he who sues).

c. In formal or emphatic discourse, the relative clause usually comes first, often containing the antecedent noun (cf. § 200. b): as, — quae mala cum multis patimur, ea nobis leviōra videntur, the evils we suffer [in common] with many, seem to us lighter.

NOTE.—In colloquial language, the relative clause in such cases often contains a demonstrative pronoun which properly belongs in the antecedent clause: as, — ille qui cōsultē . . . cavet, diūtīnē ūtī ei bene licet partum bene (Plaut. Rud. 1240), he who is on his guard, he may enjoy, etc.

d. The antecedent noun, when in apposition with the main clause, or with some word of it, is put in the relative clause: as, — firmi amici, cūius generis est māgna pēnūria, steadfast friends, a class of which there is great lack (of which class).

e. A relative may stand (even with another relative or an interrogative) at the beginning of a sentence or clause, where in English a demonstrative must be used (§ 180. f): as, — quae quī audiēbant, and those who heard this (which things).

quae cum ita sint, and since these things are so.

quōrum quod simile factum (Cat. iv. 8), what deed of theirs like this?

f. 1. A relative adverb is regularly used in referring to an antecedent in the Locative case: as, — mortuus Cūmis quō sē contulerat (Liv. iii. 21), having died at Cumæ, whither he had retired. [Here in quam urbem might be used, but not in quās.]

2. So, often, to express any relation of place instead of the formal relative pronoun (cf. whence, whereto, wherewith): as, — locus quō aditus nōn erat, a place to which (whither) there was no access.

rēgna, unde genus dūcis, the kingdom from which you derive your race.

unde petitur, the defendant (he wherefrom something is demanded, cf. § 207. a).

g. The relatives quī, quālis, quantus, quot, etc., are often rendered simply by *AS*¹ in English (§ 106. b): as, — idem quod semper, the same as always.

tālis dux quālem Hannibalem nōvimus, such a chief as we know Hannibal [to have been].

tanta dīmīcātiō quanta numquam fuit, such a fight as never was before.
tot mala quot sidera, as many troubles as stars in the sky.

¹ The English as in this use is strictly a relative, though invariable in form.

h. The general construction of relatives is found in clauses introduced by relative or temporal adverbs: as, ubi, quō, unde, cum, quārē.

NOTE.—For the use of the Relative in idiomatic clauses of Characteristic and Result (est qui, dignus qui, quam qui, etc.), see § 320.

For the use of interrogatives, see § 210.

6. Indefinite Pronouns.

202. The Indefinite pronouns are used to indicate that some person or thing is meant, without designating what one.

NOTE.—For the meanings of the compounds of qui and quis, see § 105.

a. Of the particular indefinites meaning some or any (quis, quispiam, nesciō quis, aliquis, quīdam), the simple quis is least definite, quīdam most definite: as, — dixerit quis (quispiam), some one may say.

aliqui philosophi ita putant, some philosophers think so. [quīdam would mean certain particular persons defined to the speaker's mind, though not named.]

habitant hic quaedam mulieres pauperulae, some poor women live here [i.e. some women he knows of; some women or other would be aliquae or nesciō quae].

b. In a particular negative aliquis (aliqui) is regularly used, where in a universal negative quisquam (subst.) or nullus (adj.) would be required: as, — iustitia nunquam nocet cuiquam qui eam habet (Cic.), justice never does harm to anybody who possesses it. [alicui would mean to somebody who possesses it.]

sine aliquo metu, [you cannot do this] without some fear.

sine ullo metu, [you may do this] without any fear.

cum aliquid non habeas (Tusc. i. 36), when there is something you have not.

NOTE.—These pronouns are used in like manner in conditional and other sentences (§ 105. h): as, — si quisquam, ille sapiens fuit (Lael. 2), if any man was (ever) a sage, he was, dum praesidia illa fuerunt (Rosc. Am. 43), while there were any armed forces (till they ceased to be).

si quid in te peccavi (Att. iii. 15, 4), if I have done wrong towards you [in any particular case (see a, above)].

c. Of the general indefinites, quivis and quolibet (any you will), utervis (either you will, of two), are used chiefly in affirmative, quisquam and nullus (any at all) in negative, interrogative, or conditional clauses: as, — cuivis potest accidere quod cuiquam potest, what can happen to any [one] man can happen to any man [whatever].

 nōn cuivis homini contingit adire Corinthum, it is not every man's luck to go to Corinth. [nōn cuiquam would mean not any man's.] minus habeo virium quam vestrum utervis, I have less strength than either of you. [For the form utervis, see § 83.]
 quidlibet modo aliquid (Cic.), anything you will, provided it be something.
 cūr cuiquam misi prius, why did I send to anybody before [you]?
 si quisquam est timidus, is ego sum, if any man is timorous, I am he.
 cum haud cuiquam in dubiō esset (Liv. ii. 3), when it was not a matter of doubt to any one.
 si tempus est ullum iure hominis necandi (Milo, 4, 9), if there is any occasion whatever, etc.

NOTE. — The use of these indefinites is very various, and must be learned from the Lexicon and from practice. The choice among them often depends merely on the point of view of the speaker, so that they are often practically interchangeable. The differences are (with few exceptions) those of logic, not of syntax.

d. The distributives quisque (every), uterque (each), and unus quisque (every single one), are used in general assertions. They are equivalent to a plural, and sometimes have a plural verb (cf. § 205: c. 2): as, — bonus liber melior est quisque quō maior, the larger a good book is, the better (each good book is better [in the same measure] as it is larger).

 ambō exercitūs suās quisque abeunt domōs, both armies go away, every man to his home.
 uterque utrique erat exercitus in cōspectū, each army was in sight of the other (each to each).
 pōnite ante ocylos ūnumquemque rēgum, set before your eyes each of the kings.

e. Quisque is regularly placed in a dependent clause, if there is one: quō quisque est sollertior, hōc docet irācundius (Rosc. Com. 11), the keener-witted a man is, the more impatiently he teaches (as each is so, etc.).

NOTE. — Quisque is generally post-positive. Thus, suum cuique, to every man his own.

f. Nēmō, no one, is used: —

1. As a substantive: as, — nēmō fit repenti turpissimus, no one suddenly becomes absolutely base.

2. As an adjective pronoun: as, — vir nēmō bonus (Leg. ii. 16), no good man.

NOTE. — Even when used as a substantive, nēmō may take a noun in apposition: as, — nēmō scriptor, nobody [who is] a writer.

7. Alius and Alter.

203. The expressions alter . . . alter, the one . . . the other, alius . . . alius, one . . . another, may be used in pairs to denote either division of a group or reciprocity of action: as, — alii gladiis adoriuntur, alii frāgmentis saeptōrum (Sest. 42), some make an attack with swords, others with fragments of the railings.

arma ab aliis posita ab aliis erepta sunt (Marc. 10, 31), arms were laid down by some and were snatched from others.

duobus Rosciis Amerinis quōrum alterum sedēre in accūsatorum subselliis videō, alterum tria huiusce praedia possidēre audiō (Rosc. Am. 6, 17), two Roscii of Ameria, one of whom I see sitting on the benches of the prosecution; the other, I hear, is in possession, etc.

alteri dimicant, alteri victōrem timent (Fam. vi. 3), one party fights, the other fears the victor.

hi frātrēs alter alterum amant, these brothers love one another.

alius alium percontāmur, we ask each other.

a. Alius means simply other, another (of an indefinite number); alter, the other (of two), often the second in a series; ceteri and reliqui, all the rest, the others; alteruter, one of the two. Thus, — quid aliud agis, what else are you doing (what other thing)?

cum etiam hi quibus ignōvisti, nōlint tē esse in aliōs misericordem (Lig. 5, 15), when even those whom you have pardoned are unwilling that you should be merciful to others.

ūnī epistolae respondi, veniō ad alteram (Fam. ii. 17, 6), one letter I have answered, I come to the other.

ūnus atque item alter, one and then [likewise] another. [Of an indefinite number, but strictly referring only to the second.]

alterum genus (Cat. ii. 9, 19), the second class.

iēcissem ipse mē potius in profundum ut ceterōs cōservārem (Sest. 20, 45), I should have rather thrown myself into the deep to save the rest.

hōrum utrō ūti nolumus, alterō est ūtendum (Sest. 42, 92), whichever of the two we do not wish to have, we must take the other.

Servilius cōsul, reliquique magistrātus (B. C. iii. 21), Servilius the consul and the rest of the magistrates.

cum sit necesse alterutrum vincere (Fam. vi. 3), when it must be that one of the two should prevail.

b. Alius and alter are often used to express one as well as another (the other) of the objects referred to: as, — alter cōsulum, one of the [two] consuls.

aliud est maledicere, aliud accūsāre (Cic.), it is one thing to slander, another to accuse.

c. Alius repeated in another case, or with an adverb from the same stem, expresses shortly a double statement: as, — alius aliud petit, one man seeks one thing, one another (another seeks another thing).

alius aliā viā civitatem auxerunt (Liv. i. 21), they enlarged the State, each in his own way.

iussit aliōs alibi fodere (Liv. xlv. 33), he ordered different persons to dig in various places.

NOTE.—Alter is often used, especially with negatives, in reference to an indefinite number where one is opposed to all the rest taken singly: as, — quī alterum incūsāt probri eum ipsum sē intuēri oportet (Phæd. i. 19), he who accuses his neighbor of wrong ought to look at himself (the other, there being at the moment only two concerned).

dum nē sit tē ditior alter (Hor. Sat. i. 1. 40), so long as another is not richer than you.

nōn ut magis alter, amicus (Hor. Sat. i. 5. 33), a friend such that no other is more so.

IV.—VERBS.

1. Verb and Subject.

204. A Finite verb agrees with its Subject in Number and Person: as, — ego stātuo, I resolve.

senātus decrevit, the senate ordered.

silent lēgēs inter arma, the laws are dumb in time of war.

NOTE.—In verb-forms containing a participle, the participle agrees with the subject in gender and number (§ 186): as, — orātiō est habita, the plea was delivered.

bellum exortum est, a war arose.

a. A verb having a relative as its subject takes the person of the expressed or implied antecedent: as, — adsum qui fēci (Æn. ix. 427), here am I who did it.

b. The verb sometimes agrees in number, a participle in the verb-form in number and gender, with an appositive or predicate noun: as, — amantium iræ amōris reintegrātiō est (Ter. Andr. 555), the quarrels of lovers are the renewal of love.

nōn omnis error stultitia est dicenda (Parad. vi. 3), not every error should be called folly.

Corinthus lūmen Graeciae exstinctum est, Corinth, the light of Greece, is put out.

2. Double Subject.

205. Two or more singular subjects take a verb in the plural: as, — pater et avus mortuī sunt, his father and grandfather are dead.

NOTE.—So rarely (by a construction according to the sense, § 182) when to the subject is attached an ablative with cum: as, — dux cum aliquot principibus capiuntur (Liv. xxi. 60), the general and several chiefs are taken.

a. When subjects are of different persons, the verb is in the first person rather than the second, and in the second rather than the third: as, — si tū et Tullia valētis ego et Cicerō valēmus (Fam. xiv. 5), if you and Tullia are well, Cicero and I are well. [Notice that the first person is also first in order, not last, as by courtesy in English.]

NOTE.—In case of different genders a participle in a verb-form follows the rule for predicate adjectives; see § 187. b, c.

b. If the subjects are connected by disjunctives, or if they are considered as a single whole, the verb is usually singular: as, — quem neque fidēs neque iūsiurandum neque illum misericordia repressit (Ter. Ad. 306), not faith, nor oath, nay, nor mercy, checked him.

Senātus populusque Rōmānus intellegit (Fam. v. 8), the Roman Senate and people understand. But, — neque Caesar neque ego habiti essemus (Fam. xi. 20), neither C. nor I should have been considered.

c. A collective noun commonly takes a verb in the singular: as, — Senātus haec intelligit (Cat. i. 1, 2), the Senate is aware of this.

ad hiberna exercitus redit (Liv. xxi. 22), the army returns to winter-quarters.

1. But the plural is often found with collective nouns when individuals are thought of: as, — pars praedās agēbant (Jug. 32), a part brought in booty.

cum tanta multitudō lapidēs cōnicerent (B. G. ii. 6), when such a crowd was throwing stones.

NOTE.—The point of view may change in the course of a sentence: as, — equitātum omnem . . . quem habēbat praemittit, quī videant (B. G. i. 15), he sent ahead all the cavalry he had, to see (who should see).

2. Quisque has very often a plural verb, but may be considered as in apposition with a plural subject implied (cf. § 202. d): as, — sibi quisque habeant quod suum est (Plaut. Curc.), let every one keep his own (let them keep every man his own).

d. When a verb belongs to two or more subjects separately, it may agree with one and be understood with the others: as, — intercēdit M. Antōnius et Cassius tribūni plēbis (B. C. i. 2), Antony and Cassius, tribunes of the people, interpose.

3. Incomplete Sentences.

206. The subject of the verb is sometimes omitted. Thus:

a. A Personal pronoun, as subject, is usually omitted unless emphatic. Thus, — loquor, I speak. But, ego loquor, it is I that speak.

b. An indefinite subject is often omitted.

This is usually a plural, as in dīcunt, ferunt, perhibent (they say); but sometimes singular, as in inquit (Tusc. i. 39), one says (referring to a class of reasoners just spoken of).

c. The verb is often omitted. Thus, —

1. Dicō, faciō, agō and other verbs in familiar phrases: as, — quōrsum haec [spectant], what does this aim at?

ex ungue leōnem [cōgnōscēs], you will know a lion by his claw.

quid multa, what need of many words? (why should I say much?)

quid? quod, what of this, that, etc.? (what shall I say of this, that, etc.?)

[A form of transition.]

Aeolus haec contrā (Æn. i. 76), Æolus thus [spoke] in reply.

tum Cotta [inquit], then said Cotta.

dī meliōra [duint], Heaven forefend (may the gods grant better things)!

unde [venis] et quō [tendis], where are you from and where bound?

2. The copula sum, very commonly in the indicative and infinitive, rarely (except by late authors) in the subjunctive: as, — tū coniūnx (Æn. iv. 113), you [are] his wife.

omnia praeclāra rāra (Lael. 21), all the best things are rare.

potest incidere saepe contentiō et comparātiō dē duōbus honestis utrum honestius (Off. i. 43), a comparison of two honorable actions, as to which is the more honorable. [Here, if any copula were expressed, it would be sit, but the direct question would be complete without any.]

accipe quae peragenda prius (Æn. vi. 136), hear what is first to be accomplished. [Direct: quae peragenda prius?]

Cf., for omission of a Subjunctive, — cum ille ferōciter ad haec [diceret] (Liv. i. 48), upon his replying with insolence to this, that, etc.

V. — PARTICLES.

1. Adverbs.

207. Adverbs are used to modify Verbs, Adjectives, and other Adverbs.

NOTE 1. — For the derivation and classification of adverbs, see §§ 148, 149.

NOTE 2. — The proper functions of Adverbs, as petrified case-forms, is to modify Verbs: as, celeriter ire, to go with speed. It is from this use that they derive their name (adverbium, from ad, to, and verbum, verb; see § 163. f). They also modify adjectives, showing in what manner or degree the quality described is manifested: as, splendidē mendāx, gloriously false. More rarely they modify other adverbs: as, nimis graviter, too severely.

NOTE 3. — Many adverbs, especially relative adverbs, serve as connectives, and are hardly to be distinguished from conjunctions (see § 25. h. note).

a. A Demonstrative or Relative adverb is often equivalent to the corresponding Pronoun with a preposition (see § 201. f): as, — eō (= in ea) impōnit vāsa (Jug. 75), upon them (thither, thereon, on the beasts) he puts the camp-utensils.

eō militēs impōnere (B. G. i. 42), on them (thereon) he puts the soldiers.

apud eōs quō (= ad quōs) sē contulit (Verr. iv. 18), among those to whom (whither) he resorted.

quī eum necāset unde ipse nātus esset (Ros. Am. 26), one who should have killed his own father (him whence he had his birth).

ō miserās condiciōnēs administrandarū provinciārum ubi [= in quibus] sevēritās periculōsa est (Flacc. 87), oh! wretched terms of managing the provinces, where strictness is dangerous.

b. The adverbs propius, near; proximē, next (like the adjectives propior, proximus); prīdiē, the day before; postrīdiē, the day after, are sometimes followed by the accusative (see § 261. a).

The adverbs palam, openly; procul, afar; simul, at the same time, are sometimes followed by the ablative (see § 261. b).

NOTE. — Prīdiē and postrīdiē are often used with the genitive (§ 223. e. n. 2). Clam, without the knowledge of, may take the accusative, the ablative, or the genitive (§ 261. c).

c. Many perfect participles used as nouns regularly retain the adverb which modified them as participles: as, — praecelārē factum, a glorious deed (a thing gloriously done).

d. Very rarely adverbs are used with nouns which contain a verbal idea (cf. § 188. d): as, — populus lātē rēx (Æn. i. 21), a people ruling far and wide.

hinc abitiō (Plaut.), a going away from here.

quid cōgitē dē obviā itione (Att. xiii. 50), what I think about going to meet [him]. {Perhaps felt as a compound.}

e. For adverbs used as adjectives, see § 188. e.

NOTE. — In some cases one can hardly say whether the adverb is treated as an adjective modifying the noun (as in § 188. e), or the noun modified is treated as an adjective (as in § 188. d).

2. Conjunctions.

NOTE.—For the classification of conjunctions, see §§ 154, 155.

208. Copulative and Disjunctive Conjunctions connect similar constructions, and are regularly followed by the same case or mood that precedes them: as,— scriptum senātui et populō (Cat. iii. 5, 10), written to the senate and people.

ut eas [partis] sanāres et cōfirmāres (Mil. 25, 68), that you might cure and strengthen those parts.

neque meā prudenā neque hūmānis cōsiliis frētus (Cat. ii. 13, 29), relying neither on my own foresight nor on human wisdom.

a. Conjunctions of Comparison (as ut, quam, tanquam, quasi) also commonly connect similar constructions: as,— his igitur quam physicis potius crēdendum existimās (Div. ii. 26), do you think these are more to be trusted than the natural philosophers?

hominem callidiōrem vidi nēmīnem quam Phormiōnem (Ter.), a shrewder man I never saw than Phormio (cf. § 247. a).

ut nōn omne vinum sic nōn omnis nātūra vetustāte coācēscit (Cat. Mag. 18, 65), as every wine does not sour with age, so [does] not every nature.

Cf. pēge ut instituisti (Rep. ii. 11), go on as you have begun.

in mē quasi in tyrannum (Phil. xiv. 6, 15), against me as against a tyrant.

b. Two or more co-ordinate words, phrases, or sentences are often put together without the use of conjunctions (Asyndeton, § 346. c): as,— omnēs di, hominēs, all gods and men.

summi, mediī, infimī, the highest, the middle class, and the lowest.

liberi, servi, freemen and slaves.

1. Where there are more than two co-ordinate words, etc., a conjunction, if used at all, must be used with all (or all except the first): as,— aut aere aliēnō aut māgnitūdine tribūtōrum aut iniuriā potentiōrum (B. G. vi. 13), by debt, excessive taxation, or oppression on the part of the powerful.

suminā fidē et cōstantiā et iūstitiā, with perfect good faith, [and] consistency, and justice. [Not fidē cōstantiā et iūstitiā, as in English.]

2. But words are often so divided into groups that the members of the groups omit the conjunction (or express it), while the groups themselves express the conjunction (or omit it): as,— propudium illud et portentum, L. Antōnius insigne odium omnium hominum (Phil. xiv. 3, 8), that wretch and monster, Lucius Antonius, the abomination of all men.

utrumque ēgit graviter, auctōritāte et offensiōne animi nōn acerbā (Lael. 21, 77), he acted in both cases with dignity, without loss of authority, and with no bitterness of feeling.

3. The enclitic -que is sometimes used with the last member of a series, even when there is no grouping apparent: as, — vōce vultū mōtūque (Brut. 110), by voice, expression, and gesture.

cūram cōsiliū vigilantiamque (Phil. vii. 10), care, wisdom, and vigilance.

multō sudōre labōre vigiliisque (Div. 72), with much fatigue, toil, and waking.

quōrum auctōritātem dignitātem voluntātemque dēfenderās (Fam. i. 7, 2), whose dignity, honor, and wishes you had defended.

c. Two adjectives belonging to the same noun are regularly connected by a conjunction: as, — multae et gravēs causae, many weighty reasons.

d. Many words properly adverbs may be used correlatively, and so become conjunctions, partly or wholly losing their adverbial force (see § 107). Such are, — cum . . . tum, while . . . so also (both . . . and).

tum . . . tum, now . . . now.

simul . . . simul, at the same time . . . at the same time (at once . . . as well as).

quā . . . quā, now . . . now.

nunc . . . nunc, now . . . now.

Thus, —

cum difficile est, tum nē aequum quidem (Lael. 8, 26), not only is it difficult, but even unjust.

ērumpunt saepe vitia amicōrum tum in ipsōs amicōs tum in aliēnōs (Lael. 21, 76), the faults of friends sometimes break out, now against their friends themselves, now against strangers.

modo ait modo negat (Ter. Eun. 712), now he says yes, now no.

simul grātiās agit, simul grātulātur (Q. C. vi. 7), he thanks him and at the same time congratulates him.

quā maris quā fēminās (Plaut. Mil. 1113), both males and females.

e. Two conjunctions of similar meaning are often used together, for the sake of emphasis or to bind a sentence more closely to what precedes: as, at vērō, but in truth, but surely, still, however; itaque ergō, accordingly then; namque, for; et-enim, for, you see, for of course (§ 156. d).

f. For conjunctions introducing subjunctive clauses, see Chap. V.

3. Negative Particles.

NOTE. — For the list of negative particles, see § 149. e.

209. In the use of the Negative Particles, the following points are to be observed: —

a. Two negatives are equivalent to an affirmative, as in English (§ 150): as, nēmō nōn videt, everybody sees.

But a general negation is not destroyed —

1. By a following nē . . . quidem, not even, or nōn modo, not only: as, — numquam tū nōn modo ōtium, sed nē bellum quidem nisi nefārium concupisti (Cat. i. 10, 25), not only have you never desired repose, but you have never desired any war except one which was infamous.

2. By succeeding negatives each introducing a separate subordinate member: as, — eaque nesciēbant nec ubi nec quālia essent (Tusc. iii. 2), they knew not where or of what kind these things were.

3. By neque introducing a co-ordinate member: as, — nequeō satis mirari neque cōnicere (Ter. Eun. 547), I cannot wonder enough nor conjecture.

b. The negative is frequently joined to some other word. Hence the forms of negation in Latin differ from those in English in many expressions. Thus, — neque (nec) (not et nōn), and not, but not (neither . . . nor).

nec quisquam (not et nēmō), and no one (nor any one).

nūllī or neutri crēdō (not nōn crēdō ūllī), I do not believe either (I believe neither).

negō haec esse vērā (not dicō nōn esse), I say this is not true (I deny that these things are true).

sine ūllō periculō (less commonly cum nūllō), with no danger (without any danger).

nihil unquam audiī iūcundius, I never heard anything more amusing (nothing more amusing have I ever heard).

c. A statement is often made emphatic by denying its contrary (Litotes): as, — nōn haec sine nūmine divōm ēveniunt (Æn. ii. 777), these things do not occur without the will of the gods.

haec nōn nimis exquirō (Att. vii. 18, 3), not very much, i.e. very little.

NOTE.—Compare nōnnūllus, nōnnēmō, etc. (§ 150. a).

d. The particle immō, nay, is used to contradict some part of a preceding statement or question, or its form; in the latter case, the same statement is often repeated in a stronger form, so that immō becomes nearly equivalent to yes (nay but, nay rather): as, — causa igitur nōn bona est? immō optima (Att. ix. 7), is the cause then not a good one? on the contrary, the best.

e. Minus, less (especially with si, if, quō, in order that), and minimē, least, often have a negative force. Thus, — si minus possunt, if they cannot. [For quō minus, see §§ 319. e, 331. e.] audācissimus ego ex omnibus? minimē (Rosc. Am. 1), am I the boldest of them all? by no means (not at all).

[For do not in Prohibitions, see § 269. a.]

VI.—QUESTIONS.

210. Questions are either Direct or Indirect.

1. A Direct Question gives the exact words of the speaker: as, — quid est? what is it?

2. An Indirect Question gives the substance of the question, adapted to the form of the sentence in which it is quoted. It depends on a verb or other expression of asking, doubting, knowing, or the like: as, — rogāvit quid esset, he asked what it was. [Direct: quid est, what is it?] nesciō ubi sim, I know not where I am. [Direct: ubi sum, where am I?]

Questions in Latin are introduced by special interrogative words, and are not distinguished by the order of words, as in English.

NOTE. — For the list of Interrogative Particles, see § 149. d.

a. A question of simple fact, requiring the answer YES or NO, is formed by adding the enclitic -ne to the emphatic word: as, — tūne id veritus es (Cic.), did YOU fear that?

hicine vir usquam nisi in patriā moriētur (Mil. 38, 104), shall THIS man die anywhere but in his native land?

b. The interrogative particle -ne is sometimes omitted: as, — patēre tua cōsilia nōn sentis (Cat. i. 1), do you not see that your schemes are manifest? (you do not see, eh?)

NOTE. — In such cases no sign of interrogation appears except in the punctuation, and it is often doubtful whether the sentence is a question or an ironical statement.

c. When the enclitic -ne is added to a negative word, — as in nōnne, — an affirmative answer is expected. The particle num suggests a negative answer. Thus, — nōnne animadvertis (N. D. iii. 35), do you not observe?

num dubium est (Rosc. Am. 37), there is no doubt, is there?

d. The particle -ne often when added to the verb, less commonly when added to some other word, has the force of nōne: as, — meministine mē in senātū dicere (Cat. i. 3), don't you remember my saying in the Senate?

rēctēne interpretor sententiam tuam (Tusc. iii. 17, 37), do I not rightly interpret your meaning?

NOTE. — This was evidently the original meaning of -ne; but in most cases the negative force was lost and -ne was used merely to express a question. So the English interrogative not shades off into eh?

REMARK. — The enclitic -ne is sometimes added to other interrogative words: as, utrumne, whether; anne, or; quantane (Hor. Sat. ii. 3. 317), how big? quōne malō (id. 290), by what curse?

e. A question concerning some special circumstance is formed by prefixing to the sentence an interrogative pronoun or adverb (§ 106), as in English: as, — quid est quod iam amplius expectēs (Cat. i. 3), what is there for you to look for any more?

quō igitur haec spectant (Fam. vi. 6), whither then is all this tending?

Icare, ubi es (Ov. M. viii. 232), Icarus, where are you?

REMARK. — A question of this form becomes an exclamation by changing the inflection of the voice: as, quālis vir erat! what a man he was! quot calamitatēs passi sumus! how many misfortunes have we suffered!

f. The particles nam (enclitic) and tandem may be added to interrogative pronouns and adverbs for the sake of emphasis: as, — quisnam est, pray who is it? [quis tandem est? would be stronger.]

ubinam gentium sumus (Cat. i. 4), where in the world are we?

in quā tandem urbe hōc disputant (Mil. 3, 7), in what city, pray, do they maintain this?

NOTE. — Tandem is sometimes added to verbs: as, — ain tandem (Fam. ix. 21), you don't say so! (say you so, pray?)

itane tandem, quaesō, est (Ter. Heaut. 954), it's so, is it then?

itane tandem uxōrem dūxit Antiphō (Ter. Ph. 231), so then, eh? Antipho's got married?

REMARK. — The form of Indirect Questions (in English introduced by whether, or by an interrogative pronoun or adverb) is in Latin the same as that of Direct; the difference being only in the verb, which in indirect questions regularly takes the Subjunctive (§ 334).

In indirect questions num loses its peculiar force (§ 210. c)

Double Questions.

211. A Double or Alternative Question is an inquiry as to which of two or more supposed cases is the true one.

In Double or Alternative Questions, utrum or -ne, whether, stands in the first member; an, anne, or; annōn, neone, or not, in the second; and usually an in the third, if there be one: as, — utrum nescis, an prō nihīlō id putās (Fam. x. 26), is it that you don't know, or do you think nothing of it?

quaerō servōsne an liberōs (Rosc. Am. 27), I ask whether slaves or free.

utrum hostem an vōs an fortunam utriusque populi ignōrātis (Liv. xxi. 10, 6), is it the enemy, or yourselves, or the fortune of the two peoples, that you do not know?

REMARK.—Annōn is more common in direct questions, necne in indirect.

a. The interrogative particle is often omitted in the first member; in which case an or -ne (anne, necne) may stand in the second: as, — Gabinio dicam anne Pompeio an utrique (Manil. 19), shall I say to Gabinius, or to Pompey, or to both?
sunt haec tua verba necne (Tusc. iii. 18), are these your words or not?

b. Sometimes the first member is omitted or implied, and an (anne) alone asks the question, — usually with indignation or surprise: as, — an tū miserōs putās illōs (Tusc. i. 7), what! do you think those men wretched?

c. Sometimes the second member is omitted or implied, and utrum may ask a question to which there is no alternative: as, — utrum in clārissimis est civibus is, quem . . . (Flacc. 16), is he among the noblest citizens, whom, etc.?

d. The following table exhibits the various forms of alternative questions:—

utrum . . .	an . . .	an
utrum . . .	annōn
—	. . .	an (anne)
-ne	. . .	an
—	. . .	-ne , necne
-ne	. . .	necne

Question and Answer.

212. There is no one Latin word in common use meaning simply yes or no. In answering a question affirmatively, the verb or some other emphatic word is generally repeated; in answering negatively, the verb, etc., with nōn or a similar negative: as. — valetne, is he well? valet, yes (he is well).

eratne tēcum, was he with you? nōn erat, no (he was not).

numquidnam novi there is nothing new, is there? nihil s̄anē, oh! nothing.

a. An intensive or negative particle, a phrase, or a clause is sometimes used to answer a direct question: thus,—

1. For YES:—

vērō, in truth, true, no doubt, yes. ita vērō, certainly (so in truth), etc.

etiam, even so, yes, etc.

s̄anē quidem, yes, no doubt, etc.

ita, so, true, etc.

ita est, it is so, true, etc.

s̄anē, surely (soundly), no doubt, doubtless, etc.

certē, certainly, most assuredly, unquestionably, etc.

factum, true (it was done), it's a fact, you're right, etc.

2. For NO:—

nōn, not [so].

nūllō modō, by no means.

minimē, not at all (in the smallest degree, cf. § 209. e).

minimē vērō, no, not by any means; oh! no, etc.

nōn quidem, why, no; certainly not, etc.

nōn hercle vērō, why, gracious, no (certainly not, by Hercules)!

Examples are:—

quidnam? an laudātiōnēs? ita, why, what? is it eulogies? just so.

aut etiā aut nōn respondēre (Acad. ii. 32, 104), to answer (categorically) yes or no.

estne ut fertur forma? s̄anē (Ter. Eun. 360), is [she] as handsome as they say she is (is her beauty as it is said)? oh! yes.

fugisne hinc? ego vērō āc lubēns (Ter. And. 337), will you clear out from here? indeed I will, and be glad to.

miser ergō Archelāus? certē si iniūstus (Tusc. v. 12, 35), was Archelaus wretched then? certainly, if he was unjust.

haec contemnitis? minimē (De Or. ii. 73, 295), do you despise these things? not at all.

volucribusne et feris? minimē vērō (Tusc. i. 43, 104), to the birds and beasts? why, of course not.

ex tui animi sententiā tū uxōrem habēs? nōn hercle, ex mei animi sententiā (De Or. ii. 64, 260), Lord! no, etc.

b. In answering a double question, one member of the alternative, or some part of it, must be repeated: as,— tūne an frāter erat, was it you or your brother? ego [eram], it was I.

REMARK.—From double (alternative) questions must be distinguished those which are in themselves single, but of which some detail only is alternative. These have the common disjunctive particles aut or vel (-ve). Thus,— quaerō num iniūstē aut improbē fēcērit (Off. iii. 13), I ask whether he acted unjustly or even dishonestly.

Here there is no double question. The only inquiry is whether the max. did either of the two things supposed, not which of the two he did.

CHAPTER II.—Construction of Cases.

NOTE.—The Cases of nouns express their relations to other words in the sentence. The most primitive way of expressing such relations is by mere juxtaposition of roots or stems. From this arises in time composition, the growing together of stems by means of which a complex expression arises with its parts mutually dependent. Thus such a complex as armo-gero- comes to mean arm-bearing; fidī-cen-, playing on the lyre. Later, Cases are formed by means of suffixes to express more definitely such relations, and Syntax begins. But the primitive method of composition still continues to hold an important place even in the most highly developed languages.

Originally the family of languages to which Latin belongs had at least seven cases, besides the Vocative. But in Latin the Locative and Instrumental were lost except in a few words (where they remained without being recognized as cases) and their functions were divided among the others (§§ 224, 242).

The Nominative, Accusative, and Vocative express the oldest forms of case-relations (Direct Cases, § 31. g. note). The Nominative is the case of the Subject, and the -s in which it generally ends is thought to be a demonstrative pronoun (§ 32, n. 2). The Vocative, usually without a termination, or like the Nominative (§ 33. a), perhaps never had a suffix of its own. The Accusative, most frequently formed by the suffix -m (doubtless another demonstrative), originally connected the noun loosely with the verb-idea, not necessarily expressed by a verb proper, but as well by a noun or adjective (see page 235, head-note).

The other cases were formed by combination with various pronominal suffixes. and at first probably expressed relations of place or direction (TO, FROM, AT, WITH: Indirect Cases, § 31. g. note). But these original meanings have become confused with each other, and in many instances the cases are no longer distinguishable either in form or meaning. Thus the Locative was for the most part lost from its confusion with the Dative and Ablative; and its function was often performed by the Ablative, which is freely used to express the place where (§ 258. f). To indicate relations of place more precisely, Prepositions (originally Adverbs) gradually became necessary. These by degrees rendered the case-endings useless, and so have finally superseded them in all modern languages derived from Latin. But in Latin a large and various body of relations was still expressed by case-forms. It is to be noticed that cases in their literal use tended to adopt the preposition, and in their figurative uses to retain the old construction. (See Ablative of Separation, § 243; Ablative of Place and Time, §§ 254, 256.)

The word cāsus, case, is a translation of the Greek πτῶσις, a falling away (from the erect position). The term πτῶσις was originally applied to the Oblique Cases (§ 31. g), to mark them as variations from the Nominative, which was called ὀρθή (cāsus rēctus). The later name Nominative (cāsus nōminātivus) is from nōminō, and means the naming case. The other case-names (except ablative) are of Greek origin. The name Genitive (cāsus genētivus) is a translation of γενική [πτῶσις], from γένος (class), and refers to the class to which a thing belongs. Dative (cāsus dativus, from dō) is translated from δοτική, and means the case of giving. Accusative (accūsātivus, from accūsō) is a mistranslation of αἰτιατική (the case of causing), from αἰτία, cause, and meant to the Romans the case of accusing. The name Vocative (vocātivus, from vocō) is translated from κλητική (the case of calling). The name Ablative (ablātivus, from ablātus, auferō) means taking from. This case the Greek had lost.

I. — GENITIVE.

NOTE.—The Genitive is regularly used to express the relation of one noun to another. Hence it is sometimes called the adjective case, to distinguish it from the Dative and the Ablative, which may be called adverbial cases. Its uses may be classified as follows:—

- | | | |
|----------------------------------|---|--|
| I. GENITIVE WITH
NOUNS: | { | 1. Of Possession (§ 214).
2. Of Source developed into Material (§ 214. e).
3. Of Quality (§ 215).
4. Of the Whole, after words designating a Part (Partitive, § 216).
5. With Nouns of Action and Feeling (§ 217). |
| II. GENITIVE WITH
ADJECTIVES: | { | 1. Relative adjective (or Verbal) (§ 218. a, b).
2. Of Specification (later use) (§ 218. c). |
| III. GENITIVE WITH
VERBS: | { | 1. Of Memory, Feeling, etc. (§§ 219, 221–23).
2. Of Accusing, etc. (Charge or Penalty) (§ 220). |

I. GENITIVE WITH NOUNS.

213. A noun used to limit or define another, and not meaning the same person or thing, is put in the Genitive.

This relation is most frequently expressed in English by the preposition OF: as,— libri Cicerōnis, the books of Cicero. talentum auri, a talent of gold.

 vir summae virtūtis, a man of the greatest courage.
 pars militum, a part of the soldiers.
 cultus deōrum, worship of the gods.
 vacatiō labōris, a respite from toil.
 victor omnium gentium, conqueror of all nations.

In most constructions the genitive is either Subjective or Objective.

1. The Subjective genitive denotes that to which the noun limited belongs, or from which it is derived (§ 214).

2. The Objective genitive denotes that toward which an action or feeling is directed (§ 217 ff.).

This distinction is illustrated by the following example. The phrase amor patris, love of a father, may mean love felt by a father, a father's love (subjective genitive), or love towards a father (objective genitive).

NOTE.—The genitive seems to have denoted originally that to which something belongs, and hence it was originally subjective. The objective genitive is a later development, through such expressions as mei laudātōrēs, my admirers, in which the admirers are first conceived as belonging to me, and afterwards felt as admiring me (cf. § 217. note). For this reason the distinction between the subjective and the objective genitive is very unstable and constantly lost sight of (cf. § 197. a).

214. The Subjective Genitive is used with a noun to denote (1) the Author or Owner, (2) the Source or the Material, (3) the Quality.

1. Possessive Genitive

a. 1. The Possessive Genitive denotes the author or owner: as, — libri Cicerōnis, the books of (written by) Cicero.

Alexandri equus, Alexander's horse.

2. For the genitive of possession a possessive or derivative adjective is often used,—regularly for the possessive genitive of the personal pronouns (§§ 190, 197. a): as, — liber meus, my book. [Not liber meī.]

aliēna pericula, other men's dangers. [But also aliōrum.] Sullāna tempora, the times of Sulla. [Often Sullae.]

b. The noun limited is understood in a few expressions: as, — ad Castoris [aedēs], to the [temple] of Castor.

Hectoris Andromachē (Æn. iii. 319), Hector's [wife] Andromache.
Flaccus Claudī, Flaccus [slave] of Claudius.

c. The possessive genitive is often in the predicate, connected with its noun by a verb: as, — haec domus est patris meī, this house is my father's.

tūtēlae nostrae [eōs] dūximus (Liv.), we held them [to be] in our protection.
compendī facere, to save (make of saving).
lucrī facere, to get the benefit of (make of profit).
iam mē Pompēi tōtum esse scis (Fam. ii. 13), you know I am now all for Pompey (all Pompey's).

REMARK. — These genitives bear the same relation to the examples in § 213 that a predicate noun bears to an appositive (§§ 184, 185).

d. An infinitive or a clause, when used as a noun, is often limited by a genitive in the predicate: as, — neque suī iūdicī [erat] dēcernere (B. C. i. 35), nor was it for his judgment to decide (nor did it belong to his judgment).

cūiusvis hominis est errāre (Cic.), it is any man's [liability] to err.
negāvit mōris esse Graecōrum, ut in conviviō virōrum accumberent mulierēs (Verr. ii. 28), he said it was not the custom of the Greeks for women to appear as guests (recline) at the banquets of men.

timidi est optāre necem (Ov. M. iv. 15), it is for the coward to wish for death.

stultī erat spērāre, suādēre impudentis (Phil. ii. 10), it was folly to hope, effrontery to urge (it was the part of a fool, etc.).

sapientis (not sapiēns) est pauca loqui, it is wise (the part of a wise man) to say little.

REMARK. — This construction is regular with adjectives of the third declension instead of the neuter nominative (see the last two examples).

NOTE. — A derivative or possessive adjective may be used for the genitive in this construction, and must be used for the genitive of a personal pronoun: as, — mentīri nōn est meum (not meī), it is not for me to lie.

hūmānum (for hominis) est errāre, it is man's nature to err (to err is human).

2. Genitive of Material.

e. The genitive may denote the Substance or Material of which a thing consists (compare §§ 216, 244): as, — talentum auri, a talent of gold.

flūmina lactis, rivers of milk.

NOTE. — This is strictly a genitive of source (cf. ex aurō factum, made [out] of gold, § 244. c.).

f. A limiting genitive is sometimes used instead of a noun in apposition (§ 183): as, — nōmen insāniæ (for nōmen insānia), the word madness.

oppidum Antiochiæ (for oppidum Antiochia, the regular form), the city of Antioch. [A very wide use of this genitive, cf. e.]

g. For the genitive with the ablatives causā, grātiā, for the sake of; ergō, because of; and the indeclinable īnstā, like; also with prīdiē, the day before; postrīdiē, the day after; tenu, as far as, see § 223. e.

h. For the genitive of the Gerund and Gerundive, see § 298.

3. Genitive of Quality.

215. The genitive is used to denote Quality, but only when the quality is modified by an adjective: as, — vir summae virtūtis, a man of the highest courage. [But not vir virtūtis] māgnæ est deliberātiōnis, it is an affair of great deliberation.

māgni formica labōris, the ant [a creature] of great toil.

ille autem sui iūdicī (Nep. Att. 9), but he [a man] of independent (his own) judgment.

NOTE.—Compare Ablative of Quality (§ 251). In expressions of quality, the genitive or the ablative may often be used indifferently: as, præstanti prudentiâ vir, a man of surpassing wisdom; māximi animi homō (Cic.), a man of the greatest courage. But in general the Genitive is thus used rather of essential, the Ablative of special or incidental characteristics. The Genitive of Quality was no doubt originally subjective.

a. The genitive of quality is found in the adjective phrases cūius modi, cūius modi (equivalent to tālis, such; quālis, of what sort).

b. The genitive of quality, with numerals, is used to define measures of length, depth, etc. (Genitive of Measure): as, — fōssa trium pedum, a trench of three feet [in depth].

mūrus sedecim pedum, a wall of sixteen feet [high].

c. For Genitives of Quality used to express indefinite value, see § 252. a.

4. Partitive Genitive.

216. Words denoting a Part are followed by the genitive of the Whole to which the part belongs.

a. Partitive words, followed by the genitive, are —

1. Nouns or Pronouns: as, — pars militum, part of the soldiers.

quis nostrum, which of us (cf. c., below)?

nihil erat reliquū, there was nothing left.

2. Numerals, Comparatives, Superlatives, and Pronominal words like alius, etc.: as, — alter cōsulum, one of the [two] consuls.

ūnus tribūnōrum, one of the tribunes (cf. c., below).

plūrimum tōtius Galliae equitatū valet (B. G. v. 4), is strongest in cavalry of all Gaul.

octāvus sapientum (Hor.), the eighth wise man (eighth of the wise men).

Hispanōrum alii vigilant alii student, of the Spaniards some are on the watch, others are eager.

maior frātrum, the elder of the brothers.

animālium fortiōra, the stronger [of] animals.

3. Neuter adjectives and pronouns, used as nouns: as, — tantum spati, so much [of] space.

aliquid nummōrum, a few pence (something of coins).

id loci (or locōrum), that spot of ground.

id temporis, at that time (§ 240. b).

plāna urbis, the level parts of the town.

quid novi, what news (what of new)?

REMARK.—The genitive of adjectives of the third declension is rarely used partitively. Thus—nihil novī (gen.), nothing new; but nihil memorābile (nom.), nothing worth mention. [Not nihil memorābilis.]

4. Adverbs, especially of Quantity and Place: as, — satis pecūniae, money enough (enough of money).

parum ōti, not much ease (too little of ease).
inde loci, next in order (thence of place).
tum temporis, at that point of time (then of time).
eō miseriarum (Sall.), to that [pitch] of misery.
ubinam gentium sumus, where in the world are we (where of nations)?

b. The poets and later writers often use the partitive genitive after adjectives, instead of a noun in its proper case: as, — sequimur tē sancte deōrum (Æn. iv. 576), we follow thee, O holy deity.

[For sancte deus.]
nigrae lānārum (Plin. H. N. viii. 48), black wools. [For nigrae lānae.]
ēlēcti iuvenum (Liv. xxx. 9), chosen youths. [For ēlēcti iuvenēs.]
cūctōs hominum (Ov.), all men. [For cūctōs hominēs, compare c.]

c. Cardinal numerals regularly take the Ablative with ē (ex) or dē instead of the Partitive Genitive. So also quīdam commonly, and other words occasionally: as, — ūnus ex tribūnis, one of the tribunes. [But also, ūnus tribūnōrum.] minimus ex illis (Jug. 11), the youngest of them.

medius ex tribus (ib.), the middle one of the three.
quidam ex militibus, certain of the soldiers.
hominem dē comitibus meis, a man of my companions.

d. Uterque, both (properly each), and quisque, each, with Nouns are used as adjectives in agreement, but with Pronouns always take a partitive genitive: as, — uterque cōsul, both the consuls; but, uterque nostrū, both of us.

ūnus quisque vostrū, each one of you.

e. Numbers and words of quantity including the whole of any thing, take a case in agreement, and not the partitive genitive. So also words denoting a part when only that part is thought of. Thus, — nōs omnēs, all of us (we all). [Not omnēs nostrū.] quot sunt hostēs, how many of the enemy are there?

cavē inimicōs qui multi sunt, beware of your enemies, who are many.
multi militēs, many of the soldiers. nēmō Rōmānus, not one Roman.

vitia autem hominum atque fraudēs damnis ignōminiis vinctis verberibus exsiliis morte damnantur (De Or. i. 43), but the vices and crimes of men are punished with fines, dishonor, chains, scourging, exile, death.

2. The ablative with dē, or the accusative with inter, in idiomatic expressions: as, — dē aleā, for gambling.

dē ambitū, for bribery.

inter sicarios, as an assassin (among the assassins).

dē vi et māiestātis damnāti (Phil. i. 9, 21), convicted of assault and treason.

3. The accusative with ad or in to express the penalty (late): as, — ad mortem (Tac.), to death. ad (in) metalla, to the mines.

NOTE.—The origin of these genitive constructions is pointed at by pecūniāe damnāre (Aul. Gell. xx. i. 38), to condemn to pay money, in a case of injury to the person; quantāe pecūniāe iudicātī essent (id. xx. i. 47), how much money they were adjudged to pay, in a mere suit for debt; cōfessī aeris ac dēbitī iudicātī (ibid.), adjudged to owe an admitted sum due. These expressions show that the genitive of the penalty comes from the use of the genitive of value to express a sum of money due either as a debt or as a fine. Since in early civilizations all offences could be compounded by the payment of fines, the genitive came to be used of other punishments, not pecuniary. From this to the genitive of the actual crime is an easy transition, inasmuch as there is always a confusion between crime and penalty (cf. Eng. guilty of death).

3. Verbs of Feeling.

221. Many verbs of Feeling take the genitive of the object which excites the feeling. Thus—

a. Verbs of pity, as miseror and miserēscō, are followed by the genitive: as, — miserescite rēgis (Æn. viii. 573), pity the king.

miserere animī nōn digna ferentis (id. ii. 144), pity a soul that endures unworthy things.

But miseror, commiseror, bewail, take the accusative: as, — commūnem condiōnem miserārī (Mur. 27, 55), bewail the common lot.

b. The impersonals miseret, paenitet, piget, pudet, taedet (or pertaesum est), take the Genitive of the cause of the feeling and the Accusative of the person affected: as, — hōs hominēs infāmiāe suae neque pudet neque taedet (Verr. i. 12), these men are neither ashamed nor weary of their dishonor. [Cf. it repenteth him of the evil.]

mē quidem miseret parietum ipsōrum (Phil. ii. 28), for my part I pity the very walls.

mē civitātis mōrum piget taedetque (Sall. Jug. 4), I am sick and disgusted with the ways of the state.

decemvirōrum vōs pertaesum est (Liv. iii. 67), you became tired of the decemvirs.

These are called Relative Adjectives (adiectiva relatiua) or Transitive Adjectives, and include the following: —

a. Adjectives denoting desire, knowledge, memory, fulness, power, sharing, guilt, and their opposites: as, — avidus laudis, greedy of praise.

fastidiōsus litterarum, disdainful of letters.

iūris peritus, skilled in law. [So also the ablative, iūre, cf. § 253.]

sui oblitus, forgetful of himself.

rationis et orationis expertes (Off. i. 16), devoid of sense and speech.

rei militaris imperitus, unskilled in military science.

vostri memor, mindful of you.

plēnus fidei, full of good faith.

egēnus omnis spei, destitute of all hope.

potēns tempestatum, having sway over the storms.

impotēns irae, ungovernable in anger.

particeps coniuratiōnis, sharing in the conspiracy.

affinis rei capitalis, involved in a capital crime.

insōns culpaē, innocent of guilt.

b. Verbals in -āx (§ 164. 1); also participles in -ns when used as adjectives, i.e. to denote a disposition and not a particular act: as, — iūstum et tenācem prōpositi virum (Hor. Od. iii. 3), a man just and steadfast to his purpose.

circus capax populi (Ov.), a circus big enough to hold the people.

cibi viniq̄ue capacissimus (Liv.), a very great eater and drinker (very able to contain food and wine).

si quem tui amantiorem cognovisti (Q. Fr. ix. 1), if you have become acquainted with any one more fond of you.

multitudo insolens belli (B. C. ii. 36), a crowd unused to war.

sitiens sanguinis, thirsting for blood (i.e. habitually bloodthirsty).

NOTE 1. — Participles in -ns, when used as participles, take the case regularly governed by the verb to which they belong: as, — Tiberius sitiens sanguinem (Tac.), Tiberius [then] thirsting for blood.

NOTE 2. — Occasionally participial forms in -ns are treated as participles (see note 1) even when they express a disposition or character: as, — virtus quam alii ipsam temperantiam dicunt esse, alii obtemperantem temperantiae praeceptis et eam subsequentem (Tusc. iv. 13, 30), observant of the teachings of temperance and obedient to her.

c. The poets and later writers use the genitive with almost any adjective, to denote that with reference to which the quality exists (Genitive of Specification): as, — callidus rei militaris (Tac. H. ii. 31), skilled in soldiership.

pauper aquae (Hor. Od. iii. 30. 11), scant of water.

notus animi paterni (id. ii. 2. 6), famed for a paternal spirit.

fessi rerum (Æn. i. 178), weary of toil.

integer vitae scelerisque purus (Hor.), upright in life, and unstained by guilt.

NOTE 1. — For the Ablative of Specification, the prose construction, see § 253.

NOTE 2. — The Genitive of Specification is only an extension of the construction with relative adjectives. Thus callidus denotes knowledge; pauper, want; purus, innocence; and so these words in a manner belong to the classes under a.

REMARK. — Adjectives of feeling are followed by the apparent genitive animi (really locative, cf. § 223. c): as, — aeger animi, sick at heart.

confusus animi, disturbed in spirit.

So by imitation —

sanus mentis et animi (Plaut. Trin. 454), sound in mind and heart.

audax ingenii (late), bold in disposition.

d. For adjectives of likeness, etc., with the genitive, apparently objective, see § 234. d.

III. GENITIVE WITH VERBS.

The Objective Genitive is used with some verbs.

1. Remembering and Forgetting.

219. Verbs of Remembering and Forgetting take the Genitive of the object when they are used of a continued state of mind, but the Accusative when used of a single act: as, —

1. Genitive: —

recordans superioris transmissiois (Att. iv. 17), remembering your former crossing.

animus meminit praeteritorum (Div. i. 30), the soul remembers the past.
venit mihi in mentem illius diei, I bethink me of that day (it comes into my mind of that day).

obliviscere caedis atque incendiorum (Cat. i. 3), turn your mind from slaughter and conflagrations.

nec unquam obliviscar illius noctis (Planc. 42, 101), and I shall never forget that night.

2. Accusative: —

totam causam oblitus est (Brut. 60), he forgot the whole case.

pueritiae memoriam recordari (Arch. 1), to recall the memory of childhood.

a. The Accusative is almost always used of a person or thing remembered by an eye-witness: as, — memineram Paullum (Lael. 2), I remembered Paulus.

b. Recordor, recollect, recall, denotes a single act and is therefore almost always followed by the Accusative: as, — recordāre cōnsēsum illum theātri (Phil. i. 30), recall that unanimous agreement of the [audience in the] theatre.

recordāmini omnis civilis dissēnsiōnēs (Cat. iii. 24), recall all the civil wars.

c. Verbs of reminding take with the accusative of the person a genitive of the thing; except in the case of a neuter pronoun, which is put in the accusative (cf. § 238. b).

Catilina admonēbat alium egestātis, alium cupiditātis suae (Sall. Cat. 21), Catiline reminded one of his poverty, another of his cupidity.

ūnum illud monēre tē possum, I can remind you of this one thing.

So admonēō, commoneō, commonefaciō, commonefīō. But moneō with the genitive is found only in late writers (cf. § 238. b. note).

NOTE. — All these verbs often take dē with the ablative, and the accusative of nouns as well as of pronouns is sometimes used with them: as, — saepius tē admonēō dē syngraphā Sittianā (Fam. viii. 14), I remind you again and again of the bond of Sittius.

officiū vestrum ut vōs malō cōgātis commonērier (Plaut. Ps. 150), to be reminded of your duty.

2. Charge and Penalty.

220. Verbs of Accusing, Condemning, and Acquitting, take the genitive of the charge or penalty: as, — arguit mē furti, he accuses me of theft.

peculātūs damnātus (pecūniae publicae damnātus) (Flac. 18), condemned for embezzlement.

videō nōn tē absolutū esse improbitātis, sed illōs damnātōs esse caedis (Verr. ii. 28), I see, not that you were acquitted of outrage, but that they were condemned for homicide.

a. Peculiar genitives, under this construction, are — capitis, as in damnāre capitis, to sentence to death.

māiestātis [laesae], treason (crime against the dignity of the State).

repetundārum [rērum], extortion (lit. of an action for claiming back money wrongfully taken).

vōti, in damnātus or reus vōti, bound [to the payment] of one's vow; i.e. successful in one's effort.

pecūniae (damnāre, iūdicāre, see note under 3, below).

dūpli, etc., as in dūpli condemnāre, condemn to pay twofold.

b. Other constructions for the charge or penalty are —

1. The ablative of price: regularly of a definite amount of fine, and often of indefinite penalties (cf. § 252. note): as, —

Frusinātēs tertiā parte agri damnāti (Liv. x. 1), the people of Frusino condemned [to forfeit] a third part of their land.

vitia autem hominum atque fraudēs damnis ignōminiis vinculis verberibus exiliis morte damnantur (De Or. i. 43), but the vices and crimes of men are punished with fines, dishonor, chains, scourging, exile, death.

2. The ablative with dē, or the accusative with inter, in idiomatic expressions: as, — dē aleā, for gambling.

dē ambitū, for bribery.

inter sicāriōs, as an assassin (among the assassins).

dē vī et maiestātis damnāti (Phil. i. 9, 21), convicted of assault and treason.

3. The accusative with ad or in to express the penalty (late): as, — ad mortem (Tac.), to death. ad (in) metalla, to the mines.

NOTE. — The origin of these genitive constructions is pointed at by pecūniāe damnāre (Aul. Gell. xx. 1, 38), to condemn to pay money, in a case of injury to the person; quantae pecūniāe iudicātū essent (id. xx. 1, 47), how much money they were adjudged to pay, in a mere suit for debt; cōfessi aeris ac dēbitū iudicātū (ibid.), adjudged to owe an admitted sum due. These expressions show that the genitive of the penalty comes from the use of the genitive of value to express a sum of money due either as a debt or as a fine. Since in early civilizations all offences could be compounded by the payment of fines, the genitive came to be used of other punishments, not pecuniary. From this to the genitive of the actual crime is an easy transition, inasmuch as there is always a confusion between crime and penalty (cf. Eng. guilty of death).

3. Verbs of Feeling.

221. Many verbs of Feeling take the genitive of the object which excites the feeling. Thus —

a. Verbs of pity, as miseror and miserēscō, are followed by the genitive: as, — miserēscite rēgis (Æn. viii. 573), pity the king.

miserēre animi nō digna ferentis (id. ii. 144), pity a soul that endures unworthy things.

But miseror, commiseror, bewail, take the accusative: as, — commūnem condiōnem miserāri (Mur. 27, 55), bewail the common lot.

b. The impersonals miseret, paenitet, piget, pudet, taedet (or pertaesum est), take the Genitive of the cause of the feeling and the Accusative of the person affected: as, —

hōs hominēs infāmiāe suae neque pudet neque taedet (Verr. i. 12), these men are neither ashamed nor weary of their dishonor. [Cf. it repenteth him of the evil.]

mē quidem miseret parietum ipsōrum (Phil. ii. 28), for my part I pity the very walls.

mē civitātis mōrum piget taedetque (Sall. Jug. 4), I am sick and disgusted with the ways of the state.

decemvirōrum vōs pertaesum est (Liv. iii. 67), you became tired of the decemvirs.

c. An infinitive, a clause, or the accusative (possibly nominative) of a neuter pronoun may be used with these impersonal verbs (except miseret) instead of the genitive of a noun: as, — mē paenitet haec fēcisse, I repent of having done this.

nihil quod paenitēre possit (Cic.), nothing that may cause repentance.

d. Miseret, etc., are sometimes used personally with a neuter pronoun as subject: as, — nōne tē haec pudet (Ter. Ad.), do not these things shame you?

4. Interest and Rēfert.

222. The impersonals interest and rēfert take the genitive of the person (rarely of the thing) affected: as, —

Clōdī intererat Milōnem perire (Mil. 21), it was the interest of Clodius that Milo should die.

faciundum esse aliquid quod illōrum magis quam suā rētulisse viderētur (Jug. 111), that something must be done which seemed to be more for their interest than his own.

videō enim quid meā intersit, quid utrīusque nostrū (Fam. vii. 23), for I see what is for my good and for the good of us both.

The subject of the verb is a neuter pronoun or a substantive clause.

a. Instead of the Genitive of a Personal Pronoun the corresponding Possessive is used in the ablative singular feminine after interest or rēfert: as, — quid tuā id rēfert? māgnī (Ter. Ph. 723), how does that concern you? much. [See also the last two examples above.]

vehementer intererat vestrā qui patrēs estis (Plin. Ep. iv. 13), it would be very much to your advantage, you who are fathers.

b. The accusative with ad is used with interest and rēfert to express the thing with reference to which one is interested: as, — māgnī ad honōrem nostrum interest (Fam. xvi. 1), it is of great consequence to our honor.

rēfert etiam ad fructū (Varr. R. R. i. 16), it makes a difference as to the crop.

NOTE.—Very rarely the Person is expressed by ad and the Accusative, or (with rēfert) by the Dative (probably a popular corruption): as, — quid id ad mē aut ad meam rem rēfert (Plaut. Pers. iv. 3, 44), what difference does that make to me or to my interests?

quid rēferat intrā nātūrae finēs vīventī (Hor. Sat. i. 1. 49), what difference does it make to me who live within the limits of natural desire?

So, nil rēferre dēdecorī (Tac. Ann. xv. 65), that it makes no difference as to the disgrace.

5. Verbs of Plenty and Want.

223. Some verbs of Plenty and Want govern the genitive: as, — quid est quod dēfēnsiōnis indigeat? (Rosc. Am. 12), what is there that needs defence?

satagit rērum suarum, he has his hands full with his own affairs.

NOTE. — But verbs of plenty and want more commonly take the ablative (see §§ 243. a, 248. c.), except egeō, indigeō, satagō.

6. Other Verbs.

a. The genitive sometimes follows potior, get possession of; as always in the phrase potiri rērum, to be master of affairs. Thus, — illius rēgni potiri (Fam. i. 7, 5), to become master of that kingdom.

Cleanthes sōlem dominari et rērum potiri putat (Ac. ii. 41, 126), Cleanthes thinks the sun holds sway and is lord of the universe.

But potior usually takes the ablative (see § 249).

b. Some other verbs rarely take the Genitive: —

1. By analogy with those mentioned in § 221: as, — neque huius sis veritus fēminae primariae (Ter. Ph. 971), and you had no respect for this highborn lady.

2. As akin to adjectives which take the genitive: as, — fastidit mei (Plaut. Aul. 243), he disdains me. [Cf. fastidiōsus.]

studet tui (quoted N. D. iii. 29), he is zealous for you. [Cf. studiōsus.]

3. In imitation of the Greek: as, — iūstitiaene prius mirer, belline labōrum (Æn. xi. 126), shall I rather admire [his] justice or his toils in war?

neque ille sēpositi ciceris nec longae invidit avēnae (Hor. Sat. ii. 6. 84), nor does he grudge his garnered peas, etc. [But cf. invidus, parcus.]

abstinētō irarum (Hor. Od. iii. 27. 69), refrain from wrath (but cf. §§ 223, 243. f. Rem.).

labōrum decipitur (Hor. Od. ii. 13. 38), he is beguiled of his woes.

nec sermōnis fallēbat (Plaut. Ep. 240), nor did I miss the conversation.

mē labōrum levās (Plaut. Rud. 247), you relieve me of my troubles.

c. The apparent Genitive animi (really Locative) is used with a few verbs of feeling and the like (cf. § 218. c. Rem.): as, — Antiphō mē excruciat animi (Ter. Ph. 187), Antipho tortures my mind (me in my mind).

animi pendeō (Pl. Merc. 127), I am in suspense.

mē animi fallit (Lucr. i. 922), my mind deceives me.

So, by analogy, dēsiipiēbam mentis (Pl. Epid. 140), I was out of my head.

IV. PECULIAR GENITIVES.

d. A genitive occurs rarely in Exclamations, in imitation of the Greek (Genitive of Exclamation): as, — di immortālēs, mercimōnī lepidī (Plaut. Most. 895), good heavens! what a charming bargain.

foederis heu tacitī (Prop. iv. 7. 23), alas for the unspoken agreement.

e. The genitive is often used with the ablatives causā,¹ grātiā, for the sake of; ergō, because of; and the indeclinable īnstar, like; also with prīdiē, the day before; postrīdiē, the day after; tenus, as far as; as, — honōris causā, with due respect (for the sake of honor).

verbī grātiā, for example.

ēius lēgis ergō, on account of this law.

equus īnstar montis (Æn. ii. 15), a horse like (the image of) a mountain.

laterum tenus (Æn. x. 210), as far as the sides.

NOTE 1. — Of these the genitive with causā is like that in nōmen īnsāniāe (§ 214. f). The others are of various origin.

NOTE 2. — In prose of the Republican Period prīdiē and postrīdiē are thus used only in the expressions prīdiē (postrīdiē) ēius diēi, the day before (after) that (cf. the eve, the morrow of that day). Tacitus uses the construction with other words: as, postrīdiē īnsidiārum, the day after the plot. For the accusative, see § 261. a. Tenus takes also the ablative (§ 260. e).

II. — DATIVE.

NOTE. — The Dative seems to be closely akin to the Locative (cf. οἶκος, at home, with οἶκος, to a house), and must have had the primary meaning of to or towards. But this local meaning appears in Latin only in the poets (§ 225. b. 3) and in some adverbial forms (as hūc, illūc, thither, cf. § 148. note, γ).

In Latin the Dative has two classes of derived meanings: —

1. The Dative denotes an object not as caused by the action, or directly affected by it (like the Accusative), but as reciprocally sharing in the action or receiving it consciously or actively. Thus in dedit puerō librum, he gave the boy a book, or fēcit mihi iniūriam, he did me a wrong, there is an idea of the boy receiving the book, and of my feeling the wrong. Hence expressions denoting persons or things with personal attributes are more likely to be in the dative than those denoting mere things.² See examples under § 224.

This difference between the Accusative and the Dative (i.e. between the Direct and the Indirect Object) depends upon the point of view implied in the verb or existing in the mind of the writer. Hence verbs of similar meaning (to an English mind) often differ in the case of their object (see § 227. a and b).

2. The Dative is used to express the purpose of an action or that for which it serves (see § 233). This construction is especially used with abstract expressions, or those implying an action.

¹ Compare the English for his sake, on my account.

² So in Spanish the dative is used whenever a person is the object of an action; yo veo al hombre, I see [to] the man

These two classes of Datives approach each other in some cases and are occasionally confounded, as in § 234 (cf. especially § 234. b).

The uses of the Dative, arranged practically, are the following : —

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1. As INDIRECT OBJECT
(general use) : | { 1. With Transitives (§ 225).
2. With Intransitives (§§ 226–28, 230).
1. Of Possession (with esse) (§ 231).
2. Of Agency (with Gerundive) (§ 232).
3. Of Purpose or End (predicate use) (§ 233).
4. Of Fitness, etc. (with Adjectives) (§ 234).
5. Of Reference (dativus commodi) (§§ 235, 236). |
| 2. Special or Idiomatic Uses : | |

224. The Dative is used of the object indirectly affected by an action.

This is called the Indirect Object (§ 177). It is usually denoted in English by the Objective with to or for. Thus, — dat librum puerō, he gives a book to the boy.

cēdite temporī, yield to the occasion.
prōvincia Cicerōnī obtigit, the province fell by lot to Cicero.
inimicis nōn crēdimus, we do not trust [to] our enemies.
civitātis salūtī cōsulite, consult for the safety of the State.
sic mihi vidētur, so it seems to me. indicāvit mihi Pansa, Pansa has made known to me.
hōc tibi spondeō, I promise [to] you this.

1. Indirect Object with Transitives.

225. The Dative of the Indirect Object with the Accusative of the Direct may be used with any transitive verb whose meaning allows (see § 177) : as, — dō tibi librum, I give you a book.

illud tibi affirmō (Fam. i. 7), this I assure you.
commendō tibi eius omnia negōtia (Fam. i. 1), I put all his affairs in your hands.
dabis profectō miseri cordiæ quod irācundiæ negāvistī (id. 14), you will surely grant to mercy what you refused to wrath.
litterās ā tē mihi stator tuus reddidit (Fam. i. 17), delivered to me a letter.

a. Many verbs have both a transitive and an intransitive use (§ 177. note). These take either the Accusative with the Dative, or the Dative alone : as, — hanc pecūniam tibi crēdō, I trust this money to you. [Transitive.] in hāc rē tibi crēdō, I trust you in this. [Intransitive.]

b. Certain verbs implying motion vary in their construction between the Dative of the Indirect Object and the Accusative of the End or Motion (§ 258. b). Thus —

1. Some verbs take the Accusative (with or without a preposition) instead of the Indirect Object, when the idea of Motion prevails (§ 258): as, — litteras quas ad Pompēiū scripsī (Att. iii. 9), the letter which I have written [and sent] to Pompey. [Cf. nōn quō habērem quod tibi scriberem (Att. iv. 4), not that I had anything to write to you.] litterae extemplō Rōmā scriptae (Liv. xli. 16), a letter was immediately written [and sent] to Rome.

hostēs in fugam dat (B. G. v. 51), he puts the enemy to flight. [Cf. ut mē dem fugae (Att. viii. 23), to take to flight.] cūr saepius ad mō litterās dedissēs (Fam. iv. 4), why you had several times written letters [addressed] to me.

nullās eis praeterquam ad tē et ad Brūtum dedī litteras (id. iii. 7), I have given to them (the messengers) no letters except (addressed) to you, etc.
omnēs rem ad Pompēiū dēferri volunt (id. i. 1), all wish the matter to be put in the hands of Pompey.

an iterum sē reddat in arma (Æn. x. 684), or should throw himself again into the fight (only poetic).

2. On the other hand, many verbs usually followed by the Accusative with ad or in, take the Dative when the idea of motion is merged in some other idea: as, — nec quicquam quod nōn mihi Caesar dētulerit (Fam. iv. 13), and nothing which Caesar did not communicate to me.

mihi litterās mittere (Fam. vii. 12), to send me a letter.

eum librum tibi misi (id. vii. 19), I sent you that book.

Catōnem tuum mihi mitte (id. vii. 24), send me your Cato.

cūrēs ut mihi vehantur (id. viii. 4, end), take care that they be conveyed to me.

cum alius aliī subsidium ferrent (B. G. ii. 26), while one lent aid to another.

quibus (cōpiis rex Dēiotarus) imperātōribus nostris auxilia mitteret (Deiot. 8, 22), with which (troops) king D. might send reinforcements to our generals.

3. In poetry the End of Motion is often expressed by the dative (see § 258. note 1).

c. For the Dative of the person and the Accusative of the thing after verbs of threatening and the like, see § 227. f

d. Certain verbs may take either the Dative of the person and the Accusative of the thing, or (in a different sense) the Accusative of the person and the Ablative of the thing: as, — dōnat corōnās suis, he presents wreaths to his men; or, dōnat suōs corōnis, he presents his men with wreaths.

*vincula exuere sibi (Ov. M. vii. 772), to shake off the leash (from himself).

omnēs armīs exuit (B. G. v. 51), he stripped them all of their arms.

āram sanguine adspargere (N. D. iii. 36), to sprinkle the altar with blood.

ārae sanguinem adspargere, to sprinkle blood upon the altar.

Such are dōnō, impertiō, indūō, exūō, adspergō, inspergō, circumdō, circumfundō, prohibeō, interclūdō, and in poetry accingō, implicō, and similar verbs.

NOTE 1. — Interdicō, forbid, takes either (1) the dative of the person and the accusative of the thing, or (2) the dative of the person and the ablative of the thing: as, — interdixit histriōnibus scaenam (Suet. Dom. 7), he forbade the actors [to appear on] the stage (he prohibited the stage to the actors). [Cf. interdictum est mare Antiātī populō (Liv. viii. 14), the sea was forbidden to the people of Antium.] fēminis (dat.) purpuræ ūsū interdīcēmus (Liv. xxxiv. 7), shall we forbid women the wearing of purple?

aquā et ignī alicui interdīcere, to forbid the use of fire and water.

NOTE 2. — The Dative with the Accusative is used in poetry with many verbs of preventing, protecting, and the like, which usually take the Accusative and Ablative. Interclūdō and arceō sometimes take the Dative and Accusative, even in prose: as, — hīsce omnis aditūs ad Sullam interclūdere (Rosc. Am. 38, 110), to shut these men off from all access to Sulla (close to them every approach).

[Cf. utī frūmentō commeātūque Caesarem interclūderet (B. G. i. 48) to shut Caesar off from grain and supplies.] hunc (oestrum) arcebis pecorī (Georg. iii. 154), you shall keep this away from the flock. [Cf. illum arcuit Galliā (Phil. v. 13), he excluded him from Gaul.] sōlstitium pecorī dēfendite (Ecl. vii. 47), keep the summer heat from the flock.

e. Verbs which in the active voice take the accusative and dative retain the dative when used in the passive: as, —

haec nobis nūntiantur, these things are told us. [Active: haec [quīdam] nobis nūntiat.]

Crassō divitiāe nōn invidentur, Crassus is not envied for his wealth. [Active: Crassō divitiās nōn invidet.] decem talenta oppidānis imperantur, ten talents are exacted of the townspeople. [Active: imperat oppidānis decem talenta.]

2. Indirect Object with Intransitives.

226. The Dative of the Indirect Object may be used with any Intransitive verb whose meaning allows: as, — cēdant arma togae (Phil. i. 8), let arms give place to the gown.

Caesari respondet, he replies to Caesar.

Caesari respondētur, Caesar is replied to (see § 230).

crēdimus nūntiō, we believe the messenger.

nūntiō crēditur, the messenger is believed.

respondi m̄ximis criminibus (Phil. i. 14), I have answered the heaviest charges.

ut ita cuique ēveniat (id. 46), that it may so turn out to each.

NOTE 1. — Intransitive verbs have no Direct Object. The Indirect Object, therefore, in these cases stands alone (but cf. § 225. a).

NOTE 2. — Cēdō, yield, sometimes takes the Ablative of the thing along with the Dative of the person: as, — cēdere alicui possēssione hortōrum (Mil. 27, 75), to give up to one the possession of a garden.

a. Many phrases consisting of a noun with the copula sum or a copulative verb are equivalent to an intransitive verb and take a kind of indirect object (cf. § 235): as, — auctor esse alicui, to advise or instigate one (cf. persuādeō).

quis huic rei testis est (Quinc. 11), who testifies (is witness) to this fact? is finis populātiōnibus fuit (Liv. ii. 30), this put an end to the raids.

b. The dative is sometimes used without a copulative verb in a sense approaching that of the genitive (cf. §§ 227. d, 235. a): as, — lēgātus Caesari, a lieutenant to Caesar (i.e. a man assigned to Caesar).

hērēs frātri suo, his brother's heir (heir to his brother).

ministri sceleribus, agents of crime.

NOTE. — The cases in a and b differ from the constructions of § 227. note 2, and § 235 in that the dative is more closely connected in idea with some single word to which it serves as an indirect object.

3. Dative with Special Verbs.

Many verbs of apparently transitive meaning in English correspond to verbs intransitive in Latin. Thus:—

227. Most verbs signifying to favor, help, please, trust, and their contraries; also to believe, persuade, command, obey, serve, resist, envy, threaten, pardon, and spare,¹ take the dative: as. — cūr mihi invidēs, why do you envy me?

mihi parcat atque ignōscit, he spares and pardons me.

ignōsce patriō dolōri (Liv. iii. 48), excuse a father's grief.

sontibus opitulāri poteram (Fam. iv. 13), I was able to help the guilty.

nōn omnibus serviō (id. xvi. 13), I am not a servant to every man.

cum cēteris tum mihi ipsi displiceō (id. iv. 13), I dissatisfy other people and myself too.

nōn parcam operae (id. xvi. 13), I will spare no pains.

sic mihi persuāsi (Cat. M. 21), so I have persuaded myself.

mihi Fabius ignōscere dēbēbit si minus eius fāmae parcere vidēbor quam ante cōsului (Tull. 3), Fabius will have to pardon me if I seem to spare his reputation less than, etc.

huic legiōni Caesar cōfidēbat māximē (B. G. i. 40), in this legion Caesar trusted most.

NOTE 1.—In these verbs the Latin retains an original intransitive meaning. Thus: invidēre, to envy, was originally to look askance at one; servīre is to be a slave to; suādere is to make a thing pleasant (sweet) to one.

NOTE 2.—Some common phrases regularly take the dative precisely like verbs of similar meaning. Such are—praestō esse, be on hand (cf. adesse).

mōrem gerere, humor (cf. mōrigerārī).

grātum facere, do a favor (cf. grātificārī).

dictō audiēns esse, be obedient (cf. oboedīre).

cui fidem habēbat (B. G. i. 19), in whom he had confidence (cf. cōnfidēbat).

So also many phrases where no corresponding verb exists. Such are—bene (male, pulchrē, aegrē, etc.) esse, to be well (ill, etc.) off.

iniūriam facere, do injustice to.

diem dicere, bring to trial (name a day for, etc.).

agere grātiās, to express one's thanks.

habēre grātiām, to feel thankful.

referre grātiām, to repay a favor.

opus esse, be necessary.

damnum dare, inflict an injury.

acceptum (expēsum) ferre (esse), to credit (charge).

honōrem habēre, to pay honor to.

a. Some verbs apparently of the same meanings take the Accusative.

Such are iuvō, adiuvō, help; laedō, injure; iubeō, order; dēficiō, fail; dēlectō, please. Thus,— hic pulvis oculum meum laedit, this dust hurts my eye. [Cf. multa oculis nocent, many things are injurious to the eyes.]

b. Some verbs are used transitively with the Accusative or intransitively with the Dative without perceptible difference of meaning.

Such are adūlor (generally accusative), aemulor (rarely dative), comitor, dēspērō, praestōlor, medeor, medicor. Thus,— adūlātus est Antōniō (Nep. Att. 8), he flattered Antony.

adūlārī Nerōnem (Tac. Ann. xvi. 19), to flatter Nero.

c. Some verbs are used transitively with the Accusative or intransitively with the Dative with a difference of meaning.¹

partī civium cōsulunt (Off. i. 25), they consult for a part of the citizens.
 cum tē cōsuluissem (Fam. xi. 29), when I had consulted you. metuēns pueris (Plaut. Am. 1113), anxious for the children.
 nec metuunt deōs (Ter. Hec. v. 2), they fear not even the gods. [So also timeō.]

prospicite patriae (Cat. iv. 2), have regard for the State.
 prospicere sēdem senectūti (Liv. iv. 49), to provide a habitation for old age.
 [So also prōvideō.]

NOTE. — Fidō and cōnfidō, trust, take either the Dative or the Ablative: as, — legiōnis decimae cui quam m̄ximē cōfidēbat (B. G. i. 42), of the tenth legion, in which he had the utmost confidence.
 multum nātūrā loci cōfidēbant (B. G. i. 9), they had great confidence in the strength of their position (the nature of the place).

d. Some verbal nouns — as insidiae, ambush; invidia, envy — take the dative like the verbs from which they are derived: as, — invidia cōsulī (Sall.), ill-will against the consul (cf. invidēō).
 obtemperatiō lēgibus (Leg. 15), obedience to the laws (cf. obtemperō).
 sibi ipsi respōsiō (De Or. iii. 54), an answer to himself (cf. respondeō).

NOTE. — In these cases the dative depends immediately upon the verbal force of the noun and not on any complex idea (cf. § 226. a and b).

e. The Dative is also used: —

1. With the impersonals libet (lubet), it pleases; licet, it is allowed: as, — quod mihī m̄ximē lubet (Fam. i. 18), what most pleases me. quasi tibi nōn liceret (Fam. vi. 8), as if you were not permitted.

2. With verbs compounded with satis, bene, and male: as, — mihī ipsī numquam satisfaciō (Fam. i. 17), I never satisfy myself.
optimō virō maledicere (Deiot. 10), to speak ill of a most excellent man. pulchrum est benefacere reipublicae (Sall. Cat. 3), it is a glorious thing to benefit the State.

NOTE. — These are not real compounds, but phrases, and were apparently felt as such by the Romans. Thus: — satis officiō meō, satis illōrum voluntāti quī ā mē hōc petivērunt factum esse arbitrābor (Verr. II. v. 49, 130), that enough has been done for, etc.

3. With the following: grātificor, grātulor, haereō (rarely), nūbō, permittō, plaudō, probō, studeō, supplicō, excellō: as, — haerentem capitī corōnam (Hor. S. i. 10), a wreath clinging to the head.

 Pompēiō sē grātificārī putant (Fam. i. 1), they suppose they are doing Pompey a service.

tibi permittō respondēre (N. D. iii. 1), I give you leave to answer.
 grātulor tibi, mī Balbe (Fam. vi. 12), I congratulate you, my dear Balbus. mihī plaudō ipse domi (Hor. S. i. 1. 66), I applaud myself at home.

cūr tibi hōc nōn grātificer nesciō (Fam. i. 10), why I should not gratify you in this I don't know.

cum inimici M. Fontēi vōbīs ac populō Rōmānō minentur, amici ac propinqui supplicent vōbīs (Font. 15, 35), while the enemies of M. Fontei are threatening you and the Roman people too, while his friends and relatives are beseeching you.

ut voluerint populō supplicāre (Leg. Ag. ii. 7, 18), when they wished to make supplication to the people.

NOTE. — Mīsceō and lungō sometimes take the dative (see § 248. a. Rem.). Haereō usually takes the ablative, with or without in.

f. Many verbs ordinarily intransitive often have an Accusative of the direct object along with the Dative of the indirect (cf. § 225. a) : as, — cui cum rēx crucem minitārētur (Tusc. i. 43), when the king threatened him with the cross.

imperat oppidānis decem talenta, he exacts of the townspeople ten talents.

omnia sibi ignōscere (Vell. ii. 30), to pardon one's self everything.

Crassō dīvitias nōn invidēō, I do not envy Crassus his wealth.

4. Dative with Compounds.

228. Most verbs compounded with ad, ante, con, in, inter, ob, post, prae, prō, sub, super, and some with circum, are followed by the dative of the indirect object : as, — neque enim adsentior eīs (Lael. 3), for I do not agree with them.

tempestātī obsequi artis est (Fam. i. 9), it is a point of skill to yield to the weather.

omnibus negōtiis nōn interfuit solum sed praefuit (id. i. 6), he not only had a hand in all matters, but took the lead in them.

quantum naturā hominis pecudibus antecēdit (Off. i. 30), so far as man's nature is superior to brutes.

nec unquam succumbet inimicis (Dei. 13), he will never yield to his foes.

illis libellis nomen suum inscribunt (Arch. 13), they put their own name to those papers.

cūr mihi tē offers, ac meis commodis officiis et obstās (Rosc. Am. 38), why do you offer yourself to me, and then hinder and withstand my advantage?

NOTE 1. — In these cases the dative depends not on the preposition, but on the compound verb in its acquired meaning. Hence if the acquired meaning is not suited to an indirect object, the original construction of the simple verb remains or some different construction arises. Thus in convocat suōs, he calls his men together, the idea of calling is not so modified as to make an indirect object appropriate. So hominem interficere, to make way with a man (kill him). But in praeficere imperatōrem bellō, to put a man as commander-in-chief in charge of a war, the idea resulting from the composition is suited to an indirect object (see also a and c, and § 237. d).

NOTE 2. — Some of these verbs being originally transitive take also a direct object: as, nō offerāmus nōs periculis (Off. i. 24), that we may not expose ourselves to perils.

NOTE 3. — The construction of § 228 is not different in its nature from that of §§ 225 and 226; but the compound verbs make a convenient group.

a. Some compounds of ad, ante, ob, with a few others, have acquired a transitive meaning, and take the accusative (cf. § 237. d):¹ as, — nōs oppūgnat (Fam. i. 1), he opposes us.

quis audeat bene comitātum aggredi (Phil. xii. 23), who would dare encounter a man well attended?

mūnus obire (Lael. 2), to attend to a duty.

b. The adjective obvius and the adverb obviam with a verb take the dative: as, — si ille obvius eī futūrus nōn erat (Mil. 18), if he was not intending to get in his way.

mihi obviam vēnistī (Fam. ii. 16), you came to meet me.

c. When place or motion is distinctly thought of, the verbs mentioned in § 228 regularly take a noun with a preposition, instead of the dative: as, in vīceribus inhaerere (Tusc. iv. 11, 24), it remains fixed in the vitals.

homini coniūctō mēcum (Tull. 2, 3), to a man united to me.

convenit mihi cum adversariō (Tull. 9, 23), my adversary and I agree (it agrees to me with my adversary).

cum hōc concurrit ipse Eumenēs (Nep. Eum. 4, 1), with him Eumenes himself engages in combat (runs together).

quae ā ceterarū gentiū mōre dissentiunt (Font. 13, 30), which differ from the custom of all other nations.

inserite oculōs in cūriam (Font. 19, 43), fix your eyes on the senate-house.

ignis quī est ob ōs offūsus (Univ. 14), the fire which is diffused before the sight.

obicitur contrā istōrū impetūs Macedonia (Font. 20, 44), Macedonia is set to withstand their attacks. [Cf. si quis vōbīs error obiectus (Cæc. 2, 5), if any mistake has been caused you.

sē iniectūrōs vōbīs causam dēliberandi (Cæc. 2, 4), that they would give you occasion for considering.] in segetem flamma incidit (Æn. ii. 305), the fire falls upon the standing corn.

NOTE. — But the usage varies in different authors, in different words, and often in the same word in the same sense. The dictionary must be consulted for each verb.

229. Many verbs of *taking away*² and the like take the Dative (especially of a person) instead of the Ablative of Separation (§ 243):³ as, —

² The dative in these constructions represents the action as done to the object, and is thus more vivid than the ablative.

³ Such verbs are compounds of ab, dē, ex, and a few of ad.

mulieri anulum detrāxit, he took a ring from the woman.

bona mihi abstulisti, you have robbed me of my gains.

vitam adulescentibus vis aufert (C. M. 19), violence deprives young men of life.

nihil enim tibi detrāxit senectūs (id. 1), for age has robbed you of nothing.

nec mihi hunc errorem extorquēri volō (id. 23), nor do I wish this error wrested from me.

a. The distinct idea of motion,—and, in general, names of things,—require the ablative with a preposition (§ 258. a): as, — illum ex periculō ēripuit (B. G. iv. 12), he dragged him out of danger.

b. Sometimes the dative of the person and the ablative of the thing with a preposition are both used with the same verb: as, — victōriam ēripi sibi ē manibus, that victory should be wrested from his hands (cf. § 243. b).

c. The dative is often used by the poets in constructions which would in prose require a noun with a preposition. So especially with verbs of contending (§ 248. b): as, — contendis Homērō (Prop. i. 7, 3), you vie with Homer. [In prose: cum Homērō.]

placitōne etiam pugnābis amōrī (Æn. iv. 38), will you struggle even against a love that pleases you?

tibi certat (Ecl. v. 8), vies with you. [tēcum.]

differt sermōnī (Hor. S. i. 4. 48), differs from prose. [ā sermōne, § 243.]

sōlstitium pecorī dēfendite (Ecl. vii. 47), keep the noontide heat from the flock. [ā pecore.]

laterī abdidit ēnsem (Æn. ii. 553), buried the sword in his side. [in latere, § 260. a.]

[For the Dative instead of ad with the Accusative, see § 225. b. 3.]

230. The passive of intransitive verbs that govern the dative can be used only impersonally (§ 146. d). Such verbs retain the dative in this use (cf. § 225. e).

cui parci potuit (Liv. xxi. 12), who could be spared?

nōn modo nōn invidētur illī aetātī vērūm etiam favētur (Off. ii. 13), that age (youth) is not only not envied, but is even favored.

temporī serviendum est (Fam. ix. 7), we must serve the exigency of the occasion (the time).

5. Dative of Possession.

231. The Dative is used with esse and similar words to denote Possession: as, — homīni cum deō similitūdō est (Cic.), man has a likeness to God (there is to man, etc.).

quibus opēs nullae sunt (Sall. Cat. 37), [those] who have no wealth.
est mihi domi pater (Ecl. iii. 33), I have a father at home.

REMARK.—The Genitive or a Possessive with esse emphasizes the possessor; the Dative, the fact of possession: as, liber est meus, the book is mine (and no one's else); est mihi liber, I have a book (among other things). The latter is the usual form to denote simple possession, since habeo, have, generally signifies hold, often with some secondary meaning: as,— legiōnem quam secum habēbat (B. G. i. 8), the legion which he kept with him.

domitās habere libidinēs (De Or.), to keep the passions under control.

a. Compounds of esse take the dative (except abesse and posse):
as,— deest mihi pecūnia, I lack money.

quid mihi prōderit? in what will it help me (what will it profit me)?

b. After nōmen est, and similar expressions, the name is usually put in the dative by a kind of apposition with the person: as,— cui Africānō fuit cōgnōmen (Liv. xxv. 2), whose (to whom) surname was Africanus.

puerō ab inopiā Egeriō inditum nōmen (Liv. i. 34), the name Egerius was given the boy from his poverty.

c. The name may also be in apposition with nōmen; or in later Latin in the genitive (cf. § 214. f): as,— cui nōmen Arethūsa (Verr. iv. 52), [a fount] called Arethusa (to which is the name Arethusa).

puerō nōmen est Mārcus (Mārci), the boy's name is Marcus (to the boy, etc.).

Q. Metellō Macedonicī nōmen inditum est (Vel. Pat. i. 11), to Q. Metellus the name of Macedonicus was given.

6. Dative of the Agent.

232. The Dative of the Agent is used with the gerundive, to denote the person on whom the necessity rests:
as,—

haec vōbīs prōvincia est dēfendenda (Man. 6), this province is for you to defend (to be defended by you).

mihi est pugnandum, I have to fight (i.e. the need of fighting is to me; compare mihi est liber, I have a book, § 231. Rem.).

NOTE.—This is the regular way of expressing the agent with the Second or Passive Periphrastic Conjugation (§ 113. d. 1). But when a dative is expressed governed by the verb itself, and rarely at other times, the agent is denoted by the Ablative with ab (§ 246) to avoid ambiguity: as,— quibus est a vobis consulendum (Manil. 2, 6), for whom you must consult (for whom it must be consulted by you).

rem ab omnibus vobis providendam (Rab. 2, 4), that the matter must be attended to by all of you.

(Cf. isti principes et sibi et ceteris populi Romani universi auctoritati parendum esse fateantur (Manil. 22, 64), let these leading men admit that both by them and by everybody else the authority of the Roman people as a whole must be obeyed. [Here there was no danger of ambiguity.]

a. The dative of the agent is common after perfect participles (especially when used in an adjective sense), but rare after other parts of the verb: as, — mihi deliberatum et constitutum est (Rull. i. 8), I have deliberated and re- solved (it has been deliberated by me).

mihi res tota provisa est (Verr. II. iv. 42, 91), the matter has been fully provided for by me.

sic dissimilibus bestiolis communiter cibus quaeritur (N. D. ii. 48), so by very different creatures food is sought in common.

b. The dative of the agent is used by the poets and later writers after almost any passive verb: as, — neque cernitur ulli (Æn. i. 440), nor is seen by any.

felix est dicta sorori (Ov. Fast. iii.), she was called happy by her sister.

c. The dative of the person who sees or thinks is regularly used after videor, seem: as, — videtur mihi, it seems (or seems good) to me.

dis aliter visum [est] (Æn. ii. 428), it seemed otherwise to the gods.

videor mihi perspicere ipsius animum (Fam. iv. 13), I seem (to myself) to see the soul of the man himself.

NOTE. — The verb probare, approve (originally a mercantile word), takes a Dative of Reference (§ 235), which has become so firmly attached that it is retained with the passive, seemingly as Dative of Agent: as, — haec sententia et illi et nobis probabatur (Fam. i. 7, 4), this view met both his approval and mine (was made acceptable both to him and to me).

mihi egregie probata est oratio tua (Tusc. iv. 4, 8), your discourse was very satisfactory to me.

7. Dative of the Purpose or End.

233. The Dative is used to denote the Purpose or End.

This construction, once apparently general in its use, remains in only a few constructions. Thus —

a. The dative of an abstract noun is used to show that for which a thing serves or which it accomplishes (Dative of Service), often with another dative of the person or thing affected: ¹ as, — rei publicae clādī sunt (Jug. 85), they are ruin to the State (for a disaster).

māgnō ūsuī nostris fuit (B. G. iv. 25), it was of great service to our men (for great use).

tertiā aciem nostris subsidiō misit (id. i. 52), he sent the third line as a relief to our men.

omnia deerant quae ad reficiendās nāvēs erant ūsuī (id. iv. 29), all things were wanting which were of use for repairing the ships.

ēvenit facile quod dis cordī esset (Liv. i. 39), that came to pass easily which was desired by the gods (was for a pleasure [lit. heart] to the gods).

NOTE. — The word frūgī used as an adjective is a dative of this kind: as, — cōgis mē dicere inimicum frūgī (Cic.), you compel me to call my enemy honest.

hominēs satis fortēs et plānē frūgī (Verr. ii. 3, 27), men brave enough and thoroughly honest.

(Cf. erō frūgī bonae (Plaut. Pseud. 468), I will be good for something.)

b. The Dative of Purpose of concrete nouns is used in prose in a few military expressions, and with freedom in poetry: as, — receptūī canere, to sound a retreat.

locum castris capere, to select a site for a camp.

optāvit locum rēgnō (Æn. iii. 109), he chose a place for a kingdom.

NOTE. — The construction of purpose or end is found in the dative of the Gerundive (§ 299. b) and after Adjectives (§ 234).

8. Dative with Adjectives.

234. The dative is used after adjectives or adverbs, to denote that to which the given quality is directed, for which it exists, or towards which it tends.

¹ The following characteristics have been observed in the use of the Predicate Dative (dative of Service): 1. the noun is semi-abstract; 2. it is so used only in the singular; 3. it is "used predicatively"; 4. generally with esse; 5. rarely qualified by an adjective; 6. or by a genitive or a phrase; 7. but few nouns are used in this way; 8. the use and its limitations appear to be governed by custom, not by any principle. It is common with about 40 nouns, and is found with 185 in all. Of these dōnō, mūnerī, vitiō, are not used with esse. The verbs with which it exists are habēō, dō, dīcō, dūcō, pōnō, vertō, with esse and its equivalents, as fieri, etc. The nouns most commonly found in this construction are, aditūmentō, auxiliō, cordī, criminī, cūrae, damnō, decorī, dēdecorī, dōnō, exemplō, exitīō, fraudī (damage), honōrī, indiciō, invidiae, impedimentō, laudī, lūdibriō, malō, morae, odiō, onerī, ornāmentō, praedae, praesidiō, probrō, pudōrī, receptūī, remediō, salūtī, subsidiō, terrōrī, vitiō, voluptātī, ūsūī. — Roby's Latin Grammar, ii. xxxvii. seq.

a. The dative is used with adjectives (and a few adverbs) of fitness, nearness, likeness, service, inclination, and their opposites: as, — nihil est tam nātūrae aptum (Lael. 5), nothing is so fitted to nature.

nihil difficile amantī putō (Or. 10), I think nothing hard to a lover.

pompae quam pūgnae aptius (id. 13), fitter for a procession than for battle.

rēbus ipsis pār et aequalis ōrātiō (id. 36), a speech equal and level with the subject.

castris idōneum locum dēligit (B. G. i. 49), a suitable place for a camp.

tribūni nobis sunt amici (Q. Fr. i. 2), the tribunes are friendly to us.

cupidis rerum talium odiōsum fortasse et molestum est carere (Cat. Maj. 14, 47), to those who are desirous of such things, it is perhaps hateful and disagreeable to do without them.

nec eum . . . aut invisum deō aut neglectum ā deō iudicemus (N. D. ii. 66, 167), and let us not deem him either hateful to God or disregarded by God.

esse propitius potest nēminī (N. D. i. 44, 124), he can be gracious to nobody.
est hominum generi prosperus et salūtāris ille fulgor (Rep. vi. 17, 17), that radiance is favorable and beneficial to the race of men.

ceterae res quae expetuntur opportūnae sunt singulae rēbus singulis (Lael. 6, 22), all other things that are sought after are suitable each to some particular thing.

magnis autem viris prosperae semper omnes res (N. D. ii. 66, 167), but to great men everything is always favorable.

sedes huic nostrō nō importūna sermōnī (De Or. iii. 5, 18), a place not unsuitable for this conversation of ours.

adversissimi nāvigantibus ventī (B. C. iii. 107), winds most adverse for those who sail.

sed nōn quicquid tibi audire ūtile est, id mihi dicere necesse est (Off. iii. 12, 52), but not everything that is useful for you to hear is necessary for me to say.

cui fundō erat affinis M. Tullius (Tull. 6, 14), to which estate M. Tullius was next neighbor.

convenienter nātūrae vivere (Off. iii. 3, 13), to live in accordance with nature (δμολογουμένως τῇ φύσει).

congruenter nātūrae (Fin. iii. 7, 26), in harmony with nature.

NOTE 1. — So, also, in poetic and colloquial use, with idem: as, — invitum qui servat idem facit occidentī (Hor. Ep. ii. 3. 467), he who saves a man against his will does the same as one who kills him.

NOTE 2. — Adjectives of likeness are often followed by atque (sc), as. So also the adverbs aequē, pariter, similiter, etc. The pronoun idem has regularly atque or a relative. Thus, — si parem sententiam hic habet sc formam (Plaut. Mil. 1240), if he has sense equal to his beauty (like as his beauty).

tē suspicor eisdem rēbus quibus mē ipsum commoveri (Cat. Maj. 1, 1), I suspect you are disturbed by the same things by which I am.

b. Adjectives of fitness or use take oftener the Accusative with ad to denote the purpose or end; but regularly the Dative of persons: as, — aptus ad rem militārem, fit for a soldier's duty.

locus ad insidiās aptior (Mil. 20), a place fitter for lying in wait.

nōbis ūtile est ad hanc rem, it is of use to us for this thing.

c. Adjectives and nouns of inclination and the like may take the Accusative with in or ergā: as, — cōmis in uxōrem (Hor. Ep. ii. 2), kind to his wife.

divina bonitās ergā hominēs (N. D. ii. 23), the divine goodness towards men.

dē benevolentiā quam quisque habeat ergā nōs (Off. i. 15, 47), in regard to each man's good will which he has towards us.

grātiōrem mē esse in tē (Fam. xi. 10), that I am more grateful to you.

d. Some adjectives of likeness, nearness, belonging, and a few others, ordinarily requiring the Dative, often take the Possessive Genitive.¹ Thus, — quod ut illi proprium ac perpetuum sit . . . optāre dēbētis (Manil. 16, 48), which you ought to pray may be secure (his own) and lasting to him.

fuit hōc quondam proprium populi Rōmāni (id. 12, 32), this was once the peculiar characteristic of the Roman people.

id quod reō māximē necessārium est (Caec. 12, 38), a thing which is especially necessary for the defendant.

cum utrīque sis māximē necessārius (Att. ix. 7), since you are especially bound to both.

prōcūrātor aequē utrīusque necessārius (Quinct. 28, 86), an agent equally closely connected with both.

NOTE. — The genitive in this construction is not objective like those above, but possessive (cf. § 214. a).

1. The Genitive is especially used with these adjectives when they are used wholly or approximately as nouns. Thus, — amicus Cicerōni, friendly to Cicero. But, Cicerōnis amicus, a friend of Cicero; and even, Cicerōnis amicissimus, a very great friend of Cicero.

Crēticus et eius aequālis Paeōn (Or. 64, 215), the Cretic and its equivalent the Paeon.

hi erant affines istius (Verr. iv. 14), these were this man's fellows.

2. After similis, like, the genitive is more common in early writers. Cicero uses the genitive of living objects, and either the genitive or dative of things: as, — domini similis es (Ter.) you're like your master (your master's like).

ut deōrum similēs essēmus (N. D. i. 35, 97), that we might be like the gods. simia quam similis turpissima bestia nobis (N. D. i. 32, 91, quoted from Enn.), how like us is that wretched beast the ape! si enim hoc illi simile sit, est illud huic (N. D. i. 32, 90), for if this is like that, that is like this.

filius patri similis (Fin. v. 5, 12), a son like his father.
 est similis maiōrum suōm (Ter. Ad. 411), he's like his ancestors.

a. The adjectives propior, proximus sometimes, and the adverbs propius, proximē more commonly, take the accusative, as if prepositions, like prope (see § 261. a). propius periculum (Liv. xxi. 1), nearer to danger.

proximē deōs accessit Clōdus (Mil. 22, 59), Clodius has come very near the gods.

proximus Pompēium sedēbam (Cic.), I was sitting next to Pompey. proximus mare oceanum (B. G. lii. 7), nearest the ocean.

NOTE.—These words take also the ablative with *ab*¹ (cf. § 260. b)

9. Dative of Reference.

235. The Dative is often required not by any particular word, but by the general meaning of the sentence: as, — tibi arās (Pl. Merc. i. 1), you plough for yourself.

 rēs tuās tibi habē (formula of divorce), keep your goods to yourself.
 laudāvit mihi frātre, he praised my brother (out of regard for me; laudā-vit frātre meum would imply no such motive). meritōs mactāvit honōrēs, taurum Neptūnō, taurum tibi, pulcher Apollō (Æn. iii. 118), he offered the sacrifices due, a bull to Neptune, a bull to thee, beautiful Apollo.

Cūriōnī nostrō tribūnātus congeliat (Fam. viii. 6), our friend Curio's tribuneship is frozen up (the tribuneship is frozen up for Curio).

NOTE.—The dative in this construction is often called the Dative of Advantage or Disadvantage (dativus commodi aut incommodi), as denoting the person or thing for whose benefit or to whose prejudice the action is performed. The meaning of the sentence is complete without the dative, which is not, as in the preceding constructions, closely connected with any single word. Thus the Dative of Reference is easily distinguishable in most instances even when the sentence consists of only two words, as in the first example.

a. The Dative of Reference is often used to qualify a whole idea, instead of the Possessive Genitive modifying a single word: as, — iter Poenīs vel corporibus suis obstruere (Cat. Maj. 20), to block the march of the Carthaginians even with their own bodies (to block, etc., for the disadvantage of, etc.).

sē in cōspectum nautīs dedit (Verr. vi. 53), he put himself in sight of the sailors (he put himself to the sailors into sight).

versatur mihi ante oculos (id. 47), it comes before my eyes (it comes to me before the eyes).

b. The dative is used of the person from whose point of view a situation or direction is defined.

This construction answers to the English as you go in, and the like. The person is commonly denoted indefinitely by a participle in the plural: as, — oppidum primum Thessaliae venientibus ab Epirō (B. C. iii. 80), the first town of Thessaly as you come from Epirus (to those coming, etc.).

laevā parte sinum intrantibus (Liv. xxvi. 26), on the left as you sail up the gulf (to those entering).

est urbe egressis tumulus (Æn. ii. 713), there is, as you come out of the city, a mound (to those having come out).

c. The dative of reference is (by a Greek idiom) rarely modified by nōlēns, volēns, participles of nōlē, volē, or by some similar word: as, ut quibusque bellum invitis aut volentibus erat (Tac. Ann. i. 59), as each might receive the war reluctantly or gladly.

ut militibus labōs volentibus esset (Jug. 100), that the soldiers might assume the task willingly.

d. The dative of reference is used idiomatically without any verb in colloquial questions and exclamations: as, — quō mihi fortunam (Hor. Ep. i. 5. 12), of what use to me is fortune?

unde mihi lapidem (Hor. Sat. ii. 7. 116), where can I get a stone?

quō tibi, Tili (Hor. Sat. i. 6. 24), what use for you, Tilius?

e. The dative of reference is sometimes used after Interjections: as, — vae victis, woe to the conquered.

em tibi, there, take that (there, for you)! [Cf. § 236.]

hei mihi, ah, me!

10. Ethical Dative.

236. The Dative of the Personal Pronouns is used to show a certain interest felt by the person indicated: ¹ as, — quid mihi Celsus agit (Hor.), pray what is Celsus doing?

suō sibi servit patri (Plaut. Capt. Prol.), he serves his own father.

at tibi repente venit mihi Cōminius (Fam. ix. 2), but, look you, of a sudden comes to me Cominius.

hem tibi talentum argenti (Pl. Trin. v. 1), hark ye, a talent of silver.

quid tibi vis, what would you have (what do you wish for yourself)?

This construction is called the Ethical Dative (dativus ethicus). It is really only a special case of the dative of reference.

¹ Compare "I'll rhyme you so eight years together." — As You Like It.

REMARK. — To express FOR — meaning instead of, in defence of, in behalf of — the ablative with prō must be used: as, — prō patriā mori (Hor. Od. iii. 2), to die for one's country.

prō rēge, lēge, grege (prov.), for king, law, people.
ego ibō prō tē (Plaut. Most.), I will go instead of you.

III. — ACCUSATIVE.

NOTE. — The Accusative originally served to connect the noun loosely with the verb-idea, whether expressed by a verb proper or by a verbal noun or adjective. Probably its earliest use was to repeat the verb-idea as in the Cognate Accusative (run a race, fight a battle, see § 238). From this it would be a short step to the Facitative Accusative (denoting the result of an act, as in make a table, drill a hole, cf. § 175. note 1). From this last could easily come the common accusative (of Affecting, break a table, plug a hole, see § 237). Traces of all these uses appear in the language, and the loose connection of noun with verb-idea is seen in the use of stems in composition¹ (cf. p. 205, head-note).

The uses of the accusative may be classified as follows:

- | | |
|---------------------|---|
| 1. PRIMARY OBJECT: | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Directly affected by the Action (§ 237). 2. Effect of the Action { Thing produced (§ 237).
Cognate Accusative (§ 238). |
| 2. TWO ACCUSATIVES: | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Predicate Accusative (of Naming, etc.) (§ 239. a). 2. Of Asking or Teaching (§ 239. c). 3. Of Concealing (§ 239. d). |
| 3. IDIOMATIC USES: | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Adverbial (§ 240. a, b). 2. Of Specification (Greek Accusative) (§ 240. c). 3. Of Extent and Duration (§ 240. e). 4. Of Exclamation (§ 240. d). 5. Subject of Infinitive (§ 240. f). |

1. Direct Object.

237. The Direct Object of a transitive verb is put in the Accusative (§ 177).

The accusative of the Direct Object denotes (a) that which is directly affected, or (b) that which is caused or produced by the action of the verb: as, —

- (a) Brūtus Caesarem interfēcit, Brutus killed Caesar.
 (b) aedem facere, to make a temple. [Compare proelium pūgnāre, to fight a battle, § 238].

NOTE. — There is no definite line by which transitive verbs can be distinguished from intransitive. Verbs which usually take a direct object (expressed or implied) are called transitive, but many of these are often used intransitively or absolutely.

¹ Compare armiger, armor-bearer, with arma gerere, to bear arms; fidi-cen, lyre-player, with fidi-bus canere, to (play on) sing to the lyre. Compare also hanc tāctiō (Plaut.), the [act of] touching her, with hanc tangere, to touch her.

Thus timeō, I fear, is transitive in the sentence inimicum timeō, I fear my enemy, but intransitive (absolute) in nōlī timēre, don't be afraid. Again, many verbs are transitive in one sense and intransitive in another: as, Helvētios superāvērunt Rōmānī, the Romans overcame the Helvetians; but nihil superābat, nothing remained (was left over). So also many verbs usually intransitive may be used transitively with a slight change in their meaning: as, ridēs, you are laughing; but mē ridēs, you're laughing at me.

a. The object of a transitive verb in the active voice becomes its subject in the passive, and is put in the nominative (§ 177. a): as, —

Brūtus Caesarem interfēcit, Brutus killed Caesar.

Caesar ā Brūtō interfectus est, Caesar was killed by Brutus.

domum aedificat, he builds a house.

domus aedificātur, the house is building (being built).

b. Many verbs apparently intransitive, expressing feeling, take an accusative, and may be used in the passive: as, — meum cāsum lūctumque doluērunt (Sest. 69), they grieved [at] my calamity and sorrow.

sī nōn Acrisium risissent Iuppiter et Venus (Hor. O. iii. 16. 5), if Jupiter and Venus had not laughed [at] Acrisius.

ridētur ab omnī conventū (Hor. S. i. 7. 22), he is laughed [at] by the whole assembly.

c. Verbs of taste, smell, and the like take an accusative of the quality: as, — vinum redolēs (Cic.), smelling [of] wine.

herbam mella sapiunt (Plin.), the honey tastes [of] grass.

NOTE. — These are properly Cognate Accusatives (§ 238).

d. Verbs of motion, compounds of circum and trāns, and a few others, frequently become transitive, and take the accusative (cf. § 228. a): as, mortem obire, to die (to meet death).

cōsulātum ineunt (Liv. iii. 4), they enter upon the consulship.

nēmīnem convēnī (Fam. ix. 14), I met no one.

sī insulam adisset (B. G. iv. 20), if he should go to the island.

trānsire flūmen (id. ii. 23), to cross the river (cf. § 239. b).

civēs qui circumstant senātum (Cat. i. 8), the citizens who stand about the senate.

e. The accusative is used after the impersonals decet, dēlectat, iuvat, oportet, fallit, fugit, praeterit: as, — tē nōn praeterit (Fam. i. 8), it does not escape your notice.

ita ut vōs decet (Plaut. Most. 714), so as befits you.

mē pedibus dēlectat claudere verba (Hor. Sat. ii. 1. 28), my delight is (it pleases me) to arrange words in measure.

nec mē animi fallit (Lucr. i. 136), nor does it escape my attention (elude me in mind).

nisi mē fallit, unless I am mistaken (unless it deceives me).
iūvit mē tibi tuās litterās prōfuisse (Fam. v. 21), it pleased me that your literary studies had profited you.

So after latet in poetry and post-classical prose: as, — latet plērōsque (Plin. ii. 82), it is unknown to most persons.

NOTE 1. — These verbs are merely ordinary transitives with an idiomatic signification. Hence most of them are also used personally (cf. §§ 227. a, 239. d).

NOTE 2. — Decet and latet sometimes take the dative: as, — hostīque propinquō Rōma latet (Sil. It. xii. 614), and Rome lies hidden from the foe close by.

ita nōbīs decet (Ter. Ad. 928), thus it befits us.

NOTE 3. — Many verbs usually intransitive are sometimes used transitively from a similarity of meaning with other verbs that regularly take the accusative: as, — multa gemēns ignōminiam (Georg. iii. 226), groaning much at the disgrace. [Cf. doleō, § 237. b.]

festināre fugam (Æn. iv. 575), to hasten their flight. [Cf. accelerō.]
comptōs ārsit crinēs (Hor. Od. iv. 9. 13), she burned with love for his well-combed locks. [Cf. adamō.]

f. In early and popular usage some nouns and adjectives derived from transitive verbs retain verbal force sufficient to govern the accusative: as, — quid tibi hanc tāctiō est (Plaut. Poen. 1306), what business have you to touch her? [Cf. tangō.]

mirābundi bestiām (App. Met. 4), full of wonder at the creature. [Cf. mīror.]
vitābundus castra (Liv. xxv. 13), trying to avoid the camp. [Cf. vitō.]

g. In early usage the impersonal gerundive with esse governs the accusative (§ 294. c): as, — quam nōbīs ingrediendum sit (Cat. Maj. 2, 6), which (road) we must enter upon. [Here Cicero purposely uses an archaic construction.]

poenās in morte timendumst (Lucr. i. 111), we have to fear punishment in death.

h. Many verbs ordinarily transitive may be used absolutely (p. 234, note), having their natural object in the ablative with dē: as, — priusquam Pompōnius dē ēius adventū cōgnōsceret (B. C. iii. 101), before Pomponius could learn of his coming. [Cf. ēius adventū cōgnitō, his arrival being discovered.]

i. For Accusative and Genitive after Impersonals, see § 221. b.

2. Cognate Accusative.

238. A neuter verb often takes the accusative of a noun of kindred meaning, usually modified by an adjective or in some other manner.

This construction is called the Cognate Accusative or Accusative of Kindred Signification. Thus, — vitam tutiorem vivere (Hor.), to live a safer life.

tertiam iam aetatem hominum vivebat (Lael. 10, 31), he was now living the third generation of men.

coire societatem, to [go together and] form an alliance.

servitutem servire, to be in slavery.

a. The Cognate Accusative is often loosely used by the poets: as, — huic errori similem [errorem] insanire (Hor. Sat. ii. 3. 62), to suffer a delusion like this.

saltare Cyclopa (Hor. Sat. i. 5. 63), to dance the Cyclops (represent in dancing).

Bacchanalia vivere (Juv. ii. 2), to live in revellings.

Amaryllida resonare (Ecl. i. 5), to re-echo [the name of] Amaryllis.

intonuit laevum (Æn. ii. 693), it thundered on the left.

dulce ridentem (Hor. Od. i. 22. 23), sweetly smiling.

acerba tuens (Lucr. v. 34), looking fiercely. [Cf. Eng. "to look daggers."]

NOTE. — In the last three examples the cognate accusative has an adverbial signification. See Adverbial Accusative, § 240. a.

b. A neuter pronoun or colorless noun or adjective is very common as cognate accusative (cf. §§ 148. d and 240. a). Thus, — Empedocles multa alia peccat (N. D. i. 12, 29), Empedocles commits many other slips.

ego illud assentior Theophrastō (Or. 3, 48), in this I agree with Theophrastus.

multum te opinio ista fefellit (Verr. i. 35), you were much deceived in this expectation (this expectation deceived you much).

quid me ista laedunt (Agr. ii. 13), what harm do those things do me?

si uredo aut grando quippiam nocuit (N. D. iii. 35), if drougt or hail has done any injury (has harmed at all).

huc te moneo, I give you this warning (cf. note below).

id laetor, I rejoice at this (cf. note).

quae homines arant, navigant, etc. (Sall. Cat. 2, 7), what men do in ploughing, sailing, etc.

So in many common phrases: as, — si quid ille se velit (B. G. i. 34), if he should want anything of him (if he should want him in anything).

numquid mē vis, can I do anything more for you? (there is nothing you want of me, is there?). [A common form of leave-taking.]

quid possum, what can I [do]?

id valet, it amounts to this.

NOTE.—In these cases substantives with a definite meaning would be in some other construction: as,— in hōc eōdem peccat, he errs in this same point.

bonis rēbus laetāri, to rejoice at prosperity. [Also: in, dē, or ex.]

dē testamētō monēre, to remind one of the will. [Later: genitive, § 219. c.]

offici admonēre, to remind one of his duty. [Also: dē officiō.]

c. A few verbs in isolated expressions take the accusative from a forcing of their meaning. Such expressions are:—

ferire foedus, to strike a treaty (i.e. to sanction by striking down a victim).

vincere iudiciū (spōnsiōnem, rem, hōc), to prevail on a trial, etc. [As if the case were a difficulty to overcome; cf. vincere iter, Æn. vi. 688.]

terram nāvigāre (Fin. ii. 34, 112), to sail over the land. [Perhaps quoted from a poet.]

aequor nāvigāre, to sail the sea. [As if it were trānsire, § 237. d.]

maria aspera iūrō (Æn. vi. 351), I swear by the rough seas. [The accusative with verbs of swearing is chiefly poetic.]

noctēs dormire, to sleep [whole] nights (to spend in sleep).

NOTE.—These accusatives are of various kinds. The last example approaches the cognate construction, cf. the second example under § 238.

3. Two Accusatives.

239. Some transitive verbs take a second accusative in addition to their Direct Object.

This second accusative is either (1) a Predicate Accusative or (2) a Secondary Object.

a. Predicate Accusative.

1. An accusative in the Predicate referring to the same person or thing as the Direct Object, but not in apposition with it, is called a Predicate Accusative (cf. § 185, head-note).

a. Verbs of naming, choosing, appointing, making, esteeming, showing, and the like, may take a Predicate Accusative along with the direct object: as,—

Ō Spartace, quem enim tē potius appellem (Phil. xiii. 10), O Spartacus, for what else shall I call you (than Spartacus)?

Cicerōnem cōsulem creāre, to elect Cicero consul.

dictātōrem dicere, to name [a man] dictator (e.g. Quintus Fabius).

mē augurē nōmināvērunt (Phil. ii. 2, 4), they nominated me for augur. grātiās agēbat quod sē cōsulem fēcisset (Cic.), he thanked him because he had made him consul (supported his candidacy). hominem prae sē nēmīnem putāvit (Cic.), he thought nobody a man in com- parison with himself.
 ducem sē militibus tuis praebuit (Vat. 33), he offered himself to your soldiers as a leader.
 omnēs Catilinās Acidinōs postea reddidit (Att. iv. 3), he has made all the Catilines [seem] Acidini.

NOTE 1.—The predicate accusative may be an adjective: as,— hominēs ex feris et immānibus mitēs reddidit et mānsuētōs (Inv. i. 2), has made men from wild and barbarous [creatures] gentle and mild.

NOTE 2.—In changing from the active voice to the passive, the predicate accusative becomes predicate nominative (§ 185): as,— rēx ab suis appellātur (B. G. vii. 4), he is called king by his [subjects].

b. Secondary Object.

2. The Accusative of the Secondary Object is used (along with the direct object) to denote something more remotely affected by the action of the verb.

δ. Transitive verbs compounded with prepositions sometimes take (in addition to the direct object) a Secondary Object, originally governed by the preposition: as,—

Caesar Germānōs flūmen trāicit (B. C. i. 83), Cæsar throws the Germans across the river.

NOTE 1.—But with these verbs the preposition is more commonly repeated, or sometimes the ablative is used: as,— dōnec rēs suās trāns Halyn flūmen trāicerent (Liv. xxxviii. 25), till they should get their possessions across the river Halys.

 (exercitus) Padō trāiectus Cremōnam (Liv. xxi. 56), the army was conveyed across the Po to Cremona (by way of the Po, § 258. g).

NOTE 2.—The secondary object may be retained with a passive verb: as,— Belgae Rhēnum trāducti sunt (B. G. ii. 4), the Belgians were led over the Rhine.

NOTE 3.—Sometimes the Secondary Object appears to become the subject of a passive verb; but this comes from a change of meaning, and the object is really Direct. See the Remark.

REMARK.—The double construction indicated in δ is possible only when the force of the preposition and the force of the verb are each distinctly felt in the compound, the verb governing the Direct, and the preposition the Secondary object.

But often the two parts of the compound become closely united to form a transitive verb of simple meaning. In this case the verb-element loses its power to govern the accusative, and the compound verb is transitive solely by virtue of its prepositional part. Thus used the compound can have but one accusative,—the same which was formerly the secondary object, but which now becomes the direct. So trāiciō comes to mean either (1) to pierce (anybody) [by hurling] or (2) to cross (a river, etc.): as,—

- (1) gladiō hominem trāiēcit, he pierced the man with a sword. [Here iaciō has lost all transitive force, and serves simply to give the force of a verb to the meaning of trāns, and to tell the manner of the act.]
- (2) Rhodanum trāiēcit, he crossed the Rhone. [Here iaciō has become simply a verb of motion, and trāiciō is hardly distinguishable from trānseō.]

In these examples hominem and Rhodanum, which would be secondary objects if trāiēcit were used in its primary signification, have become the direct objects. Hence in the passive construction they become the subjects and are put in the nominative. Thus,— homō trāiectus est gladiō, the man was pierced with a sword.

Rhodanus trāiectus est, the Rhone was crossed.

The poetical trāiectus lōra (Æn. ii. 273), pierced with thongs, comes from a mixture of two constructions:—

- (1) eum trāiēcit lōra, he rove thongs through him,¹ and
- (2) eum trāiēcit lōris, he pierced him with thongs.

In putting the sentence into a passive form, the direct object of the former (lōra) is irregularly kept, and the direct object of the latter (eum) is made the subject.

c. Verbs of asking and teaching may take two accusatives, one of the Person (direct object), and the other of the Thing (secondary object): as, mē sententiam rogāvit, he asked me my opinion.

ōtium divōs rogat (Hor. Od. ii. 16. 1), he prays the gods for rest.

haec cum praetōrem postulābās (Tull. 39), when you demanded this of the praetor.

aedīlis populum rogāre (Liv. vi. 42), to ask the people [to elect] aediles.

docere pueros elementa, to teach children their A B C's.

NOTE 1.—Some verbs of asking take the ablative of the person with a preposition instead of the accusative. So, always, petō (ab), quaerō (ex, ab, dē), often postulo (ab), and occasionally others: as,— pācem ab Rōmānīs petierunt (B. G. ii. 13), they sought peace from the Romans.

quod quaesivit ex mē P. Appulēius (Phil. vi. 1), what Publius Appuleius asked of me.

NOTE 2.—With the passive of verbs of asking or teaching, the person or the thing may be used as subject (cf. d., note): as,— Caesar sententiam rogātus est, Caesar was asked his opinion.

id ab eō flāgitābātur (B. G. i. 71), this was urgently demanded of him.

¹ Perhaps not found in the active, but cf. trāiectō fūne (Æn. v. 488).

REMARK. — The accusative of the thing may be retained with the passive of rogō, and of verbs of teaching, and occasionally with a few other verbs: as, — fuerant hōc rogātī (Cæ. 64), they had been asked this.

poscor meum Laelaps (Ov. Met. vii. 771), I am asked for my Laelaps.

Cicerō per lēgātōs cūncta ēdoctus (Sall. Cat. 45), Cicero being informed of everything through the ambassadors.

But with most verbs of asking in prose the accusative of the thing becomes the subject-nominative, and the person is put in the ablative with a preposition: as, — nē postulantur quidem virēs ā senectūte (Cat. M. 11), strength is not even expected of an old man (asked from old age).

d. The verb cēlō, conceal, may take two accusatives, and the usually intransitive lateō, lie hid, an accusative of the person (cf. § 237. e): as, — nōn tē cēlāvī sērmōnem T. Ampī (Fam. ii. 16), I did not conceal from you the talk of T. Ampius.

nec latuere doli frātre m Iūnōnis (Æn. i. 134), nor did the wiles of Juno escape the notice of her brother.

NOTE. — All the double constructions indicated in c and d arise from the wavering meaning of the verbs. Thus doceō means both to show a thing, and to instruct a person; cēlō, to keep a person in the dark, and to hide a thing; rogō, to question a person, and to ask a question or a thing. Thus either accusative may be regarded as the direct object, and so become the subject of the passive (cf. c, note 2, above), but for convenience the accusative of the thing is usually called secondary.

4. Idiomatic Uses.

240. The Accusative has the following special uses: —

a. A neuter pronoun or adjective is used as cognate accusative with an adverbial force (Adverbial Accusative, cf. § 238. b): as, — quid moror, why do I delay?

dulce loquentem (Hor. Od. i. 22. 24), sweetly speaking.

acerba tuēns (Æn. ix. 793), looking cruelly.

torvum clāmat (id. vii. 599), he cries harshly.

NOTE. — This use does not differ from the cognate accusative except that in some cases the connection of the accusative with the verb has faded out so that the words are real adverbs. But no fixed line can be drawn between these two constructions.

b. The accusative is found in a few adverbial phrases: as, — id temporis, at that time.

id (istūc) aetātis, at that age.

id (quod) genus, of that (what) sort (perhaps originally nominative).

meam vicem, on my part.

māximam partem, for the most part.

bonam partem, in a great measure.

virile secus, of the male sex (probably originally in apposition).

cētera, in other respects.

quod si, but (as to which) if.

c. The so-called synecdochical or Greek accusative is used by the poets to denote the part affected: as, — caput nectentur (Æn. v. 309), their head shall be bound (they shall be bound about the head).

ārdentis oculōs suffecti sanguine et igni (id. ii. 210), their glaring eyes bloodshot and blazing with fire (suffused as to their eyes, etc.).

nūda genū (id. i. 320), bare to the knee.

NOTE. — In many apparently similar expressions the accusative may be regarded as the direct object of a verb in the middle voice (§ 111. a): as, — inūtile ferrum cingitur (Æn. ii. 510), he girds on the useless steel.

nodō sinūs collecta fluentis (id. i. 320), having her flowing folds gathered in a knot.

umerōs insternor pelle leōnis (id. ii. 722), I cover my shoulders with a lion's skin.

prōtinus induitur faciem cultumque Diānae (Ov. Met. ii. 425), forthwith she assumes the shape and garb of Diana.

d. The accusative is used in exclamations: as, —

Ō fortunātam rempūblicam, oh, fortunate republic! [Cf. Ō fortunāta mors (Phil. xiv. 12, 31), oh, happy death! (§ 241. c).]

mē miserum, ah, wretched me!

ēn quatuor ārās (Ecl. v. 65), lo, four altars!

ellum (= ēn illum), there he is!

eccōs (= ecce eōs), there they are, look at them!

prō deūm fidem, good heavens (oh, protection of the gods)!

hōcine saeculum (Ter. Ad. 304), oh, this generation!

huncine hominem (Verr. v. 29), this man, good heavens!

Ō mē infelicem (Mil. 37, 102), oh, unhappy I!

NOTE 1. — Such expressions depend upon some long-forgotten verb. The use of ne in some cases suggests an original question, as in quid? what? why? tell me.

NOTE 2. — The omission of the verb has given rise to some other idiomatic accusatives. Such are:—

salūtem (sc. dicit) (in letters), greeting.

quō mihi fortunam, of what use is fortune? [Here no verb is thought of.]

unde mihi lapidem, where can I get a stone?

mē dius fidius (sc. adiuvet), so help me heaven (the god of faith).

e. Duration of time and extent of space are expressed by the accusative (see §§ 256, 257).

f. The subject of the infinitive mood is in the accusative. This is especially frequent after words of knowing, thinking, telling, and perceiving (verba sentiendi et dēclārandi, see § 272).

g. The accusative in later writers is sometimes used in apposition with a clause: as, — dēserunt tribūnāl . . . manūs intentantēs, causam discordiae et initium armōrum (Tac. Ann. i. 27), finally they abandon the tribunal shaking their fists, — a cause of dissension and the beginning of war.

NOTE. — This construction is an extension (under Greek influence) of a usage more nearly within the ordinary rules, such as, —

Eumenem prōdidere Antiochō, pācis mercēdem (Sall. Ep. Mith.), they betrayed Eumenes to Antiochus, the price of peace. [Here Eumenes may be considered the price, although the real price is the betrayal.]

h. For the accusative of the End of Motion, see § 258; for that after postrīdiē, propior, etc., see § 261. a.

[For the Accusative with Prepositions, see § 152. a, c.]

IV. — VOCATIVE.

241. The Vocative is the case of direct address: as, — Tiberine pater, tē sancte precor (Liv. ii. 103), O, father Tiber, thee, holy one, I pray.

a. A noun in the nominative in apposition with the subject of the imperative mood is sometimes used instead of the vocative: as, — audi tū, populus Albānus (Liv. i. 24), hear, thou people of Alba.

b. The vocative of an adjective is sometimes used instead of the nominative, where the verb is in the second person: as, — cēnsōrem trabeāte salūtās (Pers. iii. 29), robed you salute the censor.

c. The nominative may be used in exclamations (cf. § 240. d): as, — ēn dextra fidēsque (Æn. iv. 597), lo, the faith and plighted word!

d. The vocative mācte is used as a predicate in the phrase mācte estō (virtūte), success attend your (valor). Thus, — iubērem te mācte virtūte esse (Liv. ii. 12), I should bid you go on and prosper in your valor.

NOTE. — As the quantity of the final o in mācte is not determinable, it may be that the word was an adverb, as in bene est, and the like. (See American Journal of Philology, Vol. I.)

V. — ABLATIVE.

242. The Ablative is used to denote the relations expressed in English by the prepositions FROM, IN, AT, WITH, BY: as, — liberāre metū, to deliver from fear.

caecus avāritiā, blind with avarice.

occisus gladiō, slain by the sword.

excultus doctrinā, trained in learning.

hōc ipsō tempore, at this very time.

NOTE. — The ablative form contains three distinct cases, — the Ablative proper, expressing the relation FROM; the Locative, IN; and the Instrumental, WITH or BY. This confusion has arisen partly from phonetic decay (§ 8), by means of which the three cases have become identical in form, and partly from the development by which they have approached one another in meaning. Compare, for the first, the like forms of the dative and ablative plural, the old dative in -ē of the fifth declension (§ 74. a), and the loss of the original -d in the ablative (§§ 36. f, 62. a); and, for the second, the phrases à parte dextrâ, ON the right; quam ob causam, FROM which cause; ad fāmam, AT (in consequence of) the report.

The relation of FROM includes separation, source, cause, agent, and comparison; that of WITH or BY, accompaniment, instrument, means, manner, quality, and price; that of IN or AT, place, time, circumstance. It is probable that, originally, the idea of accompaniment had a separate case, which became confounded with the instrumental before Latin was separated from the kindred tongues.

The following are the uses of the Latin Ablative, classed according to the original cases which have been combined in it: —

- | | | |
|--|---|--|
| 1. ABLATIVE (from): | { | 1. Of Separation, Privation, and Want (§ 243). |
| | { | 2. Of Source (participles of origin, etc.) (§ 244). |
| | { | 3. Of Cause (gaudeo, dignus , etc.) (§ 245). |
| | { | 4. Of Agent (with ab after Passives) (§ 246). |
| | { | 5. Of Comparison (than) (§ 247). |
| 2. INSTRUMENTAL
ABLATIVE (with): | { | 1. Of Manner, Means, and Instrument (§ 248). |
| | { | 2. Of Accompaniment (with cum) (§ 248. a). |
| | { | 3. Of Object of the Deponents utor , etc. (§ 249). |
| | { | 4. Of Degree of Difference (§ 250). |
| | { | 5. Of Quality (with Adjectives) (§ 251). |
| | { | 6. Of Price and Exchange (§ 252). |
| | { | 7. Of Specification (§ 253). |
| 3. LOCATIVE ABLA-
TIVE (in, on, at): | { | 1. Of Place where (commonly with in) (§ 254). |
| | { | 2. Of Idiomatic Expressions (§ 254. a). |
| | { | 3. Of Time and Circumstance (§ 256). |
| | { | 4. Ablative Absolute (§ 255). |

1. Ablative of Separation.

243. Words signifying Separation or Privation are followed by the ablative, with or without a preposition.

a. Verbs meaning to remove, set free, be absent, deprive, and want, require the ablative: as, — oculis sē privāvit (Fin. v. 29), he deprived himself of eyes.

lēgibus solūtus, relieved from the obligation of laws.

omni Galliā interdicīt Rōmānōs (B. G. i. 46), he (Ariovistus) bars the Romans from the whole of Gaul.

ei aquā et igni interdicitur (Vell. Pat. ii. 45), he is debarred the use of fire and water.

voluptātibus carēre (Cat. Maj. 3), to lack enjoyments.

nōn egeō medicinā (Lael. 3), I want no physic.

māgnō mē metū liberābis (Cat. i. 5), you will relieve me of great fear.

Ephorus calcāribus eget (Quint.), Ephorus needs the spur.

levāmur superstitiōne, liberāmur mortis metū (Fin. i. 19), we are relieved from superstition, we are freed from fear of death.
 cōnsiliō et auctoritatē orbārī (Cat. Maj. 6), to be bereft of counsel and authority.

b. Verbs compounded with ā, ab, dē, ex, take the simple ablative when used figuratively; but when used literally to denote separation or motion, they usually require a preposition (see § 258). Thus,— cōnatū dēsistere (B. G. i. 8), to desist from the attempt.

 dēsine commūnibus locis (Acad. ii. 25), quit commonplaces.
 abire magistratū, to leave one's office.
 abstinere iniuriā, to refrain from wrong.
 But,—aberrāre ā prōpositō (Cic.), to wander from the point.
 dē provinciā dēcedere (Verr. ii. 46), to withdraw from one's province.
 ab iure abire (id.), to go outside of the law.
 ex civitatē excēssere (B. G. vi. 8), they departed from the state. [But cf. finibus suis excēsserant (id. iv. 18), they had left their own territory.] ā māgnō dēmissum nōmen Iulō (Æn. i. 288), a name descended (sent down) from great Iulus.

NOTE.—For the Dative used instead of the Ablative of Separation, see § 229.

c. For the ablative of the actual place whence in idiomatic expressions, see § 258. a, and note 2.

d. Adjectives denoting freedom and want are followed by the ablative: as,— urbs nūda praesidiō (Att. vii. 13), the city naked of defence.

 immūnis militiā (Liv. i. 43), free of military service.
 plēbs orba tribūnis (Leg. iii. 3), the people deprived of tribunes.

NOTE.—Some adjectives of want take the genitive (see § 218. a).

e. Opus and ūsus, signifying need, are followed by the ablative:¹ as,— magistrātibus opus est (Leg. iii. 2), there is need of magistrates.

 nunc viribus ūsus (Æn. viii. 441), now there is need of strength.

NOTE.—With these words the ablative of the perfect participle, with or without a noun, is often found (§ 292. b): as,— opus est tuā exprōptā memoriā atque astūtiā (Ter. And. 723), I must have your good memory and cleverness set to work.

 properatō opus erat (Mil. 19), there was need of haste.
 factō ūsus est, it is desirable to do (there is need of the thing's being done).

REMARK.—Frequently opus is in the predicate, with the thing needed in the nominative as subject: as,—

¹ This construction is properly an instrumental one, in which opus and ūsus mean work and service, and the ablative expresses that with which the work is performed or the service rendered.

dūx nōbis et auctor opus est (Fam. ii. 6), we need a chief and responsible adviser (a chief, etc., is necessary for us).

sī quid ipsī opus esset (B. G. i. 34), if he himself wanted anything (if anything should be necessary for him).

quae opus sunt (Cato R. R. 14, 3), things which are required.

f. Egeō and indigeō are often followed by the genitive (§ 223):
as, — nē quis auxili egeat (B. G. vi. 11), lest any require aid.

quae ad cōsōlandum maiōris ingeni et ad ferendum singulāris virtūtis indigent (Fam. vi. 4), [sorrows] which for their comforting need more ability, and for endurance unusual courage.

REMARK. — The Genitive is by a Greek idiom often used in poetry instead of the Ablative with all words of separation and want (§ 223. b. 3): as, — abstinētō irarum (Hor. Od. iii. 27. 70), abstain from wrath.

operum solūtis (id. 17. 16), free from toils.

dēsine mollium querelārum (id. ii. 9. 17), have done with weak complaints.

2. Ablative of Source and Material.

244. The Ablative with or without a preposition is used to denote the Source from which anything is derived, or the Material of which it consists.

These ablatives commonly take a preposition: as, —

1. Source: —

Rhēnus oritur ex Lēpontiis (B. G. v. 4), the Rhine rises in (from) the country of the Lepontii.

ab aliquō sermō oritur (Lael. 1, 5), the conversation is begun by (arises from) some one.

cūius ratiōis vim atque ūtilitatem ex illō caelesti Epicūri volūmine accēpimus (N. D. i. 16, 45), of this reasoning we have learned the power and advantage from that divine book of Epicurus.

suāvitatem odōrum qui afflārentur ē flōribus (Cat. Maj. 17, 59), the sweetness of the odors which breathed from the flowers.

2. Material: —

erat tōtus ex fraude et mendāciō factus (Clu. 26), he was entirely made up of fraud and falsehood.

valvās māgnificentiorēs, ex aurō atque ebore perfectiorēs (Verr. ii. 456), more splendid doors, more finely wrought of gold and ivory.

factum dē cautibus antrum (Ov. Met. i. 575), a cave formed of rocks.

templum dē marmore pōnam (Georg. iii. 13), I'll build a temple of marble.

NOTE 1. — In poetry the preposition is often omitted.

NOTE 2. — The Ablative of Material is a development of the Ablative of Source (cf. § 214).

a. Participles denoting birth or origin are followed by the Ablative of Source, generally without a preposition: ¹ as, —

Iove nātus et Māiā (N. D. iii. 22), son of Jupiter and Maia.

ēdite rēgibus (Hor. Od. i. 1. 1), descendant of kings.

quō sanguine crētus (Æn. ii. 74), born of what blood.

genitae Pandione (Ov. Met. vi. 666), daughters of Pandion.

REMARK. — A preposition (ab, dē, ex) is usually expressed with the name of the mother, and often with that of other ancestors: as, — cum ex utrāque [uxōre] filius nātus esset (De Or. i. 40, 183), each wife having had a son (when a son had been born of each wife).

Trōs est generātus ab illō (Ov. Fast. iv. 33), Tros was sprung from him.

ex mō hic nātus nōn est sed ex frātre meō (Ter. Ad. 40), this is not my son, but my brother's (not born from me, etc.).

Bēlus et omnēs ā Bēlō (Æn. i. 730), Belus and all his descendants.

b. Rarely, the place of birth is expressed by the ablative of source: as, — dēsiderāvit C. Felginātem Placentiā, A. Grānium Puteolīs (B. C. iii. 71), he lost C. Felginas of Placentia, A. Granius of Puteoli.

NOTE. — The Roman tribe is regularly expressed by the ablative alone: as, —

Q. Verrem Rōmiliā (Verr. i. 5, 23), Quintus Verres of the Romilian tribe.

c. Some verbs may take the Ablative of Material without a preposition. Such are cōnstāre, cōnsistere, and continēri.² But with cōnstāre, ex is more common. Thus: — domūs amoenitās nōn aedificiō sed silvā cōnstābat (Nep. Att. 13), the charm of the house consisted not in the buildings but in the woods.

ex animō cōnstāmus et corpore (Fin. iv. 8), we consist of soul and body.

vita corpore et spīritū continētur (Marc. 9), life consists of body and spirit.

d. The Ablative of Material without a preposition is used with facere, fieri, and similar words, in the sense of do with, become of: as, — quid hōc homine faciātis (Verr. i. 16), what are you going to do with this man?

quid Tulliolā meā fiet (Fam. xiv. 4), what will become of my dear Tullia?

quid tē futurum est (Verr. ii. 64), what will become of you?

e. The Ablative of Material with ex, and in poetry without a preposition, sometimes depends directly on a noun: as, — nōn pauca pōcula ex aurō (Verr. iv. 27), not a few cups of gold.

scopulis pendentibus antrum (Æn. i. 166), a cave of hanging rocks.

² The ablative with cōnsistere and continēri is locative in origin (cf. § 254. b).

f. For Genitive of Material, see § 214. e.

g. For Ablative of Source instead of Partitive Genitive, see § 216. c.

3. Ablative of Cause.

245. The ablative (with or without a preposition) is used to express Cause.¹

nimiō gaudiō paene dēspiciēbam (Fam. i. 13), I was almost wild from too much joy.

neglegentiā plectimur (Lael. 22), we are chastised for negligence.

gubernātoris ars ūtilitātē nōn arte laudātur (Fam. i. 13), the pilot's skill is praised for its service, not its skill.

certis dē causis, for certain reasons.

ex vulnere aeger (Rep. ii. 21), disabled by (from) a wound.

mare ā sōle lucet (Acad. 4, 33), the sea gleams in the sun (from the sun).

ex opportunitātē loci (Jug. 48, 2), from the advantage of position.

a. Certain verbs and adjectives regularly take the ablative of cause without a preposition. These are:—

1. The adjectives dignus, indignus: as, — vir patre avō māiōribus suis dignissimus (Phil. iii. 10), a man most worthy of his father, grandfather, and ancestors.

tē omnī honōre indignissimum iūdicat (Vatin. 16, 39), he judges you entirely unworthy of every honor.

2. The verbs dignor, labōrō (also with ex), exsiliō, exsultō, triumphō, lacrimō, ārdeō: as, — haud equidem tāli mē dignor honōre (Æn. i. 339), I do not deem myself worthy of such an honor.

doleō tē aliis malis labōrāre (Fam. iv. 3), I am sorry that you suffer with other ills.

ex aere aliēnō labōrāre (B. C. iii. 22), to labor under debt (lit., from another's money).

exsultāre laetitiā ac triumphāre gaudiō coepit (Clu. 5), she began to exult in gladness, and triumph in joy.

exsilui gaudiō (Fam. xvi. 16), I jumped for joy.

lacrimō gaudiō (Ter. Ad. 411), I weep for joy.

dēlictō dolēre (Lael. 24), to grieve for the fault.

ārdeō dolore et irā (Att. ii. 19), to be on fire with pain and anger.

NOTE 1.—For gaudeō and glōrior, see § 254. b.

¹ The cause, in the ablative, is originally source, as is shown by the use of ab, dē, ex; but when the accusative with ad, ob is used, the idea of cause arises from nearness. Occasionally, however, it is difficult to distinguish between cause and means (which is the old Instrumental Case) or circumstance (which is either the Locative or the Instrumental).

NOTE 2. — Dignus and indignus sometimes take the genitive in colloquial usage and in poetry: as, — cūram dignissimam tuæ virtūtis (Balbus in Att. viii. 15), care most worthy of your noble character.

dignus salūtis (Plaut. Trin. 1153), worthy of safety.

māgnōrum haud umquam indignus avōrum (Æn. xii. 649), never unworthy my great ancestors.

NOTE 3. — For the construction of dignus and indignus with verbs, see § 320. f.

b. The motive which influences the mind of the person acting is expressed by the ablative of cause; the object exciting the emotion often by ob¹ or propter with the accusative: as, — nōn ob praedam aut spoliandi cupidine (Tac. H. i. 63), not for booty or through lust of plunder.

amicitia ex sē et propter sē expetenda (Fin. ii. 26), friendship must be sought of and for itself.

NOTE. — But these constructions are often confused: as, — pārere lēgibus propter metum (Parad. 5, 1), to obey the laws on account of fear. [Here metum is almost equivalent to "the terrors of the law," and hence propter is used, though the ablative would be more natural.]

c. The ablatives causā and grātiā, for the sake of, are used with a genitive preceding, or with a pronoun in agreement: as, — eā causā, on account of this; quā grātiā (Ter. Eun. 99), for what purpose?

meā causā, for my sake; meā grātiā (Plaut.), for my sake.

ex meā et reipublicae causā, for my own sake and the republic's.

praedictionis causā (N. D. iii. 2, 5), by way of prophecy.

exempli grātiā (verbī grātiā), for example.

sui pūrgandi grātiā, for the sake of clearing themselves.

NOTE. — But grātiā with possessives in this use is rare.

4. Ablative of Agent.

246. The Voluntary Agent after a passive verb is put in the ablative with ā or ab: as, — laudātur ab his, culpātur ab illis (Hor. Sat. i. 2. 11), he is praised by these, blamed by those.

ab animō tuō quidquid agitur id agitur ā tē (Tusc. i. 22), whatever is done by your soul is done by yourself.

¹ This use of ob was originally mercantile; cf. ob decem minās, for the price of ten minā (see p. 131).

ā filiis in iudicium vocatus est (Cat. Maj. 7, 22), he was brought to trial by his sons.

cum ā cunctō cōsēssū plausus esset multiplex datus (Cat. Maj. 18, 63), when great applause had been given by the whole audience.

nē virtūs ab audaciā vinceretur (Sest. 42), that valor might not be overborne by audacity.

NOTE. — This construction is developed from the Ablative of Source. The agent is conceived as the source or author of the action.

REMARK. — The ablative of the agent (which requires ā or ab) must be carefully distinguished from the ablative of instrument, which has no preposition (§ 248. c. 1). Thus — occisus gladiō, slain by a sword; but, occisus ab hoste, slain by an enemy.

a. The ablative of the agent with ab is sometimes used after neuter verbs that have a passive sense: as, — perire ab hoste, to be slain by an enemy.

b. The agent, when considered as instrument or means, is expressed by per with the accusative, or by operā with a genitive or possessive. Thus, —

Caesar certior factus est ā lēgātīs, Cæsar was informed by the ambassadors (in person). But, —

Caesar certior factus est per lēgātōs, Cæsar was informed by ambassadors (i.e. by means of ambassadors).

clautae operā Neptūnī (Plaut. Rud. 699), washed clean by the services of Neptune.

nōn meā operā ēvenit (Ter. Hec. 228), it hasn't happened through me (by my exertions).

NOTE 1. — An animal is usually regarded not as the agent, but as the means or instrument. Hence the simple ablative is used. But ab sometimes occurs. Thus, — equō vehi, to ride on horseback (be conveyed by means of a horse). [Not ab equō.] But, —

Lūcānō cum sic lacereris ab ursō (Mart. Ep. 8), since you are thus mangled by a Lucanian bear.

NOTE 2. — For the Dative of the Agent with the Gerundive, see § 232.

5. Ablative of Comparison.

247. The Comparative degree is followed by the ablative¹ (signifying THAN): as, — quid nobis duobus laboriosius est (Mil. 2), what more burdened with toil than we two?

Catō est Cicerōne eloquentior, Cato is more eloquent than Cicero.

¹ This is a branch of the Ablative of Separation. The object with which anything is compared is the starting-point from which we reckon. Thus, "Cicero is eloquent"; but starting from him we come to Cato, who is "more so than he."

vilius argentum est aurō, virtūtibus aurum (Hor. Ep. i. i. 52), silver is less precious than gold, gold than virtue.

a. The comparative may be followed by quam, than. When quam is used, the two things compared are put in the same case (cf. § 208. a).

The construction with quam is required when the first of the things compared is in any other case than the nominative or accusative. With those cases its use is optional. Thus, — contionibus accommodatior est quam iudiciis (Clu. 2), fitter for popular assemblies than for courts.

misericiordiā dignior quam contumeliā (Piso 32), more worthy of pity than of disgrace.

nōn callidior es quam hīc (Ros. Am. 49), you are not more cunning than he.

REMARK. — Relative pronouns having a definite antecedent never take quam in this construction, but always the ablative: as, — rē erat Aenēas nobis, quō iustior alter, etc. (Æn. i. 545), Æneas was our king, than whom no other was more righteous, etc.

NOTE. — The poets sometimes use the ablative of comparison where the prose construction requires quam: as, — pāne egeō iam mellitīs potiōre placentis (Hor. Ep. i. 10), I want bread better than honey-cakes.

b. The idiomatic ablatives opiniōne, spē, solitō, dictō, aequō, crēdibilī, and iustō are used after comparatives instead of a clause: as, gravius aequō (Sall.), more seriously than was right.

celerius opiniōne (Fam. xiv. 23), faster than one would think.

amnis solitō citatior (Liv. xxii. 19), a stream swifter than its wont.

sērius spē omnium (Liv. xxvi. 26), later than all hoped (than the hope of all).

c. After the comparatives plūs, minus, amplius, longius without quam, a word of measure or number is often used with no change in its case: as, — plūs septingentī captī (Liv. xli. 12), more than 700 were taken.

plūs tertiā parte interfectā (Cæs.), more than a third part being slain.

spatium nōn amplius sexcentōrum pedum (id.), a space of not more than 600 feet.

NOTE. — The noun takes the case required by the context, without reference to the comparative, which is really in a sort of apposition, "seven hundred were taken [and] more."

d. Alius is sometimes followed by the ablative in poetic and colloquial use¹; in formal prose it is followed by ac (atque), nisi, quam. Thus,

¹ This has been thought to be an imitation of the Greek, but the construction is found also in Sanskrit, and is probably original.

nec quicquam aliud libertate commūni (Fam. xi. 2), nothing else than the common liberty.

alius Lysippō (Hor.), another than Lysippus.

aliū sapiente bonoque (Hor. Ep. i. 16. 20), other than the wise and good.

aliō ingenio ac tū (Plaut.), of a different disposition from you.

erat histōria nihil aliud nisi annāliū cōfectiō (De Or. ii. 12), history was nothing else but a compiling of records.

nīl aliut nisi quod sibi placet (Plaut. Trin. 395), nothing else than what pleases him.

e. The comparative of an adverb is usually followed by quam, rarely by the ablative except in poetry. Thus, — tempus tē citius quam orātiō dēficeret (Rosc. Am. 89), time would fail you sooner than words. But, — cur Sybaris olivum sanguine viperinō cautius vitat (Hor. Od. i. 8. 9), why does Sybaris shun oil more carefully than viper's blood?

6. Ablative of Manner.

NOTE. — Accompaniment, Manner, Means, and Instrument are denoted by the instrumental ablative (see p. 245), but some of these more commonly take a preposition. As they all come from one source (the old Instrumental Case) no sharp line can be drawn between them, and indeed the Romans themselves never thought of any distinction. Thus in omnibus precibus orābant, they entreated with every [kind of] prayer, the ablative is properly that of means, but cannot be distinguished from manner.

248. The manner of an action is denoted by the Ablative; usually with cum, unless a limiting adjective is used with the noun. Thus, — cum celeritate vēnit, he came with speed. But, — summā celeritate vēnit, he came with the greatest speed.

quid refert quā me ratione cōgātis (Lael. 8, 26), what difference does it make in what way you compel me?

NOTE. — But cum is often used even when the ablative has a limiting adjective: as, — quantō cum periculō id fecerit (B. G. i. 17), at what risk he did this.

nōn minōre cum taediō recubant (Plin. Ep. ix. 17, 3), they recline with no less weariness.

REMARK. — With such words of manner as modō, pactō, ratione, ritū, viā, and with stock expressions which have become virtually adverbs (as silentiō, infuriā), cum is very rare. Thus, — apis Matinae mōre modōque carmina fingō (Hor. Od. iv. 2. 28), in the style and manner of a Matinian bee I fashion songs.

So in poetry the ablative of manner often omits cum: as, — mōns aquae sequitur cumulō (Æn. i. 105), a mountain of water follows in a mass [Ci murmure (id. 124); rimis (id. 123).]

7. Ablative of Accompaniment.

a. Accompaniment is denoted by the ablative, regularly with cum: as, — cum coniugibus ac liberis vestris, with your wives and children.

cum funditoribus sagittariisque flumen transgressi (B. G. ii. 19), having crossed the river with the archers and slingers.

quae supplicatio si cum ceteris conferatur (Cat. iii. 6, 15), if this thanksgiving be compared with others.

quae [lēs] esse cum telō vetat (Mil. 4. 11), the law which forbids [one] to go armed (be with a weapon).

si secum suos eduxerit (Cat. i. 13, 33), if he leads out with him his associates. [For secum, see § 99. e.]

NOTE. — The ablative is used without cum in military phrases, and here and there by early writers: as, — subsequēbātur omnibus cōpiis (B. G. ii. 19), he followed close with all his forces.

hōc praesidiō profectus est (Verr. ii. 34), with this force he set out.

REMARK. — Misceō and iungō, with their compounds, and confundō may take either (1) the Ablative of Accompaniment with or without cum, or (2) sometimes the Dative: as, — mixta dolore voluptās (B. Al. 56), pleasure mingled with pain.

cūius animum cum suō misceat (Lael. 2. 81), whose soul he may mingle with his own.

flētumque cruorī miscuit (Ov. Met. iv. 140), and mingled tears with blood.

Caesar eas cohortes cum suō exercitū coniūxit (B. G. i. 18), Caesar united those cohorts with his own army.

aēr coniunctus terris (Lucr. v. 562), air united with earth.

hūmānō capiti cervicem equinam iungere (Hor. A. P. 1), to join to a human head a horse's neck.

b. Words of Contention and the like require cum: as, — armis cum hoste certāre, to fight with the enemy in arms.

libenter haec cum Q. Catulō disputārem (Manil. 22, 66), I should gladly discuss these matters with Quintus Catulus.

NOTE. — But words of contention may take the Dative in poetry (see § 229. c).

8. Ablative of Means.

c. 1. The Ablative is used to denote the means or instrument of an action: as, — certantes pūgnis, calcibus, unguibus, morsū dēnique (Tusc. v. 27, 77), fighting with fists, heels, nails, and even teeth.

cum pūgnis et calcibus concisus esset (Verr. iii. 56), when he had been pummelled with their fists and heels.

meis labōribus interitū rempūblicam liberāvi (Sulla, 33), by my toils I have saved the state from ruin.

multae istarum arborum meā manū sunt satae (Cat. Maj. 17, 59), many of those trees were set out with my own hands.

2. The Ablative of Means is used with verbs and adjectives of filling, abounding, and the like: as, —

Deus bonis omnibus explēvit mundum (Univ. 3), God has filled the world with all good things.

aggere et crātibus fossās explent (B. G. vii. 86), they fill up the ditches with earth and fascines.

tōtum montem hominibus complēvit (id. i. 24), he filled the whole mountain with men.

opimus praedā (Verr. i. 50), rich with spoils.

vita plēna et cōnferta voluptātibus (Sest. 10), a life filled and crowded with delights.

Forum Appi differtum nautis (Hor. Sat. i. 5. 4), Forum Appii crammed with bargemen.

REMARK. — In poetry the Genitive is often used with these words by a Greek idiom. But compleō, impleō, plēnus and refertus often take the genitive in prose (cf. § 223). Thus, — omnia plēna luctūs et maerōris fuērunt (Sest. 128), everything was full of grief and mourning.

ollam dēnāriōrum implēre (Fam. ix. 18), to fill a pot with money. [Here evidently colloquial, otherwise rare in Cicero.]

convivium vicinōrum compleō (Cat. Maj. 14, 46, in the mouth of Cato), I fill up the banquet with my neighbors.

249. The deponents utor, fruor, fungor, potior, vescor, with several of their compounds,¹ govern the ablative: as, utar vestrā benīgnitāte (Arch. 8), I will avail myself of your kindness.

sagacitāte canum ad utilitatem nostram abūtimur (N. D. ii. 60), we take advantage of the sagacity of dogs for our own benefit.

ita mihi salvā rēpūblicā vōbiscum perfrui liceat (Cat. iv. 6, 11), so may I enjoy with you the state secure and prosperous.

Numidae plerūque lacte et ferinā carne vescēbantur (Jug. 88), the Numidians fed mostly on milk and game.

fungi inani mūnere (Æn. vi. 885), to perform an idle service.

NOTE. — This is really an Ablative of Means and the verbs are really in the middle voice (§ 111. a). Thus utor signifies I employ myself, or avail myself by means of, etc. But these earlier meanings disappeared from the language, leaving the construction as we find it.

¹ These are abutor, deutor, dēfungor, dēfruor, perfruor, perfungor.

a. Potior sometimes takes the Genitive, as always in the phrase potiri rerum, to get control or be master of affairs (§ 223. a): as, — totius Galliae sese potiri posse sperant (B. G. i. 3), they hope they can get possession of the whole of Gaul.

b. In early Latin, these verbs are often transitive, and take the accusative: as, — ille patria potitur comoda (Ter. Ad. 871), he enjoys his ancestral estate.

functus est officium (Ter. Ph. 281), he performed the part, etc.

NOTE. — The Gerundive of these verbs is used personally in the passive as if the verb were transitive (but cf. § 294. c): as, —

Heraclio omnia utenda ac possidenda tradiderat (Verr. ii. 46), he had given over everything to Heraclius for his use and possession (to be used and possessed).

9. Ablative of Degree of Difference.

250. With comparatives and words implying comparison the ablative is used to denote the Degree of Difference: as, — duobus milibus plures, two thousand more (more by two thousand).

quinque milibus passuum distat, it is five miles distant (it stands off by five miles).

aliquot ante annis (Tusc. i. 2, 4), several years before.

aliquanto post suspexit (Rep. vi. 9), a while after he looked up.

multo me vigilare acrius (Cat. i. 8), that I watch much more sharply (more sharply by much).

nililo erat ipse Cyclops quam aries prudentior (Tusc. v. 39, 115), for the Cyclops himself was not a whit wiser than the ram.

REMARK. — This use is especially frequent with the ablatives quo... eo (hoc); quanto... tanto (cf. § 106. c): as, — quo minus cupiditatis, eo plus auctoritatis (Liv. xxiv. 28), the less greed, the more weight (by what the less, by that the more).

quanto erat gravior oppugnatione, tanto crebriores litterae mittebantur (B. G. v. 45), the severer the siege was, the more frequently letters were sent.

NOTE. — To this construction are doubtless to be referred all cases of quo and eo with a comparative even when they have ceased to be felt as degree of difference and approach the Ablative of Cause: as, — eoque me minus paenitet (N. D. i. 4, 8), and for that reason I regret less, etc. (by so much the less I regret).

a. The Ablative of Comparison (§ 247) and the Ablative of Degree of Difference are often used together with the same adjective: as, — multo divitior Crasso, much richer than Crassus.

10. Ablative of Quality.

251. The quality of a thing is denoted by the Ablative with a Modifier (either an adjective or limiting genitive).

This is called the Descriptive Ablative or Ablative of Quality.

animō meliōre sunt gladiatōrēs (Cat. ii. 12, 26), the gladiators are of a better mind.

quae cum esset civitās aequissimō iūre ac foedere (Arch. 4, 6), as this was a city with perfectly equal constitutional rights.

mulierēm eximiā pulchritūdine (Verr. i. 64), a woman of extraordinary beauty.

Hortēnsius memoriā tantā fuit ut, etc. (Brut. 88, 301), Hortensius had so good a memory that, etc. (was of so great memory).

quam elātō animō est (Thēramenēs) (Tusc. i. 40, 96), how lofty a spirit Theramenes displays.

Aristotelēs, vir summō ingenio, scientiā, cōpiā (Tusc. i. 4, 7), Aristotle, a man of the greatest genius, learning, and gift of expression.

quam tenui aut nullā potius valētūdine (Cat. Maj. 11, 35), what feeble health he had, or rather none at all!

dē Domitiō dixit versum Graecum eādē sententiā (Deiot. 25), concerning Domitius he recited a Greek line of the same tenor.

NOTE.—The Ablative of Quality (like the Genitive of Quality) modifies a substantive by describing it. It is therefore equivalent to an adjective, and may be either attributive or predicate. In this it differs from other ablatives, which are equivalent to adverbs. Compare,— mulier pulchra, a beautiful woman.

mulier magnā pulchritūdine, a woman of great beauty, with— mulier pulchritūdine Trōiam dēlēvit, by her beauty a woman destroyed Troy.

mulier excellēns pulchritūdine (§ 253), a woman preëminent in beauty.

a. In expressions of quality the Genitive or the Ablative may often be used indifferently; but physical qualities are oftener denoted by the Ablative (cf. § 215, note): as,— capillō sunt prōmissō (B. G. v. 14), they have long hair.

ut capite opertō sit (Cat. Maj. 10, 34), to have his head covered (to be of covered head).

11. Ablative of Price.

252. The Price of a thing is put in the ablative: as,— agrum vēdidit sēstertiū sex milibus, he sold the land for 6000 sesterces.

Antōnius rēgna addixit pecūniā (Phil. vii. 5, 15), Antony sold thrones for money.

logōs ridiculōs: qui cānā poscit (Pl. Stich. 225), jokes: who wants them for (at the price of) a dinner?

māgnō illi ea cunctatiō stetit (Liv. ii. 36), that hesitation cost him dear.

NOTE.—To this head is to be referred the Ablative of the Penalty, § 220. b. 1.

a. Certain adjectives of Quantity are used in the Genitive to denote indefinite value. Such are māgnī, parvī, tantī, quantī, plūris, minōris: as, — est mihi tantī (Cat. ii. 7), it is worth the price (it is of so much).

meā māgnī interest, it is of great consequence to me.

illud parvī rēfert (Manil. 18), this is of small account.

Verrēsne tibi tantī fuit (Verr. i. 77), was Verres of so much account to you?

tantōne minōris decumae vēniērunt (Verr. iii. 106), were the tithes sold for so much less?

ut tē redimās captum quam queās minimō: sī nequeās paululō, at quantī queās (Ter. Eun. 74), to ransom yourself, when captured, at the cheapest rate you can; if you can't for a small sum, then at any rate for what you can.

NOTE. — These are really genitives of quality (§ 215. c).

b. The genitive of certain colorless nouns is used in the same way. Such are nihilī, nothing; āssis, a farthing; flocclī (a lock of wool), a straw. Thus, — nōn flocclī faciō (Att. xiii. 50), I care not a straw.

utinam ego istūc abs tē factum nihilī penderem (Ter. Eun. 94), oh! that I cared nothing for this being done by you!

ego nōn flocclī pendere (Ter. Eun. 410), I did not care a straw.

c. With verbs of exchanging, either the thing taken or the thing given in exchange may be in the Ablative of Price. Such are: mūtāre, commūtāre, permūtāre, vertere. Thus, — fidem suam et religiōnem pecūniā commūtāre (Cluent. 46, 129), to barter his faith and conscience for money.

vertere fūneribus triumphōs (Hor. Od. i. 35. 4), to change the triumph to the funeral-train (exchange triumphs for funerals).

exsilium patriā sēde mūtāvit (Q. C. iii. 8), he exchanged his native land for exile (he took exile in exchange for his native land).

vēlōx amoenum saepe Lucretilem mūtāt Lycæō Faunus (Hor. Od. i. 17. 1), nimble Faunus often changes Lycæus for Lucretilis. [He takes Lucretilis at the price of Lycæus, i.e. he goes from Lycæus to Lucretilis.]

NOTE. — With verbs of exchanging cum is often used, perhaps with a different conception of the action: as, — ariēs . . . cum croceō mūtābit vellera lūtō (Ecl. iv. 44), the ram shall change his fleece for [one dyed with] the yellow saffron.

d. With verbs of buying and selling the simple ablative of price must be used, except in the case of tantī, quantī, plūris, minōris: as, — quantī eam ēmit? vīlī . . . quot minīs? quadrāgintā minīs (Pl. Epid. 49), what did he buy her for? Cheap. For how many minæ? Forty.

12. Ablative of Specification.

253. The Ablative of Specification denotes that in respect to which anything is or is done: as, — virtūte praecedunt (B. G. i. 1), they excel in courage.

claudus altero pede (Nep. Ages. 8), lame of one foot.

linguā haesitantēs, vōce absoni (De Or. i. 25, 115), hesitating in speech, harsh in voice.

tanta caritas patriae est, ut eam nōn sēnsū nostrō sed salutē ipsius mētīamur (Tusc. i. 37), such is our love of country that we measure it not by our own feeling, but by her own welfare.

sunt enim hominēs nōn rē sed nōmine (Off. i. 30, 105), for they are men not in fact, but in name.

māior nātū, older; minor nātū, younger (cf. § 91. c). infirmitas molliorque nātūrā (Lael. 20, 75), weak and yielding by nature.

paulum aetate progressi (Cat. Maj. 10, 33), somewhat advanced in age.

corpore senex esse potuit animō nunquam erit (Cat. Maj. 11, 38), he may have been an old man in body, he never will be [old] at heart.

non solum rē et sententiā sed verbis quoque hōc interdictum ita esse compositum (Caecin. 86), this prohibition was so conceived not only in substance and effect, but also in language.

homō meā sententiā prouidentissimus (Caecin. 22), a man, in my opinion, very wise.

equitātū pulsi erant (B. G. vii. 68), they had been beaten in the cavalry fight.

NOTE. — To this head are to be referred many expressions where the ablative expresses that in accordance with which anything is or is done. But as the Romans had no such categories as we make, it is impossible to classify all uses of the ablative. Hence the ablative of specification is closely akin to that of manner, and to many ablatives which have been developed from other fundamental ideas. Thus, — meō iure, with perfect right; but, meō modō, in my fashion.

meā sententiā, in my opinion; but also more formally, ex meā sententiā.

[Here the sense is the same, but the first ablative is specification; the second, source.]

propinquitāte coniunctōs atque nātūrā (Lael. 14, 49), closely allied by kindred and nature. [Here the ablative is not different in sense from those above, but no doubt is a development of means.]

qui vincit viribus (Lael. 15, 55), who surpasses in strength. [Here it is impossible to tell whether viribus is the means of the superiority or that in respect to which one is superior.]

neque enim ullā aliā condiciōne bella gesserunt (B. G. vii. 77), for on no other terms did they carry on wars.

a. The Supine in -ū, used chiefly with adjectives, is equivalent to an ablative of specification (cf. §§ 114. b, 303): as, — mirabile dictū, marvellous to tell.

NOTE. — In this use of the supine, dative and ablative constructions have, no doubt, been confounded.

13. Ablative of Place.

NOTE.—The Locative Case was originally used (literally) to denote the place where and (figuratively) to denote the time when (a development from the idea of place). But this case was preserved only in names of towns and a few other words, and the place where is usually denoted by the Ablative. In this construction the Ablative was, no doubt, used at first without a preposition, but afterwards it became associated with in in most cases.

254. The Ablative is used to denote the place where (usually with the preposition in, § 258. c).

a. The ablative of the place where is retained in many idiomatic expressions (cf. § 259. a) which have lost the idea of place: as, — pendēmus animīs (Tusc. i. 40), we are in suspense of mind (in our minds).

socius periculis vobiscum aderō (Jug. 85), I will be present with you, a companion in dangers.

permit altum corde dolōrem (Æn. i. 209), he keeps down the pain deep in his heart.

b. 1. Several verbs are followed by the locative ablative. These are: acquiēscō, dēlector, laetor, gaudeō, glōrior, nitor, stō, maneō, fidō (cōnfidō), cōnsistō, contineor.

nōminibus veterum glōriantur (Orat. 50), they glory in the names of the ancients. [Also, dē divitiis (in virtūte, circā rem, aliquid, haec) glōriāri.]

spē nitī (Att. iii. 9), to rely on hope.

prūdentiā fidēs (Off. i. 33), trusting in prudence.

2. The verbals frētus, contentus, and laetus take the locative ablative: as, — frētus grātiā Brūtī (Att. v. 21), relying on the favor of Brutus.

laetus praedā, rejoicing in the booty.

contentus sorte, content with his lot. [Possibly abl. of cause.]

REMARK.—The ablative with the above verbs sometimes takes the preposition in (but fidō in is late): as, — in quibus causa nititur (Cæcl. 25), on whom the case depends.

With several of these verbs the neuter accusative of pronouns is often found.

14. Ablative Absolute.

255. A noun or pronoun, with a participle,¹ may be put in the ablative, to define the time or circumstances of an action: as, — vocātis ad sē undique mercātoribus (B. G. iv. 20), having called to him the traders from all quarters (traders having been called).

¹ In this construction the noun was originally in the Locative Case, and denoted circumstance considered as place or time. Afterwards a participle was added to modify the noun, and the two words became fused in a single idea equivalent to that contained in a subordinate clause (cf. ab urbe conditā, from the founding of the city, lit. from the founded city). After the construction was established, other ablatives not locative no doubt became confounded with the real ablatives absolute.

quibus rēbus cōgnitis Caesar apud milites cōtīonātur (B. C. i. 7), having learned this, Caesar makes a speech to the soldiers.

ac si illō sublātō depelli ā vōbis omne periculum fūdicārem (Cat. iii. 2, 4), and if I thought that with his removal (he being removed) all danger, etc.

nōndum hieme cōfectā (B. G. vi. 3), the winter not yet over.

compressi cōnātūs nullō tumultū publicē concitātō (Cat. i. 6, 11), the attempts were put down without exciting any general alarm.

nē vōbis quidem omnibus rē etiam tum probātā (Cat. ii. 2, 4), since at that time the facts were not yet proved even to all of you.

imprudentibus nostris atque occupātis in mūitione castrōrum (B. G. v. 15), while our men were off their guard and busy in the fortification of the camp.

fugātō omni equitātū (B. G. vii. 68), all the cavalry being put to flight.

interfectō Indutiomarō (B. G. vi. 2), upon the death of Indutiomarus.

a. An adjective, or a second noun, may take the place of the participle in the Ablative Absolute construction :¹ as, — exiguā parte aestātis reliquā (B. G. iv. 30), when but a small part of the summer was left (a small part of the summer remaining).

M. Messāla et M. Pisōne cōsulibus (id. i. 2), in the consulship of Messala and Piso (Marcus Messala and Marcus Piso being consuls). [The regular way of expressing dates, see § 259. a.]

b. A phrase or clause, used substantively, sometimes occurs as ablative absolute with a participle or an adjective : as, — incertō quid peterent (Liv. xxviii. 36), as it was uncertain what they should aim at (it being uncertain, etc.).

compertō vānum esse formidinem (Tac. Ann. i. 66), when it was found that the alarm was groundless.

NOTE. — This construction belongs to later Latin.

c. A participle or an adjective is sometimes used adverbially in the ablative absolute without a substantive : as, — cōsultō et cōgitātō (Off. i. 8), on purpose and with reflection (the matter having been deliberated and thought on).

serenō (Liv. xxxi. 12), under a clear sky (it [being] clear).

nec auspiciātō nec litātō (Liv. v. 38), with no auspices or favorable sacrifice.

tranquillō, ut aiunt, quilibet gubernātor est (Sen. Ep. 95, 34), in good weather, as they say, any man's a pilot.

¹ The participle of esse, wanting in Latin (§ 119. a), is used in Sanskrit and Greek as in English.

d. The Ablative Absolute in its developed form often takes the place of a Subordinate Clause. In such cases the noun is equivalent to a subject, and the other word to the predicate. So may be replaced:—

1. Temporal clauses (§ 322. ff.): as, — patre interfectō, [his] father having been killed. [This corresponds to cum pater interfectus esset, when his father had been killed.]

recentibus sceleris ēius vestigiis (Q. C. vii. 11), while the traces of the crime were fresh. [Cf. dum recentia sunt vestigia.]

2. Causal clauses (§ 321): as, — at ei qui Alesiae obsidebantur praeteritā diē quā auxilia suōrum expectaverant, cōsumptō omni frūmentō, conciliō coactō cōsultābant (B. G. vii. 77), but those who were under siege at Alesia since the time, etc., had expired, and their grain had been exhausted, calling a council (see § below), consulted together. [Cf. cum diēs praeteriisset, etc.]

Alexander, dēspērātā pāce, ad reparandās virēs intendit animum (Q. C. iv. 6, 23), Alexander, since he despaired of peace, devoted his energies to recruiting his forces. [Cf. cum pacem dēspērāret.]

3. Concessive clauses (§ 313): as, — at eō repūgnante fiēbat (cōsul), immō vērō eō fiēbat magis (Milo 13, 34), but though he (Clodius) opposed, he (Milo) was likely to be elected consul; nay, rather, etc.

4. Conditional clauses (§ 304): as, — occurrēbat ei, mancam et dēbilem praetūrā futūrā suā, cōsule Milōne (Milo 9, 25), it occurred to him that his praetorship would be maimed and feeble, if Milo were consul. [si Milō cōsul esset.]

quā (rēgiōne) subāctā licēbit dēcurrere in illud mare (Q. C. ix. 38), if this region is subdued, we shall be free to run down into that sea.

quā quidem dētrāctā (Arch. 11, 28), if this be taken away.

5. Clauses of accompanying circumstance: as, — ego haec ā Chrysogonō meā sponte, remōtō Sex. Rosciō, quaerō (Ros. Am. 45), of my own accord, without reference to Sextus Roscius (S. R. being put aside), I ask these questions of Chrysogonus.

nec imperante nec sciente nec praesente dominō (Milo 10, 29), without their master's giving orders, or knowing it, or being present.

NOTE.—As the English case absolute (the nominative) is far less common than the ablative absolute in Latin, a change of form is generally required in translation. Thus the present participle is oftenest to be rendered by a relative clause with when or while; and the perfect passive participle by the perfect active participle in English. These changes may be seen in the following example:—

"At illi, intermissō spatiō, imprudentibus nostris, atque occupatis in munitiōne castrōrum, subito sē ex silvis eiēcērunt; impetūque in eos factō, qui erant in statione prō castris collocati, acriter pugnāverunt; duābusque missis subsidio cohortibus ā Caesare, cum hae (perexiguō intermissō loci spatiō inter sē) cōstitissent, novō genere pugnae perterritis nostris, per mediōs audācissimē perrupērunt, sēque inde incolumēs recēperunt." — CÆSAR, B. G. v. 15.

"But they, having paused a space, while our men were unaware and busied in fortifying the camp, suddenly threw themselves out of the woods; then making an attack upon those who were on guard in front of the camp, they fought fiercely; and, though two cohorts had been sent by Cæsar as reinforcements, after these had taken their position (leaving very little space of ground between them), as our men were alarmed by the strange kind of fighting, they dashed most daringly through the midst of them, and got off safe."

[For the Ablative with Prepositions, see § 152.]

VI.—TIME AND PLACE.

1. Time.

256. Time when, or within which, is put in the Ablative; time how long in the Accusative: as,—

1. Ablative:—

cōstitutā diē, on the appointed day; primā luce, at daybreak.
quotā hōrā, at what o'clock? tertiā vigiliā, in the third watch.
tribus proxumis annis (Jug. 11), within the last three years.

2. Accusative:—

diēs continuōs trigintā, for thirty days together.
cum triduum iter fecisset (B. G. ii. 16), when he had marched three days.

NOTE.—The ablative of time is locative in its origin (§ 254. head-note); the accusative is the same as that of the extent of space (§ 257).

a. The Ablative of time within which sometimes takes in, and the Accusative of time how long, per for greater precision: as,— in diēbus proximis decem (Sall.), within the next ten days. in brevi spatiō (Ov. Met. i. 411), within a brief space (of time).

lūdi per decem diēs (Cat. iii. 8), games for ten days.

b. Duration of time is occasionally expressed by the Ablative: as,— militēs quinque hōris proelium sustinuerant (B. C. i. 47), the men had sustained the fight five hours.

NOTE.—In this use the period of time is regarded as that within which the act is done, and it is only implied that the act lasted through the period.

2. Space.

257. Extent of space is put in the Accusative: as,— fossās quīndecim pedēs lātās (B. G. vii. 72), trenches fifteen feet broad.

in omni vitā suā quemque ā rēctā cōscientiā trānsversum unguem nōn oportet discēdere (quoted in Att. xiii. 20), in all one's life, one should not depart a nail's breadth from straightforward conscience.

NOTE.—This Accusative denotes the object through or over which the action takes place, and is kindred with the Accusative of the End of Motion (cf. § 258).

a. Measure is often expressed by the Genitive of Quality (§ 215. b):
 as, —

vallō pedum duōdecim (B. G. ii. 30), in a rampart of twelve feet (in height).

b. Distance when considered as extent of space is put in the Accusative; when considered as degree of difference, in the Ablative (§ 250): as, — quinque diērum iter abest (Liv. xxx. 29), it is distant five days' march.

trigintā milibus passuum infrā eum locum (B. G. vi. 35), thirty miles below that place (below by thirty miles).

3. Place from Which and End of Motion.

258. The *place from which*¹ is denoted by the Ablative with ab, ā, or ex; the place to which (the End of Motion) by the Accusative with ad or in: as, —

1. Place from which: — ā septentrione, from the north.

cum ā vōbis discesserō (Cat. Maj. 22), when I leave you.
dē prōvinciā decēdere, to come away from one's province.
dē monte, down from the mountain.
negōtiātor ex Africā (Verr. ii. 1, 5), a merchant from Africa.
influxit ē Graeciā rivulus (Rep. ii. 19), there flowed in a rill from Greece.
ex Britannia obsidēs misērunt (B. G. iv. 38), they sent hostages from Britain.
Mōsa prōfluit ex monte Vosegō (id. iv. 10), the Meuse (flows from) rises in the Vosges mountains.
quās (nāvis) ex Pictonibus et Santonīs reliquisque pācātis regiōnibus venire iusserat (id. iii. 11), the ships which he had given orders should collect from the [country of the] Pictones and the Santoni and from the other conquered regions.

¹ Originally all these relations were expressed with all these words by the cases alone. The accusative denoted the end of motion as in a certain sense the object of the action (cf. Rōmam petiit), and the ablative in its proper meaning of separation denoted the place from which. The prepositions, originally adverbs, were added to define more exactly the direction of motion, as in to us ward, toward us, and by long association became indispensable except as indicated above.

2. Place to which:—

ad finēs Hyrcāniae penetrat (Q. C. vi. 4), he penetrates to the borders of Hyrcania.

adibam ad istum fundum (Cæc. 29), I was going to that estate (cf. § 237. d).

in Āfricam nāvigāvit, he sailed to Africa.

in Ītaliā profectus, gone to Italy.

lēgātum in Treverōs mittit (B. G. iii. 11), he sends his lieutenant into the [country of the] Treveri.

in Piræa cum exissem (Att. vi. 9, 1), when I had landed at the Piræus.

[Admitted by Cicero himself to be wrong, the Piræus being a town (see b, below). The passage is discussed by him in Att. vii. 3.]

NOTE 1.—In poetry the end of motion is often expressed by the Dative (§ 225. b. 3): as,— it clamor caelō (Æn. v. 451), a shout goes up to the sky.

NOTE 2.—With the name of a country, ad denotes to the borders; in, into the country itself. Similarly ab denotes away from the outside; ex, out of the interior. Thus ad Ītaliā pervēnit would mean, he came to the frontier, regardless of the destination; in Ītaliā, he went to Italy, i.e. to a place within it, to Rome, for instance. So ab Ītaliā profectus est would mean, he came away from the frontier, regardless of the original starting-point; ex Ītaliā, he came from Italy, from within, as from Rome, for instance.

a. The names of towns or small islands from which, as also domus and rūs, are put in the Ablative without a preposition: as,— rūre reversus, having returned from the country.

Rōmā profectus, having set out from Rome.

Rōmā abesse, to be absent from Rome.

domō abire, to leave home.

NOTE 1.—With names of towns, etc., ab is often used, commonly to denote from the vicinity of: as,— ut ā Mutinā discēderet (Phil. xiv. 2, 4), that he should retire from Mutina (which he was besieging).

erat ā Gergoviā dēspēctus in castra (B. G. vii. 45), there was from about G. a view into the camp.

profecti ā domō (Liv. xl. 33), setting out from home.

loca quae ā Brundisiō propius absunt (Att. viii. 14), places which are nearer to Brundisium (nearer from).

NOTE 2.—The ablative without a preposition is used to denote the place from which in certain idiomatic expressions: as,— cēssisset patriā (Mil. 25), he would have left his country.

patriā pellere, to drive out of the country.

manū mittere, to emancipate (let go from the hand).

NOTE 3.—The poets often omit the preposition where it would be required in prose: as,— mānis Acheronte remissōs (Æn. v. 99), the spirits returned from Acheron.

b. The names of towns or small islands to which as also domus and rūs, are put in the Accusative without a preposition: as, —

Rōmam rediit, he returned to Rome.

Dēlō Rhodum nāvigāre, to sail from Delos to Rhodes.

rūs ibō, I shall go into the country.

domum iit, he went home. [So, suās domōs abire, to go to their homes.]

NOTE 1. — In this use domum may be modified by a possessive pronoun or a genitive. When otherwise modified, domum requires the preposition in. Thus, — domum rēgis (Deiot. 6), to the king's house. [But also in M. Laecae domum (Cat. i. 4), to M. Laca's house.] But, — in domum māgnam venīre, to come into a large house.

NOTE 2. — With the names of towns, etc., ad may be used in the sense of towards, to the neighborhood of: as, — ad Alesiam proficiscuntur (B. G. vii. 76), they set out for Alesia.

ad Alesiam perveniunt (id. vii. 79), they arrive at Alesia (come through to).

ad Athēnās nāvigāre, to set sail for Athens (landing in the harbor).

NOTE 3. — The general words, urbes, oppidum, insula require a preposition in either construction (to which or from which): as, ad urbem, ab urbe, ad urbem Rōmam, Rōmam ad urbem, ex urbe Rōmā.

NOTE 4. — Two or more nouns are sometimes expressed after one verb as limits of motion (see § 259. 4).

NOTE 5. — The poets often omit the preposition with any noun: as, — Italiam Lāviniaque vēnit litora (Æn. i. 2), he came to Italy and the Lavinian shores.

finis Italōs mittēre (id. iii. 440), you shall be allowed to reach the Italian boundaries.

terram Hesperiam veniēs (id. ii. 781), you shall come to the Hesperian land.

REMARK. — The preposition is omitted with the supine in -um (§ 302) and in the following old phrases: — exsequiās ire, to go to the funeral. infitiās ire, to resort to denial.

pessum ire, to go to ruin. pessum dare, to ruin (cf. perdō).

vēnum dare, to sell (give to sale). [Hence vēndere.]

vēnum ire, to be sold (go to sale). [Hence vēnīre.]

forās (used as adverb), out: as, forās egredi, to go out of doors.

4. The Place Where.

c. 1. The place where is denoted by the Ablative with the preposition in (Locative Ablative): as, — in hōc urbe vitam dēgit, he passed his life in this city.

si in Galliā remanērent (B. G. iv. 8), if they should stay in Gaul.

dum haec in Venetiis geruntur (id. iii. 17), while this was going on among the Veneti.

dum in insulā positum (id. vii. 58), a town situated on an island.

2. But names of towns and small islands are put in the Locative Case.

This has in the first and the second declension singular the same form as the Genitive, in the plural and in the third declension the same form as the Dative or Ablative: as, —

Rōmae, at Rome (Rōma).	Athēnis, at Athens (Athēnae).
Rhodi, at Rhodes (Rhodus).	Lanuvi, at Lanuvium.
Sami, at Samos.	Cypri, at Cyprus.
Tiburī or Tibure, at Tibur.	Cūribus, at Cures.
Philippiis, at Philippi.	Capreis, at Capri (Capreae).

REMARK. — Large islands, and all places when thought of as a territory and not as a locality are treated like names of countries: as, — in Siciliā, in Sicily.

in Ithacā leporēs illātī moriuntur (Plin. H. N., cf. § 256. a), in Ithaca hares when carried there die. [Ulysses lived at Ithaca, would require Ithacae.]

NOTE 1. — With all names of places AT, meaning near (not in), is expressed by ad or apud with the Accusative. In the neighborhood of may be expressed by circā with the Accusative; among, by apud with the Accusative. Thus, — pūgna ad Cannās, the fight at Cannae. conchās ad Cāietam legunt (Or. ii. 6), at Caieta (along the shore).

ad (apud) inferōs, in the world below (near or among those below).
ad forēs, at the doors.	ad iānuam, at the door.
apud Graecōs, among the Greeks.	apud mē, at my house.
apud Solōs (Leg. ii. 16), at Soli.	circā Capuam, round about Capua.

NOTE 2. — In citing an author, apud is regularly used; in citing a particular work, in. Thus, — apud Xenophōntem, in Xenophon. But, — in Xenophōntis Oeconomicō, in Xenophon's Oeconomicus.

d. The Locative Case is also preserved in the following common nouns: — domī (rarely domū), at home.

bellī, militiāe (in contrast to domī), abroad, in military service.
humī, on the ground.	rūrī, in the country.
forīs, out-of-doors.	terrā marīque, by land and sea.

These are used like names of towns, without a preposition. So also, — herī (-e), yesterday. vesperī (-e), in the evening.

infelici arborī (Liv. i. 26), on the ill-omened tree.

e. The locative domī may be modified by a possessive adjective or a limiting genitive; but, when it would be otherwise modified some other construction is used instead of the Locative. Thus, — domī Caesaris, at Caesar's house.

domī suae vel aliēnae, at his own or another's house. But, — in Mārci Crassi castissimā domō (Cael. 4, 9), in the chaste home of Marcus Crassus. [Cf. ex Annianā Milōnis domō, § 184. d.]

f. The place where is denoted by the Ablative without a preposition in several constructions: —

1. Regularly in many indefinite words, such as locō, parte: as, — quibus locō positīs (Or. iii. 38), when these are set in position.

quā parte victi erant (Att. ix. 11), on the side where they were beaten. But, exercitum castris continuit (B. G. i. 48), he kept his army in camp.

[Here the construction is influenced by means.]

2. Frequently with nouns which are qualified by adjectives (regularly when tōtus is used): as, — mediā urbe (Liv. i. 33), in the middle of the city.

tōtā Siciliā (Verr. iv. 23), throughout Sicily (in the whole of Sicily). So, — tōtā Tarracinā (De Or. ii. 59), in all Tarracina (cf. c. 2. Rem.).

3. Freely in poetry: as, — litore curvō (Æn. iii. 16), on the winding shore.

antrō sēclūsa relinquit (id. iii. 446), she leaves them shut up in the cave.

Ēpirō, Hesperīā (id. iii. 503), in Epirus, in Hesperia.

g. The way by which is put in the ablative without a preposition: as, — viā breviorē equitēs praemisi (Fam. x. 9), I sent forward the cavalry by a shorter road.

Aegaeō mari trāiēcit (Liv. xxxvii. 14), he crossed by way of the Ægean Sea. prōvehimur pelagō (Æn. iii. 506), we sail forth over the sea.

NOTE. — In this use the way by which is conceived as the means of passage.

5. Special Uses of Time and Place.

259. The following special uses require to be observed: —

a. Many expressions have in Latin the construction of time when, where in English the main idea is rather of place: as, — pūgnā Cannēnsi (or apud Cannās), in the fight at Canne.

lūdis Rōmānis, at the Roman games.

omnibus Gallicis bellis, in all the Gallic wars.

b. In many idiomatic expressions of time, the accusative with ad, in, or sub is used. Such are the following:—

supplicatiō dēcrēta est in Kalendās Iānuāriās, a thanksgiving was voted for the 1st of January.

convēnērunt ad diem, they assembled at the [appointed] day.

ad vesperum, till evening; sub vesperum, towards evening.

sub idem tempus, about the same time.

sub noctem, at night-fall.

c. Time during which or within which may be expressed by the ablative of a noun in the singular, with an ordinal numeral: as, — quīntō diē, within [just] four days (lit., on the fifth day). [The Romans counted both ends, see § 376. d.] rēgnat iam sextum annum, he has reigned going on six years (he is reigning now the sixth year).

But also, — rēgnāvit iam sex annōs, he has already reigned for six years.

d. Distance of time before or after anything is variously expressed: as, — post (ante) trēs annōs, post tertium annum, trēs post annōs, tertium post annum, tribus post annis, tertio post annō (§ 250), three years after.

tribus annis (tertio annō) post exilium (postquam eiectus est), three years after his exile.

his tribus proximis annis, within the last three years.

paucis annis, a few years hence.

abhinc annōs trēs (tribus annis), ante hōs trēs annōs, three years ago.

triennium est cum (trēs annī sunt cum), it is three years since.

octāvō mēse quam (see § 262. note 2), the eighth month after.

e. In Dates the phrase ante diem (a. d.) with an ordinal, or the ordinal alone, is followed by an accusative, like a preposition; and the phrase itself may also be governed by a preposition.

The year is expressed by the names of the consuls in the ablative absolute, often without a conjunction (§ 255. a): as, — is diēs erat a. d. quīntum Kalendās Aprilis L. Pisōne A. Gabiniō cōsulibus (B. G. i. 6), that day was the 5th before the calends of April (March 28), in the consulship of Piso and Gabinius.

in a. d. v. Kal. Nov. (Cat. i. 3), to the 5th day before the calends of November (Oct. 28).

xv. Kal. Sextilis, the 15th day before the calends of August (July 18). [Full form: quīntō decimō diē ante Kalendās.]

f. For AT, meaning near (not in), see § 258. c. note 1.

NOTE. — For TO and FROM with names of places, see § 258.

g. When motion to a place is implied in English, though not expressed, the accusative with or without a preposition must be used in Latin: as, — coniūrāti in cūriam convēnerunt, the conspirators met in the Senate-house, (came together into the Senate-house). concilium domum suam convocāvit, he called a council at his own house.

h. When two or more names of place follow a verb of motion, each must be under its own construction. Thus, — quadriduō quō haec gesta sunt rēs ad Chrȳsogonum in castra L. Sullae Volāterrās dēfertur (Rosc. Am. 7), within four days after this was done, the matter was reported to Chrysogonus in Sulla's camp at Volaterra.

VII.—USE OF PREPOSITIONS.

260. Some Prepositions are used with the Accusative, some with the Ablative,¹ and a few with both.

NOTE.—For the list of Prepositions, see § 152.

a. Verbs of placing, though implying motion, take the construction of the place in which.

Such are: pōnō and its compounds (except impōnō), locō, collocō, statuō, cōstituō, etc.

qui in sēde sō domō collocāvit (Parad. iii. 2), who put [one] into his place and home.

statuitur eques Rōmānus in Aprōni convīviō (Verr. iii. 61), a Roman knight is brought into a banquet of Apronius.

insula Dēlos in Aegaeō mari posita (Leg. Man. 55), the island of Delos, situated in the Aegean Sea.

si in ūnō Pompēiō omnia pōnerētis (Id. 59), if you made everything depend on Pompey alone.

b. Position is frequently expressed by the Ablative with ab (rarely ex), properly meaning from:² as, — ā tergō, in the rear.

ā parte Pompēianā, on the side of Pompey.

ā sinistrā, on the left hand. [Cf. hinc, on this side.] ex alterā parte, on the other side.

māgnā ex parte, in a great degree (from, i.e. in, a great part).

¹ The force lies strictly with the Case, and the preposition only indicates more clearly direction or place.

² Apparently the direction whence the sensuous impression comes.

c. Super in the sense of concerning takes the Ablative; in all other senses it takes the Accusative: as, — hāc super rē (Cic.), concerning this thing. super tāli causā missi (Nep. Paus. 4), sent on such an errand. sed hāc rē super nimis (Att. x. 8), but more than enough on that point.

super culmina tēcti (Æn. ii. 695), above the house-top. super vallum praecipitāri (Jug. 58), to be hurled over the rampart. super laterēs cōria inducuntur (B. C. ii. 10), hides are drawn over the bricks. super Numidiam (Jug. 19), beyond Numidia. super terrae tumulum (Legg. 26), on the mound of earth.
super vinum (Q. C. viii. 4), over [his] wine.

NOTE. — The ablative is used in poetry with super in other senses: as, — figna super focō largē repōnēns (Hor. Od. i. 9. 5), piling logs generously on the fire. nocte super mediā (Æn. ix. 59), after midnight.

d. Subter takes the Accusative, except sometimes in poetry. Thus, subter togam (Liv.), under his mantle. But, — subter litore (Catull.), below the shore.

e. Tenus (which follows its noun) regularly takes the Ablative, but sometimes the Genitive (§ 223. e). Thus, — Taurō tenus (Deiot. 13), as far as Taurus. capulō tenus (Æn. v. 55), up to the hill.

Corcȳrae tenus (Liv. xxv. 24), as far as Corcyra.

NOTE. — Tenus is frequently connected with the feminine of an adjective pronoun, making an adverbial phrase: as, — hāctenus, hitherto; quātenus, so far as.

dē hāc rē hāctenus, so much for that (about this matter so far).

261. Many words may be construed either as Prepositions or as Adverbs: thus, —

a. The adverbs prīdiē, postrīdiē, propius, proximē,¹ usque — also (less frequently) the adjectives propior and proximus — may be followed by the Accusative (cf. §§ 207. b, 234. e): as, — prīdiē Nōnās Iūniās (Cic.), the day before the Nones of June (June 4). postrīdiē lūdōs (Att. xvi. 4), the day after the games.

ipse propior montem suōs collocat (Jug. 49), he stations his men nearer the hill. proximē Pompēium sedēbam (Att. i. 14), I sat next to Pompey. [Cf. proximus Pompēium sedēbam.]

pars insulae quae est propius sōlis occāsum (B. G. iv. 28), the part of the island which is nearer the west (sunset).

terminōs usque Libyae (Just.), to the bounds of Libya.

NOTE.—Prīdiē and postrīdiē take also the Genitive (§ 223. c. note 2). Propior, propius, proximus, and proximē, take also the Dative, or the Ablative with ab. Usque is commonly followed by ad. Thus,— propius Tiberi (Nep.), nearer the Tiber.

propius ab urbe (Plin.), nearer the city usque ad mare, to the sea.

b. The adverbs palam, procul, simul, may be used as prepositions and take the Ablative (so perhaps intus, § 153, note): as,— rem crēditōri palam populō solvit (Liv. vi. 14), he paid the debt in the presence of the people.

haud procul castris in modum municipiī exstrūcta (Tac. H. iv. 22), not far from the camp, built up like a town.

simul nobīs habitat barbarus (Ov. Tr. v. 10. 29), close among us dwells the barbarian.

NOTE.—But simul regularly takes cum; procul is usually followed by ab in classic use; and the use of palam as a preposition is comparatively late. Thus,— procul ā mari, far from the sea.

nobiscum simul, at the same time with ourselves.

c. The adverb clam is found with the Accusative or Ablative, rarely with the Genitive or Dative: as,— clam mātrem suam (Plaut.), unknown to his mother.

clam mihi (id.), in secret from me.

clam patris (id.), without his father's knowledge.

clam vōbis (B. C. ii. 32), without your knowledge.

d. Prepositions often retain their original meaning as adverbs. So especially —

1. Ante and post in relations of time: as,— quae paulō ante praecepta dedimus (Cic.), a little while ago, etc.

post tribus diēbus, three days after (cf. § 259. d).

2. Adversus, contrā, circiter, prope: as,— adversus resistere, to hold out in opposition.

Aeolus haec contrā, thus Æolus in reply.

circiter pars quārta, about the fourth part.

prope exanimātus, nearly lifeless.

3. In general those ending in -ā: as,— forte fuit fūxtā tumulus, there happened to be a mound close by.

NOTE.—Clam and versus are by many excluded from the list of prepositions.

[For the use of Prepositions in Composition, see § 170.]

262. Some prepositions or adverbs which imply Comparison are followed, like comparatives, by quam, which may be separated by several words, or even clauses.

neque ante dimisit eum quam fidem dedit (Liv. xxxix. 10), nor did he let him go until he gave a pledge.

post diem tertium quam dixerat (Man. 16), the third day after he said it.

NOTE 1.—Such words are ante, prius, post, pridie, postridie; also magis and prae in compounds: as,— Catō ipse iam servire quam pugnare māvult (Att. vii. 15), Cato himself by this time would rather be a slave than fight.

si iam principatū Galliae obtinere nōn possint, Gallōrum quam Rōmānōrum imperia praeferre (B. G. i. 17), if they can no longer hold the chief rank in Gaul, [they] prefer the rule of Gauls to that of Romans.

NOTE 2.—The ablative of time (§ 256) is sometimes followed by quam in the same way: as,— octāvō mēse quam (Liv. xxi. 15), within eight months after, etc.

263. For ā or ab with the Ablative of Agent, see § 246.

NOTE.—The following prepositions sometimes follow their nouns: ad, citrā, circā, contrā, dē, ē (ex), inter, iuxtā, penes, propter, ultrā, tenus (regularly), and occasionally others: as,— cūius ā mē corpus est cremātum, quod contrā decuit ab illō meum (C. M. 23), whose body I burned [on the funeral pile], while on the contrary (lit. contrary to which) mine should have been burned by him.

CHAPTER III.—Syntax of the Verb.

I.—MOODS AND TENSES.

NOTE.—The Syntax of the Verb relates chiefly to the use of the Moods (expressing the manner in which the action is conceived) and the Tenses (expressing the time of the action). There is no difference in origin between mood and tense. The moods, except the infinitive, are only specialized tenses; and hence the uses of mood and tense frequently cross each other. Thus the tenses sometimes have modal significations (compare indicative in apodosis, § 311. c; future for imperative, § 269. f); and the moods sometimes express time (compare subjunctive in future conditions, § 307. b, and notice the want of a future subjunctive § 110. a).

The parent language, besides the Imperative mood, had two distinct forms with modal signification: the Subjunctive, expressing an action as willed or vividly conceived; and the Optative, expressing an action as wished for or vaguely conceived.

Of these, the Subjunctive was developed from a Present Tense, by which an action continued in present time was represented as future: compare in English, the army marches to-morrow. Such an action came to be conceived on the one hand as command: compare the military order, the regiment will advance; and on the other as a possibility or a mere conception: compare anybody will understand that.

The Optative has had a similar development. It was originally a tense-form compounded with YA, and probably denoted past time (cf. Eng. should and would); but like the subjunctive, it has acquired the two meanings of conception and command.

It must not be supposed, however, that in any given construction either the subjunctive or the optative was deliberately used because it denoted conception or possibility. On the contrary, each construction has had its own line of development from more tangible and literal forms of thought to more vague and ideal; and by this process the mood used comes to have in each case a special meaning, which is afterwards habitually associated with it in that construction. Thus in English the expression I would do this has become equivalent to a mild command; while by analysis it is seen to be the apodosis of a present condition contrary to fact (§ 308): if I were you, etc. By further analysis, I would go is seen to have meant, originally, I should have wished (or I did wish) to go.

In Latin, the original subjunctive and the optative became confounded in form and meaning, and were merged in the present subjunctive. Then new tense-forms of the subjunctive were formed by composition;¹ and to these the original as well as the derived meanings of both moods became attached (see § 265). All the independent uses of the Latin subjunctive are thus to be accounted for.

The dependent uses of the subjunctive have arisen in every case from the employment of some independent subjunctive construction in co-ordination with a main statement. In time the two clauses have so grown together as to form a single compound sentence, and the subjunctive member is felt to have assumed subordinate relations toward the other clause. The original meaning of the mood has disappeared, and a new meaning has arisen by implication. Thus, misit lēgātōs qui dicerent, he sent ambassadors to say (i.e. who would say in a supposed case).¹ Similar processes may be seen in the growth of Apodosis. Thus, tolle hanc opiniōnem, luctum sustuleris (remove this notion, you will have done away with grief: i.e. if you remove, etc.).

The infinitive is originally a verbal noun, modifying a verb like other nouns: volō vidēre, lit. "I wish for-seeing": compare English what went ye out for to see? But in Latin it has been surprisingly developed, so as to have forms for tense, and some proper modal characteristics, and to be used as a substitute for other moods.

The other noun and adjective forms of the verb have been developed in various ways, which are treated under their respective heads below.

The proper verbal constructions may be thus classified:—

1. INDICATIVE: Direct Assertion or Question (§ 264).
 - a. Independent: { Wish, Exhortation, Command, Question (§ 265. a).
2. SUBJUNCTIVE:
 - a. Independent: {
 1. Purpose (with ut, nō) (§ 317).
 2. Result (with ut, ut nōn) (§ 319).
 3. Characteristic (Relative Clause) (§ 320).
 4. Time (with cum) (§ 325).
 - b. Dependent (Chap. v.):
 5. Conditions { Future (less vivid) (§ 307. b, c).
 - Contrary to Fact (§ 308).
 6. Intermediate (Indirect Discourse) (§ 341).
 7. Indirect Questions or Commands (§§ 334, 339).
3. IMPERATIVE:
 - 1. Direct Commands (often subjunctive) (§ 269).
 - 2. Statutes, Laws, and Wills (§ 269. d).
 - 3. Prohibitions (early or poetic use) (§ 269. note).
4. INFINITIVE:
 - a. Subject of esse and Impersonal verbs (§ 270).
 - b. Objective Constructions:
 1. Complementary Infinitive (§ 271).
 2. Indirect Discourse (with subject-accusative) (§ 272).
 - c. Idiomatic Uses:
 1. Purpose (poetic or Greek use) (§ 273).
 2. Exclamation (with subject-accusative) (§ 274).
 3. Historical Infinitive (§ 275).

I. — MOODS.

I. THE INDICATIVE.

264. The Indicative is the mood of direct assertions or questions when there is no modification of the verbal idea except that of time.

a. The Tenses of the Indicative generally denote time, as present, past, or future, with reference to the speaker (§ 276 ff.).

NOTE. — Time thus denoted is often called absolute time. See uses of temporal clauses, § 323.

b. The Indicative is sometimes used where the English idiom would suggest the Subjunctive: as, — longum est, it would be tedious [if, etc.].

sati^{us} erat, it would have been better [if, etc.].
persequi possum, I might follow up [in detail].

c. The Future Indicative is sometimes used for the Imperative (§ 269. f).

d. The Indicative is used in some kinds of conditions (see §§ 306, 308).

e. The place of the indicative in narration is sometimes supplied by the Historical Infinitive (§ 275).

f. In Indirect Discourse a narrative clause has its verb in the Infinitive (see §§ 272, 336).

II. THE SUBJUNCTIVE.

265. The Subjunctive in general expresses the verbal idea with some modification¹ such as is expressed in English by auxiliaries, by the infinitive, or by the rare subjunctive (§ 112. b).

The uses of the subjunctive are independent or dependent (cf. head-note, p. 274).

a. The Subjunctive is used independently to express —

1. An Exhortation, Concession, or Command (Hortatory, § 266).
2. A Wish (Optative, § 267).
3. A Question of Doubt or Deliberation (Deliberative, § 268).

NOTE. — These constructions (with the exception of some forms of Deliberative Subjunctive) are merely different phases of the same use.

REMARK. — In the conclusion (apodosis) of Conditional Sentences, the subjunctive is grammatically independent, though logically it depends on some condition expressed or implied (§ 304). The so-called Potential Subjunctive comes under this head (see § 311. a).

b. The subjunctive is used in dependent clauses to express —

¹ These modifications are of various kinds, each of which has had its own special development (compare introductory note, p. 274). The subjunctive in Latin has also many idiomatic uses (see clauses of Result and Time), where the English does not modify the verbal idea at all, but expresses it directly; but in these cases the Latin merely takes a different view of the action, and has developed its construction differently from the English.

1. Purpose (Final, § 317).
2. Result (Consecutive, § 319).
3. Characteristic (§ 320).
4. Time (Temporal, § 325).
5. Indirect question (§ 334).
6. Condition: future or contrary to fact (§§ 307. b, c, 308).

c. The subjunctive is also used with Particles of Comparison (§ 312), and in subordinate clauses in the Indirect Discourse (§ 336).

1. Hortatory Subjunctive.

266. The Hortatory Subjunctive is used to express an exhortation, a command, a concession, or a condition.

The Present tense refers to future or indefinite time; the Perfect, to past time or completed future time; the Imperfect, to present or past time; the Pluperfect, to completed past time: as, — hōs latrōnēs interficiāmus (B. G. vii. 58), let us kill these robbers.

caveant intemperantiam, meminerint verēcundiae (Off. i. 34), let them shun excess and cherish modesty.
Epicūrus hōc viderit (Acad. ii. 7), let Epicurus look to this.

NOTE 1. — The simple subjunctive of exhortation and command takes the present tense, less commonly the perfect. The Perfect represents an action as completed in future time; but in most cases is hardly to be distinguished from the Present. Other tenses are used in some varieties of this construction (see c. note 1 and e).

REMARK. — The negative particle used with the hortatory subjunctive is nē.

a. The Second Person is used only of an indefinite subject, except in prohibition, in early Latin, and in poetry (cf. § 269. b). Thus, — iniuriās fortunae, quās ferre nequeās, dēfugiendō relinquās (Tusc. v. 41), the wrongs of fortune, which you cannot bear, leave behind by flight.

exoriāre aliquis ultor (id. iv. 625), rise, some avenger.
istō bonō ūtāre dum adsit, cum absit nē requirās (Cat. Maj. 10), use this blessing while it is present; when it is wanting, do not regret it.
nē cōferās culpam in mē (Ter. Eun. 387), don't lay the blame on me.
nihil ignōveris (Mur. 31), pardon nothing. doceās iter et sacra ostia pandās (Æn. vi. 109), show us the way and lay open the sacred portals.

b. In Prohibitions addressed to a definite person, the perfect is more common than the present (cf. § 269. a): as, — hōc facitō: hōc nē fēceris (Div. ii. 61), thou shalt do this; thou shalt not do that.

tū nē quaesleris (Hor.), do not inquire.

nec mihi illud dixeris (Fin. i. 7), and do not say that to me.

c. The hortatory subjunctive is especially used to express a CONCESSION, sometimes with ut, nē, quamvis, quamlibet, or similar words (cf. § 313. a): as, — fuerit aliis: tibi quandō esse coepit (Verr. i. 41), suppose he was [so] to others, when did he begin to be to you?

ut ratiōnem Platō nullam afferret (Tusc. i. 21), though Plato adduced no reasons.

nēmō is unquam fuit: nē fuerit (Or. 29), there never was such a one [you will say]: granted (let there not have been).

nē sit summum malum dolor, malum certē est (Tusc. ii. 5), granted that pain is not the greatest evil, at least it is an evil.

quamvis scelerātī illi fuissent (De Or. i. 53), however guilty they might have been.

quamvis comis in amicitīis tuendis fuerit (Fin. ii. 25), amiable as he may have been in keeping his friendships (let him have been as amiable as you please).

NOTE 1. — In this use the Present refers to future or indefinite time, the Imperfect to present or past time (the concession being impliedly untrue), the Perfect to past or completed future time, the Pluperfect to completed action in past time (the concession being usually untrue).

NOTE 2. — The Indicative is often used in concessions (see § 313).

REMARK. — Concessions with si and its compounds belong to Protasis (see § 313. c); those with licet, to Substantive Clauses (see § 313. d).

d. The hortatory subjunctive may be used to denote a PROVISIO (see § 314).

e. The Imperfect and Pluperfect of the hortatory subjunctive denote an unfulfilled obligation in past time: as, — morerētur, inquit (Rab. Post. 10), he should have died, you will say.

potius diceret (Off. iii. 22), he should rather have said.

nē poposcissēs (Att. ii. 1), you should not have asked.

saltem aliquid dē pondere detrāxisset (Fin. iv. 20), at least he should have taken something from the weight.

REMARK. — This use of the subjunctive is carefully to be distinguished from its use in apodosis (potential, § 311. a). The difference is indicated by the translation, should or ought (not would or might).

NOTE. — In this use the Pluperfect differs from the Imperfect only in more clearly representing the time for action as momentary or as past.

2. Optative Subjunctive.

267. The Subjunctive is used to express a Wish. The present tense denotes the wish as possible, the imperfect as unaccomplished in present time, the pluperfect as unaccomplished in past time. Thus, — ita vīvam (Att. v. 15), so may I live (as true as I live).

 nē vīvam si sciō (id. iv. 16), I wish I may not live if I know.
 dī tē perduint (Deiot. 7), the gods confound thee!
 valeant, valeant, civēs mei; valeant, sint incolumēs (Mil. 34), farewell [he says], my fellow-citizens; may they be secure from harm. dī facerent sine patre forem (Ov. Met. viii. 72), would that the gods allowed me to be without a father (but they do not)!

a. The Perfect in this use is antiquated: as, — male dī tibi faxint (Plaut. Curc. 131), may the gods do thee a mischief. quod ōmen dī āverterint (Phil. xii. 6, 14, in a religious formula), and may the gods avert this omen.

b. The Optative Subjunctive is often preceded by the particles uti (ut), utinam, ō sī: as, — ut pereat positum rōbigine tēlum (Hor. Sat. ii. 1), may the weapon un- used perish with rust.

 falsus utinam vātēs sim (Liv. xxi.), I wish I may be a false prophet. utinam P. Clōdīus vīveret (Mil. 38), would that Clodius were now alive. utinam mē mortuum vīdisses (Q. Fr. i. 3), would you had seen me dead. ō sī angulus ille accēdat (Hor. Sat. ii. 6. 8), oh! if that corner might only be added.

NOTE 1. — The subjunctive with uti, etc., was originally deliberative, meaning how may I, etc. (§ 268). The subjunctive with ō sī (poetical) is a protasis (§ 312. note); sī alone is sometimes used to express a wish in the same way: as, — sī nunc sē nōbis ille aureus rāmus ostendat (Æn. vi. 187), if now that golden branch would only show itself to us!

NOTE 2. — The subjunctive of Wish without a particle is rarely found in the imperfect or pluperfect except by sequence of tenses in Indirect Discourse (§ 286): as, — āc venerāta Ceres ita culmō sūrgeret altō (Hor. Sat. ii. 2. 124), and Ceres worshipped [with libations] that so she might rise with tall stalk. [Direct: ita sūrgās.]

c. Velim and vellem, and their compounds, with a subjunctive or infinitive, are often equivalent to an optative subjunctive: as, — dē Menedēmō vellem vērum fuisset, dē rēginā velim vērum sit (Att. iv. 16), about Menedemus I wish it had been true; about the queen I hope it may be.

nōllem accidisset tempus (Fam. iii. 10), I wish the time never had come. māllem Cerberum metuerēs (Tusc. i. 6), I had rather have had you afraid of Cerberus (I should have preferred that you feared C.).

NOTE.—Vellm, etc., in this use, are strictly apodoses with the protasis omitted (§ 311. δ). The thing wished is really a substantive clause used as object of the verb of wishing (§ 331. δ).

[For Concessive Subjunctive, see § 313; for Potential Subjunctive, see § 311.]

3. Deliberative Subjunctive.

268. The Subjunctive is used in questions implying (1) doubt, indignation, or (2) an impossibility of the thing being done: as, — quid hōc homine faciās? quod supplicium dignum libidini eius inveniās (Verr. ii. 16), what are you to do with this man? what fit penalty can you devise for his wantonness?

an ego nōn venīrem (Phil. ii. 2), what, should I not have come?

quid dīcerem (Att. vi. 3), what was I to say?

mihi umquam bonōrum praesidium defutūrum putārem (Mil. 34), could I think that the defence of good men would ever fail me?

quis enim cōlāverit ignem (Ov. Her. xv. 7), who could conceal the flame?

REMARK.—This use is apparently derived from the Hortatory Subjunctive: quid faciāmus? = faciāmus [aliquid], quid? let us do—what? Once established, it was readily transferred to the past: quid faciām? what AM I to do? quid facerem? what WAS I to do? Questions implying impossibility, however, cannot be distinguished from Apodosis (cf. § 305).

NOTE.—The Deliberative Subjunctive is sometimes called Dubitative.

III. THE IMPERATIVE.

269. The Imperative is used in Commands and Entreaties: as, — cōsultite vōbis, prospicite patriae, cōservāte vōs (Cat. iv. 2), have a care for yourselves, guard the country, preserve yourselves.

dīe Mārce Tulli sententiam, Marcus Tullius, state your opinion.

tē ipsum concute, examine yourself.

vīve, valēque (Hor. Sat. ii. 5. 110), farewell, bless you (live and be well)!

miserēre animi nōn digna ferentis (Æn. ii. 144), pity a soul bearing un- deserved woes.

NOTE.—In Negative Commands (prohibitions) the Present Imperative with nō is used by early writers and the poets: as, — nē timē (Plaut. Curc. 520), don't be afraid.

nimum nē crēde colōri (Ecl. ii. 17), trust not too much to complexion.

equō nē crēdite (Æn. ii. 48), trust not the horse.

[For the Future Imperative with nō in laws and formal precepts, see l. 3. below.]

a. Prohibition is regularly expressed in classic prose:—

1. By nē with the second person of the Perfect Subjunctive: as, — nē terrītus fueris (Tac. H. i. 16), don't be alarmed.

nē vōs quidem iūdicēs ei qui mē absolvistis mortem timueritis (Tusc. i. 41), nor must you fear death, you judges that, etc.

2. By nōlī with the Infinitive: as, — nōlī putāre (Fam. xiv. 2), do not suppose (be unwilling to suppose).

nōlite cōgere sociōs (Verr. i. 82), do not compel the allies.

NOTE.—The poets frequently use instead of nōlī other words of similar meaning (cf. § 273. c): as, — parce piās scelerāre manūs (Æn. iii. 42), forbear to defile your pious hands.

cētera mītte loquī (Hor. Epod. 13. 7), forbear to say the rest.

fuge quaerere (Hor. Od. i. 9. 13), do not inquire.

3. By cave with or without nē (colloquially fac nē) with the Present or Perfect Subjunctive¹ (§ 266. b): as, — cave putēs (Att. vii. 20), don't think.

cave dixeris, don't say so.

cave faxis (Ter. Heaut. 187), don't do it.

fac nē quid aliud cūrēs (Fam. xvi. 11), see that you attend to nothing else.

NOTE.—Other negatives sometimes take the place of nē: as, — nōn dubitāveris (Sen. Q. N. i. 3. 3), you must not doubt.

nihil ignōveris (Mur. 65), grant no pardon (pardon nothing).

b. General Prohibitions addressed to no definite person are regularly expressed by the Present Subjunctive with nē (cf. c, below): as, — dēnique istō bonō ūtāre dum adsit: cum absit nē requirās (Cat. Maj. 10), in short, use this good while present; when wanting, do not regret it.

NOTE.—The poets and early writers sometimes use the Present Subjunctive with nē in prohibitions not general: as, — molestus nē sis (Plaut. Most. 771), don't be troublesome.

nē sis patruus mihi (Hor. Sat. ii. 3. 88), don't be a [harsh] uncle to me.

c. The third person of the imperative is antiquated or poetic: — ollis salūs populī suprēma lēx estō, the safety of the people shall be their first law.

iūsta imperia suntō, cisque civēs modestē pārentō (Leg. iii. 3), let there be lawful authorities, and let the citizens strictly obey them.

NOTE.—In prose the Hortatory Subjunctive is commonly used instead (§ 266): as, haec igitur lēx in amicitia sanciatūr (Lael. 12), let this law then be laid down in case of friendship.

¹ In prohibitions the Subjunctive with nē is hortatory; that with cave is an object clause (originally hortatory, cf. § 331. f, Rem.).

d. The Future Imperative is used in commands, etc., where there is a distinct reference to future time: viz., —

1. In connection with some form that marks a condition precedent (as a future, a future-perfect, or an imperative). Thus, —

Phyllida mitte mihi, meus est nātālis, Iollā; cum faciam vitulā prō frūgibus ipse venītō (Ecl. iii. 76), send Phyllis to me, it is my birthday, Iollas; when I [shall] sacrifice a heifer for the harvest, come yourself.
dic quibus in terris, etc., et Phyllida sōlus habētō (id. iii. 107), tell in what lands, etc., and have Phyllis for yourself.

2. With adverbs or other expressions of Time: as, — crās petitō, dabitur (Pl. Merc. 769), ask to-morrow [and] it shall be given.

3. In general directions, as Precepts, Statutes, and Wills: as, — cum valētūdini cōsulueris, tum cōsulitō nāvigātiōni (Fam. xvi. 4), when you have attended to your health, then look to your sailing.

is iūris civilis custōs estō (Leg. iii. 3), let him (the prætor) be the guardian of civil right.

Boreā flante, nē arātō, sēmen nē iacitō (Plin. H. N. xviii. 77), when the north wind blows, plough not nor sow your seed.

e. The verbs sciō, meminī, and habeō (in the sense of consider), regularly use the Future Imperative instead of the Present: as, — filiolō mē auctum scītō (Att. i. 2), learn that I am blessed with a little boy.

sic habētō, mi Tirō (Fam. xvi. 4), so understand it, my good Tiro. dē pallā mementō, amābō (Pl. Asin.), pray, dear, remember about the gown.

f. The Future Indicative is sometimes used for the imperative; and quīn (why not?) with the Present Indicative may have the force of a command: as, — sī quid acciderit novī, faciēs ut sciam (Fam. xiv. 8), you will let me know if anything new happens. quīn accipis (Ter. Heaut. iv. 7)? here, take it (why not take it?).

g. Instead of the simple Imperative, cūrā, fac, or velim, followed by the subjunctive with or without ut (§ 331. f. R.) is often used, especially in colloquial language: as, — cūrā ut Rōmæ sis (Att. i. 2), take care to be at Rome. fac cūrēs ut ōrēs (Ter. Eun. 500), do try to induce [him]. fac ut valētūdinem cūrēs (Fam. xiv. 17), see that you take care of your health. [Cf. rūs cō. fac, amābō (Ter. Eun. 532), I'm going into the country. Do, please.

domi adsitis facitō (id. 505), be at home, do.
cum mihi velim mittās (Att. viii. 11), I wish you would send it to me.

h. In the Indirect Discourse all imperative forms of speech are represented by the Subjunctive (see § 339).

i. The Imperative sometimes has the force of a Conditional Clause (see § 310. b).

IV. THE INFINITIVE.

NOTE.—The Infinitive is properly a noun denoting the action of the verb abstractly. It differs, however, from other abstract nouns in the following points: (1) it admits in many cases of the distinction of tense; (2) it is modified by ad-verbs, not by adjectives; (3) it governs the same case as its verb; (4) it is limited to special constructions.

The Latin Infinitive is the dative (or locative) case of such a noun and was originally used to denote Purpose; but it has in many constructions developed into a substitute for a finite verb. Hence the variety of its use.

In its use as a verb, the Infinitive may take a Subject-Accusative (§ 240. f), originally the object of another verb on which the Infinitive depended. Thus iubeō tē valēre is literally, I command you for being well (cf. substantive clauses, § 330).

1. Infinitive as Subject, etc.

270. The Infinitive, with or without a subject-accusative, may be used with est and similar verbs (1) as the Subject, (2) in Apposition with the subject, or (3) as a Predicate Nominative. Thus, —

1. Subject: as, — dolēre malum est (Fin. v. 28, 84), to suffer pain is an evil.

bellum est sua vitia nōsse (Att. ii. 17), it's a fine thing to know one's own faults.

pulchrum est benefacere rei pūblicae (Sall. Cat. 3), it is a noble thing to benefit the state.

mōtōs praestat compōnere flūctūs (Æn. i. 135), it is better to calm the troubled waves.

hōc facere illum mihi quam prōsit nesciō (Att. ii. 1 6), I don't know how his doing this benefits me.

2. In Apposition with the Subject: as, — proinde quasi iniūriam facere id dēmum esset imperiō ūti (Sall. Cat. 12), just as if this, — to commit injustice, were to use power. [Here facere is in apposition with id.]

3. Predicate Nominative: as, — id est convenienter nātūrae vīvere (Fin. iv. 15, 41), that is to live in conformity with nature. [Cf. ūtī in the last example.]

NOTE 1. — An infinitive may also be used as Direct Object in connection with a Predicate Accusative, or as Appositive with such Direct Object: as, — istūc ipsum nōn esse cum fueris miserrimum putō (Tusc. i. 6), for I think this very thing most wretched, not to be when one has been.

 miserārī, invidāre, gestīre, laetārī, haec omnia morbōs Graeci appellant (Tusc. iii. 4, 7), to feel pity, envy, desire, joy, — all these things the Greeks call diseases.

NOTE 2.—An Appositive or Predicate noun used with an Infinitive in any of these constructions is put in the Accusative, whether the infinitive has a subject expressed or not. Thus,— nōn esse cupidum pecūnia (Parad. 63), to be free from desires (not to be desirous) is money in hand.

a. 1. The infinitive as subject is not common except with est and similar verbs. (See examples above.)

NOTE.—In this use the abstract idea expressed by the infinitive is represented as having some quality or belonging to some thing.

2. But occasionally, especially in less careful writers and in poetry, the infinitive is used as the subject of verbs which are apparently more active in meaning: as,— quōs omnis eadem cupere, eadem ōdisse, eadem metuere in ūnum cōgit (Jug. 31), all of whom the fact of desiring, hating, and fearing the same things has united into one.

 ingenuās didicisse fidēliter artēs ēmolliit mōrēs (Ov. ex P. ii. 9. 48), faithfully to have learned liberal arts softens the manners. posse loqui ēripitur (Ov. M. ii. 483), the power of speech is taken away.
 nōn cadit invidēre in sapientem (Tusc. iii. 10, 21), the sage is not liable to envy (to envy does not fall upon the sage).
 istūc nihil dolēre nōn sine māgnā mercēde contingit (Tusc. iii. 6, 12), that apathy is not to be had except at great cost (does not fall to one's lot).

b. The infinitive is used with many impersonal verbs and expressions, partly as subject and partly as complementary infinitive (§ 271).

Such are libet, licet, oportet, decet, placet, vīsum est, pudet, piget, necesse est, opus est, etc.

id primum in poētis cernī licet (De Or. iii. 7), this may be seen first in poets.
 reperīebat quid dīcī opus esset (Brut. 59), he found what needed to be said.
 haec praescripta servantem licet māgnificē vīvere (Off. i. 26), one who observes these precepts may live nobly.
 Catō negat iūs esse quī miles nōn sīt pūgnāre cum hoste (Off. i. 11), Cato says it is not right that one who is not a soldier should fight with the enemy.
 necesse est morī (Tusc. ii. 1), it is necessary to die.

quid attinet glōriōsē loquī nisi cōstanter loquāre (Fin. ii. 27, 89), what good does it do to talk boastfully unless you speak consistently?
 nōn lubet enim mihi dēplōrāre vitam (Cat. Maj. 23, 84), for it does not please me to lament my life.
 neque mē vīxisse paenitet (id. 23, 84), I do not feel sorry to have lived.
 iam pridem gubernāre mē taedēbat (Att. ii. 7, 4), I had long been tired of being pilot.

NOTE 1.—These are not generally real cases of the infinitive used as subject, but approach that construction.

NOTE 2.—For the subject of such infinitives, and for predicate nouns or adjectives agreeing with the subject, see §§ 271. c, 272. a.

c. Rarely the infinitive is used exactly like the accusative of a noun: as,— beātē vivere alii in aliō, vōs in voluptātē pōnitis (Fin. ii. 27, 86), a happy life different [philosophers] base on different things, you on pleasure.

 quam multa . . . facimus causā amicōrum, precārī ab indignō, supplicāre etc. (Lael. 16, 57), how many things we do for our friends' sake, ask favors from an unworthy person, resort to entreaty, etc.
 nihil explōratum habeās, nē amāre quidem aut amārī (Lael. 26, 97), you have nothing assured, not even loving and being loved.

NOTE.—Many complementary and other constructions approach a proper accusative use of the infinitive, but their development has been different from that of the examples under c. Thus,— avāritia . . . superbiam, crūdēlītātē, deōs neglegere, omnia vēnālīa habēre edocuit (Sall. Cat. 10), avarice taught pride, cruelly, to neglect the gods, and to hold everything at a price.

2. Complementary Infinitive.

271. Verbs which imply another action of the same subject to complete their meaning take the infinitive without a subject-accusative: as,— hōc quēō dicere (Cat. Maj. 10), this I can say. mittō quaerere (Rosc. Am.), I omit to ask.

 vereor laudāre praesentem (N. D. i. 21), I fear to praise a man to his face (one who is present).
 ōrō ut mātūrēs venire (Att. iv. 1), I beg you will make haste to come.
 oblivisci non possum quae volō (Fin. ii. 32, 104), I cannot forget that which I wish. dēsine mē id docēre (Tusc. ii. 12, 29), cease to teach me that.
 audeō dicere, I venture to say. loquī posse coepī (Cic.), I began to be able to speak.

Such are verbs denoting to be able, dare, undertake, remember, forget, be accustomed, begin, continue, cease, hesitate, learn, know how, fear, and the like.

NOTE.—The mark of this construction is that no Subject of these infinitives is in general admissible or conceivable. But some infinitives usually regarded as objects can hardly be distinguished from this construction when they have no subject expressed. Thus volō dicere and volō mē dicere mean the same thing, I wish to speak; but the latter is object-infinitive, while the former is not apparently different in origin and construction from queō dicere (complementary infinitive), and again volō eum dicere, I wish him to speak, is essentially different from either.

a. Many verbs take either a subjunctive clause or a complementary infinitive, without difference of meaning. Such are verbs signifying willingness, necessity, propriety, resolve, command, prohibition, effort, and the like (cf. § 331): as, — student excellere (Off. i. 32), they aim to excel.

cum statuissem scribere ad tē aliquid (Off. i. 2), when I had resolved to address something to you.

istum exhērēdāre in animō habēbat (Rosc. Am. 18), he had it in mind to deprive him of the inheritance.

NOTE 1.—With some of these verbs an infinitive with subject-accusative may be used as object, taking the place of a complementary infinitive. In this use the subject of the infinitive and that of the main verb are of course the same. Thus, — cupiō mē esse clēmentem (Cat. i. 2) = cupiō esse clēmens, I desire to be merciful (cf. § 331. b, note).

NOTE 2.—Some verbs of these classes never take the subjunctive, but are identical in meaning with others which do: as, — quōs tuērī dēbent dēserunt (Off. i. 2), they forsake those whom they should protect.

nōn lubet fugere aveō pūgnāre (Att. xviii. 3), I have no desire to run away, I'm anxious to fight.

b. Some verbs of these classes — iubeō and vetō regularly — may take (as object) the infinitive with a subject¹ different from that of the main verb (see § 331. a): as, — sīgna inferri iubet (Liv. xlii. 59), he orders the standards to be advanced.

Pompēius . . . rem ad arma dēdūcī studēbat (B. C. i. 4), Pompey was anxious to have matters come to open war.

c. A Predicate Noun or Adjective after a complementary infinitive takes the case of the subject of the main verb: as, — ferique studēbam cīus prūdentiā doctior (Lael. 1, 1), I was eager to become more wise through his wisdom.

¹ This construction, though in many cases different from the two preceding shades off imperceptibly into them. In none of the uses under § 271 is the infinitive strictly Subject or Object; but its meaning is developed from the original one of purpose (cf. § 273. a).

sciō quam solcās esse occupātus (Fam. xvi. 21), I know how busy you usually are (are wont to be).

brevis esse labōrō obscurus fiō (Hor. A. P. 25), I struggle to be brief, I become obscure.

NOTE. — If the construction of the main verb is impersonal, a predicate noun or adjective is in the accusative (but for licet, etc., see § 272. a. 2). Thus, — peregrīni officiū est minimē in aliēnā esse rēpublicā cūriōsum (Off. i. 34), it is the duty of a stranger to be by no means curious in a foreign state.

d. For the infinitive in poetry instead of a substantive clause of purpose, see § 331. g.

3. Infinitive with Subject-Accusative.

272. The Infinitive, with Subject-Accusative, is used with verbs and other expressions of knowing, thinking, telling, and perceiving (Indirect Discourse, § 336):¹ as, — dicit montem ab hostibus tenēri (B. G. i. 22), he says that the hill is held by the enemy. [Direct: mōns ab hostibus tenētur.]

REMARK. — The Infinitive Clause may be — 1. the Direct Object of the verb: as, Caesarem adesse nūtiāvit, he reported that Caesar was present; 2. the Subject of the same verb in the passive: as, Caesarem adesse nūtiātum est, it was reported that Caesar was present; 3. the Predicate Nominative after some such phrase as rumor est: as, rumor erat Caesarem adesse, there was a report that Caesar was present.

a. 1. With certain impersonal verbs and expressions that take the infinitive as an apparent subject (§ 270. b), the personal subject of the action may be expressed —

1. By a dative, depending on the verb or verbal phrase: or,

2. By an accusative expressed as the subject of the infinitive. Thus, rogant ut id sibi facere liceat (B. G. i. 7), they ask that it be allowed them to do this.

si licet vivere eum quem Sex. Naevius nōn volt (Quinct. 94), if it is allowed a man to live against the will of Sextus Naevius (whom S. N. does not wish).

quid est tam secundum nātūrā quam senibus ēmori (Cat. Maj. 19, 71), what is so much in accordance with nature as for old men to die?
extingui hominī suō tempore optābile est (id. 23, 86), it is desirable for a man to die at the appointed time.

2. With licet regularly, and other verbs occasionally, a predicate noun or adjective following the infinitive may be in the dative: as, — licuit esse ōtiōsō Themistocli (Tusc. i. 15, 33), Themistocles might have been inactive (it was allowed to T. to be inactive).

mihi negligentī esse nōn licet (Att. i. 17), I must not be negligent. [But also neglentem.] cur his esse liberōs nōn licet (Flacc. 71), why is it not allowed these men to be free?

nōn est stantibus omnibus necesse dicere (Marc. 11), it is not necessary for all to speak standing.

expedit bonās esse vōbis (Ter. Heaut. ii. 4, 8), it is for your advantage to be good.

mediocribus esse poētīs nōn hominēs nōn dī concēssere (Hor. A. P. 372), neither gods nor men have granted to ordinary men to be poets.

NOTE. — When the subject is not expressed, as being indefinite (one, anybody), a predicate noun or adjective must be in the accusative (cf. § 271. c. note): as, — vel pāce vel bellō clārum fieri licet (Sall. Cat. 3), one can become illustrious either in peace or in war.

δ. In poetry, by a Greek idiom, a Predicate Noun or Adjective in the indirect discourse sometimes agrees with the subject of the main verb: as, — vir bonus et sapiēns ait esse parātus (Hor. Ep. i. 7), a good and wise man says he is prepared, etc. [In prose: ait sē esse parātum.]

sēnsit mediōs dēlāpsus in hostēs (Æn. ii. 377), he found himself fallen among the foe. [In prose: sē esse dēlāpsum.]

4. Infinitive of Purpose.

273. In a few cases the Infinitive retains its original meaning of Purpose.

a. The infinitive is used after habeō, dō, ministrō, in isolated passages instead of a subjunctive clause: as, — tantum habeo pollicērī (Fam. i. 5), so much I have to promise. [Here the more formal construction would be quod pollicear.] ut Iovi bibere ministrāret (Tusc. i. 26), to serve Jove with wine (to drink). meridiē bibere datō (Cato R. R. 89), give (to) drink at noonday.

δ. Parātus, suētus and their compounds (used as adjectives) take the infinitive, like the verbs from which they come: as, — id quod parātī sunt facere (Quin. 2), that which they are ready to do.

adsuēfacti superārī (B. G. vi. 24), used to being conquered.

currū succedere suētī (Æn. iii. 541), accustomed to being harnessed to the chariot.

cōpiās bellāre cōsuētās (B. Afr. 73), forces used to fighting.

NOTE.—These words more commonly in prose take the gerund or gerundive construction (§ 296 ff.) either in the Dative, the Genitive, or the Accusative with ad. Thus,— alendis liberis suēti (Tac. Ann. xiv. 27), accustomed to supporting children. insuētus nāvigandi (B. C. iii. 49), unused to making voyages. corpora insuēta ad onera portanda (id. i. 78), bodies unaccustomed to carry burdens.

c. In poetry and later writers almost any verb may have the infinitive, after the analogy of verbs of more literal meaning that take it in prose: as,— furit tē reperire (Hor. Od. i. 15. 27), he rages to find thee. [A forcible way of saying cupit (§ 271. a.)] saevit exstinguere nōmen (Ov. M. i. 200), he rages to blot out the name.

fuge quaerere (Hor. Od. i. 9. 13) forbear to ask (cf. § 269. a. 2. note).
parce scelerāre (Æn. iii. 42), forbear to pollute.

d. Many adjectives take the infinitive in poetry following a Greek idiom: as,— dūrus compōnere versūs (Hor. Sat. i. 4. 8), harsh in composing verse. cantāri dignus (Ecl. v. 54), worthy to be sung. [In prose: quī cantētur.] fortis trāctāre serpentis (Hor. Od. i. 37. 26), brave to handle serpents. periti cantāre (Ecl. x. 32), skilled in song. facilēs aurēm praeberē (Prop. ii. 21. 15), ready to lend an ear. nescia vinci pectora (Æn. xii. 527), hearts not knowing how to yield. tē vidēre aegrōti (Plaut. Trin. 75), sick of seeing you.

e. The poets and early writers often use the infinitive to express purpose when there is no analogy with any prose construction: as,— lōricam dōnat habēre virō (Æn. v. 262), he gives the hero a breastplate to wear. [In prose: habendam.]

filius tum introiit vidēre quid agat (Ter. Hec. iii. 2. 10), the son then went in to see what, etc. [In prose: the supine visum.]
nōn ferrō Libycōs populāre Penātēs vēnimus (Æn. i. 527), we have not come to lay waste with the sword the Libyan homes.

NOTE.—So rarely in prose writers of the classic period.

f. For the infinitive used instead of a substantive clause of purpose, see § 331. a-g.

NOTE.—For tempus est abire, see § 298, note.

g. Rarely in poetry the infinitive is used to express result: as,— fingit equum tenerā docilem cervice magister ire viam, etc. (Hor. Ep. i. 2. 64), makes the horse gentle so as to go, etc.

hic levāre . . . pauperem labōribus vocātus audit (Hor. Od. ii. 18. 38), he when called, hears, so as to relieve, etc.

NOTE.—These poetic constructions (e-g) were no doubt originally regular and belong to the Infinitive as a noun in the Dative or Locative case (p. 283, head-note). They had been supplanted, however, by other more formal constructions, and were afterwards restored through Greek influence.

h. In late or poetic usage the infinitive occasionally occurs as a pure noun limited by a possessive or other adjective: as, — nostrum vivere (Pers. Sat. i. 9), our life (to live).

scire tuum (id. 27), your knowledge (to know).

5. Exclamatory Infinitive.

274. The Infinitive, with subject-accusative,¹ may be used in Exclamations (cf. § 240. d): as, — tū in tantās aerumnās propter mē incidisse (Fam. xiv. 1), alas! that you should have fallen into such grief for me.

mēne inceptō desistere victam (Æn. i. 37), what! I beaten desist from my purpose?

NOTE.—The Present and the Perfect Infinitive are used in this construction with their ordinary distinction of time.

6. Historical Infinitive.

275. The Infinitive is often used for the Imperfect Indicative in narration, and takes a subject in the nominative: as, — tum Catilina pollicērī novās tabulās (Sall. Cat. 21), then Catiline promised abolition of debts (clean ledgers).

ego instāre ut mihi respondēret (Verr. ii. 77), I kept urging him to answer me.

pars cēdere, alii insequi; neque signa neque ordinēs servāre; ubi quemque periculum cēperat, ibi resistere ac prōpulsāre; arma, tēla, equi, viri, hostēs atque civēs permixti; nihil cōsiliō neque imperiō agi; fors omnia regere (Jug. 51), a part give way, others press on; they hold neither to standards nor ranks; where danger overtook, there each would stand and fight; arms, weapons, horses, men, foe and friend, mingled in confusion; nothing went by counsel or command; chance ruled all.

NOTE.—This construction is not strictly historical, but rather descriptive, and is never used to state a mere historical fact.

¹ This construction is elliptical; that is, the thought is quoted in Indirect Discourse, though no verb of saying, etc., appears, or perhaps is thought of (compare the French dire que). Passages like hancine ego ad rem nātam miseram mē memorābō (Plaut. Rud. 188)? point to the origin of the construction.

II.—TENSES.

NOTE.—The number of possible Tenses is very great. For in each of the three times, Present, Past, and Future, an action may be represented as going on, completed, or beginning; as habitual or isolated; as defined in time or indefinite (aoristic); as determined with reference to the time of the speaker, or as not itself so determined but as relative to some time which is determined; and the past and future times may be near or remote. Thus a scheme of thirty or more tenses might be devised.

But, in the development of forms, which always takes place gradually, no language finds occasion for more than a small part of these. The most obvious distinctions, according to our habits of thought, appear in the following scheme:—

1. DEFINITE (fixing the time of the action).			2. INDEFINITE.
INCOMPLETE.		COMPLETE.	NARRATIVE.
PRESENT: a.	I am writing.	δ. I have written.	η. I write.
PAST: β.	I was writing.	ε. I had written.	θ. I wrote.
FUTURE: γ.	I shall be writing.	ζ. I shall have written.	ι. I shall write.

Most languages disregard some of these distinctions, and some make other distinctions not here given. The Indo-European parent speech had a Present tense to express α and η, a Perfect to express δ, an Aorist to express θ, a Future to express γ and ι, and an Imperfect to express β. The Latin, however, confounded the Perfect and Aorist in a single form (the Perfect scripsi), thus losing all distinction of form between δ and θ and probably in a great degree the distinction of meaning. The nature of this confusion may be seen by comparing διδίκα, dicāvi, and δίδικα (all Perfects derived from the same root, DIC), with ἔδειξα, Skr. adiksham, δέδειχα, Skr. dideṣa. Latin also developed two new forms, those for ε (scripseram) and ζ (scripserō), and thus possessed six tenses, as seen in § 115.

The lines between these six tenses in Latin are not hard and fast, nor are they precisely the same that we draw in English. Thus in many verbs the form corresponding to I have written (δ) is used for those corresponding to I am writing (α) and I write (η) in a slightly different sense, and the form corresponding to I had written (ε) is used in like manner for that corresponding to I was writing (β). Again, the Latin often uses the form for I shall have written (ζ) instead of that for I shall write (ι). Thus nōvi, I have learned, is used for I know; cōstitērat, he had taken his position, for he stood; cōgnōverō, I shall have learned, for I shall be aware.

I. TENSES OF INCOMPLETE ACTION.

1. Present (General Use).

276. The Present Tense denotes an action or state (1) as now taking place or existing; and so (2) as incomplete in present time, or (3) as indefinite, referring to no particular time, but denoting a general truth. Thus,— senātus haec intelligit, cōsul videt, hic tamen vivit (Cat. i. 1), the Senate knows this, the consul sees it, yet this man lives.

etiam nunc mē dūcere istis dictis postulās (Ter. And. 644), even now you are expecting, etc.

tibi cōncēdō meās sēdēs (Div. i. 46, 104), I give you my seat (an offer which may or may not be accepted).

exspectō quid velis (Ter. And. 34), I await your pleasure (what you wish).

tū āctionem instituis, ille aciem instruit (Mur. 9), you arrange a case, he arrays an army. [The present is here used of regular employment.]

minōra dī neglegunt (N. D. iii. 35, 86), the gods disregard trifles. [Of a general truth.]

obsequium amicōs, vērītās odium parit (Ter. And. 68), flattery gains friends, truth hatred. [General truth.]

a. The Present, with expressions of duration of time, especially iam diū, iam dūdum, denotes an action continuing in the present, but begun in the past (cf. § 277. b): as, — iam diū ignōrō quid agās (Fam. vii. 9), for a long time I have not known what you are doing.

tē iam dūdum hortor (Cat. i. 5, 12), I have long urged you.

patimur iam multōs annōs (Verr. vi. 48), we suffer now these many years. [The perfect would imply, we no longer suffer.]

anni sūt octō cum ista causa versātur (Clu. 30), it is now eight years that this case has been in hand.

annum iam audis Cratippum (Off. i. 1), for a year you've been a hearer of Cratippus.

NOTE 1. — In this use the present is commonly to be rendered by the perfect in English. The difference in the two idioms is that the English states the beginning and leaves the continuance to be inferred, while the Latin states the continuance and leaves the beginning to be inferred. Compare: he has long suffered (and still suffers) with he still suffers (and has suffered) long.

NOTE 2. — Similarly the Present Imperative with iam dūdum indicates that the action commanded ought to have been done or was wished for long ago (cf. the Perfect Imperative in Greek): as, — iam dūdum sūmite poenas (Æn. ii. 103), exact the penalty long delayed.

b. The Present sometimes denotes an action attempted or begun in present time, but never completed at all (Conative Present, cf. § 277. c): as, — iam iamque manū tenet (Æn. ii. 530), and now, even now, he attempts to grasp him.

dēnsōs fertur in hostis (id. i. 511), he starts to rush into the thickest of the foe.

dēcernō quinquāgintā diērum supplicatiōnēs (Phil. xiv. 11), I move for fifty days' thanksgiving. [Cf. senātus dēcēvit, the senate ordained.]

c. The Present, especially in colloquial language and poetry, is often used for the Future: as, — imusne sēssum (De Or. iii. 5), shall we take a seat? (are we going to sit?)

haud mūtō factum (Ter. And. 40), I do not wish to change it (I am not trying to change). quod si fit pereō funditus (id. 244), if this happens, I am utterly undone. hodiē uxōrem dūcis (id. 321), are you to be married to-day?
 abīn hinc in malam rem (id. 317), will you be off? go and be hanged!
 si pereō hominum manibus periisse iuvābit (Æn. iii. 606), if I perish, it will be pleasant to perish at the hands of men (cf. § 307. a, note).
 ecquid mē adiuvās (Clu. 26), won't you give me a little help? in iūs vocō tē. nōn eō. nōn īs (Pl. As. 480)? I summon you to the court. I won't go. You won't?

NOTE.—Eō and its compounds are especially frequent in this use. (Cf. where are you going to-morrow? and the Greek εἰμι in a future sense.)

REMARK.—For other uses of the Present in a future sense, see under Conditions (§ 307), cum (§ 328), antequam (§ 327. a), dum (§ 328), and the Deliberative Subjunctive (§ 268).

2. Historical Present.

d. The Present in lively narrative is often used for the Historical Perfect (Historical Present): as,— affertur nūntius Syracūsās; curritur ad praetōrium; Cleomenēs, quamquam nox erat, tamen in publicō esse nōn audent; inclūdīt sē domi (Verr. vi. 35), the news is brought to Syracuse; they run to headquarters; Cleomenes, though it was night, does not venture to be abroad; he shuts himself up at home.

NOTE.—This usage, common in all languages, comes from imagining past events as going on before our eyes (repraesentātiō).

3. Present with dum.

e. Dum, while, regularly takes the Present Indicative in reference to past events.

In translating, the English imperfect must generally be used. Thus,— haec dum aguntur, intereā Cleomenēs iam ad Elōri litus pervēnerat (Verr. vi. 35), while this was going on, Cleomenes meanwhile had come down to the coast at Elorum.

hōc dum nārrat, forte audīvī (Ter. Heaut. 272), I happened to hear this while she was telling it.

NOTE.—A past tense with dum (usually so long as) makes the time emphatic by contrast. But a few irregular cases of dum with a past tense occur where no contrast is intended. Thus,— nec enim dum eram vōbiscum animum meum vidēbātis (Cat. Maj. 22), while I was with you, you couldn't see my soul. [Here the time when he was alive is contrasted with that after his death.]

coorta est pūgna, pār dum cōnstābant ōrdinēs (Liv. xxii. 47), a conflict began, well matched as long as the ranks stood firm.

But, — dum oculōs hostium certamen āverterat (id. xxxii. 24), while the struggle kept the eyes of the enemy turned away.

dum ūnum adscendere gradum cōnātus est, vēnit in periculum (Mur. 27), while he attempted to climb one step [in rank] he fell into danger.

f. The present is regularly used in quoting writers whose works are extant: as, — Epicūrus vērō ea dīcit (Tusc. ii. 7), but Epicurus says such things.

apud illum Ulixēs lāmentātur in vulnere (id. 21), in him (Sophocles) Ulysses bewails over his wound.

Polyphēmum Homērus cum ariete colloquentem facit (Tusc. v. 39, 115), Homer brings in (makes) Polyphemus talking with his ram.

4. Imperfect.

277. The Imperfect denotes an action or a state as continued or repeated in past time: as, — hunc audiēbant antea (Man. 5), they used to hear of him before.

Sōcratēs ita cēnsēbat itaque disseruit (Tusc. i. 30), Socrates thought so (habitually), and so he spoke (then).

prudēs esse putābātur (Lael. 2, 6), he was (generally) thought wise.
[The perfect would refer to some particular case, and not to a state of things.]

iamque rubescēbat Aurōra (Æn. iii. 521), and now the dawn was blushing.
āra vetus stābat (Ov. M. vii. 1), an old altar stood there.

NOTE. — The Imperfect is a descriptive tense and denotes an action conceived as in progress or a state of things as actually observed. Hence in many verbs it does not differ in meaning from the Perfect. Thus rēx erat and rēx fuit may often be used indifferently; but the former describes the condition while the latter only states it. The English is less exact in distinguishing these two modes of statement. Hence the Latin Imperfect is often translated by the English Preterite. Thus: — Aedui graviter ferēbant, neque lēgātōs ad Caesarem mittere audēbant (B. G. v. 6), the Aedui were displeased, and did not dare, etc.

[Here the Imperfects describe the state of things.] But, — id tulit factum graviter Indutiomarus (id. v. 4), Indutiomarus was displeased, etc. [Here the Perfect merely states the fact.]

aedificia vicōsque habēbant (id. iv. 4), they had buildings and villages.

REMARK. — The Imperfect represents a present tense transferred to past time. Hence all the meanings which the present has derived from the continuance of the action, belong also to the imperfect in reference to past time (see details below).

a. The Imperfect is used in descriptions: as, — erant omninō itinera duo . . . mōns altissimus impendēbat (B. G. i. 6), there were in all two ways . . . a very high mountain overhung.

b. With iam diū, iam dūdum, and other expressions of duration of time, the Imperfect denotes an action continuing in the past but begun at some previous time (cf. § 115. a. 2): as, — iam dūdum flēbam (Ov. M. iii. 656), I had been weeping for a long time.

cōpiās quās diū comparābant (Fam. x. 13), the forces which they had long been getting ready.

NOTE.—In this construction the Imperfect is rendered by the English Pluperfect. Compare the Present in similar phrases (§ 276. a.).

c. The Imperfect sometimes denotes an action as begun (Inceptive Imperfect), or as attempted or only intended (Conative Imperfect) (cf. § 276. b.): as, — in exilium ēiciēbam quem iam ingressum esse in bellum vidēbam (Cat. ii. 6), was I sending (i.e. trying to send) into exile one who I saw had already gone into war?

hunc igitur diem sibi prōpōnēns Milō, cruentis manibus ad illa augusta centuriarum auspicia veniēbat (Mil. 16), was Milo coming (i.e. was it likely that he would come), etc.?

si licitum esset veniēbant (Verr. vi. 49), they were coming if it had been allowed (they were on the point of coming, and would have done so if, etc.).

NOTE.—To this head may be referred the imperfect with iam, denoting the beginning of an action or state: as, — iamque arva tenēbant ūltima (Æn. vi. 477), and now they were just getting to the farthest fields.

d. The Imperfect is sometimes used to express a surprise at the present discovery of a fact already existing: as, — ehem pater mi, tu hic erās (Plaut.), what! you here, father?

Ō tū quoque hic aderās (Ter. Ph. 858), oh! you are here too.

āh miser! quantā laborābās Charybdī (Hor. Od. i. 27. 19), unhappy boy, what a whirlpool you are struggling in [and I never knew it]!

e. The Imperfect is often used in dialogue by the comic poets where later writers would employ the Perfect: as, — ad amicum Calliclem quoi rem albat mandāsse hic suam (Plaut. Trin. 956), to his friend Callicles, to whom, he said, he had intrusted his property.

praesāgibat animus frūstrā mē ire quom exibam domō (Plaut. Aul. 222), my mind mistrusted when I went from home that I went in vain.

NOTE.—So also, in conversation, the imperfect of verbs of saying (cf. as I was a-saying): as, — at medicī quoque, ita enim dicēbās, saepe falluntur (N. D. iii. 6, 15), for that was what you were saying just now.

haec mihi fere in mentem veniēbant (id. ii. 67, 168), this is about what occurred to me, etc. [In a straightforward narration this would be vērēbantur.]

f. For the Imperfect Indicative in apodosis contrary to fact, see § 308. b.

g. The Imperfect with negative words often has the force of the English auxiliary could or would: as, — itaque (Dāmoclēs) nec pulchrōs illōs ministrātōrēs adspiciēbat (Tusc. v. 21, 6), therefore he could not look upon those beautiful slaves. [In this case did not would not express the idea of continued prevention of enjoyment by the overhanging sword.]

nec enim dum eram vōiscum animum meum vidēbātis (Cat. Maj. 22, 79), for, you know, while I was with you, you could not see my soul. [Here the Perfect would refer only to one moment.]

h. For the Epistolary Imperfect, see § 282.

5. Future.

278. The Future denotes an action or state that will occur hereafter.

a. The Future sometimes has the force of an Imperative (see § 269. f.).

b. The Future is often required in a subordinate clause in Latin where in English futurity is sufficiently expressed by the main clause: as, — cum aderit vidēbit, when he is there he will see (cf. § 325. c.). sānābimur si volēmus (Tusc. iii. 6), we shall be healed if we wish (cf. § 307. a.).

II. THE TENSES OF COMPLETED ACTION.

1. Perfect.

279. The Perfect denotes an action either as now completed (Perfect Definite), or as having taken place at some undefined point of past time (Historical or Aoristic Perfect). Thus, —

(1) ut ego fēcī, qui Graecās litterās senex didicī (Cat. Maj. 8), as I have done, who have learned Greek in my old age.

diūturni silenti finem hodiernus diēs attulit (Marc. 1), this day has put an end to my long-continued silence.

(2) tantum bellum extrēmā hieme apparāvit, incunte vĕre suscēpit, mediā aestāte cōnfēcit (Man. 12), so great a war he made ready for at the end of winter, undertook in early spring, and finished by midsummer.

NOTE. — The distinction between these two uses of the perfect, which is represented by two forms in most other Indo-European languages, was almost if not wholly lost to the minds of the Romans. It must be noticed, however, on account of the marked distinction in English (see also § 115. c.).

a. The perfect is sometimes used emphatically to denote that a thing or condition of things that once existed no longer exists: as, — fuit ista quondam in hâc rē publicâ virtûs (Cat. i. 1), there was once such virtue in this commonwealth.

habuit, nōn habet (Tusc. i. 36), he had, he has no longer.

filium habeo . . . immō habuī; nunc habeam necne incertumst (Ter. Heaut. 92), I have a son, no, I had one; whether I have one now or not is uncertain.

fuimus Trōes, fuit Īlium (Æn. ii. 325), we have ceased to be Trojans, Troy is no more.

b. The Indefinite Present, denoting a customary action or a general truth (§ 276), often has the Perfect in a subordinate clause referring to time antecedent to that of the main clause: as, — quī in compedibus corporis semper fuērunt, etiam cum solūtī sunt tardius ingrediuntur (Tusc. i. 31), they who have always been in the fetters of the body, even when released move more slowly.

haec morte effugiuntur, etiam si nōn ēvēnērunt, tamen quia possunt ēvenire (id. 36), these things are escaped by death even if they have not [yet] happened, etc.

simul ac mihi collibitum est, praestō est imāgō (N. D. i. 38), as soon as I have taken a fancy, the image is before my eyes.

NOTE. — This use of the perfect is especially common in the protasis of general conditions in present time (§ 309. c).

c. The perfect is sometimes used of a general truth, especially with negatives (Gnomic Perfect): as, — qui studet contingere mētā multa tulit fecitque (Hor. A. P. 412), he who aims to reach the goal, first bears and does many things.

nōn aeris acervus et auri dēdūxit corpore fēbēs (id. Ep. i. 2, 47), the pile of brass and gold removes not fever from the frame.

NOTE. — The gnomic perfect strictly refers to past time; but its use implies that something which never did happen in any known case, never does happen, and never will (cf. the English "Faint heart never won fair lady"); or without a negative that what has once happened will always happen under similar circumstances.

d. The Perfect is often used in expressions containing or implying a negation, where in affirmation the Imperfect would be preferred: as, — dīcēbat melius quam scripsit Hortēsius (Or. 38), Hortensius spoke better than he wrote. [Here the negative is implied in the comparison: compare the use of quisquam, ūllus, etc. (§ 202. c), and the French ne after comparatives and superlatives.]

e. The completed tenses of some verbs are equivalent to the incomplete tenses of verbs of kindred meaning.

Such are the preteritive verbs ōdī, I hate; meminī, I remember; nōvī, I know; cōnsuēvī, I am accustomed,¹ with others used preteritively, as vēnerat (= aderat, he was at hand, etc.) (see § 143, note). Thus, — quī diēs aestūs māximōs efficere cōnsuēvit (B. G. iv. 29), which day generally makes the highest tides (is accustomed to make).

cūius splendor obsolevit (Quinc. v. 18), whose splendor is now all faded (has become old).

REMARK. — Many other verbs are occasionally so used: as, — dum oculōs certāmen āverterat (Liv. xxxii. 24), while the contest had turned their eyes (kept them turned). [Here āverterat = tenēbat.]

2. Pluperfect.

280. The Pluperfect is used (1) to denote an action or state completed in past time; or (2) sometimes to denote an action in indefinite time, but prior to some past time referred to: as, —

(1) loci nātūra erat haec, quem locum nostrī castris dēlēgerant (B. G. ii. 18), this was the nature of the ground which our men had chosen for a camp.

Viridovix summam imperī tenēbat eārum omnium civitātum quae dēfēcerant (id. iii. 17), Viridovix held the chief command of all those tribes which had revolted.

(2) neque vērō cum aliquid mandāverat cōnfectum putābat (Cat. iii. 7), but when he had given a thing in charge he did not look on it as done.

quae si quandō adepta est id quod ei fuerat concupītum, tum fert alacritātem (Tusc. iv. 15), if it (desire) ever has gained what it had [previously] desired, then it produces joy.

a. For the Epistolary Pluperfect, see § 282.

3. Future Perfect.

281. The Future Perfect denotes an action as completed in the future: as, — ut sēmentem fēceris, ita metēs (Or. ii. 65), as you sow (shall have sown), so shall you reap.

carmina tum melius cum vēnerit ipse canēmus (Ecl. ix. 67), then shall we sing our songs better, when he himself has come.

si illius insidiae clāriōrēs hāc luce fuerint tum dēnique obsecrābō (Mil. 2, 6), when the plots of that man have been shown to be as clear as daylight, then, and not till then, shall I conjure you.

§§ 281-84.] Epistolary Tenses; Tenses of Subjunctive. 299 ego certē meum officium praestiterō (B. G. iv. 25), I at least will have done my duty (i.e. when the time comes to reckon up the matter, I will be found to have done it, whatever the event).

REMARK. — The Future Perfect is used with much greater exactness in Latin than in English, and may even be used instead of the Future, from the fondness of the Latins for representing an action as completed: as, — quid inventum sit paulō post viderō (Acad. ii. 24), what has been found out I will see presently.

quī Antōnium oppresserit bellum taeterrimum cōfēcerit (Fam. x. 19), whoever crushes (shall have crushed) Antony will finish (will have finished) a most loathsome war.

NOTE. — For the future perfect in future conditions, see § 307. c.

III. EPISTOLARY TENSES.

282. In Letters, the Perfect Historical or the Imperfect may be used for the present, and the Pluperfect for any past tense, as if the letter were dated at the time it is supposed to be received: as, — neque tamen, cum haec scribēbam, eram nescius quantis oneribus premerēre (Fam. v. 12), nor while I write this am I ignorant under what burdens you are weighed down.

ad tuas omnes [epistulās] rescripseram pridē (Att. ix. 10), I [have] answered all your letters yesterday.

cum quod scriberem ad tē, nihil habērem, tamen hās dedī litterās (Att. ix. 16), though I have nothing to write you, still I write this letter.

NOTE. — In this use these tenses are called the Epistolary Imperfect and Pluperfect. The epistolary tenses are not used with any uniformity, but only when attention is particularly directed to the time of writing. (So especially scribēbam, dabam, etc.).

IV. TENSES OF THE SUBJUNCTIVE.

283. The tenses of the Subjunctive in Independent Clauses denote time in relation to the time of the speaker. The Present always refers to future (or indefinite) time, the Imperfect to either past or present, the Perfect to either future or past, the Pluperfect always to past.

284. In Dependent Clauses the tenses of the Subjunctive were habitually used in certain fixed connections determined by the time of the main verb and the time of the dependent verb together.

NOTE.—The tenses of the Subjunctive were originally used in Dependent clauses (as in Independent), each with its own time in relation to the point of view of the speaker; but in consequence of the natural tendency of language to refer all the parts of a complex sentence to one time,—namely, that of the speaker,—the connections in which these tenses were used became fixed. Hence the rules for the Sequence of Tenses. These are by no means rigid, but allow many varieties, as is natural from their origin.

Sequence of Tenses.

285. The tenses of the Subjunctive in Dependent clauses follow special rules for the SEQUENCE OF TENSES.

With reference to these rules all tenses when used in Independent clauses are divided into two classes,—primary and secondary.

1. PRIMARY. The primary tenses include all forms that express present or future time. These are the Present, Future, and Future Perfect Indicative, the Present and Perfect Subjunctive, and the Present and Future Imperative.

NOTE.—The Perfect Definite is sometimes treated as primary, but see § 287. a.

2. SECONDARY. The secondary tenses include all forms that refer to past time. These are the Imperfect, Perfect, and Pluperfect Indicative, the Imperfect and Pluperfect Subjunctive, and the Historical Infinitive.

NOTE 1.—To these may be added certain forms less commonly used in Independent Clauses. Such are: (1) Primary: Present Infinitive in Exclamations; (2) Secondary: Perfect Infinitive in Exclamations (see § 287. a. note).

NOTE 2.—For the Historical Present, see § 287. e; for the Imperfect Subjunctive in Apodosis, see § 287. g.

286. The following is the general rule for the SEQUENCE OF TENSES.

In complex sentences a Primary tense in the main clause is followed by the Present or Perfect in the dependent clause, and a secondary tense by the Imperfect or Pluperfect: as,— scribit ut nōs moneat, he writes to warn us.

scribet ut nōs moneat, he will write to warn us.

scribe (scribitō) ut nōs moneās, write that you may warn us.

scripsit ut nōs monēret, he wrote to warn us.

scribit quasi oblitus sit, he writes as if he had forgotten.

scripsit quasi oblitus esset, he wrote as if he had forgotten.

rogō quid factūrus sis, I ask what you are going to do.

NOTE.—The beginner must observe that the rule affects only the tenses of the Subjunctive in dependent clauses. The tenses of the other moods and those of the Subjunctive in Independent constructions (as in apodosis contrary to fact, § 308) are not affected by the sequence of tenses. (But cf. §§ 338. a. note 2, 339. note 2.)

REMARK. — In applying the rule for the sequence of tenses, observe (1) whether the main verb is (a) primary or (b) secondary, (2) whether the dependent verb is to denote completed action (i.e. past with reference to the main verb) or incomplete (i.e. present or future with reference to the main verb). Then —

(a) If the leading verb is primary, the dependent verb must be in the Present if it denotes incomplete action, in the Perfect if it denotes completed action.

(b) If the leading verb is secondary, the dependent verb must be in the Imperfect if it denotes incomplete action, in the Pluperfect if it denotes completed action. Thus, — he writes (primary) to warn (incomplete) us, scribit ut nōs moneat.

I ask (primary) what you were doing (now past), rogō quid feceris.

Notice that the Future Perfect denotes action completed (at the time referred to), and hence is represented in the Subjunctive by the Perfect or Pluperfect. Thus, —

I ask what you will have accomplished, rogō quid perfēceris.

he asked what he would have accomplished, rogavit quid perfēcisset.

287. In the Sequence of Tenses some special points are to be noted : —

a. The Perfect Indicative is ordinarily a secondary tense, but allows the primary sequence when the present time is clearly in the writer's mind. Thus, — ut satis esset praesidi prōvisum est (Cat. ii. 12), provision has been made that there should be ample guard. [Secondary sequence.]

addūxī hominem in quō satisfacere exteris nātiōibus possētis (Verr. i. 1), I have brought a man in whose person you can make satisfaction to foreign nations. [Secondary sequence.]

est enim rēs iam in eum locum addūcta, ut quamquam multum intersit inter eōrum causās quī dimicant, tamen inter victōriās nōn multum interfutūrum putem (Fam. v. 21, 3), for affairs have been brought to such a pass that, though there is a great difference between the causes of those who are fighting, still I do not think there will be much difference between their victories. [Primary sequence.]

ea adhibita doctrina est quae vel vitiōsissimam nātūrā excolere possit (Q. Fr. i. 1, 7), such instruction has been given as can train even the faultiest nature. [Primary sequence.]

NOTE. — The Perfect Infinitive in exclamations follows the same rule: as, — adeōn rem redisse patrem ut extimēscam (Ter. Ph. 153), to think that things have come to such a pass that I should dread my father.

b. After a primary tense the Perfect Subjunctive is regularly used to denote any past action. Thus the Perfect Subjunctive may represent, —

1. A Perfect Definite: as, — nōn dubitō quin omnēs tui scripserint (Fam. v. 8), I do not doubt that all your friends have written. [Direct statement: scripserunt.] quārē nōn ignōrō quid accidat in ūltimis terris, cum audierim in Itāliā querēlās civium (Q. Fr. i. 1, 33), therefore I know well what happens at the ends of the earth, when I have heard in Italy the complaints of citizens. [In a direct statement, audivi.]

2. A Perfect Historical: as, — mē autem hic laudat quod retulerim, nōn quod patefēcērim (Att. xii. 21), me he praises because I brought the matter [before the senate], not because I brought it to light. [Direct statement: retulit.]

3. An Imperfect: as, — sī forte ceciderint tum intellegitur quam fuerint inopēs amicōrum (Lael. 15, 53), if by chance they fall (have fallen), then one can see how poor they were in friends. [Direct question: quam inopēs erant?] qui status rerum fuerit cum hās litterās dedi scire poteris ex C. Tidiō Strabōne (Fam. xii. 6), what the condition of affairs was when I wrote this letter, you can learn from Strabo. [Direct question: quid erat?] quam civitatī cārus fuerit maerōre fūneris indicātum est (Lael. 3, 11), how dear he was to the State has been shown by the grief at his funeral. [Direct question: quam cārus erat?] ex epistulis intellegi licet quam frequēns fuerit Platōnis auditor (Or. 4), it may be understood from his letters how constant a hearer he was of Plato. [Direct question: quam frequēns erat?]

NOTE. — Thus the Perfect Subjunctive may represent, not only a Perfect Definite or a Perfect Historical of a direct statement or question, but an Imperfect as well. This comes from the want of any special tense of the subjunctive to express continued action after a primary tense. Thus, miror quid fēcērit may mean (1) I wonder what he has done, (2) I wonder what he did (hist. perf.), or (3) I wonder what he was doing.

c. In clauses of Result, the Perfect subjunctive is very often (the Present rarely) used after secondary tenses: as, — Hortēnsius ardēbat dicendi cupiditāte sic ut in nūllō unquam flagrantius studium viderim (Brut. 88), Hortensius was so hot with desire of speaking that I have never seen a more burning ardor in any man.

Siciliam Verrēs per triennium ita vērāvit ac perdidit, ut ea restitui in antiquum statum nūllō modō possit (Verr. i. 4), for three years Verres so racked and ruined Sicily, that she can in no way be restored to her former state. [Here the Present is used in describing a state of things actually existing.]

videor esse cōsecūtus ut nōn possit Dolābella in Itāliam pervenire (Fam. xii. 14), I seem to have brought it about that Dolabella cannot come into Italy.

REMARK. — This construction emphasizes the result; the regular construction subordinates it.

NOTE. — There is a special fondness for the Perfect Subjunctive to represent a Perfect Indicative. Thus, — Thorius erat ita nōn superstitiōsus ut illa plūrima in suā patriā et sacrificia et fāna contemneret; ita nōn timidus ad mortem ut in aciē sit ob rem publicam interfectus (Fin. ii. 20, 63), Thorius was so little superstitious that he despised [contemnēbat] the many sacrifices and shrines in his country; so little timorous about death that he was killed [interfectus est] in battle, in defence of the State.

Zēnō nūllō modō is erat qui nervōs virtūtis inciderit (cf. § 279. d'); sed contrā qui omnia in ūna virtūte pōneret (Acad. i. 10), Zeno was by no means one to cut the sinews of virtue; but one, on the contrary, who made everything depend on virtue alone. [Incidit . . . pōnēbat.]

erant enim nōbis perirātī, quasi quicquam dē nostrā salūte dēcrēvissemus quod nōn idem illis cēnuissemus aut quasi ūtilius rei publicae fuerit eōs etiam ad bestiarum auxilium cōfugere quam vel ēmori vel cum spē vivere (Fam. ix. 6, 3), for they were very angry with us, just as if we had voted for anything in regard to our own preservation which we had not advised them also, or as if it were more advantageous to the state for them to fly for help to brutes than either to die or to live in hope. [Without quasi, dēcrēverāmus and fuit would have been used.]

d. A general truth after a past tense follows the sequence of tenses: as, — ex his quae tribuisset sibi quam mūtābilis esset reputābat (Q. C. iii. 9), from what she (Fortune) had bestowed on him, he reflected how inconstant she is. [Direct: mūtābilis est.]

ibi quantam vim ad stimulandōs animōs ira habēret apparuit (Liv. xxxiii. 37), here it appeared what power anger has to goad the mind. [Direct: habet.]

NOTE. — In English the original tense is more commonly kept.

e. The Historical Present (§ 276. d') is sometimes felt as a primary, sometimes as a secondary tense. Accordingly it is followed by either the primary or the secondary sequence, more commonly by the secondary. Thus, — rogat ut cūret quod dixisset (Quinct 5), he asks him to attend to the thing he had spoken of.

castella commūnit quō facilius prohibēre posset (B. G. i. 8), he strengthens the forts that he might more easily keep them off.

NOTE. — After the historical present, cum temporal with the subjunctive must follow the secondary sequence.

f. The Imperfect and Pluperfect in conditions contrary to fact (§ 308) are not affected by the sequence of tenses: as, — quia tāle sit, ut vel si ignōrārent hominēs, etc. (Fin. ii. 15, 49), because it is such that even if men were ignorant, etc.

g. The Imperfect Subjunctive in present conditions contrary to fact (§ 308) is regularly followed by the secondary sequence: as, — si alii cōsulēs essent, ad tē potissimum, Paulle, mitterem, ut eōs mihi quam amicissimōs redderēs (Fam. xv. 13), if there were other consuls, I should send to you, Paulus, in preference to all, that you might make them as friendly to me as possible.

si eōs dicerēs miserōs quibus moriendum esset, nēminem exciperēs (Tusc. i. 5), if you called those wretched who must die, you would except no one.

h. The Present is sometimes followed by a secondary sequence, seemingly because the writer is thinking of past time (Synesis): as, — sed si rēs cōget, est quiddam tertium, quod neque Seliciō nec mihi displicēbat; ut neque iacere rem paterēmur, etc. (Fam. i. 5. a), but if the case shall demand, there is a third [course] which neither Selicius nor myself disapproved, that we should not allow, etc. [Here Cicero is led by the time of displicēbat.]

sed tamen ut scirēs haec tibi scribō (Fam. xiii. 47), but yet that you may know, I write thus. [As if he had used the common epistolary imperfect scribēbam (§ 282).]

cūius praecepti tanta vis est ut ea nōn hominī cuiquam sed Delphicō deō tribuerētur (Leg. i. 22), such is the force of this precept, that it was ascribed not to any man, but to the Delphic god. [The precept was an old one.]

NOTE. — The rules for the sequence of tenses must not be regarded as inflexible. They were often disregarded by the Romans themselves, either from carelessness or purposely for one reason or another.

i. When a clause depends upon one already dependent, the sequence becomes secondary as soon as the time is thrown back into the past by any form that represents past time: as, — sed tamen quā rē acciderit ut ex meis superiōribus litteris id suspicārere nesciō (Fam. ii. 16), but yet how it happened that you suspected this from my previous letter, I don't know.

tantum profēcisse vidēmur ut ā Graecis nē verbōrum quidem cōpiā vince-rēmur (N. D. i. 4, 8), we seem to have advanced so far that even in fulness of words we ARE not surpassed by the Greeks.

But, — beatē vīxisse videor quia cum Scīpiōne vīxerim (Lael. 4, 15), I seem to have lived happily in that I have lived with Scipio (who had just died).

NOTE. — For the application of this rule to Indirect Discourse, see § 336. B. note.

V. TENSES OF THE INFINITIVE.

288. The tenses of the Infinitive denote present, past, or future time, relatively to the time of the verb on which they depend: as, — nostrōs nōn esse inferiōrēs intellēxit (B. G. ii. 8), he ascertained that our men were not inferior. [Direct: sunt.]

quam Iūnō fertur terris magis omnibus coluisse (Æn. i. 15), which Juno is said to have cherished above all lands. [Direct: colēbat.]
 sperant se maximum fructum esse captūrōs (Lael. 21), they hope they shall receive the greatest advantage. [Direct: capiēmus.]

a. After past tenses of verbs of necessity, propriety, and possibility (as potui, dēbui, and oportuit) the present infinitive must be rendered by the Perfect infinitive in English: as, — scire potuit (Milo, 17), he might have known.

 qui vidēbatur omnino mori nōn dēbuisse (Arch. 8), who seemed [one that] ought not to have died at all.

b. For the tenses of the infinitive in Indirect Discourse, see § 336. A.

c. Except in indirect discourse, the Present is the only tense of the infinitive in common use. It has no distinct reference to time. Thus, — est adulescentis maiōres natū verērī (Off. i. 34), it is [the duty] of a youth to reverence his elders.

d. After verbs of wishing, necessity, and the like,¹ the Perfect Passive infinitive is often used instead of the Present: as, — nōllem factum, I regret it (I could wish it not done). [The Latin form of apology.] domesticā curā tē levātum [esse] volō (Q. F. iii. 9), I wish you relieved of household care.

 quod iam pridem factum esse oportuit (Cat. i. 2), which ought to have been done long ago (cf. a, above).

NOTE. — The participle in this case is rather in predicate agreement (with or without esse) than used to form a strict perfect infinitive, though the full form can hardly be distinguished from that construction; cf. mātūrātō opus est, there is need of haste (§ 292. b) and I pray thee have me excused.

REMARK. — In early and late Latin, and in poetry, rarely in good prose, the Perfect Active infinitive is also used instead of the Present, and even after other verbs than those of wishing and the like: as, — commisisse cavet (Hor. A. P. 168), he is cautious of doing.

 haud equidem premendō alium mē extulisse velim (Liv. xxii. 59), I would not by crushing another exalt myself.
 sunt qui nōlint tetigisse (Hor. Sat. i. 2), there are those who would not touch.
 statim vicisse dēbeō (Rosc. Am. 27), I ought to win my case (I must be regarded as having won it).
 nōllem dixisse (Verr. v. 20), I would not say

e. After verbs of feeling the Perfect infinitive is used, especially by the poets, to denote a completed action.

¹ Chiefly volō, nōlō, mālō, oportet, decet.

So also with satis est, satis habeo, melius est, contentus sum, and in a few other cases where the distinction of time is important. Thus, — nōn paenitēbat intercapēdinem scribendi fēcisse (Fam. xvi. 21), I was not sorry to have made a respite of writing.

pudet mē nōn praestitiisse (id. xiv. 3), I am ashamed not to have shown.

sunt quōs curriculō pulverem Olympicum collēgisse iuvat (Hor. Od. i. 1. 3), there are those who delight, etc.

quiēssē erit melius (Liv. iii. 48), it will be better to have kept quiet.

nil ego si peccem possum nescisse (Ov. Her. xvii. 47), if I should go wrong, I cannot have done it in ignorance (am not able not to have known).

f. The Future infinitive is often expressed by fore (or futūrum esse) ut with the subjunctive; so necessarily in verbs which have no supine stem (cf. §§ 302. Rem., 332. e). Thus, — spērō fore ut contingat id nobis (Tusc. i.), I hope that will be our happy lot.

II.—NOUN AND ADJECTIVE FORMS.

The several Noun and Adjective forms associated with the verb are employed as follows: —

1. PARTICIPLES:	a. Present and Perfect	1. Attributive (§ 291 and a).
		2. Simple Predicate (§ 291. b).
		3. Periphrastic Perfect (passive) (§ 291. R.).
		4. Predicate of Circumstance (§ 292).
		5. Descriptive (Indirect Discourse) (§ 292. c).
	b. Future	1. Periphrastic with esse (§ 293. a).
		2. Periphrastic with fuī (= Pluperfect Subjunctive) (§ 293. c).
	c. Gerundive	1. As Descriptive Adjective (§ 294. a).
		2. Periphrastic with esse (§ 294. b).
		3. Of Purpose with certain verbs (§ 294. d).
2. GERUND or GERUNDIVE:	1. Genitive as Objective Genitive (§ 298).
	2. Dative, with Adjectives (of Fitness), Nouns, Verbs (§ 299).
	3. Accusative, with certain Prepositions (§ 300).
	4. Ablative, of Means, Comparison, or with Prepositions (§ 301).
3. SUPINE:	1. Former Supine (in -um), with Verbs of Motion (§ 302).
	2. Latter Supine (in -ū), chiefly with Adjectives (§ 303.)

I.—PARTICIPLES.

289. The Participle expresses the action of the verb in the form of an Adjective; but has a partial distinction of tense, and may govern a case.

NOTE. — Thus the participle combines all the functions of an adjective with some of the functions of a verb. As an adjective, it limits substantives, and agrees with them in gender, number, and case (§ 186). As a verb, it has distinctions of time (§ 290), and often takes an object.

1. Distinctions of Tense.

290. Participles denote time as present, past, or future with respect to the time of the verb in their clause.

Thus the Present Participle represents the action as in progress at the time indicated by the tense of the verb, the Perfect as completed, and the Future as still to take place.

a. The Present Participle has several of the special uses of the Present Indicative. Thus it may denote: —

1. An action continued in the present but begun in the past (§ 276. a): as, — quaerenti mihi iamdiū certa res nūlla veniēbat in mentem (Fam. iv. 13), though I had long sought, no certain thing came to my mind.

2. Attempted action (§ 276. b): as, —

C. Flāminiō restitit agrum Picentem dīvidenti (Cat. Maj. 4), he resisted Flaminius when attempting to divide the Picene territory.

3. Futurity (§ 276. c): as, — iēns in Pompēianum bene māne haec scripsi (Att. iv. 9), I write this when about going very early to my place at Pompeii.

b. The Perfect Participle of a few deponent verbs is used nearly in the sense of a Present.

Such are, regularly, ratus, solitus, veritus; commonly, flsus, ausus, secūtus, and occasionally others, especially in later writers. Thus, — cohortātus militēs docuit (B. C. iii. 80), encouraging the men, he showed.

irātus dixisti (Mur. 30), you spoke in a passion.

oblītus auspīcia (Phil. i. 13), forgetting the auspices.

insidiās veritus (B. G. ii. 11), fearing ambuscade.

imperio potitus (Liv. xxi. 2), holding the command.

ad pugnam congressi (id. iv. 10), meeting in fight.

rem incredibilem ratī (Sall. Cat. 48), thinking the thing incredible.

c. The Latin has no Present Participle in the passive. The place of such a form is supplied usually by a clause with dum or cum, rarely by the participle in -dus (cf. p. 314, foot-note): as, — nūllis ēvidentibus causis obiēre dum calceantur mātutinō duo Caesarēs (Plin. N. H. vii. 181), from no obvious cause two Casars died while having their shoes put on in the morning.

mēque ista dēlectant cum Latinē dīcuntur (Ac. Prior. i. 5), those things please me when they are spoken in Latin. crucibus adfixi aut flammandi (Tac. Ann. xv. 44), crucified or set on fire (in flames).

NOTE. — The constructions with dum and cum are often used when a participle might be employed: as, — dic, hospes, Spartae, nōs tē hic vidisse iacentēs, dum sanctis patriae lēgibus obsequimur, tell it, stranger, at Sparta, that you saw us lying here obedient to our country's sacred laws. [Here dum obsequimur is a translation of the Greek present participle πειθόμενοι.]

dum [Ulixēs] sibi, dum sociis reditum parat (Hor. Ep. i. 2. 21), Ulysses, while securing the return of himself and his companions. [In Greek: ἀπνόμενος.]

d. The Latin has no Perfect Participle in the active voice. The deficiency is supplied —

1. In deponents by the perfect passive form with its regular active meaning: as, — nam singulās [nāvēs] nostri cōsectātī expūgnāvērunt (B. G. iii. 15), for our men having overtaken them one by one, captured them by boarding.

2. In other verbs, either by the ablative absolute with a change of voice (§ 255. d, note) or by a clause (especially with cum or dum): as, — itaque convocātīs centuriōnibus militēs certiōrēs facit (B. G. iii. 5), and so, having called the centurions together, he informs the soldiers (the centurions having been called together).

cum vēnisset animadvertit collem (id. vii. 44), having come (when he had come), he noticed a hill.

NOTE. — The perfect participle of several deponent verbs may be either active or passive in meaning (§ 135. b).

2. Adjective Use.

291. The Present and Perfect participles are used sometimes as attributive, nearly like adjectives: as, — cum antiquissimam sententiam tum comprobātam (Div. i. 5), a view at once most ancient and well approved.

signa nunquam fere ēmentientia (id. 9), signs hardly ever deceitful.

auspiciis ūtuntur coāctīs (id. 15), they use forced auspices.

a. Participles often become complete adjectives, and may be compared or used as nouns. Thus, — quō mulieri esset rēs cautior (Cæcin. 4. 11), that the matter might be more secure for the woman.

in illis artibus praestantissimus (De Or. i. 50. 217), pre-eminent in those arts sibi indulgentēs et corpori dēservientēs (Leg. i. 13), the self-indulgent, and slaves to the body (indulging themselves and serving the body). rēctē facta paria esse dēbent (Par. iii. 1), right deeds (things rightly done) ought to be like in value (see § 207. c). male parta male dilābuntur (Phil. ii. 27), ill got, ill spent (things ill-acquired, etc.). cōsuetūdō valentis (De Or. ii. 44), the habit of a man in health.

b. Participles are often used as Predicate Adjectives. As such they may be joined to the subject by esse or a copulative verb (see §§ 186. b, 176. a): as, —

Gallia est divīsa (B. G. i. 1), Gaul is divided. locus quī nunc saeptus est (Liv. i. 8), the place which is now enclosed. vidētis ut senectūs sit operōsa et semper agēns aliquid et mōliēns (C. M. 8), you see how busy old age is, always aiming and trying at something.
 nēmō adhūc convenire voluit cui fuerim occupātus (Cat. Maj. 10, 32), nobody hitherto has [ever] wished to converse with me, to whom I have been "engaged."

REMARK. — From this predicate use arise the compound tenses of the passive, — the participle of completed action with the incomplete tenses of esse developing the idea of past time: as interfectus est, he was (or has been) killed, lit., he is having-been-killed (i.e. already slain).

In the best writers (as Cicero), the perfect participle, when used with fuī, etc., retains its proper force; but in later writers the two sets of tenses (as amātus sum or fuī) are often used indiscriminately to form the tenses of the perfect system in the passive: as, —

[lēgēs] cum quae lātāe sunt tum vērō quae prōmulgātae fuērunt (Sest. 25), the laws, both those which were proposed, and those which were published. [The proposal of the laws was a single act: hence lātāe sunt is a compound perfect. The publishing, or posting, was a continued state, which is indicated by the participle prōmulgātae, and fuērunt is the perfect of the copula.]

arma quae fixa in parietibus fuerant, humi inventa sunt (Div. i. 34), the arms which had been fastened on the walls were found upon the ground. [Cf. occupātī sunt et fuērunt (Off. i. 17), are and have been engaged. The difference between this and arma quae, etc., is, that occupātus in this sense is used only as an adjective.]

3. Predicate Use.

292. The Present and Perfect participles are often used as a predicate, where in English a phrase or clause would be usual.

In this use the participles express time, cause, occasion, condition, concession, characteristic (or description), manner, means, attendant circumstances. Thus, — volventēs hostilia cadāvera amicū reperiēbant (Sall. Cat. 61), while rolling over the corpses of the enemy they found a friend. [Time.]

 paululū commorātus, signa canere iubet (Sall. Cat. 59, 1), after delaying a little while, he orders to give the signal. [Time.]
 longius prōsequi veritus, ad Cicerōnem pervēnit (B. G. v. 52), because he feared to follow further, he came to Cicero. [Cause.]
 quō sciret laxās dare iūssus habēnās (Æn. i. 63), who might know how to give them loose rein when bidden. [Occasion.]
 damnātum poenam sequi oportēbat (B. G. i. 4), if condemned, punishment must overtake him. [Condition.]
 salūtem inspērantibus reddidisti (Marc. 7), you have restored a safety which we did not hope. [Concession.] Dardanius caput ecce puer dētēctus (Æn. x. 133), the Trojan boy with his head uncovered. [Description.]
 nec trepidēs in ūsum poscentis aevi pauca (Hor. Od. ii. 11. 5), be not anxious for the needs of age that demands little. [Characteristic.] incitātī fugā montēs altissimōs petēbant (B. C. iii. 93), in headlong flight they made for the highest mountains. [Manner.]
 milites sublevātī alii ab aliis māgnam partem itineris cōficerent (B. C. i. 68), the soldiers helped up by each other, etc. [Means.] hōc laudāns, Pompēius idem iūrāvit (B. C. iii. 87), approving this, Pompey took the same oath. [Attendant circumstance.]
 aut sedēns aut ambulāns disputābam (Tusc. i. 4, 7), I conducted the discussion either sitting or walking. [Circumstance.]

REMARK.—These uses are especially frequent in the ablative absolute (§ 255. d). A co-ordinate clause is sometimes compressed into a perfect participle: as,— instrūctōs ordinēs in locum aequum dēdūcit (Sall. Cat. 59), he draws up the lines, and leads them to level ground.

 ut hōs trānsdūctōs necāret (B. G. v. 5), that he might carry them over and put them to death.

NOTE 1.—A participle with a negative often expresses the same idea which in English is given by without and a verbal noun: as,— miserum est nihil prōficiētem angī (N. D. iii. 5), it is wretched to vex oneself without effecting anything.

NOTE 2.—Acceptum and expēsum as predicates with ferre and referre are book-keeping terms: as,— quās pecūniās ferēbat eis expēnsās (Verr. ii. 170), what sums he charged to them.

a. A noun and a passive participle are often so united that the participle and not the noun contains the main idea:¹ as,— ante conditam condendamve urbem (Liv. Pref.), before the city was built or building.

illi libertātem civium Rōmānōrum imminūtām nōn tulērunt; vōs vitā ēreptām negligētis (Manil. 5), they did not endure the infringement of the citizens' liberty; will you disregard the destruction of their life?
 post hominēs nātōs (Brut. 62, 224), since the creation of man.
 iam ā conditā urbe (Phil. iii. 9), even from the founding of the city.

b. The perfect participle with a noun in agreement, or in the neuter as an abstract noun, is used in the ablative with opus, need (cf. § 243. e): as, — opus factō est viaticō (Plaut. Trin. 887), there is need of laying in provision.

mātūrātō opus est (Liv. viii. 13), there is need of haste.

NOTE. — The omission of the noun in agreement gives rise to complex constructions: as, — quid opus factōst, what must be done? [A mixture of quid opus est fieri? and quō factō opus est?]

c. The perfect participle with habēō (rarely with other verbs) has almost the same meaning as a perfect active, but denotes the continued effect of the action of the verb: ¹ as, — fidem quem habent spectātām iam et diū cōgnitām (Div. C. 4), my fidelity, which they have proved and long known.

cohortēs in aciē lxxx. cōstitūtās habēbat (B. C. iii. 89), he had eighty cohorts stationed in line of battle.

nefariōs ducēs captōs iam et comprehēnsōs tenētis (Cat. iii. 7, 16), you have captured and hold in custody the infamous leaders, etc.

d. A verb of effecting or the like may be used in combination with the perfect participle of a transitive verb to express the action of that verb more forcibly: as, — praefectōs suōs multi missōs fēcērunt (Verr. iv. 58), many discharged their officers (made dismissed).

hic trānsactūm reddet omne (Plaut. Capt. 345), he will get it all done (restore it finished).

ademptū tibi iam faxō omnem metum (Ter. Haut. 341), I will relieve you of all fear (make it taken away).

illam tibi incēnsam dabō (Ter. Ph. 974), I will make her angry with you.

NOTE. — Similarly volō (with its compounds) and cupiō, with a perfect participle without esse (cf. § 288 d. note): as, — mē excūsātū volō (Verr. i. 40), I wish to be excused (I want myself excused, cf. I pray thee have me excused).

qui te conventum cupit (Plaut. Curc. 304), who wants to meet you (wants you met).

¹ The perfect with have, in modern languages of Latin stock, has grown out of this use of habēō.

e. After verbs denoting an action of the senses the present participle in agreement with the object is nearly equivalent to the infinitive of indirect discourse (§ 336), but expresses the action more vividly: as, — ut eum nēmō unquam in equō sedentem viderit (Verr. v. 27), so that no one ever saw him sitting on a horse. [Cf. Tusc. iii. 31.]

NOTE. — The same construction is used after faciō, indūcō, and the like, with the name of an author as subject: as, — Xenophōn facit Sōcratem disputantem (N. D. i. 11), Xenophon represents Socrates disputing.

4. Future Participle.

293. The Future Participle (except futūrus and ventūrus) is rarely used in simple agreement with a noun, except by later writers.

a. The future participle is chiefly used with esse (which is often omitted) in the active periphrastic conjugation (see § 129): as, — morere, Diagorā, nōn enim in caelum adscēnsūrus es (Tusc. i. 46), die, for you are not likely to rise to heaven.

sperat adolēscēns diū sē victūrum (Cat. Maj. 19), the young man hopes to live long (that he shall live long).

neque petitūrus unquam cōsulātum vidērētur (Off. iii. 20), and did not seem likely ever to be a candidate for the consulship.

b. By later writers and the poets the future participle is also used in simple agreement with a substantive to express: —

1. Likelihood or certainty: as, — ausus est rem plūs fāmae habitūram (Liv. ii. 10), he dared a thing which would have more repule.

2. Purpose, intention, or readiness: as, — cum leō rēgem invāsūrus incurreret (Q. C. viii. 1), when a lion rushed on to attack the king.

rediit belli cāsum dē integrō tentātūrus (Liv. xvii. 62), he returned to try the chances of war anew.

dispersōs per agrōs milites equitibus invāsūrīs (id. xxxi. 36), while the horse were ready to attack the soldiers scattered through the fields. [A rare use of the Ablative Absolute.]

sī peritūrus abis (Æn. ii. 675), if you are going away to perish.

3. Apodosis: as, — dedit mihi quantum māximum potuit, datūrus amplius si potuisset (Plin. Ep. iii. 21), he gave me as much as he could, ready to give me more if he had been able.

c. With past tenses of esse, the future participle is often equivalent to the pluperfect subjunctive (see § 308. d).

5. Gerundive (Future Passive Participle).

NOTE.—The participle in -dus, commonly called the Gerundive, has two distinct uses:—

(1) Its predicate and attribute use as participle or adjective (§ 294).

(2) Its use with the meaning of the gerund (§ 296). This may be called its gerundive use.

294. The gerundive when used as a Participle or an Adjective is always passive, denoting necessity or propriety.

In this use of the gerundive the following points are to be observed (a-d).

a: The gerundive is sometimes used, like the present and perfect participles, in simple agreement with a noun: as,— fortem et cōservandum virum (Mil. 38), a brave man, and worthy to be preserved.

b. The most frequent use of this form is with esse in the second (passive) periphrastic conjugation (see § 129): as,— nōn agitata rēs erit (Verr. vi. 70), will not the thing have to be agitated?

c. The neuter of the gerundive¹ is occasionally used impersonally with an object. The object is in the case regularly governed by the verb. Thus,— agitandumst vigiliās (Pl. Tr. 869), I have got to stand guard.

via quam nōbis ingrediendum sit (Cat. Maj. 2), the way we have to enter.

NOTE.—This use is regular with verbs which take their object in the dative or ablative: as,— lēgibus pārendum est, the laws must be obeyed.

ūtendum exercitiōnibus modicis (Cat. Maj. 11), we must use moderate exercise.

d. After verbs signifying to give, deliver, agree for, have, receive, undertake, demand,² a gerundive in agreement with the object is used to express purpose: as,— redemptor qui columnam illam condūxerat faciendam (Div. ii. 21), the contractor who had undertaken to make that column. [The regular construction with this class of verbs.]

aedem Castoris habuit tuendam (Verr. ii. 50), he had the temple of Castor to take care of.

nāvēs atque onera diligenter adservanda cūrābat (id. vi. 56), he took care that the ships and cargoes should be kept.

II.—GERUND AND GERUNDIVE.

295. The Gerund expresses an action of the verb in the form of a verbal noun. As a noun the gerund is itself governed by other words; as a verb it may take an object in the proper case. Thus, — ars bene disserendī et vēra ac falsa dīiūdicandī (De Or. ii. 38), the art of discoursing well, and distinguishing the true and false.

REMARK.—The nominative of the gerund is supplied by the infinitive. Thus in the example above, the verbal nouns discoursing and distinguishing, if used in the nominative, would be expressed by the infinitives disserere and dīiūdicāre.

296. When the Gerund would have an object in the accusative, the Gerundive¹ is generally used instead. The gerundive agrees with its noun, and takes the case which the gerund would have had: as, — paratiorēs ad omnia pericula subeunda (B. G. i. 5), readier to undergo all dangers. [Here subeunda agrees with pericula, which is itself governed by ad. The construction with the gerund would be, ad subeundum pericula; ad governing the gerund, and the gerund governing the accusative pericula.]

exercendae memoriae grātiā (Off. i. 15), for the sake of training the memory. [Here the gerund construction would be memoriam exercendī grātiā.]

plērisque in rēbus gerendis tarditās odiōsa est (Phil. vi. 3), in the conducting of most business, sloth is odious.

¹ The gerundive construction is probably the original one. The participle in -dus seems to have had a present passive force (as in ante condendam urbem (§ 292. a), rotundus, volvenda diēs (Virg.), flammandī (Tac.), § 290. c) from which the idea of necessity was developed through that of futurity, as in the development of the subjunctive (see p. 274). Cōnsilium urbis dēlendae would have meant a plan of a city being destroyed [in process of destruction], then about to be destroyed, then to be destroyed, then a plan of destroying the city, the two words becoming used together as in ab urbe conditā.

NOTE.—In this use the gerund and the gerundive are translated in the same way, but have really a different construction. The Gerundive is a passive participle, and agrees with its noun, though in translation we change the voice, just as we may translate vigiliæ agitandæ sunt (guard must be kept) by I must stand guard. The Gerund is the neuter of the gerundive used impersonally, but retaining the verbal idea sufficiently to govern an object, as in agitandumst vigiliās (§ 294. c). It may therefore be considered as a noun (cf. opus est mātūrātō, § 292. b) with a verbal force (cf. hanc tãctiō, p. 235, foot-note). See p. 314, foot-note.

The following examples illustrate the parallel constructions of gerund and gerundive:—

GEN. cōsiliū	{ urbem capiendī urbis capiendæ }	a design of taking the city.
DAT. dat operam	{ agrōs colendō agris colendis }	he attends to tilling the fields.
ACC. veniunt ad	{ mihi pārendū pācem petendam }	they come { to obey me. to seek peace.
ABL. terit tempus	{ scribendō epistulās scribendis epistulis }	he spends time in writing letters.

REMARK.—In the gerundive construction the verbs ūtor, fruor, etc., are treated like transitive verbs governing the accusative, as they do in early Latin (§ 249. b): as,— expetuntur divitiæ ad perfruendās voluptatēs (Off. i. 8), riches are sought for the enjoyment of pleasures (for enjoying pleasures).

297. The Gerund and the Gerundive are used, in the oblique cases, in many of the constructions of nouns.

1. Genitive.

298. The Genitive of the Gerund and Gerundive is used after nouns or adjectives either as subjective or objective genitive: as,— neque cōsillii habendī neque arma capiendī spatiō datō (B. G. iv. 14), time being given neither for forming plans nor for taking arms.

[Objective.]

nē cōservandæ quidem patriæ causā (Off. i. 45), not even for the sake of saving the country. [Originally subjective genitive.]

vivendī finis est optimus (Cat. Maj. 20), it is the best end of living. [Subjective.]

nōn tam commūtandārum rērum quam ēvertendārum cupidōs (Off. ii. 1), desirous not so much of changing as of destroying the state. [Objective.]

NOTE.—In a few phrases the Infinitive is used with nouns which ordinarily have the genitive of the Gerund or Gerundive. Thus tempus est abire, it is time to depart.

REMARK.—The genitive of the gerund or gerundive is used (especially in early and late Latin) as a predicate genitive. When so used it often expresses purpose: as,— quae res vertendae reipublicae solent esse (Verr. iii. 53), things which generally tend to the overthrow of the commonwealth.

si arborum trunci dēiciendī operis essent missae (B. G. iv. 17), in case trunks of trees should be sent down [with the object] of overthrowing the work. [Pred. gen. like quās suī commodi fēcerat (v. 8).]

Aegyptum profiscitur cōgnōscendae antiquitātis (Tac. Ann. ii. 59), he sets out for Egypt to study old times.

nē id assentandī magis quam quō habeam grātum facere existumēs (Ter. Ad. 270), for fear you should think that I do it more for the sake of flattery than because, etc.

a. The genitive of the gerund is occasionally limited by a noun or pronoun (especially suī) in the objective genitive instead of taking a direct object: as,— eius videndi cupidus (Ter. Hec. 372), eager to see her (eager for a seeing of her).

reiciendi trium iudicium potestas (Inv. ii. 2), the power of challenging three jurors (of the rejecting of three jurors).

suī colligendi facultas (B. G. iii. 6), the opportunity to recover themselves.

NOTE.—This construction undoubtedly arose from the fact that the gerund, with the noun (or adjective) on which it depends, was conceived as a compound noun (or adjective) governing an objective genitive (cf. § 217. b). Thus suī colligendī facultās would be literally, a chance of a recovering of theirs. This construction is easily distinguished from that of the gerundive by the fact that the gerund does not agree with the substantive in gender and number.

b. In genitive constructions the Gerund and Gerundive are about equally common.

c. The genitive of the Gerund or Gerundive is used with causā or grātiā to denote purpose (see § 318).

NOTE.—This is merely a special use under the main head of § 298.

2. Dative.

299. The Dative of the Gerund and Gerundive is used after adjectives¹ which take the dative and rarely after nouns (§ 234. a): as,— genus armōrum aptum tegendīs corporibus (Liv. xxxii. 10), a sort of armor suited to the defence of the body.

¹ The dative of the gerund and gerundive occurs most commonly after the adjectives accommodātus, aptus, ineptus, bonus, habilis, idoneus, pār, utilis, inutilis. But the accusative with ad is common with most of these (cf. § 234. b).

tē sociam studeō scribendis versibus esse (Lucr. i. 25), I desire that thou (Venus) be my partner in writing verses.

reliqua tempora dēmetendis fructibus et percipiendis accommodāta sunt (Cat. Maj. 19), the other seasons are fitted to reap and gather in the harvest.

perferendis militum mandātis idōneus (Tac. Ann. i. 23), suitable for carrying out the instructions of the soldiers.

a. The dative is used in a few expressions after verbs¹: as, — diem praestitit operī faciendō (Verr. ii. 56), he appointed a day for doing the work.

praeesse agrō colendō (Rosc. Am. 18), to take charge of cultivating the land.

esse solvendō, to be able to pay (to be for paying).

NOTE. — This construction is a remnant of a more general use of the dative of the gerund and gerundive.

b. The dative is also used in certain legal phrases after nouns meaning officers, offices, elections, etc., to indicate the function or scope of the office, etc.: as, — comitia cōsulibus rogandis (Div. i. 17), elections for nominating consuls.

triumvir colōniis dēducundis (Jug. 42), a triumvir for planting colonies.

triumviri reipublicae cōstituendae (title of the Triumvirate), triumvirs (a commission of three) for settling the government.

3. Accusative.

300. The Accusative of the Gerund and Gerundive is used after the prepositions ad, inter, circā, ob (and rarely in and ante); most frequently after ad, denoting Purpose (cf. § 318. b): as, — mē vocās ad scribendum (Or. 10), you summon me to write.

vivis nōn ad dēpōnendam sed ad cōfirmandam audāciam (Cat. i. 2), you live, not to put off, but to confirm your daring.

nactus aditūs ad ea cōnanda (B. C. i. 31), having found means to undertake these things.

inter agendum (Ecl. ix. 24), while driving.

NOTE. — The Accusative of the gerund with a preposition never takes a direct object, the Ablative of the gerund very rarely. The Gerundive is used instead (§ 296).

4. Ablative.

301. The Ablative of the Gerund and Gerundive is used (1) to express Manner,¹ Means, Cause, etc.; and (2) after Comparatives; and (3) after the prepositions ab, dē, ex, in, and (rarely) prō and cum: as, —

- (1) multa pollicendō persuādet (Jug. 46), he persuades by large promises.
Latinē loquendō cuivis pār (Brut. 34), equal to any man in speaking Latin.

nūllis virtūtis praeceptis tradendīs (Off. i. 2), without delivering any precepts of virtue (by delivering no precepts).

his ipsis legendīs (Cat. Maj. 7), by reading these very things.

obscuram atque humilem concierendō ad se multitudinem (Liv. i. 8), calling to them a mean and obscure multitude.

- (2) nūllum officium referendā grātiā magis necessariū est (Off. i. 15), no duty is more important than repaying favors.

- (3) in rē gerendā versārī (Cat. Maj. 6), to be employed in conducting affairs.

NOTE.—The Ablative of the Gerund and Gerundive is also very rarely used with verbs and adjectives: as, — Appius nōn abstitit continuandō magistrātum (Liv. ix. 34), Appius did not desist from continuing his magistracy.

REMARK.—The gerund is often found co-ordinated with nominal constructions, and sometimes even in apposition with a noun: as, —

- (1) in forō, in cūriā, in amicōrum periculis pulsandis (Phil. vii. 3), in the forum, in the senate-house, in defending my friends in jeopardy.

- (2) ad res diversissimās, pārendum atque imperandum (Liv. xxi. 3), for the most widely different things, obeying and commanding.

III.—SUPINE.

NOTE.—The supine is a verbal abstract of the fourth declension (§ 71. a), having no distinction of tense or person, and limited to two uses. (1) The form in -um is the accusative of the end of motion (§ 258. b, Rem.). (2) The form in -ū is usually dative of purpose (§ 233), though probably the ablative has been confused with it.

302. The Former Supine (in -um) is used after verbs of motion to express purpose. It may take an object in the proper case. Thus, — quid est, imusne sēssum? etsi monitum vēnimus tē, nōn flāgitātum (De Or. iii. 5), how now, shall we be seated? though we have come to remind, not to entreat you?

nūptum dare (collocāre), to give in marriage.

venērunt questum iniūriās (Liv. iii. 25), they came to complain of wrongs.

REMARK.—The supine in -um is especially common with eo; and with the passive infinitive iri forms the future infinitive passive. Thus,— fuere civēs qui rempūblicam perditum irent (Sall. Cat. 36), there were citizens who went about to ruin the republic (cf. § 258. b, Rem.)

nōn Grāis servitum mātibus ibō (Æn. iii. 786), I shall not go to be a slave to the Grecian dames.

sī scisset sē trucidātum iri (Div. ii. 9), if he (Pompey) had known that he was going to be murdered. [For the more usual form of the future infinitive, see § 147. c.]

303. The Latter Supine (in -ū)¹ is used only with a few adjectives, with the nouns fās, nefās, and opus, and rarely with verbs, to denote an action in reference to which the quality is asserted: as,—

Ō rem nōn modo visū foedam, sed etiam auditū (Phil. ii. 25), a thing not only shocking to see, but even to hear of.

quaerunt quid optimum factū sit (Verr. ii. 27), they ask what is best to do.

hūmānum factū aut inceptū (Ter. Andr. 236), a human thing to do or undertake.

sī hōc fās est dictū (Tusc. v. 13), if this is lawful to say.

vidētis nefās esse dictū miseram fuisse tālem senectūtem (Cat. Maj. 5), you see it is a sin to say that such an old age was wretched.

puget dictū (Agric. 32), it is shame to tell.

NOTE.—The latter supine is thus in appearance an ablative of specification (§ 253), but see § 302, head-note.

REMARK.—The supine in -ū is found especially with such adjectives as indicate an effect on the senses or the feelings, and those which denote ease, difficulty, and the like. But with facilis, difficilis, iucundus, ad with the gerund is more common. Thus,— nec visū facilis nec dictū adfābilis ulli (Æn. iii. 621), he is not pleasant for any man to look at or address.

difficilis ad distinguendum similitūdō (De Or. ii. 53), a likeness difficult to distinguish.

With all these adjectives the poets often use the Infinitive in the same sense: as,— facilēs aurem praeberē (Prop.), indulgent to lend an ear.

¹ The only latter supines in common use are auditū, dictū, factū, inventū, memorātū, nātū, visū. In classic use this supine is found, in all, in twenty four verbs. It is never followed by an object-case.

CHAPTER IV. — Conditional Sentences.

NOTE. — The Conditional Sentence differs from other compound sentences in this, that the form of the main clause (APODOSIS) is determined in some degree by the nature of the subordinate clause (PROTASIS), upon the truth of which the whole statement depends. Like all compound sentences, however, the Conditional Sentence has arisen from putting together two independent statements, which in time became so closely united as to make one modified statement. Thus — Speak the word: my servant shall be healed is an earlier form of expression than If thou speak the word, etc.

The Conditional Particles were originally independent pronouns: thus si, if, is a weak demonstrative of the same origin as sic, so (si-cē like hi-cē, see foot-notes at pp. 65, 67), and has the primitive meaning of in that way, or in some way.

In its origin the Condition was of two kinds. Either it was assumed and stated as a fact, or it was expressed as a mild command. From the first have come all the uses of the Indicative in protasis; from the latter all the uses of the Subjunctive in protasis. The Apodosis has either (1) the Indicative, expressing the conclusion as a fact; and the Present and Perfect Subjunctive, expressing it originally as future — and hence more or less doubtful — or (2) the Imperfect and Pluperfect Subjunctive expressing it as futurum in praeteritō,¹ and so unfulfilled in the present or past. Thus ridēs, mēiōre cachinnō concutitur, you laugh, he shakes with more boisterous laughter, is the original form for the Indicative in protasis and apodosis; si ridēs originally means merely you laugh in some way or other, and so, later, if you laugh. So rogēs Aristonem, neget, ask Aristo, he would say no, is the original form of the subjunctive in protasis and apodosis; si rogēs would mean ask in some way or other. In si rogāres, negāret, the Imperfect rogāres transfers the command of rogēs to past time,² with the meaning suppose you had asked, and si would have the same meaning as before; while negāret transfers the future idea of neget to past time, and means he was going to deny. Now the stating of this supposition at all gives rise to the implication that it is untrue in point of fact, — because, if it were true, there would ordinarily be no need to state it as a supposition: for it would then be a simple fact, and as such would be put in the indicative.³ Such a condition or conclusion — originally past, meaning suppose you had asked [yesterday], he was going to deny — came to express an unfulfilled condition in the present; suppose (or if) you were now asking, he would [now] deny just as in English ought, which originally meant owed,⁴ has come to express a present obligation.

¹ The futurum in praeteritō is a tense future relatively to a time absolutely past. It denotes a future act transferred to the point of view of past time, and hence is naturally expressed by a past tense of the Subjunctive: thus dixisset, he would have said = dictūrus fuit, he was about to say [but did not]. As that which looks towards the future from some point in the past has a natural limit in present time, such a tense (the imperfect subjunctive) came naturally to be used to express a present condition purely ideal, that is to say, contrary to fact.

² Compare potius diceret, he should rather have said (§ 266. e).

³ There are, however, some cases in which this implication does not arise: as, decies centena dedisses, nil erat in loculis (Hor. Sat. i. 3. 15), if you'd given him a million, there was nothing in his coffers.

⁴ "There was a certain lender which ought him five hundred pieces." — Tym. 2. 1. 2 — N. T.

Conditional Sentences may be classified as follows:—

1. SIMPLE PRESENT OR PAST CONDITIONS, nothing implied as to fulfilment (§ 306).
2. FUTURE CONDITIONS: { a. More vivid (§ 307).
 b. Less vivid (§ 307).
3. CONDITIONS CONTRARY TO FACT: { a. Present (§ 308).
 b. Past (§ 308).
4. GENERAL CONDITIONS: { a. Indefinite Subject (§ 309. a.).
 b. Repeated Action (§ 309. b. c.).
5. IMPLIED CONDITIONS: { a. Protasis Disguised { 1. in clause of Fact, Wish, Command (§ 310. b. c.).
 2. in Participial Expression (§ 310. a.).
 b. Protasis Omitted { 1. Potential Subjunctive (§ 311. a.).
 2. Subjunctive of Modesty (§ 311. b.).

1. Protasis and Apodosis.

304. A complete conditional sentence consists of two clauses, the Protasis and the Apodosis.

The clause containing the condition is called the PROTASIS; the clause containing the conclusion is called the APODOSIS: as, —

- si* quī exire volunt [PROTASIS], cōvivere possum [APODOSIS] (Cat. ii. 12), if any wish to depart, I can keep my eyes shut.
si est in exiliō [PROTASIS], quid amplius postulātis [APODOSIS] (Lig. 4), if he is in exile, what more do you ask?

NOTE. — It should be carefully noted that the Protasis is the dependent clause.

a. The Protasis is regularly introduced by the conditional particle si (IF) or one of its compounds.

NOTE. — These compounds are sin, nisi, etiāsi, etsi, tametsi, tamenetsi (see Conditional and Concessive Particles, § 155. e, g.). An Indefinite Relative, or any relative or concessive word, may also serve to introduce a conditional clause (see § 316).

b. The Apodosis is often introduced by some correlative word or phrase: as, sic, ita, tum, eā condiciōne, etc. Thus, —

- ita* enim senectūs honesta est, si sē ipsa dēfendit (Cat. Maj. 11), on this condition is old age honorable, if it defends itself.
si quidem mē amāret, tum istūc prōdesset (Ter. Eun. 446), if he loved me, then this would be profitable.

NOTE. — In this use sic and eā condiciōne are rare.

c. The Apodosis is the principal clause of the conditional sentence, but may at the same time be subordinate to some other clause, and so be in the form of a Participle, an Infinitive, or a Phrase: as, — sepultūra quoque prohibētūrī, nī rēx humārī iūssisset (Q. C. viii. 2), intending also to deprive him of burial, unless the king had ordered him to be interred.

quod sī praetereā nēmō sequatur, tamen sē cum solā decimā lēgiōne itūrum [esse] (B. G. i. 40), but if no one else would follow, he would go with the tenth legion alone.

sī quōs adversum proelium commovēret, hōs reperire posse (id.), if the loss of a battle alarmed any, they might find, etc.

NOTE. — When the Apodosis itself is in Indirect Discourse, or in any dependent construction, the verb of the Protasis is regularly in the Subjunctive (as in the first two of the above examples, see § 337).

d. Conditions are either (1) Particular or (2) General.

1. A Particular Condition refers to a definite act or series of acts occurring at some definite time.

2. A General Condition refers to any one of a class of acts which may occur (or may have occurred) at any time.

2. Classification.

305. The principal or typical Forms of conditional sentences may be exhibited as follows: —

a. SIMPLE CONDITIONS, with nothing implied as to fulfilment.

1. Present, nothing implied. Present Indicative in both clauses.

si adest,¹ bene est, if he is [now] here, it is well.

2. Past, nothing implied. Some past tense of the Indicative in both clauses.

si aderat, bene erat, if he was [then] here, it was well.

si adfuit, bene fuit, if he has been here, it has been well.

b. FUTURE CONDITIONS (necessarily as yet unfulfilled).

1. More vivid.

(a) Future Indicative in both clauses.

si aderit, bene erit, if he is (shall be) here, it will be well.

(β) Future Perfect Indicative in protasis, Future Indicative in apodosis (condition thought of as completed before conclusion begins).

2. εἰ ἔπρασε τοῦτο, καλῶς εἶχεν. εἰ ἔπραξε τοῦτο, καλῶς ἔσχεν.

b. 1. εἰὰν πρόσση τοῦτο, καλῶς ἔξει. 2. εἰ πρόσσοι τοῦτο, καλῶς ἂν ἔχοι.

c. 1. εἰ ἔπρασε τοῦτο, καλῶς ἂν εἶχεν. 2. εἰ ἔπραξε τοῦτο, καλῶς ἂν ἔσχεν.

d. 1. εἰὰν τις κλέπτην, κολάζεται. 2. εἰ τις ἀλέπτοι, ἐκολάζεται.

sī adfuerit, bene erit, if he is (shall have been) here, it will [then] be well (but it will not begin to be well until he actually is here).

2. Less vivid.

(a) Present Subjunctive in both clauses.

sī adsit, bene sit, if he should be (or were to be) here, it would be well.

(β) Perfect Subjunctive in protasis, Present Subjunctive in apodosis (condition thought of as completed before conclusion begins).

sī adfuerit, bene sit, if he should be (should have been) here, it would [then] be well.

c. CONDITIONS CONTRARY TO FACT.

1. Present, contrary to fact. Imperfect Subjunctive in both clauses.

sī adesset, bene esset, if he were [now] here, it would be well (but he is NOT here).

2. Past, contrary to fact. Pluperfect Subjunctive in both clauses.

sī adfuisset, bene fuisset, if he had [then] been here, it would have been well (but he was NOT here).

d. GENERAL CONDITIONS. Usually not differing in form from Particular Conditions (a, b, and c); but sometimes distinguished in the cases following: —

1. Present General Condition (Indefinite Time).

(a) Present Subjunctive second person singular in protasis, Present Indicative in apodosis.

sī hōc dicās, crēditur, if any one [ever] says this, it is [always] believed.

(β) Perfect Indicative in protasis, Present in apodosis.

sī quid dixit, crēditur, if he [ever] says anything, it is [always] believed.

2. Past General Condition (Repeated Action in Past Time).

(a) Imperfect Subjunctive in protasis, Imperfect Indicative in apodosis.

sī quid diceret, crēdēbātur, if he [ever] said anything, it was [always] believed (= whatever he said was always believed).

(β) Pluperfect Indicative in protasis, Imperfect in apodosis.

sī quid dixerat, crēdēbatur, if he [ever] said anything, it was [always] believed.

REMARK. — The use of tenses in Protasis is very loose in English. Thus if he is alive now is a PRESENT condition, to be expressed in Latin by the Present Indicative; if he is alive next year is a FUTURE condition, expressed in Latin by the Future Indicative. Again, if he were here now is a PRESENT condition contrary to fact, and would be expressed by the Imperfect Subjunctive; if he were to see me thus is a FUTURE condition less vivid to be expressed by the Present Subjunctive; and so too, if you advised him, he would attend may be future less vivid.

3. Present and Past Conditions—Nothing Implied.

306. In the statement of present and past conditions whose falsity is not implied, the present and past tenses of the Indicative are used in both Protasis and Apodosis. Thus, — sī tū exercitusque valētis, bene est (Fam. v. 2), if you and the army are well, it is well. [Present Condition.]

haec igitur, sī Rōmae es; sīn abes, aut etiam sī ades, haec negōtia sic sē habent (Att. v. 18), this, then, if you are at Rome; but if you are away — or even if you are there — these matters are as follows. [Present.]

sī quī magnis ingeniīs in eō genere exstiterunt, nōn satis Graecōrum glōriae respondērunt (Tusc. i. 2, 3), if any men have appeared of great genius in that branch, they have failed to compete with the glory of the Greeks. [Past Condition.]

accēpi Rōmā sine epistulā tuā fasciculum litterarū in quō sī modo valuistī et Rōmae fuistī Philotimī dūcō esse culpam nōn tuam (Att. v. 17), I have received from Rome a bundle of letters without any from you, which, provided you have been well and at Rome, I take to be the fault of Philotimus, not yours. [Mixed: Past condition and present conclusion.]

quās litterās, sī Rōmae es, vidēbis putēsne reddendās (Att. v. 18), as to this letter, if you are at Rome, you will see whether in your opinion it ought to be delivered. [Mixed: Present and Future.]

sī nēmō impetrāvit adroganter rogō (Ligar. 10, 31), if no one has succeeded in obtaining it, my request is presumptuous. [Past and Present.]

a. In these conditions, the apodosis need not always be in the Indicative; but may assume any form, according to the sense. Thus, — sī placet . . . videāmus (Cat. Maj. 5), if you please, let us see. [Hortatory.]

fuerit hōc cēnsōris, sī iūdicābat (Div. i. 16), suppose it was the censor's duty, if he judged it false. [Hortatory Subjunctive.]

sī nōndum satis cernitis, recordāmini (Milo, 23, 61), if you do not yet see clearly, recollect. [Imperative.]

sī quid habēs certius, velim scīre (Att. iv. 10), if you have any trustworthy information, I should like to know it. [Subjunctive of Modesty, § 311. b.]

NOTE.—Although the form of these conditions does not imply anything as to the truth of the supposition, the sense or the context may of course have some such implication: as, — nōlite, sī in nostrō omnium flētū nūllam lacrimam aspexistis Milōnis, hōc minus eī parcere (Milo, 34, 92), do not, if amid the weeping of us all you have seen no tear [in the eyes] of Milo, spare him the less for that.

petimus ā vōbis, iūdicēs, sī qua divīna in tantis ingeniis commendātiō dābet esse, ut eum in vestram accipiātis fidem (Arch. 12, 31), we ask you, judges, if there ought to be anything in such genius to recommend it to us as by a recommendation of the gods, that you receive him under your protection.

In these two passages, the protasis really expresses cause: but the cause is put by the speaker in the form of a non-committal condition. His hearers are to draw the inference for themselves. In this way the desired impression is made on their minds more effectively than if an outspoken causal clause had been used.

4. Future Conditions.

307. Future Conditions may be more or less vivid.

1. In a more vivid future condition the protasis makes a distinct supposition of a future case, the apodosis expressing what will be the result.

2. In a less vivid future condition, the supposition is less distinct, the apodosis expressing what would be the result in the case supposed.

a. In the more vivid future condition the Future Indicative is used in both protasis and apodosis: as, — sānābimur si volēmus (Tusc. iii. 6), we shall be healed if we wish.

quod si legere aut audire volētis . . . reperiētis (Cat. Maj. 6), if you will [shall wish to] read or hear, you will find.

NOTE. — In English the protasis is usually expressed by the Present Indicative, rarely by the future with SHALL. Often in Latin the Present Indicative is found in the protasis of a condition of this kind (cf. § 276. c): as, — sī vincimus, omnia nōbis tūta erunt; sīn metū cēsserimus, eadem illa advorsa fient (Sall. Cat. 58, 3), if we conquer, all things will be safe for us; but if we yield through fear, those same things will become hostile.

sī pereō hominum manibus periisse iuvābit (Æn. iii. 606), if I perish, it will be pleasant to have perished at the hands of men.

b. In the less vivid future condition the Present Subjunctive is used in both protasis and apodosis: as, — haec si tēcum patria loquātur, nōne impetrāre dābeat (Cat. i. 8), if your country should thus speak with thee, ought she not to prevail?

quod si quis deus mihi largiātur . . . valdē recūsem (Cat. Maj. 23), but if some god were to grant me this, I should stoutly refuse.

REMARK.—The present subjunctive sometimes stands in protasis with the future in apodosis from a change in the point of view of the speaker.¹

c. If the conditional act is regarded as completed before that of the apodosis begins, the Future Perfect is substituted for the Future Indicative in protasis, and the Perfect Subjunctive for the Present Subjunctive: as, — sī cum potuerō, nōn vēnerō, tum erit inimicus (Att. ix. 2), but if I do not come when I can, he will be unfriendly.

sī nōn fēceris ignōscam (Fam. v. 19), if you do not do it, I will excuse you.

REMARK.—The Future Perfect is very often used in the apodosis of a future condition: as, — vehementer mihi grātum fēceris, si hunc adolēscētem hūmānitāte tuā comprehenderis (Fam. xiii. 15), you will do (will have done) me a great favor, if you receive this young man with your usual courtesy.

d. Any form denoting or implying future time may stand in the apodosis of a future condition. So the Imperative, the participles in -dus and -rus, and verbs of necessity, possibility, and the like: as, — alius finis cōstituendus est sī prius quid māximē reprehendere Scipiō solitus sit dixerō (Lael. 16), another limit must be set if I first state what Scipio was wont most to find fault with.

sī mē praeceperit fātum, vōs mandāsse mementō, if fate cuts me off too soon, do you remember that I ordered this (Q. C. ix. 7, 21).

nisi oculis videritis insidiās Milōnī ā Clōdiō factās, nec dēprecātūrī sumus nec postulātūrī (Milo, 2, 6), unless you see with your own eyes the plots laid against Milo by Clodius, I shall neither beg nor demand, etc.

nōn possum istum accūsāre si cupiam (Verr. v. 41), I cannot accuse him if I should desire to.

e. Rarely the Perfect Indicative is used in apodosis with a Present or even a Future in protasis, to represent the conclusion rhetorically as already accomplished: as, — sī hōc bene fixum in animō est, vicistis (Liv. xxi. 44), if this is well fixed in your minds, you have conquered. [For you will have conquered.]

sī eundem [animum] habueritis, vicimus (id. 43), if you shall have kept the same spirit, we have conquered.

f. A future condition is frequently thrown back into past time, without implying that it is contrary to fact (§ 308). In such cases the Imperfect or Pluperfect Subjunctive may be used: as, — nōn poterat nisi vellet (B. C. iii. 44), was not able unless he wished.

 tumulus apparuit . . . si luce palam irētur hostis praeventurus erat (Liv. xxii. 24), a hill appeared . . . if they should go openly by light, the enemy would prevent. [The first two appear like ind. disc., but are not. An observer describing the situations as present ones would say potest si velit (etc., see d), and no ind. disc. would be thought of. The only difference between these and the third is that in them the forms in d are used instead of the subjunctive.]

Caesar si peteret . . . nōn quicquam prōficeret (Hor. Sat. i. 3. 4), if even Caesar were to ask he would gain nothing. [Here the construction is not contrary to fact, but is simply si petat nōn prōficiat, thrown into past time.]

5. Conditions Contrary to Fact.

308. In the statement of a supposition known to be false, the Imperfect and Pluperfect Subjunctive are used in both Protasis and Apodosis.¹ The imperfect refers to Present Time, the pluperfect to Past: as, — quae si exsequi nequirem, tamen mē lectulus oblectāret meus (Cat. Maj. 11), if I could not [now] follow this (an active life), yet my couch would afford me pleasure. [Present.]

nisi tū amississēs, nunquam recēpissēm (id. 4), unless you had lost it, I should not have recovered it. [Past.]

si meum cōsiliū auctoritāsque valuisset, tū hodiē egērēs, nōs liberi essēmus, respública nōn tot ducēs et exercitūs amississet (Phil. ii. 15), if my judgment and authority had prevailed [as they did not], you would this day be a beggar, we should be free, and the republic would not have lost so many leaders and armies. [Mixed Present and Past.]

qui nisi revertisset, in eō conclāvi ei cubandum fuisset, quod proximā nocte conruit: ruinā igitur oppressus esset; at id neque si fātum fuerat effūgisset, nec si nōn fuerat in eum cāsus incidisset (Div. ii. 8), if it had been decreed by fate, he would not have escaped, etc. [The apodosis of fuerat is not effūgisset, but the whole conditional sentence of which effūgisset is the apodosis; the real protasis of effūgisset is revertisset (cf. § 311. d).]

a. In conditions contrary to fact the Imperfect often refers to past time, both in protasis and apodosis, especially when a repeated or continued action is denoted, or when the condition if true would still exist: as, —

¹ The implication of falsity, in this construction, is not inherent in the Subjunctive; but comes from the transfer of a future condition to past time. Thus the time for the happening of the condition has, at the time of writing, already passed; so that, if the condition remains a condition, it must be contrary to fact. So past forms implying a future frequently take the place of the subjunctive in apodosis in this construction (see d, below, and head-note, p. 320) hic si mentis esset suae, ausus esset educere exercitum (Pis. 21), if he were of sane mind, would he have dared to lead out the army? [Here esset denotes a continued state, past as well as present.]

 non concidissent, nisi illud receptaculum classibus nostris pateret (Verr. ii. 1), [the power of Carthage] would not have fallen, unless that station had been open to our fleets. [Without the condition, patēbat.]

REMARK.—This use necessarily arises from the fact that the pluperfect is equivalent to a future perfect in praeteritō, and so represents the action as completed and momentary, rather than as continuing.

b. In the apodosis of a condition contrary to fact the Past tenses of the Indicative may be used to express what was intended, or likely, or already begun: as, — si licitum esset mātēs veniebant (Verr. vi. 49), the mothers were coming if it had been allowed (see § 305. c. 2). in amplexus filiae ruēbat, nisi lictōres obstitissent (Tac. A. xvi. 32), he was about rushing into his daughter's arms, unless the lictors had opposed.

 iam tūta tenēbam, nī gēns crūdēlis ferrō invāsisset (Æn. vi. 358), I was just reaching a place of safety, had not the fierce people attacked me.

NOTE.—In such cases the apodosis may be regarded as elliptical. Thus, — mātēs veniebant (et vēnissent) si licitum esset, the matrons were coming (and would have kept on) if it had been allowed. [So with paene, prope, etc.]

REMARK.—In this use, the imperfect indicative corresponds in time to the imperfect subjunctive, and the perfect or pluperfect indicative to the pluperfect subjunctive.

c. Verbs and expressions denoting necessity, propriety, possibility, duty,¹ when used in the Apodosis of a condition contrary to fact are regularly put in the Imperfect, Perfect, or Pluperfect Indicative instead of the Subjunctive: as, — si ita putasset certe optābilis Milōni fuit (Mil. 11, 31), if he had thought so, surely it would have been preferable for Milo.

 si Rōmae privātus esset hōc tempore, tamen is erat dēligendus (Manil. 17), if he (Pompey) were at this time a private citizen at Rome, yet he ought to be appointed.
 quod esse caput dēbēbat si probārī posset (Fin. iv. 9), what ought to be the main point if it could be proved.
 nam nōs decēbat lugēre (Tusc. i. 48, 115), for it would befit us to mourn.

¹ Such are possum, decet, oportet, dēbeo, and the Second Periphrastic Conjugation. Observe that all these expressions contain the idea of futurity (cf. note above). Thus, decet mē [hodiē] ire crās, means it is proper for me [to-day] to go to-morrow; and, decēbat mē [heri] ire hodiē, it was proper for me [yesterday] to go to-day, usually with the implication that I have not gone as I was bound to.

NOTE 1.—In this construction it is only the thing necessary (etc.) that is conditioned, and not the necessity itself. If the necessity itself is conditioned, the Subjunctive is used as with other verbs. The difference is often imperceptible, but may be seen in the following example:—

quid facere potuisssem nisi tum cōsul fuisssem? cōsul autem esse qui potuī nisi eum vitae cursum tenuisssem ā pueritiā (Rep. i. 6), what could I have done if I had not then been consul; and how could I have been consul if I had not followed that course of life from boyhood.

NOTE 2.—This construction is sometimes carried still further in poetry: as,— si nōn alium iactāret odōrem, laurus erat (Georg. ii. 133), it were a laurel, but for giving out a different odor.

d. The participle in -ūrus with eram or fui may take the place of an Imperfect or Pluperfect Subjunctive in the Apodosis of a condition contrary to fact: as,— quid enim futūrum fuit [= fuisset], si . . . (Liv. ii. 1), what would have happened if, etc.

neque ambigitur quīn . . . id factūrus fuerit, si . . . (id.), nor is there any question he would have done it if, etc. [Direct: fecisset.]

ex quō intellegi potest quam acūtī nātūrā sint, qui haec sine doctrinā crēditūri fuerint (Tusc. i. 21), hence it may be understood how keen they are by nature, who, without instruction, would have believed this. [Here the condition is contained in the words sine doctrinā.]

adeō parāta sēditio fuit, ut Othōnem raptūri fuerint, nī incerta noctis timuissent (Tac. H. i. 26), so far advanced was the conspiracy that they would have seized upon Otho, had they not feared the hazards of the night. [In a main clause: rapuissent nī timuissent.]

NOTE.—This construction is regularly used when the apodosis is itself a dependent clause requiring the subjunctive, and also in Indirect Discourse. In Indirect Discourse fuisset replaces eram or fui (see § 337).

e. The Present and Perfect subjunctive are sometimes used in poetry in the protasis and apodosis of conditions contrary to fact: as,— nī comes admoneat, inruat (Æn. vi. 293), had not his companion warned him, he would have rushed on.

nī faciat, maria ac terrās ferant (id. i. 58), unless he did this, they would bear away sea and land.

NOTE.—This is probably a remnant of an old construction. Its use puts the condition in a vivid form,—as if possible at any moment in the future though not now true.

6. General Conditions.

309. General Conditions (§ 304. d) have usually the same forms as Particular Conditions. But they are sometimes distinguished in the following three cases:—

a. The Subjunctive is sometimes used in the second person singular, to denote the act of an Indefinite Subject (you = any one). Here the Indicative of a general truth may stand in the apodosis: as, — mēns prope uti ferrum est: si exerceās coneritur; nisi exerceās, rūbinem contrahit (Cato de Mor.), the mind is very like iron: if you use it, it wears away; if you don't use it, it gathers rust.

virtutem necessariō glōria, etiamsi tū id nōn agās, cōsequitur (Tusc. i. 38), glory necessarily follows virtue, even if that is not one's aim.

si prohibita impūne trāscenderis, neque metus ūltrā neque pudor est (Tac. A. iii. 54), if you once overstep the bounds with impunity, there is no fear nor shame any more.

si cēderēs placābilis (Tac. Ann.), [he was] easily appeased if one yielded.

b. In later writers (not in Cicero), the Imperfect and Pluperfect Subjunctive are used in protasis, with the Imperfect Indicative in apodosis, to state a repeated or customary action in past time: as, — accūsātōrēs, si facultās incideret, poenis adficiēbantur (Tac. A. vi. 30), the accusers, whenever opportunity offered, were visited with punishment.

c. In a general condition in present time, the protasis often takes the Perfect, and the apodosis the Present Indicative. For past time, the Pluperfect is used in the protasis, and the Imperfect in the apodosis. Thus, — si quōs aliqua membrōrum parte inūtilēs nōtāverunt, necārī iubent (Q. C. ix. 1, 3), if they [ever] mark any infirm in any part of their limbs, they [always] order them to be put to death. [Present.]

si ā persequendō hostēs deterrēre nequiverant ab tergō circumveniēbant (Jug. 50), if [ever] they were unable to prevent the enemy from pursuing, they [always] surrounded them in the rear. [Past.]

d. In all other cases, general suppositions—including those introduced by Indefinite Relatives—are not distinguished in form from Particular Conditions.

7. Condition Disguised.

310. In many sentences properly conditional, the Protasis is not expressed by a conditional clause, but is stated in some other form of words or implied in the nature of the thought. Thus, —

a. The condition may be implied in a Clause or in a Participle, Noun, Adverb, or some other word or phrase. Thus, — facile mē paterer — illō ipsō iūdice quaerente — prō Sex. Rosciō dicere (Ros. Am. 30, 85), I should readily allow myself to speak for Roscius if that very judge were conducting the trial. [Present contrary to fact: si quaereret, etc.]

nōn mihi, nisi admonitō, vēnisset in mentem (De Or. ii. 42), it would not have come into my mind unless [I had been] reminded. [Past contrary to fact: nisi admonitus essem.]

nūlla alia gēns tantā mōle clādis nōn obruta esset (Liv. xxii. 54), there is no other people that would not have been crushed by such a weight of disaster. [Past contrary to fact: sī alia fuisset.]

nēmō unquam sine māgnā spē immortalitātis, sē prō patriā offerret ad mortem (Tusc. i. 15), no one, without great hope of immortality, would ever expose himself to death for his country. [Present contrary to fact: nisi māgnam spem habēret.]

quid hunc paucōrum annōrum accēssiō iuvāre potuisset (Lael. 3), what good could the addition of a few years have done him (if they had been added)? [Past contrary to fact: sī accēssissent.]

quī igitur mihi ferārū laniātus oberit nihil sentienti (Tusc. i. 13, 104), what harm will the mangling by wild beasts do me if I don't feel anything (feeling nothing)? [Future more vivid: sī nihil sentiam.]

incitāta semel prōclive lābuntur (Tusc. iv. 18), if once given a push, they slide down rapidly. [Present General: sī incitāta sunt.]

b. The condition may be contained in a Wish (optative subjunctive), or expressed as an Exhortation or Command (hortatory subjunctive,¹ or imperative): as, — utinam quidem fuissem! molestus nōbis nōn esset (Fam. xii. 3), I wish I had been [chief]: he would not now be troubling us (i.e. if I had been). [Optative Subjunctive.]

nātūrā expellās furcā, tamen usque recurret (Hor. Ep. i. 10. 24) drive out nature with a pitchfork, still she will ever return. [Hortatory.]

rogēs enim Aristōnem, neget (Fin. iv. 25), for ask Aristo, he would deny. manent ingenia senibus, modo permaneāt studium et industria (Cat. Maj. 7), old men keep their mental powers, only let them keep their zeal and diligence (§ 266. d). [Hortatory.]

tolle hanc opiniōnem, lūctum sustuleris (Tusc. i. 13), remove this notion, and you will have done away with grief. [Imperative.]

NOTE.—The so-called concessive subjunctive with ut and nō is really hortatory, and often has the force of protasis (§ 313. a): as, — ut enim ratiōnem Platō nūllam afferret, ipsā auctōritāte mē frangeret (Tusc. i. 21, 49), even if Plato gave no reasons, [still] he would overpower me, etc.

c. Rarely the condition takes the form of an independent clause. as, — ridēs: māiōre cachinnō concutitur (Juv. iii. 100), you laugh; he shakes with louder laughter (= if you laugh, he shakes).

¹ This usage is probably the origin of the use of the subjunctive in Protasis: the subjunctive being used first as in § 266, while the conditional particle is a form of an indefinite pronoun (see head-note, p. 320).

commovē: sentiēs (Tusc. iv. 24), stir him up [and] you'll find, etc.
dē paupertāte agitur: multi patientēs pauperēs commemorantur (Tusc. iii. 24), we speak of poverty; many patient poor are mentioned.

d. The condition is often contained in a Relative Clause (see § 316).

REMARK.—For the use of a participle as APODOSIS, see § 304. c.

8. Condition Omitted.

311. The Protasis is often wholly omitted, but may be inferred from the course of the argument. Thus,— poterat Sextilius impūnē negāre: quis enim redargueret (Fin. ii. 17), Sextilius might have denied with impunity; for who would prove him wrong (if he had).

REMARK.—Under this head belongs the so-called POTENTIAL SUBJUNCTIVE.

I. POTENTIAL SUBJUNCTIVE.

a. The Potential Subjunctive is used to denote an action not as actually performed, but as possible.

In this use the Present and the Perfect refer without distinction to the immediate future; the Imperfect to past time. The second person is common, indicating an Indefinite Subject (cf. § 309. a.). Thus,— hic quaerat quispiam (N. D. ii. 53), here some one may ask.

assimilāre fretō possis (Ov. M. v. 6), you might compare.

ut aliquis fortasse dixerit (Off. iii. 6), as one may perhaps say.

forsitan haec illi mīrentur (Verr. v. 56), they may perchance marvel at these things.

tum in lectō quōque vidērēs susurrōs (Hor. Sat. ii. 8. 77), then on each couch you might hear whisperings.

NOTE 1.—The Present is sometimes used for the Imperfect: as,— migrantis cernās (Æn. iv. 401), you might have seen them moving.

NOTE 2.—The Pluperfect is rare in this construction. Its place is supplied by the Imperfect.

putāssēs ēius lūctūs aliquem finem esse dēbere (Sen. Dial. 6, 13), you would have thought there ought to be some end to his grief.

NOTE 3.—The subjunctive with forsitan does not differ in meaning from the Potential Subjunctive, but is really an Indirect Question (§ 334. g.).

REMARK.—The potential subjunctive is strictly an apodosis with omitted protasis. Sometimes the protasis may be easily supplied, but often none is present to the mind of the speaker. So also the Subjunctive of Modesty (δ, below).

II. SUBJUNCTIVE OF MODESTY.

δ. The Subjunctive is used in cautious, modest, or hypothetical statements (coniunctivus modestiae). This use is especially common in a polite wish, with velim or vellem. Thus,— pāce tuā dīxerim (Mil. 28), I would say by your leave.

 haud sciam an (De Or. i. 80), I should incline to think.
 tū velim sic existimēs (Fam. xii. 6), I should like you to think so.
 vix ausim crēdere (Ov. M. vi. 561), I should hardly dare believe.
 vellem adesset M. Antōnius (Phil. i. 7), I could wish Antony were here.
 [Here vellem implies an unfulfilled wish in present time; volō or nōlō would express a peremptory wish.] haec erant fere quae tibi nōta esse vellem (Fam. xii. 5), this is about what I should like you to know. [Here vellem is simply velim transferred to past time on account of erat (epistolary), by sequence of tenses, and does not imply an impossible wish.]

III. VERBS OF NECESSITY.

c. The Indicative of verbs signifying necessity, propriety, and the like, may be used in the apodosis of implied conditions, either future or contrary to fact: as, — longum est ea dicere, sed . . . (Pis. 10), it would be tedious to tell, etc.

 [Future.]
 illud erat aptius, aequum cuique concēdere (Fin. iv. 1), it would be more fitting to yield each one his rights.
 quantō melius fuerat (Off. iii. 25), how much better it would have been.
 quod contra decuit ab illō meum [corpus cremāri] (Cat. Maj.), whereas on the other hand mine ought to have been burnt by him.
 ipsum enim expectāre māgnū fuit (Phil. ii. 40), would it have been a great matter to wait for the man himself?
 nam nōs decēbat domum lugēre ubi esset aliquis in lūcem ēditus (Tusc. i. 48), for it were fitting to mourn the house where a man has been born (but we do not).
 nunc est bibendum . . . nunc Saliāribus ōrnāre pulvīnar deōrum tempus erat dapibus sodālēs (Hor. Od. i. 37. 1), i.e. it would be time (if it were for us to do it, but it is a public act).

REMARK. — Notice that, in this construction, the Imperfect indicative refers to present time; the Pluperfect to simply past time, like the perfect. Thus oportēbat means it ought to be [now], but is not; oportuerat means it ought to have been, but was not.

NOTE. — In many cases it is impossible to say whether a protasis was present to the mind of the speaker or not (see third example above).

9. Complex Conditions.

d. Either the protasis or the apodosis may be a complex idea in which the main statement is made with expressed or implied qualifications. In such cases the true logical relation of the parts is sometimes disguised: as, — si quis hōrum dixisset . . . si verbum dē rēpublicā fēcisset . . . multa plūra dixisse quam dixisset putārētur (Rosc. Am. 1), if any of these had spoken in case he had said a word about politics, he would be thought to have said much more than he did say. [Here the apodosis of dixisset is the whole of the following statement (si . . . putārētur), which is itself conditioned by a protasis of its own: si verbum, etc.].

quod si in hōc mundō fieri sine deō nōn potuit nē in sphaerā quidem eōdem mōtū sine divinō ingenio potuisset imitāri (Tusc. i. 25), now if that cannot be done in this universe without divine agency, no more could [Archimedes] in his orrery have imitated the same revolutions without divine genius. [Here si potuit (a protasis with nothing implied) has for its apodosis the whole clause which follows, but potuisset has a contrary-to-fact protasis of its own implied in sine . . . ingenio.]

peream male si nōn optimum erat (Hor. Sat. ii. 1. 6), confound me (may I perish wretchedly) if it wouldn't be better. [Here peream is apodosis to the rest of the sentence, while the true protasis to optimum erat, contrary to fact, is omitted.]

10. Particles of Comparison (Conclusion Omitted).

312. The particles of Comparison — tamquam, tamquam si, quasi, acsi, ut si, velut si, veluti, and poetic ceu (all meaning as if), and quam si (than if) — take the Present or Perfect Subjunctive, unless the sequence of tenses requires the Imperfect or Pluperfect. Thus, — tamquam clausa sit Asia (Fam. xii. 9), as if Asia were closed.

tamquam si claudus sim (Plaut. Asin. ii. 4, 21), just as if I were lame (i.e. just as it would be if I should be lame).

ita hōs [honōrēs] petunt, quasi honestē vixerint (Jug. 85), they seek them (offices) just as if they had lived honorably.

quasi verō nōn specie visa iudicentur (Acad. ii. 18), as if forsooth visible things were not judged by their appearance.

similiter facis ac si mē rogēs (N. S. iii. 3), you do exactly as if you asked me.
aequē ac si mea negotia essent (Fam. xiii. 43), as much as if it were my own business.

velut si coram adesset (B. G. i. 32), as if he were present in person.

ceu cetera nusquam bella forent (Æn. ii. 438), as if there were no fighting elsewhere.

magis quam si domi essēs (Att. vii. 4), more than if you were at home.

REMARK. — The English idiom would lead us to expect the Imperfect and Pluperfect Subjunctive with these particles; but the point of view is different in the two languages. Thus the second example above is translated just as if I were lame, — as if it were a present condition contrary to fact; but it really means just as [it would be] if I should [at some future time] be lame, and so is a less vivid future condition requiring the present subjunctive. Similarly quasi honestē vixerint, as if they had lived honorably, is really as [they would do in the future] if they should have lived honorably, and so requires the Perfect Subjunctive (§ 307. c.).

NOTE.—These subjunctive clauses are really future conditions with apodosis implied in the particle itself. Thus in tamquam si claudus sim the protasis is introduced by si, and the apodosis implied in tamquam.

11. Concessive Clauses.

313. The particles of Concession (meaning although, granting that) are the following: quamquam, quamlibet, quamvis, quantum vis, ut, nē, cum, licet, etsi, tametsi, etiamsi.

Some of these take the Subjunctive, others the Indicative. Thus, —

a. Quamvis, ut, and nē take the Subjunctive (§ 266. c): as, — quamvis ipsi infantēs sint, tamen . . . (Or. 23), however incapable of speaking they themselves may be, yet, etc.

ut nēminem alium rogasset (Mil. 17), even if he had asked no other.

nē sit sãnē summum dolor: malum certē est (Tusc. ii. 5, 14), suppose pain is not the greatest evil, still it surely is an evil.

NOTE.—Quamvis means literally, as much as you will. Thus in the example above, let them be as incapable as you will, still, etc. The subjunctive with quamvis and nē is hortatory; that with ut is of uncertain origin.

b. Licet (properly a verb) takes a Substantive clause in the Subjunctive (§ 331. c): as, — licet omnēs in mē terrōrēs periculaque impendeant (Rosc. Am. 11), though all terrors and perils should menace me.

NOTE.—The subjunctive with licet is by the sequence of tenses necessarily limited to the Present and Perfect tenses.

c. Etsi, etiamsi, tametsi, even if, take the same constructions as si (§ 305): as, — etsi abest mātūritās (Fam. vi. 18), though ripeness of age is wanting.

etsi nunquam dubium fuit (id. v. 19), although it has never been doubtful.

etsi statueram (id. v. 5), though I had determined.

etsi nihil aliud abstulissētis (Sull. 32), even if you had taken away nothing else.

etiamsi quod scribās nōn habēbis, scribitō tamen (Fam. xvi. 26), even if you [shall] have nothing to write, still write.

sed ea tametsi vōs parvi pendēbātis (Sall. Cat. 52), but although you regarded those things as of small account.

d. Cum concessive takes the Subjunctive (see § 326): as, — cum mihi nōn omninō excidisset (Fam. v. 13), though it had not entirely vanished [from my mind].

NOTE.—In early Latin cum (quom) concessive usually takes the Indicative: as, — nīl quom est nīl dēfīt tamen (Ter. Eun. 243), while I have nothing, still nothing is wanting. [See also § 326, note 3.]

e. Quamquam introduces an admitted fact and takes the Indicative: as, — omnibus — quamquam ruit ipse suis clādibus — pestem dēnūntiat (Phil. xiv. 3), though he is breaking down under his disasters, still he threatens all with destruction.

f. Quamquam more commonly means and yet, introducing a new proposition in the indicative: as, — quamquam haec quidem tolerābilia vidēbantur, etsi, etc. (Mil. 28), and yet these, in truth, seemed now bearable, though, etc.

g. The poets and later writers frequently use quamvis and quamquam like etsi, connecting them with the Indicative or the Subjunctive, according to the nature of the condition. Thus, — quamquam moverētur (Liv. xxxvi. 34), although he was moved.

Polliō amat nostram, quamvis est rŭstica, mŭsam (Ecl. iii. 84), Pollio loves my muse, though she is rustic.

quamvis pervēnerās (Liv. ii. 40), though you had come.

NOTE.—Even Cicero occasionally uses quamquam with the Subjunctive: as, — quamquam nē id quidem suspiciōnem coitiōnis habuerit (Planc. 22), though not even that raised any suspicion of a coalition.

h. The Relative pronoun qui is often used with the Subjunctive to express concession (see § 320. e).

i. Concession is often expressed by the Hortatory Subjunctive without a particle (§ 266): as, — sit clārus Scipiō, ōrnetur eximiā laude Āfricānus, habeatur vir ēgregius Paullus . . . erit profectō inter hōrum laudēs aliquid loci nostrae glōriae (Cat. iv. 10, 21), let Scipio be renowned, let Africanus be honored with especial praise, let Paulus be regarded as a remarkable man, [still] there will surely be some room for my glory amid the praises of these men.

12. Proviso.

314. Dum, modo, dummodo, or tantum, introducing a PROVISO, takes the Subjunctive: as, — ōderint dum metuant (Off. i. 28), let them hate, if only they fear.

valētūdō modo bona sit (Brut. 16), provided the health is good.

dummodo inter mē atque tē murus intersit (Cat. i. 5), provided only the wall (of the city) is between us.

- a.* In a negative proviso nē is used, with or without modo, etc.: as, modo nē sit ex pecudum genere (Off. i. 30), provided [in pleasure] he be not of the herd of cattle.
id faciat saepe, dum nē lassum fiat (Cato R. R. v. 4), let him do this often, provided he does not get tired.
dummodo ea (severitas) nē varietur (Q. Fr. i. 1), provided only it (strictness) be not allowed to swerve.
tantum nē noceat (Ov. M. ix. 21), only let it do no harm.

NOTE.—The Subjunctive with modo is hortatory (§ 266. d); that with dum and dummodo, a development from the use of the Subjunctive with dum in temporal clauses, § 328 (compare the colloquial, so long as my health is good, I don't care).

b. The Hortatory Subjunctive without a particle sometimes expresses a proviso (see § 266. d): as, — sint Maecēnātes, nōn deerunt, Flacce, Marōnēs (Mart. viii. 56, 5), so there be Maecenases, Virgils will not be lacking.

NOTE.—For a clause of Result expressing proviso, see § 319. b.

13. Use of Sī and its Compounds.

315. The uses of some of the more common Conditional Particles may be stated as follows: —

a. 1. Sī is used for affirmative, nisi (nī) and sī nōn for negative conditions. With nisi (generally unless) the apodosis is stated as universally true except in the single case supposed, in which case it is (impliedly) not true. Thus, — nisi Conōn adest maereō, unless Conon is here, I mourn (i.e. I am always in a state of grief except in the single case of Conon's presence, in which case I am not).

With sī nōn (if not) the apodosis is only stated as true in the (negative) case supposed, but as to other cases no statement is made. Thus, — sī Conōn nōn adest maereō, if Conon is not here, I mourn (i.e. I mourn in the single case of Conon's absence, nothing being said as to other cases in which I may or may not mourn).

NOTE.—It often, however, makes no difference in which form the statement is made.

2. Nī is an old form surviving in a few conventional phrases and reappearing in poets and later writers.

Sometimes nisi sī, except if, unless, occurs: as, — nōlī putāre mē ad quemquam longiōrēs epistulās scribere, nisi sī quis ad mē plūra scripsit (Fam. xiv. 2), except in case one writes more to me.

b. Nisi vērō and nisi forte regularly introduce an objection or exception ironically, and take the Indicative: as, — nisi vērō L. Caesar crūdēlior visus est (Cat. iv. 6), unless indeed L. Caesar seemed too cruel.

nisi forte volumus Epicūrēōrum opiniōnem sequi (De Fato, 16), unless to be sure we choose to follow the notion of the Epicureans.

NOTE.—This is the regular way of introducing a reductio ad absurdum in Latin. Nisi alone is sometimes used in this sense: as,— nisi ūnum hōc faciam ut in puteō cēnam coquant (Plaut. Aul. 363), unless I do this one thing, [make them] cook dinner in the well.

c. Sive (seu) . . . sive (seu), whether . . . or, introduce a condition in the form of an alternative. They may be used with any form of condition, or with different forms in the two members. Often also they are used without a verb. Thus,— nam illō locō libentissimē soleō ūti, sive quid mēcum ipse cōgitō, sive quid aut scribō aut legō (De Leg. ii. 1), for I enjoy myself most in that place, whether I am thinking by myself, or am either writing or reading.

NOTE.—Sive . . . seu and seu . . . sive are late or poetic.

d. Nisi is often used loosely by the comic poets in the sense of only: as,— ecce autem dē integrō: nisi quidquid est volō scire (Ter. Ad. 153), but there it is again; only whatever it is I want to know it.

CHAPTER V. — Dependent Constructions.

I. — RELATIVE CLAUSES.

The Relative, being in origin a weak demonstrative (or possibly, in some cases, an interrogative), may be used indifferently with either the indicative or the subjunctive. A simple relative, introducing a merely descriptive fact, takes the Indicative, as any demonstrative would do. Thus, tellūs quæ fuerat rudis. But many relative constructions take the subjunctive to indicate a closer logical connection between the relative clause and the main clause.

These constructions have grown up from the future meaning of the subjunctive, each with its own special development. In general they are of two kinds, which are not, however, very distinct in meaning: 1. clauses where the implied logical connection is that of Purpose; 2. clauses which express more or less distinctly some Characteristic of the antecedent. Of these last the most common is the ordinary clause of Result. Besides these two classes, however, there are general relatives of Protasis, in which the indefinite relatives whoever, whenever, etc., are regarded as conditional expressions, equivalent to, if any one, if at any time, etc.¹

Dependent Relative Clauses may be thus classified:—

1. Conditional Relative Clauses (§ 316).
2. Clauses of PURPOSE (Final Clauses) (§ 317).
3. Clauses of CHARACTERISTIC, including—
 - a. Simple Result (Consecutive Clauses) (§ 319).
 - b. Clauses of Characteristic (including cause and hindrance) (§§ 320, 321).
 - c. Clauses of Time (§ 322 ff.).

1. Conditional Relative Clauses.

316. A clause introduced by a Relative Pronoun or Relative Adverb may be treated as a conditional clause and take any of the constructions of Protasis¹ (§ 305): as, quī enim vitīis modum appōnit, is partem suscipit vitiorū (Tusc. iv. 18), he who [only] sets a limit to faults, takes up the side of the faults.

[= sī quis appōnit.]

quicquid potuit, potuit ipsa per sē (Agr. 1, 7), whatever power she had, she had by herself. [= sī quid potuit.] quod quī faciet, non aegritūdine solum vacābit, sed, etc. (Tusc. iv. 17), and he who does [shall do] this, will be free not only, etc. [= sī quis faciet.] quisquis hūc vēnerit vāpulābit (Plaut. Am. 153), whoever comes here shall get a thrashing. [= sī quis vēnerit.]

¹ As in the Greek ὅς ἄν, ὅταν, etc.; and in statutes in English, where the phrases if any person shall and whoever shall are used indifferently.

philosophia cui quī pāreat, omne tempus aetātis sine molestiā possit dēgere (Cat. Maj. 1), philosophy, which if anyone should obey, he would be able to spend his whole life without vexation. [= si quis pāreat.]

quaecumque causa vōs hūc attulisset, laetārer (De Or. ii. 4), I should be glad, whatever cause had brought you here (i.e. if any other, as well as the one which did). [= si . . . attulisset.]

NOTE.—The relative in this construction is always Indefinite in meaning, and usually in form.

a. The special constructions of General Conditions are sometimes found in Conditional Relative Clauses: viz.,—

1. The Second Person Singular of the Subjunctive in the protasis with the Indicative of a general truth in the apodosis (§ 309. a): as,— bonus sēgnior fit, ubi negligās (Jug. 31), a good man becomes less diligent when you don't watch him.

2. In later writers the Imperfect or Pluperfect Subjunctive in the protasis and the Imperfect Indicative in the apodosis (§ 309. b): as,— quōcumque sē intulisset, victōriam sēcum trahēbat (Liv. vi. 8), wherever he advanced, he carried victory with him.

3. The Perfect or Pluperfect Indicative in the protasis and the Present or Imperfect Indicative in the apodosis (§ 309. c): as,— cum ad villam vēnī, hōc ipsum nihil agere mē dēlectat (De Or. ii. 6), whenever I come to the villa, this very doing nothing delights me (whensoever I have come, etc.). [Present General Condition.]

cum rosam viderat, tum incipere vēr arbitrābātur (Verr. v. 10), whenever he saw (had seen) a rose, then he thought spring was beginning. [Past General Condition.]

2. Clauses of Purpose.

NOTE.—The Subjunctive clause of Purpose has arisen either from the original future meaning of the subjunctive, or from its hortatory use. Either affords a satisfactory analysis. If developed from the hortatory subjunctive, the Subjunctive of Purpose has come through a kind of indirect discourse construction (for which see § 340). Thus misit lēgātōs qui dicerent means either he sent ambassadors who would say (future use), or, he sent ambassadors who should say, i.e. let them say (cf. hortatory subjunctive in past tenses, § 266. c, and hortatory clauses in Indirect Discourse, § 339).

As ut (uti) is of relative origin, the construction with ut is the same as that of relatives. That with nō is, no doubt, in origin, a hortatory subjunctive.

317. A clause expressing purpose is called a FINAL Clau:

Final clauses take the Subjunctive introduced by ut (utī), negative nē (ut nē), or by a Relative pronoun or adverb.

Final clauses may be divided into Pure, Relative, and Substantive.

1. Pure Clauses of Purpose are introduced by ut (utī) or nē. They express the purpose of the main verb in the form of a modifying clause.

2. Relative Clauses of Purpose are introduced by the Relative pronoun quī, or by the Relative adverbs ubi, unde, quō, etc. The antecedent is expressed or implied in the main clause.

3. Substantive Clauses of Purpose are introduced by ut (utī), negative nē. They differ from Pure final Clauses in having the construction of a substantive. (For Substantive Clauses of Purpose, see § 331.)

Examples of Pure and Relative clauses of purpose are:—

ab arātrō abdūxērunt Cincinnātum, ut dictātor esset (Fin. ii. 4), they brought Cincinnatus from the plough that he might be dictator.

nē qua eius adventūs procul significātiō fiat (B. G. vi. 29), that no sign of his arrival may be made at a distance.

ut nē sit impūne (Mil. 12), that it be not with impunity.

scribat orationēs quās alii dicerent (Brut. 56), he wrote speeches for other men to deliver.

nihil habeo quod scribam, I have nothing to write.

eō extinctō fore unde discerem nēminem (Cat. Maj. 4), that when he was dead there would be nobody from whom (whence) I could learn.

huic nē ubi cōsisteret quidem contrā tē locum reliquisti (Quinct. 22), you have left him no ground even to make a stand against you.

habebam quō cōfugerem (Fam. iv. 6), I had [a retreat] whither I might flee.

NOTE.—The Relative in this construction is equivalent to ut with the corresponding demonstrative. Thus quī = ut is (etc.), ubi = ut ibi, and so on (cf. § 319. note).

a. Sometimes the relative or conjunction has a correlative in the main clause: as,— lēgum idcirco omnēs servi sumus, ut liberī esse possimus (Clu. 53), for this reason we are all subject to the laws, that we may be free.

eō cōsiliō . . . ut (regularly), with this design, that, etc.

eā causā . . . nē, for this reason, lest, etc.

hōc cōsiliō ut montium tegerentur altitudīne (Nep. Milt. 5), with this purpose, that they might be protected by the height of the mountains.

δ. The ablative quō (= ut eō) is used as a conjunction in final clauses which contain a comparative: as, — libertate ūsus est, quō impūnius dicāx esset (Quinct. 3), he took advantage of liberty, that he might bluster with more impunity (by which the more easily).

NOTE 1. — So quōminus (= ut eō minus) introduces a subjunctive clause after verbs of hindering (see § 331. c).

NOTE 2. — Occasionally quō introduces final clauses which do not contain a comparative: as, — quō sibi (exercitum) fidum faceret (Sall. Cat. 11), in order to make the army devoted to himself.

c. The Principal clause, on which a final clause depends, is often to be supplied from the context. Thus, — āc nē longum sit . . . iūssimus (Cat. iii. 5), and, not to be tedious, we ordered, etc. [Strictly, in order not to be tedious, I say, we ordered.] sed ut ad Dionysium redeāmus (Tusc. v. 22), but to return to Dionysius.

sed ut eōdem revertar, causa haec fuit timōris (Fam. vi. 7), but, to return to the same point, this was the cause of fear.

satis inconsiderātī fuit, nē dicam audācis (Phil. xii. 5), it was the act of one rash enough, not to say daring.

REMARK. — By a similar ellipsis the subjunctive is used with nōdum (sometimes nō), still less, not to mention that: as, — nōdum . . . salvi esse possīmus (Clu. 35), much less could we be safe.

nōdum isti . . . nōn statim cōquisitūri sint aliquid sceleris et flagiti (Leg. Ag. ii. 35), far more will they hunt up at once some sort of crime and scandal.

nōdum in mari et viā sit facile (Fam. xvi. 8), still less is it easy at sea, and on a journey.

quippe secundae rēs sapientium animōs fatigant; nō illi corruptis mōribus victōriae temperārent (Sall. Cat. 11), for prosperity overmasters the soul even of the wise; much less did they with their corrupt morals put any check on victory.

NOTE. — With nōdum the verb itself is often omitted: as, — aptius hūmānitāti tuae quam tōta Peloponnēsus, nōdum Patrae (Fam. vii. 28, 1), fitler for your refinement than all Peloponnesus, to say nothing of Patrae.

REMARK. — Clauses of Purpose are sometimes rendered in English by that, or in order that, with may or might; but more frequently by the Infinitive with TO: as, — vēni ut vidērem, I came to see (that I might see).

318. The Purpose of an action is expressed in Latin in various ways; but never (except rarely in poetry) by the simple Infinitive as in English (§ 273).

The sentence, they came to seek peace, may be rendered —

- (1) vēnerunt ut pācem peterent. [Final clause with ut (§ 317).]
- (2) vēnerunt qui pācem peterent. [Final clause with Relative (§ 317).]
- (3) [vēnerunt ad petendum pācem.] (Not found with transitive verbs (§ 300, note), but cf. ad pārendum senātui.) [Gerund with ad (§ 300).]
- (4) vēnerunt ad petendam pācem. [Gerundive with ad (§ 300).]
- (5) vēnerunt pācem petendī causā (grātiā). [Gen. of Gerund with causā (§ 298. c).]
- (6) vēnerunt pācis petendae causā (grātiā). [Gen. of Gerundive with causā (§ 298. c).]
- (7) vēnerunt pācem petitūri. [Future participle (§ 293. b): not in Cicero.]
- (8) vēnerunt pācem petitum. [Former supine (§ 302).]

These forms are not used indifferently, but —

a. The usual way of expressing purpose is by ut (negatively nō), unless the purpose is closely connected with some one word, in which case a relative is more common. Thus, —

Arria gladium dedit maritō ut sē interficeret, Arria gave her husband a sword to kill himself (that he might kill himself).

Arria gladium dedit maritō quō sē interficeret, Arria gave her husband a sword to kill himself WITH (with which he might, etc.).

b. The Gerund and Gerundive constructions of purpose are usually limited to short expressions, where the literal translation of the phrase, though not the English idiom, is nevertheless not harsh or strange.

c. The Supine is used to express purpose only with verbs of motion, and in a few idiomatic expressions (§ 302).

d. The Future Participle used to express purpose, is a late construction of inferior authority (§ 293. b).

3. Clauses of Result.

NOTE. — The use of the Subjunctive to express Result comes from its use in Clauses of Characteristic. The clause of CHARACTERISTIC is a development peculiar to Latin, and has its origin in the potential use of the subjunctive (§ 311. a). A Protasis was, perhaps, originally implied, though this is not necessary to the analysis. The difference between the Subjunctive in such clauses and the Indicative of simple description is that the subjunctive expresses what would happen in a supposed case, while the indicative states what does or did in fact take place. The most common and obvious use of this construction is to express a quality or characteristic of an indefinite antecedent (either expressed or implied). Thus, is [Epicurus] qui pōnat summum bonum in voluptate would mean, literally, a man who would (in any supposable case) make the highest good consist in pleasure. This serves to express a characteristic of the indefinite person referred to by is, making him one of a class; while is qui pōnit would mean the man (Epicurus) who in fact does, etc. So, nōn sum ita hebes ut ita dicam would mean, literally, I am not dull in the manner (degree) in which I should say that. Since in these characteristic clauses the quality often appears in the form of a supposed result, the construction readily passes over into Pure Result, with no idea of characteristic: as, — tantus terror omnēs occupāvit ut etiam ipse rēx ad flūmen perfūgerit, so great panic seized all that the king himself fled to the river.

319. A clause that expresses Result is called a Consecutive Clause.

Consecutive Clauses take the Subjunctive introduced by ut, so that (negative, ut nōn), or by a Relative (pronoun or adverb).

Consecutive Clauses may be divided into Pure, Relative, and Substantive (cf. § 317).

1. Pure Clauses of Result are introduced by ut or ut nōn. They express the result of the main verb in the form of a modifying clause.

2. Relative Clauses of Result are introduced by the Relative pronoun quī, or by the Relative adverbs ubi, unde, quō, etc. The antecedent is expressed or implied in the main clause.

3. Substantive Clauses of Result are introduced by ut or ut nōn. They differ from Pure consecutive clauses in having the construction of a substantive. (For Substantive Clauses of Result, see § 332.)

Examples of Pure and Relative Clauses of Result are, — tanta vis probitātis est ut eam in hoste diligāmus (Cat. M. 9), so great is the power of goodness that we love it even in an enemy.

nam est innocentia affectiō talis animi, quae noceat nēmini (Tusc. iii 8), for innocence is such a quality of mind as to do harm to no one.

sunt aliae causae quae planē efficiant (Top. 15), there are other causes such as to bring to pass.

nulla est celeritās quae possit cum animi celeritāte contendere (Tusc. i. 19, 43), there is no swiftness which can compare, etc.

NOTE. — The Relative in this construction is equivalent to ut with the corresponding demonstrative. Thus, quī = ut is (etc.), ubi = ut ibi, and so on (cf. § 317. note).

REMARK. — Clauses of Result are often introduced by such correlative words as tam, tālis, tantus, ita, sic, adeō, usque eō, which belong to the main clause.

a. A negative result is regularly expressed by ut or quī with nōn, nēmō and similar negatives (not nē). Thus, — multis gravibusque vulneribus cōfectus ut iam sē sustinēre nōn posset (B. G. ii. 25), used up with many severe wounds so that he could no longer stand.

nēmō est tam senex quī sē annum nōn putet posse vivere (Cat. Maj. 7, 24), nobody is so old as not to think that he can live a year.

NOTE. — When the result implies an effect intended (not a simple purpose), ut nē or nē is sometimes used as being less positive than ut nōn. — [librum] ita corrigās nē mihi noceat (Fam. vi. 7), correct the book so that it may not hurt me.

b. Frequently a clause of result is used in a restrictive sense, and so amounts to a Proviso (cf. § 314): as,— hōc est ita ūtile ut nē plānē illūdāmur ab accūsātoribus (Rosc. Am. 20), this is so far useful that we are not utterly mocked by the accusers (i.e. useful only on this condition, that, etc.).

nihil autem molestum quod nōn dēsiderēs (Cat. Maj. 14, 47), but nothing is troublesome which (= provided that) you do not miss.

c. The subjunctive with the Relative quōminus (= ut eō minus) may be used, to express a result, after words of hindering or refusing (cf. § 317. b, note 1): as,— nec aetās impedit quōminus agrī colendī studia teneāmus (Cat. Maj. 17), nor does age prevent us from retaining an interest in tilling the ground.

d. A clause of result is introduced by quīn after general negatives, where quīn is equivalent to quī (quae, quod) nōn; so also after negative clauses of hindrance, resistance, doubt, hesitation, and the like. Thus,— nihil est illōrum quīn [= quod nōn] ego illī dixerim (Plaut. Bac. iii. 9), there is nothing of this that I have not told him.

nōn dubitō quīn, I do not doubt that (cf. the Eng., I do not doubt but that).

aegrē (vix) abstinui quīn . . ., I hardly refrained from, etc.

nihil impedit quīn . . ., there is nothing to prevent, etc.

abesse nōn potest quīn (Or. 70), it cannot be but that.

REMARK.—It is to be observed that the constructions of Purpose and Result in Latin are precisely alike in the affirmative (but see sequence, § 287. c), but that in the negative Purpose takes nē, Result ut nōn, etc. Thus,— custōditus est nē effugeret, he was guarded in order that he MIGHT not escape.

custōditus est ut nōn effugeret, he was guarded so that he DID not.

So in Purpose clauses nē quis, nē quid, nē ūllus, nē quō, nēquandō, nēcubi, etc., are used; in Result clauses, ut nēmō, ut nihil, ut nūllus, etc. Thus,— ita multi sunt imbēcilli senēs ut nūllum offici mūnus exsequi possint (Cat. Maj. 11, 35), many old men are so feeble that they cannot perform their duties to society.

quī summum bonum sic instituit ut nihil habeat cum virtūte coniūctum (Off. i. 2, 5), who has so settled the highest good that it has nothing in common with virtue.

cernere nē quis eōs neu quis contingere posset (Æn. i. 413), that no one might see them, no one touch them.

nō quandō liberis prōscriptōrum bona patria reddantur (Rosc. Am. 50, 451), lest ever the patrimony of the proscribed should be restored to their children.

ipse ne quō inciderem reverti Formiās (Att. viii. 3, 7), that I might not come upon him anywhere.

dispositis explorātoribus nēcubi Rōmānī cōpiās trāsdūcerent (B. G. vii. 35), having stationed scouts here and there lest the Romans should lead their troops across anywhere.

tū tamen eās epistolās concepitō nēquandō quid ēmānet (Att. x. 12, 3), lest anything ever leak out.

The clause of Result is sometimes expressed in English by the Infinitive with TO or SO-AS-TO or an equivalent: as, — tam longē aberam ut nōn vidērem, I was too far away to see (so far that I did not see; cf. § 320. c).

NOTE. — Result is never expressed by the Infinitive in Latin except by the poets in a few passages (§ 273. Rem.).

4. Clauses of Characteristic.

320. A relative clause with the Subjunctive is often used to indicate a characteristic of the antecedent, where there is no idea of Result (see § 319. head-note)

This construction is especially common where the antecedent is otherwise undefined. Thus, — neque enim tū is es, quī nesciās (Fam. v. 12), for you are not such a one, as not to know.

multa dicunt quae vix intellegant (Fin. iv. i. 1), they say many things which (such as) they hardly understand.

pāci quae nihil habitūra sit insidiarum semper est cōsulendum (Off. i. 11), we must always aim at a peace which shall have no plots.

unde agger comportārī posset, nihī erat reliquum (B. C. ii. 15), there was nothing left, from which an embankment could be got together.

a. A relative clause of characteristic is used after general expressions of existence or non-existence, including questions implying a negative.

So especially with sunt quī, there are [some] who; quis est quī, who is there who? Thus, — sunt quī discēssum animī a corpore putent esse mortem (Tusc. i. 9), there are some who think that the departure of soul from body constitutes death.

erant quī Helvidium miserārentur (Ann. xvi. 29), there were some who pitied Helvidius. [Cf. est cum (§ 322. Rem.).]

quis est quī id nōn māximis efferat laudibus (Lael. 7), who is there that does not extol it with the highest praise?

sunt aliae causae quae planē efficiant (Top. 15), there are other causes which clearly effect, etc.

NOTE. — These are sometimes called Relative Clauses with an Indefinite Antecedent, but are to be carefully distinguished from the Indefinite Relative in protasis (§ 316).

δ. A relative clause of characteristic may follow unus and solus: as, — nīl admirārī prope rēs est ūna sōlaque quae possit facere et servāre beatum (Hor. Ep. i. 6. 1), to wonder at nothing is almost the sole and only thing that can make and keep one happy.

solus es cuius in victoriā ceciderit nēmō nisi armātus (Deiot. 12, 34), you are the only man at whose victory no one has fallen unless armed.

ε. A clause of result or characteristic with quam ut, quam quī, may be used after comparatives: as, — māiōrēs arborēs caedēbant quam quās ferre miles posset (Liv. xxviii. 5), they cut larger trees than what a soldier could carry (too large for a soldier to carry).

Canachī signa rigidiōra sunt quam ut imitentur vērītatem (Brut. 18), the statues of Canachus are too stiff to represent nature (stiffer than that they should).

NOTE. — This construction corresponds to the English too . . . to.

ζ. A relative clause of characteristic is used in expressions of Restriction or Proviso (cf. § 319. β): as, — quod sciam, so far as I know.

Cātōnis orātīōnēs, quās quidem invēnerim (Brut. 17), the speeches of Cato, at least such as I have discovered.

servus est nēmō, quī modo tolerābili condiōne sit servitūtis (Cat. iv. 8), there is not a slave, at least in any tolerable condition of slavery.

η. A relative clause expressing cause or concession takes the subjunctive (§§ 313. λ, 321. β): as, — virum simplicem quī nōs nihil cēlet (Or. 69), oh! guileless man, who hides nothing from us! [Causal.]

peccāsse mihi videor quī ā tē discēsserim (Fam. xvi. 1), I seem to myself to have done wrong because I have left you. [Causal.]

egomet quī sērō Graecās litterās attigissem tamen complūrēs Athēnis diēs sum commorātus (De Or. 18), I myself though I began Greek literature late, yet, etc. (lit. [a man] who, etc.). [Concessive.]

NOTE 1. — In this use the relative is equivalent to cum is, etc. It is often preceded by ut, utpote, or quippe: as, —

ea nōs, utpote quī nihil contemnere soleāmus, nōn pertimēscēbāmus (Att. ii. 24, 4), as being men who are accustomed to despise nothing.

convivia cum patre nōn inibat, quippe quī nē in oppidum quidem nisi perrārō venīret (Rosc. Am. 18), since he did not even come, etc.

NOTE 2.—The Relative of Cause or Concession is merely a variety of the Characteristic construction. The quality expressed by the subjunctive is connected with the action of the main verb either as cause on account of which (SINCE) or as hindrance in spite of which (ALTHOUGH).

f. Dignus, indignus, aptus, idōneus, take a clause of result with a relative (or rarely with ut): as,— digna in quibus ēlabōrārent (Tusc. i. 1, 1), (things) worth spending their toil on (worthy on which they should, etc.).

digna rēs est ubi tū nervōs intendās tuōs (Ter. Eun. 312), the affair is worthy of your stretching your sinews (worthy wherein you should, etc.).

indignus erās quī facerēs iniūriam, it was beneath you to do a wrong (you were unworthy who should, etc.).

idōneus quī impetret (Manil. 19), fit to obtain.

indigni ut redimerēmur (Liv. xxii. 59), unworthy to be ransomed.

NOTE.—With these words the poets often use the Infinitive: as,— dignum nōtārī (Hor. Sat. i. 3, 24), worthy to be stigmatized.

fōns rivō dare nōmen idōneus (Hor. Ep. i. 16, 12), a source fit to give a name to a stream.

aetās mollis et apta regī (Ov.), a time of life soft and easy to be guided.

5. Causal Clauses.

NOTE.—Causal clauses take either the Indicative or the Subjunctive, according to their construction; the idea of Cause being contained, not in the mood itself, but in the form of the argument, or in the connecting particles.

321. The Causal Particles quod, quia, and quoniam take the Indicative, when the reason is given on the authority of the writer or speaker; the Subjunctive, when the reason is given on the authority of another: as,—

1. Indicative:—

cum tibi agam grātiās quod mē vivere coēgistī (Att. iii. 3), when I may thank you that you have forced me to live.

quia postrēma aedificāta est (Verr. iv. 53), because it was built last.

quoniam dē ūtilitāte diximus, dē efficiendi ratiōne (Or. Part. 26), since we have spoken of its advantage, let us speak of the method of effecting it.

2. Subjunctive:—

mihi grātulābāre quod audissēs mē meam pristinam dignitātem obtinēre (Fam. iv. 14, 1), you congratulated me because [as you said] you had heard, etc.

noctū ambulābat Themistoclēs quod somnum capere nōn posset (Tusc. iv. 19), Themistocles used to walk about at night because [as he said] he could not sleep.

mea māter irāta est quia nōn redierim (Plaut. Cist. i. 1, 103), my mother is angry because I didn't return.

nōn quoniam hōc sit necesse (Verr. ii. 9), not that this is necessary.

NOTE 1. — The Subjunctive in this use depends on the principle of Intermediate Clauses (§ 341. d).

NOTE 2. — Under this head what the speaker himself thought under other circumstances may have the Subjunctive (§ 341. d. Rem.): as, — ego laeta visa sum quia soror vēnisset (Plaut. Mil. 387), I seemed (in my dream) glad because my sister had come.

So with quod even a verb of saying may be in the Subjunctive: as, — rediit quod sē oblitum nesciō quid diceret (Off. i. 13), he returned because he said he had forgotten something.

NOTE 3. — The Subjunctive with quia is rare. The causal particle quandō takes the Indicative: as, — quandō ita vīs, di bene vortant (Plaut. Trin. 573), since you so wish, may the gods bless the undertaking.

REMARK. — Nōn quod, nōn quia, nōn quoniam, introducing a reason expressly to deny it, take the Subjunctive. Nōn quōd and nōn quīn introduce a Result clause, but with nearly the same meaning (§ 341. d. Rem.). Thus, — pugilēs ingemiscunt, nōn quod doleant, sed quia omne corpus intenditur (Tusc. ii. 23), boxers groan not because they are in pain, but because, etc.

nōn quia philosophia percipi nōn posset (id. i. 1), not that philosophy cannot be acquired.

nōn quoniam hōc sit necesse (Verr. ii. 9), not that this is necessary.

nōn quīn ēnitendum sit (De Or. ii. 72), not that pains must not be taken.

a. Causal Clauses introduced by quod, etc., take the Subjunctive in Indirect Discourse, like any other dependent clause (see § 336).

b. A Relative, when used to express cause, regularly takes the Subjunctive (see § 320. e).

c. Cum causal takes the Subjunctive (see § 326).

NOTE. — In early Latin cum causal takes the Indicative (§ 326. note 3).

6. Relations of Time.

NOTE. — Temporal clauses are introduced by particles which are almost all of relative origin. They are construed like other relative clauses, except where they have developed into special idiomatic constructions. (For list of Temporal Particles, see p. 124.)

322. The particles ubi, ut, cum, quandō, either alone or compounded with -cumque, may be used as Indefinite Relatives, and have the constructions of protasis (cf. § 316). Thus, — cum id malum esse negās (Tusc. ii. 12), when you (the individual disputant) deny it to be an evil. [Present, nothing implied (cf. § 306).]

quod profectō cum mē nulla vis cōgeret, facere nōn audērem (Phil. v. 18), which I would surely not venture to do, as long as no force compelled me. [Present, contrary to fact: cf. § 308.]

cum videās eōs . . . dolōre nōn frangi (id. 27), when you see that those are not broken by pain, etc. [General condition: cf. § 309. a.] id ubi dixisset, hastam in finēs eōrum emittēbat (Liv. i. 32), when he had said this, he used to cast the spear into their territories. [Repeated action: see § 309. b.]

cum rosam viderat, tum incipere vēr arbitrābātur (Verr. v. 10), when he had seen a rose he thought spring had begun. [Past general condition: cf. § 309. c.]

REMARK. — The phrases est cum, fuit cum, etc., are used in general expressions like est qui, sunt qui (§ 320. a): as, —

āc fuit quidem cum mihi quoque initium requiēscendī fore iūstum arbitrārer (De Or. i. 1), and there was a time when I thought a beginning of rest would be justifiable on my part.

323. Temporal clauses have two uses:¹ —

1. They themselves define (with reference to the time of the speaker) the time of the clause on which they depend.

2. They describe by its circumstances the time of the main clause, which is defined not by them, but by the main clause itself.

Thus, in: When did the Emperor Frederick die? He died while the people were still mourning the death of his father, the time of the main clause, he died, is definitely fixed by the temporal clause, while the people, etc., as is seen by the fact that the temporal clause answers the question, WHEN did he die? But in: The Emperor Frederick died while the people were still mourning the death of his father, the time of the main clause is not defined by the temporal clause, but is regarded as sufficiently definite in itself (or from the context). The temporal clause is added to describe that time by the circumstances of the people's grief.

These two sorts of temporal clauses the Romans distinguished by means of the mood, invariably using the Indicative in the first and the Subjunctive in the second. They commonly also used the particles and the tenses in accordance with this division.

I. POSTQUAM, UBI, ETC.

324. The particles postquam (posteaquam), ubi, ut (ut primum, ut semel), simul atque (simul āc, or simul alone) take the Indicative (usually in the perfect or the historical present): as, militēs postquam victōriam adepti sunt, nihil reliqui victis fecēre (Sall. Cat. 11), when the armies had won the victory, they left nothing to the vanquished.

posteaquam forum attigisti (Fam. xv. 16), since you came to the forum.

ubi omnēs idem sentire intellēxit (B. G. iii. 23), when he understood that all agreed (thought the same thing).

Catiline ubi eōs convēnisse videt secēdit (Sall. Cat. 20), when Catiline sees they have come together, he retires.

quod (sc. āgmen) ubi pēgere vident (Q. C. v. 3, 12), and when they see that it is advancing.

Pompēius ut equitātum suum pulsum vīdit, aciē excēssit (B. C. iii. 94), when Pompey saw his cavalry beaten, he left the army.

simul ac persēnsit (Æn. iv. 90), as soon as he perceived.

NOTE. — These particles are appropriated to time defined, and take the historical tenses in accordance with the distinction set forth in § 323. When they take the descriptive tenses (see a, below), they do not describe the time by its circumstances, but still define it, referring it to a then-existing state of things (Imperfect) or the then-existing result of a completed action (Pluperfect).

a. These particles less commonly take the Imperfect or Pluperfect indicative. The Imperfect in this case denotes a state of things; the Pluperfect, an action completed in past time. Thus, — postquam instrūcti utrimque stābant, ducēs in medium prōcēdunt (Liv. i. 23), when they stood in array on both sides, the generals advance into the midst.

P. Africānus posteaquam bis cōsul et cēsor fuerat (Div. in Cæc. 21), when Africanus had been (i.e. had the dignity of having been) twice consul and censor.

postquam id difficilīus vīsum est, neque facultās perficiendī dabātur, ad Pompēium trāsiērunt (B. C. iii. 60), when this seemed too hard, and no means of effecting it were given, they passed over to Pompey.

post diem quīntum quam barbari iterum male pūgnāverant (= victi sunt), lēgati ā Bocchō veniunt (Jug. 110), the fifth day after the barbarians were beaten the second time, envoys come from Bocchus.

haec iuventūtem, ubi familiārēs opēs dēfecerant, ad facinora incendēbant (Sall. Cat. 13), when their inherited resources had given out.

ubi pericula virtūte prōpulerant (id. 6), when they had dispelled the dangers by their valor.

b. Rarely some of these particles seem to take the subjunctive: as, — posteaquam māximās aedificāssēt ōrnāssētque clāssēs (Manil. 4), having built and equipped mighty fleets (after he had, etc.). [But the more approved editions have postea cum.]

II. CUM TEMPORAL.

325. Cum (quom), TEMPORAL, meaning when, takes the Imperfect and Pluperfect in the Subjunctive, other tenses in the Indicative. Thus,— cum servili bellō premeretur (Manil. 11), when she (Italy) was under the load of the Servile War.

cum id nūtiātum esset, mātūrat (B. G. i. 7), when this had been reported, he made (makes) haste.

cum occiditur Sex. Roscius, ibidem fuērunt servi (Rosc. Am. 61), when Roscius was slain, the slaves were on the spot.

nampe eō [lituō] regiōnēs dirēxit tum cum urbem condidit (Div. i. 17), he traced with it the quarters [of the sky] at the time he founded the city.

[For examples with the Future, see c below.]

NOTE.—The Present takes the Indicative, because present time is generally, from its very nature, defined in the mind; and it is only when the circumstances are described as causal or adversative (see below, § 326), that the Subjunctive is used. The Perfect takes the Indicative as the tense of narration, as with postquam, etc. The Imperfect and Pluperfect are, from their nature, fitter to describe than to define the time.

a. Cum, temporal, sometimes takes the Imperfect and Pluperfect Indicative to indicate a definite past time: as,— rēs cum haec scribēbam erat in extrēmum addūcta discrimen (Fam. xii. 6), at the time I write (epistolary) the affair has been brought into great hazard.

quem quidem cum ex urbe pellēbam, hōc prōvidēbam animō (Cat. iii. 7), when I was trying to force him (conative imperfect) from the city, I looked forward to this.

fulgentēs gladiōs hostium vidēbant Decii cum in aciem eōrum inruēbant (Tusc. ii. 24), the Decii saw the flashing swords of the enemy when they rushed upon their line.

tum cum in Asiā rēs māgnās permulti āmiserant (Manil. 7), at that time, when many had lost great fortunes in Asia.

NOTE.—The distinction explained in § 323 is unknown to early Latin. In Plautus quom always has the Indicative unless the Subjunctive is required for some other reason.

b. When the clauses are inverted, so that the logical temporal clause becomes the main clause, and the main clause becomes the temporal clause, the Indicative must be used with cum: as,— dies nōndum decem intercēsserant, cum ille alter filius infāns necatur (Clu. 9), ten days had not yet passed, when the other infant son was killed. [Instead of, when ten days had not yet passed, etc.] iamque lūx apparēbat cum prōcēdit ad milites (Q. C. vii. 8, 32), and day was already dawning when he appears before the soldiers.

hōc facere noctū apparābant, cum matrēs familiae repente in pūbicum prōcurrērunt (B. G. vii. 26), they were preparing to do this by night, when the women suddenly ran out into the streets.

c. To denote future time cum takes the Future or Future Perfect Indicative: as,— nōn dubitābō dare operam ut tē videam, cum id satis commodē facere poterō (Fam. xiii. 1), I shall not hesitate to take pains to see you, when I can do it conveniently.

longum illud tempus cum nōn erō (Att. xii. 18), that long time when I shall be no more.

cum vēneris, cōgnoscēs (Fam. v. 7), when you come (shall have come), you will find out.

III. CUM CAUSAL OR CONCESSIVE.

326. Cum CAUSAL OR CONCESSIVE takes the Subjunctive:

as,— cum solitūdō . . . insidiārum et metūs plēna sit (Fin. i. 20), since solitude is full of treachery and fear. [Causal.]

cum initio nōn amplius duobus milibus habuisset (Sall. Cat. 56), though at the start he had had not more than two thousand. [Concessive.]

cum primi ordinēs . . . concidissent, tamen ācerrimē reliqui resistēbant (B. G. vii. 61), though the first ranks had fallen, still the others resisted vigorously. [Concessive.]

NOTE 1.—Cum in these uses is often emphasized by ut, utpote, quippe, praesertim: as,— nec reprehendō: quippe cum ipse istam reprehēnsiōnem nōn fūgerim (Att. x. 3), I find no fault: since I myself did not escape that blame.

NOTE 2.—These causal and concessive relations are merely variations of the idea of time. The attendant circumstances are regarded as the cause of the action, or as tending to hinder it (cf. quī causal and concessive, § 320. e).

NOTE 3.—In early Latin cum (quom) causal and concessive usually takes the Indicative: as,— quom tua rēs distrahitur, utinam videam (Plaut. Trin. 573), since your property is torn in pieces, oh! that I may see, etc. [See also § 313. d, note.]

REMARK.—Cum causal may usually be translated by since; cum concessive by although or while.

a. Cum in the sense of quod, on the ground that, frequently takes the Indicative: as,— grātulor tibi cum tantum valēs apud Dolābellam (Fam. xi. 14), I congratulate you that you are so strong with Dolabella.

REMARK.—This use of the Indicative appears to be a colloquial relic of the old Indicative construction with cum (see note 3, above).

δ. Cum . . . tum, signifying both . . . and, usually takes the Indicative; but when cum approaches the sense of while or though, it may have the Subjunctive (§ 326). Thus,— cum multa nōn probō, tum illud in primis (Fin. i. 6), while there are many things I do not approve, there is this in chief. But,— cum rēs tōta ficta sit pueriliter, tum nē efficit quidem quod vult (ib.), while the whole thing is childishly got up, he does not even make his point (accomplish what he wishes).

IV. ANTEQUAM AND PRIUSQUAM.

327. Antequam and priusquam, before, have in narration the same construction as cum temporal (§ 325): as,— antequam tuās lēgi litterās (Att. ii. 7), before I read your letter.

neque ante dimisit eum quam fidem dedit adulēscēns (Liv. xxxix. 10), she did not let the young man go till he pledged his faith.

antequam hominēs nefārii dē meō adventū audire potuissent, in Macedoniam pērrēxi (Planc. 41), before those evil men could learn of my coming, I arrived in Macedonia.

NOTE.—The idea of purpose regularly requires the subjunctive: as,—nunquam prius discēssit quam ad finem sermō esset perductus, i.e. he waited for the conversation to be finished.

a. Antequam and priusquam, when referring to future time, take the Present or Future Perfect Indicative; rarely the Present Subjunctive: as,— priusquam dē cēteris rēbus respondeō, dē amicitia pauca dicam (Phil. ii. 1), before I reply to the rest, I will say a little of friendship.

nōn dēfatigābor antequam illōrum ancipitēs viās percēperō (De Or. iii. 36), I shall not weary till I have traced out their doubtful ways.

antequam veniat litterās mittet (Ag. 2, 20), before he comes, he will send a letter.

δ. In a few cases the Subjunctive of protasis is found with antequam and priusquam (cf. § 309. a): as,— in omnibus negotiis priusquam aggrediāre, adhibenda est praeparatiō diligēns (Off. i. 21, 73), in all undertakings before you proceed to action, careful preparation must be used.

V. DUM, DŌNEC, AND QUOAD.

328. Dum, dōnec, and quoad, implying purpose, doubt, or futurity, take the Subjunctive, otherwise the Indicative.

1. Subjunctive: as,— expectās fortasse dum dicat (Tusc. ii. 7), you are waiting perhaps for him to say (till he say).

irātis subtrahendi sunt ei in quōs impetum cōnantur facere dum sē ipsi colligant (Tusc. iv. 36), till they come to their senses (collect themselves).

Aenēan morandō sustinuit dum genitor prōtēctus abiret (Æn. x. 800), he kept Æneas in check till his father could get away in safety.

et dūxit longē dōnec curvāta cōirent inter sē capita (id. xi. 860), and drew it (the bow) until the curved tips touched.

Epaminōndās exercēbātur plūrimū luctandō ad eum finem quoad stāns completi posset atque contendere (Nep. Epam. 2), Epaminondas trained himself in wrestling so far as to be able to grapple standing and fight (in that way).

2. Indicative (cf. a, below): as,— hoc feci dum licuit, intermisi quoad nōn licuit (Phil. iii. 13), I did this so long as it was allowed, I discontinued it so long as it was not.

causās innecte morandī dum pelagō dēsaevit hiemps (Æn. iv. 51), weave excuses for delay until the storm upon the sea hath spent its rage.

dōnec rediit silentium fuit (Liv. xxiii. 31), there was silence till he returned.

quoad potuit restitit (Cat. Maj. 4, 11), he resisted as long as he could.

NOTE 1.—Quamdiū takes the Indicative only: as,— sē oppidō tam diū tenuit quamdiū in prōvinciā Parthi fuērunt (Fam. xii. 19), he kept himself within the town so long as the Parthians were in the province.

NOTE 2.—For dum and dummodo introducing a proviso, see § 314.

a. Dum in the sense of while usually takes the Present Indicative to indicate a continued action in past time, if that time is not contrasted with any other (§ 276 e. and note): as,— dum haec geruntur (B. G. i. 46), while this was going on.

NOTE.—Dum, dōnec, and quoad in later writers sometimes take the Subjunctive when the classical usage would require the Indicative: as,— nec obstitit falsis dōnec tempore ac spatiō vānēscerent (Tac. Ann. ii. 82), nor did he contradict the falsehoods until they died out from lapse of time.

nihil sēnē trepidābant elephantī dōnec continenti velut ponte agerentur (Liv. xxi. 28), the elephants showed no alarm whatever so long as they went over the continuous bridge, as it were.

REMARK.—With all temporal particles the Subjunctive is often found depending on some other principle of construction. (See Intermediate Clauses below, p. 378.)

II.—SUBSTANTIVE CLAUSES.

329. A clause used as a noun is called a Substantive Clause.

A Substantive Clause may be used as the Subject or Object of a verb, as an Appositive or as a Predicate Nominative or Accusative.

NOTE.—Many ideas which in English take the form of an abstract noun may be rendered by a substantive clause in Latin. Thus, he demanded an investigation, may be postulābat ut quaestiō habērētur. The common English expression FOR with the infinitive also corresponds to a Latin substantive clause: as, it remains for me to speak of the piratic war, reliquum est ut dē bellō dicam piraticō.

REMARK.—When a Substantive Clause is used as Subject, the verb to which it is subject is called impersonal, and the sign of the construction in English is the so-called expletive IT.

Substantive Clauses are classified as follows:—

1. INFINITIVE CLAUSES: { a. Infinitive clause as Subject (§ 270).
 { b. Infinitive clause as Object (§ 330. B).
2. SUBJUNCTIVE CLAUSES: { a. Of Purpose (command, wish, fear) (§ 331).
 (ut, nē, quō, quin, { b. Of Result (happen, effect, hinder) (§ 332). quōminus).
3. INDICATIVE CLAUSE with quod: Fact, Specification, Feeling.
4. INDIRECT QUESTIONS: Subjunctive, introduced by Interrogative Word.

1. Infinitive Clauses.

330. A. The Infinitive with Subject-Accusative may be used as the subject of sum and of many impersonal verbs (see § 270).

B. The Infinitive with Subject-Accusative is used as the *object*¹—

1. Of all verbs and expressions of knowing, thinking, telling, and perceiving (Indirect Discourse) (§ 272).

mē spērō liberātum [esse] metū (Tusc. ii. 27), I trust I have been freed from fear.

dicīt montem ab hostibus tenērī (B. G. i. 22), he says that the height is held by the enemy.

negat ūllōs patēre portūs (Liv. xxviii. 43), he says that no ports are open.

¹ The accusative with the infinitive is found with about 80 verbs and verbal phrases, the most common being: (1) accipiō, affirmō, animadvertō, arbitror, audiō, cōseō, cōgitō, dicō, disputō, doceō, existimō, fāma est, fateor, intellegō, meminī, nārrō, negō, putō, recordor, rūmor est, sentiō, spērō, suspicor, trāditur, vērū est, vidēō, vidētur; (2) iubeō, vetō, patior, cōgō, sinō; (3) cupiō, volō, nōlō, mālō; (4) decet, iuvat, aequum est, oportet, opus est, placet, fās est, nefās est, interest.

2. Of iubeō and vetō, and rarely of other verbs of commanding, requesting, admonishing, and the like (§ 331. a). Thus, — vetuere [bona] reddi, vetuere in pūblicum redigī (Liv. ii. 4), they forbade the return of the goods (that they be returned), etc.

Labiēnum iugum montis adscendere iubet (B. G. i. 21), he orders Labienus to ascend the ridge of the hill.

3. Sometimes of verbs of wishing (§ 331. b): as, — iūdicem mē esse nōn doctōrem volō (Or. 33), I wish to be a judge, not a teacher.

REMARK. — The Infinitive with Subject-Accusative, though not strictly a Clause, is equivalent to one, and may be treated as such.

a. If the main verb is ^ochanged to the Passive, either —

1. The subject of the infinitive (like other objects of active verbs) becomes nominative, and the infinitive is retained (Personal Construction): as, — mōns dicitur ab hostibus tenēri, the mountain is said to be held by the enemy.

Labiēnus iugum montis adscendere iubētur, Labienus is ordered to ascend the ridge of the hill.

2. The passive is used impersonally, and the clause retained as its subject (Impersonal Construction): — dicitur montem ab hostibus tenēri, it is said that the mountain is held by the enemy.

nūntiātur pirātārum nāvēs esse in portū (Verr. v. 24), it is told that the ships of the pirates are in port.

b. 1. Verbs of saying, thinking, etc., may take in the Passive either the Personal or the Impersonal construction. But the Personal construction is more common and is regularly used in the tenses of incomplete action. Thus, — beātē vixisse videor (Lael. 4, 15), I seem to have lived happily.

Epaminōndās fidibus praeclārē cecinisse dicitur (Tusc. i. 2, 4), Epaminondas is said to have played excellently on the lyre.

multi idem factūri esse dicuntur (Fam. xvi. 12), many are said to be about to do the same thing. [Active: dicunt multōs factūrōs (esse).] primi traduntur arte quādam verba vinxisse (Or. 13), they first are related to have joined words with a certain skill.

putātur is esse cōstitūtus ex marmore (Arch. 18, 22), he is thought to have been set up in marble.

Bibulus audiēbatur esse in Syriā (Att. v. 18), it was heard that Bibulus was in Syria (Bibulus was heard, etc.). [Direct: Bibulus est.] cēterae Illyrici legiōēs secūtūrae spērābantur (Tac. Hist. ii. 74), the rest of the legions of Illyricum were expected to follow.

vidēmur enim quiētūri fuisse nisi essēmus lacessitī (De Or. ii. 56), it seems that we should have kept quiet if we had not been molested (we seem, etc.). [Direct: quiēvissēmus . . . nisi essēmus lacessitī.]

2. Iubeō and vetō always take the personal construction of the passive: as, — iūssus es renūtiārī cōsul (Phil. ii. 32), you were under orders to be declared consul.

Nōlāni mūrōs portāsque adire vetiti sunt (Liv. xxiii. 16), the men of Nola were forbidden to go to visit the walls and gates.

c. In the compound tenses of verbs of saying, etc., the impersonal construction is more common, and with the gerundive is regular: as, — trāditum est etiam Homērum caecum fuisse (Tusc. v. 39), it is a tradition, too, that Homer was blind.

ubi tyrannus est, ibi nōn vitiōsam, sed dicendum est plānē nullam esse repūblicam (Rep. iii. 31), where there is a tyrant, it must be said, not that the Commonwealth is evil, but that it does not exist at all.

d. The poets and later writers extend the personal use of the passive to verbs which are not properly verba sentiendī, etc.: as, — colligor dominae placuisse (Ov. Am. ii. 6, 61), it is gathered [from this memorial] that I pleased my mistress.

e. The Infinitive with a subject may depend on any word implying speech or thought, though not strictly a verb of saying, etc. (see § 336, note 2).

f. Verbs of promising, hoping, expecting, threatening, swearing, and the like, regularly take the construction of Indirect Discourse, contrary to the English idiom: as, — minātūr sēsē abire (Plaut. Asin. iii. 3), he threatens to go away. [Direct: abeō, I am going away.] ex quibus sperant sē maximum fructum esse captūros (Lael. 21), from which they hope to gain the utmost advantage. [Direct: capiēmus.]

quem inimicissimum futurum esse prōmittō ac spondeō (Mur. 41), who I promise and warrant will be the bitterest of enemies. [Direct: erit.]

dolor fortitudinem sē dēbilitātūrum minātūr (Tusc. v. 27), pain threatens to wear down fortitude. [Direct: dēbilitābō.]

NOTE. — These verbs, however, often take a simple Complementary Infinitive (§ 271). So regularly in early Latin (except spērō). Thus, — pollicentur obsidēs dare (B. G. iv. 21), they promise to give hostages.

[Compare the Greek aorist infinitive after similar verbs].

prōmisi dōlium vinī dare (Plaut. Cist. ii. 2. 7), I promised to give a jar of wine.

2. Clauses of Purpose.

NOTE.—Clauses of Purpose may be used substantively¹ (1) as the Object of verbs of admonishing, etc. (§ 331); (2) as the Subject of these same verbs in the passive (§ 331. 4), as well as of certain impersonal verbs and verbal phrases (§ 311. 2); (3) in apposition with another substantive, or as predicate nominative, etc.

331. Substantive Clauses of Purpose with ut (negative nē) are used as the object of all verbs denoting an action directed toward the future.²

Such are, verbs meaning to admonish, ask, bargain, command, decree, determine, permit, persuade, resolve, urge, and wish. Thus,— monet ut omnēs suspiciōnēs vitet (id. 20), he warns him to avoid all suspicion.

te rogō atque orō ut eum iuvēs (Fam. xiii. 66), I beg and pray you to aid him.

his ut conquīrerent imperāvit (B. G. i. 28), he ordered them to search.

persuadet Casticō ut rēgnum occupāret (B. G. i. 3), he persuades Casticus to usurp royal power.

a. Iubeō, order, and vetō, forbid, take the Infinitive with Subject Accusative (§ 330. B. 2): as,— liberos ad sē adducī iussit (B. G. ii. 5), he ordered the children to be brought to him.

ab opere lēgātōs discēdere vetuerat (id. 20), he had forbidden the lieutenants to leave the work.

NOTE 1.—Some other verbs of commanding, etc., occasionally take the Infinitive: as,— haec facere imperātum est, orders were given to do this.

rēs monet cavēre (Sall. Cat. 52), the occasion warns us to be on our guard.

b. Verbs of wishing take either the Subjunctive or the Infinitive. The Infinitive is more common when the subject remains the same; the Subjunctive, when it changes. Thus,—

1. Subject of dependent verb same as that of main verb:

quōs nōn tam ulcisci studeō quam sanāre (Cat. ii. 8), whom I do not care so much to punish as to cure.

2. Subject of dependent verb different from that of main verb:

cupiō ut impetret (Plaut. Capt. 102), I wish he may get it.

māllem Cerberum metuerēs (Tusc. i. 6), I would rather you feared Cerberus.

² Such Verbs or verbal phrases are id agō, ad id veniō, caveō (nē), censeō, cōgō, concēdō, cōstituō, cūrō, dēcernō, dēdicō, flagitō, hortor, imperō, instō, mandō, metuō (nē), moneō, negotium dō, operam dō, orō, persuādeō, petō, postulō, praeceptō, precor, prō-nūntiō, quaerō, rogō, sciscō, timeō, vereor (nē), videō, volō.

NOTE. — Volō and cupiō, however, tend to take the Accusative and Infinitive rather than the Subjunctive, even when the subject changes. When it remains the same, the subject-accusative is rarely found. Thus, — vim volumus exstinguī (Sest. 42, 92), we wish violence to be put down.

tē tuā frui virtute cupimus (Brut. 97, 331), we wish you to reap the fruits of your virtue. iudicem mē esse, nōn doctōrem volō (Or. 33, 117), I wish to be a judge, not a teacher.
cupiō mē esse clēmentem (Cat. i. 2), I desire to be merciful. [But regularly, cupiō esse clēmēns (see § 271. a).]

c. Verbs of permitting take either the Subjunctive or the Infinitive. Patiōr takes regularly the Infinitive with Subject Accusative; so often sinō. Thus, — permisit ut partes faceret (De Or. ii. 90), permitted him to make divisions.

concedant ut boni viri fuerint (Lael. 5, 18), let them allow them to have been good men.
nūllō aē implicārī negōtiō passus est (Lig. 3), he suffered himself to be entangled in no business.
vinum importārī nōn sinunt (B. G. iv. 2), they do not allow wine to be imported.

d. Verbs of determining, decreeing, resolving, bargaining, take either the Subjunctive or the Infinitive: as, — cōstituerant ut L. Bestia quererētur (Sall. Cat. 43), they had determined that Lucius Bestia should complain. proeliō supersedēre statuit (B. G. ii. 8), he determined to refuse battle.

dē bonis regis quae reddī cēnsuerant (Liv. ii. 5), about the king's goods, which they had decreed should be restored. dēcernit ut cōsulēs dēlectum habeant (Sall. Cat. 34), decrees that the consuls shall hold a levy.
ēdictō nē quis iniūssū pugnāret (Liv. v. 19), having commanded that none should fight without orders.
pactō ut victōrem rēs sequerētur (id. xxviii. 21), having bargained that the property should belong to the victor.

NOTE 1. — Different verbs of these classes with the same meaning vary in their construction. For verbs of bargaining with the Gerundive, see § 294. d.

NOTE 2. — Verbs of decreeing and voting often take the Infinitive of the Second Periphrastic conjugation: as, —

Rēgulus captivōs reddendōs [esse] nōn cēnsuit (Off. i. 13), Regulus voted that the captives should not be returned. [He said, in giving his formal opinion: captivī nōn reddendī sunt.]

e. 1. Verbs of caution and effort take the Subjunctive with ut. But cōnor, try, commonly takes the complementary Infinitive. Thus, — cūrā ut quam primum intellegam (Fam. xiii. 10), let me know as soon as possible (take care that I may understand).

dant operam ut habeant (Sall. Cat. 41), they take pains to have (give their attention that, etc.).

impellere ut Caesar nōminārētur (id. 49), to induce them to name Caesar (that Caesar should be named).

sī trānsire cōnārentur (B. G. i. 8), if they should try to cross.

NOTE 1. — Cōnor sī also occurs (as B. G. i. 8; cf. mīror sī, etc., § 333. b, Rem.).

NOTE 2. — Ut nō occurs occasionally with verbs of caution and effort (cf § 317): as, — cūrā et prōvidē ut nēquid ei dēsīt (Att. ii. 3), take care and see that he lacks nothing.

2. Verbs denoting an effort to hinder take either (1) a Subjunctive clause with quōminus or nō, or (2) the Infinitive: as, — nōn dēterret sapientem mors quōminus . . . (Tusc. i. 38), death does not prevent the wise man from, etc.

nē facerem impedit (Fat. i. 1), prevented me from doing.

obstitisti nē trānsire cōpiaē possent (Verr. vi. 2), you opposed the passage of the troops (opposed lest the troops should cross).

prohibet accēdere (Cæc. 16), prevents him from approaching (to approach).

NOTE. — For verbs of hindering negatived (not to hinder), see § 332. g.

f. Verbs of fearing take the Subjunctive,¹ with nō affirmative and nō nōn or ut negative. Thus, — timeō nē Verrēs fēcērit (Verr. vi. 1), I fear that Verres has done, etc.

nē animum offenderet verēbātur (B. G. i. 19), he feared that he should hurt the feelings, etc.

orātor metuō nē languēscat senectūte (Cat. Maj. 9, 28), I fear the orator grows feeble from old age.

vercor ut tibi possim concēdere (De Or. i. 9), I fear [that] I cannot grant you.

haud sānē periculum est nō nōn mortem optandam putet (Tusc. v. 40), there is no danger that he will not think death desirable.

NOTE. — In this use nō is commonly to be translated by that or lest, ut and nō nōn by that not.

REMARK. — The particle ut is often omitted with some verbs of the above classes. So generally after verbs of wishing, necessity, permission; after dīcō, fac, and frequently in Indirect Discourse after verbs of commanding and the like. Thus, — volō amēs (Att. ii. 10), I wish you to love, etc.

mē ipsum amēs oportet (Fin. ii. 26), you ought to love me.

¹ With verbs of Fearing the subjunctive with nō is hortatory in origin: timeō nō accidat is literally I fear, let it not happen. The subjunctive with ut may have been either hortatory or deliberative, — I fear, let it happen, or I fear; how may it happen? — I hope it will happen, but I fear it will not.

fac diligās (Att. iii.), do love.

dic exeat, tell him to go out.

Mnēsthea vocat, clāssem aptent socii (Æn. iv. 289), he calls Mnēstheus [and orders that] his comrades should make ready the fleet (cf. § 339).

NOTE.—Similarly nō is omitted after cave in Prohibitions (cf. § 269. a).

g. With any verbs of the above classes the poets may use the Infinitive instead of an object clause: as, — hortāmur fārī (Æn. ii. 74), we urge [him] to speak.

nē quaere docērī (id. vi. 614), seek not to be told.

temptat praevertēre (id. i. 721), she attempts to turn, etc.

h. A Substantive clause of Purpose used as the object of a verb becomes the subject when that verb is put in the Passive. Thus, — imperātum est ut iter facerent, it was ordered that they should march.

permissum est ut irent, permission was given that they should go.

mihi persuādētur ut exeam, I am persuaded to go out (it is persuaded to me).

i. The impersonals licet and oportet take as subject either a Substantive clause of Purpose, or an Infinitive with or without subject-accusative. Thus, — licet mē ire, it is allowed me to go.

querāmur licet (Cæc. 14), we are allowed to complain.

sint enim oportet (Tusc. i. 6), they must exist.

NOTE 1.—The Subjunctive with oportet omits ut, except in later writers (see § 331. f. Rem.).

NOTE 2.—Licet may take the Subjunctive, usually without ut, to denote concession (see § 313. b).

NOTE 3.—Licet may take (1) the Subjunctive; (2) the Simple Infinitive; (3) the Infinitive with Subject Accusative; or (4) the Dative and the Infinitive. Thus, I may go is licet eam, licet ire, licet mē ire, or licet mihi ire.

3. Clauses of Result.

NOTE.—Clauses of Result may be used substantively,¹ (1) as the object of faciō, etc. (§ 332); (2) as the subject of these same verbs in the passive, as well as of other verbs and verbal phrases (§ 332. a, d); (3) in apposition with another substantive, or as predicate nominative, etc. (see § 332. f).

¹ In all these cases the clause is not strictly subject or object. The main verb originally conveyed a meaning complete in itself, and the result clause was merely appended. This is seen by the frequent use of ita and the like with the main verb (ita accidit ut, etc.). In like manner purpose clauses are only apparently subject or object of the verb with which they are connected.

332. Substantive Clauses of Result with ut (negative ut nōn) are used as the object of verbs denoting the accomplishment of an effort.¹

Such are especially faciō and its compounds (efficiō, cōnficiō, etc.). Thus, — efficiam ut intellegātis (Cluent. 3), I will make you understand (lit. effect that you, etc.). [So, faciam ut intellegātis (id. 4).]

commeātus ut portāri possent efficiēbat (B. G. ii. 5), made it possible that supplies could be brought.

quae libertās ut laetior esset rēgis superbia fēcerat (Liv. ii. 1), the arrogance of the last king had made this liberty more welcome.

ēvincunt instandō ut litterae darentur (id. 4), by insisting they gain their point, — that letters should be sent. [Here ēvincunt = efficiunt.]

a. Substantive Clauses of Result are used as the Subject of the following: —

1. Of passive verbs denoting the accomplishment of an effort: as, — impetrātum est ut in senātū recitārentur (litterae) (B. C. i. 1), they succeeded in having the letter read in the senate (it was brought about that, etc.).

2. Of Impersonals meaning it happens, it remains, it follows, it is necessary, it is added,² and the like: as, — accidit ut esset lūna plēna (B. G. iv. 29), it happened to be full moon (it happened that it was, etc.). [Here ut esset is subject of accidit.]

reliquum est quārta virtūs ut sit ipsa frūgālitas (Deiot. 1), it remains that the fourth virtue is thrift. [So also restat.]

sequitur ut doceam (N. D. ii. 32), the next thing is to show (it follows that I should show).

accēdit ut conturber (Deiot. 1), besides this I am troubled (it is added that, etc.).

3. Of est in the sense of it is the fact that, etc. (mostly poetic): as, est ut virō vir lātius ōrdinet arbusta (Hor. Od. iii. 1. 9), it is the fact that one man plants his vineyards in wider rows than another.

b. A result clause, with or without ut, frequently follows quam, after a comparative (but see § 336. c, note 2): as, — perpessus est omnia potius quam indicāret (Tusc. ii. 22), he endured all rather than betray, etc.

¹ Verbs and phrases taking an ut-clause of result as subject or object are accēdit, accidit, additur, altera est res, committō, cōnsequor, contingit, efficiō, ēvenit, faciō, fit, feri potest, fore, impetrō, integrum est, mōs est, mūnus est, necesse est, prope est, rēctum est, relinquitur, reliquum est, restat, tantū est, tantum abest, and a few others.

² See the impersonals in the list above.

c. A result clause, with or without ut, is often used elliptically, in exclamatory questions. The question may be introduced by the interrogative -ne. Thus, — quamquam quid loquor? tē ut ūlla rēs frangat (Cat. i. 9), yet why do I speak? [the idea] that anything should bend you!

 egone ut tē interpellem (Tusc. ii. 18), what, I interrupt you?
 ego tē vidēre nōluerim (Q. Fr. i. 3), I unwilling to see you?

REMARK. — The Infinitive, in exclamations (§ 274), usually refers to something actually occurring; the Subjunctive, to something contemplated.

d. The phrase tantum abest, it is so far [from being the case], regularly takes two clauses of result with ut: one is substantive, the subject of abest; the other is adverbial, correlative with tantum. Thus, — tantum abest ut nostra mirēmur, ut usque eō difficilēs ac mōrōsi simus, ut nōbis nōn satisfaciāt ipse Dēmōsthēnēs (Or. 29), so far from admiring my own works, I am difficult and captious to that degree, that not Demosthenes himself satisfies me. [Here the first ut-clause is the subject of abest (§ 332. a); the second, a result clause, after tantum (§ 319); and the third, after usque eō.]

e. The expressions facere ut, committere ut with the subjunctive, often form a periphrasis for the simple verb: as, — invitus feci ut Flāminium ē senātū ēicerem (Cat. Maj. 12), it was with reluctance that I expelled Flaminius from the senate.

NOTE. — With this may be compared fore ut for the future infinitive (§ 288. f).

f. Rarely, a thought or an idea is considered as a result, and is expressed by the subjunctive with ut instead of the accusative and infinitive (§ 336. 1). In this case a demonstrative usually precedes: as, — praeclārum illud est, ut eōs . . . amēmus (Tusc. iii. 29), this is a noble thing, that we should love, etc.

verisimile nōn est ut ille antepōneret (Verr. II. iv. 6), it is not likely that he preferred.

g. A Relative clause of Result with quīn is used after verbs or other expressions of hindering and the like when these are negated. Thus, facere nōn possum quīn . . . (Att. xii. 27), I cannot avoid, etc.

nihil praetermisi quīn scribam . . . (Q. F. iii. 3), I have left nothing undone to write.
ut nūlla rē impedīrer quīn (Att. iv. 2), that I might be hindered by nothing from, etc.
nōn hūmāna ūlla neque dīvina obstant quīn (Sall. Ep. Mith. 17), no human or divine laws prevent, but that, etc.

NOTE 1. — The negative may be expressed (as in the examples above) or merely implied (as in quis impedit quā eam, who (i.e. nobody) hinders me from going?).

REMARK. — This usage is found especially with the phrase nōn dubitō, I do not doubt, and similar expressions: as, — nōn dubitābat quā ei crēderēmus (Att. vi. 2), he did not doubt that we believed him.

illud cave dubitēs quā ego omnia faciam (Fam. v. 20), do not doubt that I will do all.

quis ignorat quā (Flacc. 27), who is ignorant that, etc.?

neque ambigitur quā Brūtus pessimō publicō id factūrus fuerit si priōrum rēgum alicui rēgnum extorsisset (Liv. ii. 1), nor is there any question that Brutus, if he had wrested the kingdom from any one of the former kings, would have done it with the worst results to the state. [Direct statement: fēcisset.]

NOTE 2. — Nōn dubitō, in the sense of I do not hesitate, commonly takes the Infinitive, but sometimes quā with the subjunctive. Thus, — nec dubitāre illum appellāre sapientem (Lael. i. 1), and not to hesitate to call him a sage.

dubitandum nōn existimāvit quā proficisceretur (B. G. ii. 2), he did not think he ought to hesitate to set out.

h. Some verbs and expressions may be used either as verbs of saying or as verbs of commanding, effecting, and the like. These take as their object either a Substantive clause of Purpose or Result or an Infinitive with subject accusative, according to the sense. Thus, — sequitur ilicō esse causās immūtābilēs (Fat. 12), it follows directly that there are unalterable causes. [Result clause, the regular construction with sequor when used of a logical sequence.]

laudem sapientiae statuō esse maximam (Div. v. 13), I hold that the glory of wisdom is the greatest.

statuunt ut decem milia hominum mittantur (B. G. vii. 21), they resolve that 10,000 men shall be sent. [Purpose clause, cf. § 331. d.]

rēs ipsa monēbat tempus esse (Att. x. 8), the thing itself warned that it was time. [Cf. monēre ut, warn to do something.] fac mihi esse persuāsum (N. D. i. 27), suppose that I am persuaded of that. [Cf. facere ut, accomplish that.] hōc volunt persuādere, nōn interire animōs (B. G. vi. 13), they wish to convince that souls do not perish.

huic persuādet uti ad hostēs transeat (B. G. iii. 18), persuades him to pass over to the enemy.

NOTE. — The infinitive with subject accusative in this construction is Indirect Discourse, and is to be distinguished from the simple infinitive sometimes found with these verbs instead of a subjunctive clause.

4. Indicative with Quod.

333. A peculiar form of Substantive Clause consists of quod causal with the Indicative.

The clause in the Indicative with quod is used when the statement is regarded as a fact: as, — alterum est vitium, quod quidam nimis magnum studium conferunt (Off. i. 6), it is another fault that some bestow too much zeal, etc. [Here ut conferant could be used, meaning that some should bestow; or the accusative and infinitive, meaning to bestow (abstractly); quod makes it a fact that men do bestow, etc.]

inter inanimatum et animal hoc maxime interest, quod animal agit aliquid (Ac. ii. 12), this is the chief difference, etc., that an animal aims at something.

quod rediit nobis mirabile videtur (Off. iii. 31), that he (Regulus) returned seems wonderful to us.

vetus illud Catonis admodum scitum est, qui mirari se aiebat quod non rideret haruspex haruspice cum vidisset (Div. ii. 24), 'tis an old and shrewd saying of Cato, that he wondered a soothsayer did not laugh when he looked another in the face. [Here rideret is in the subjunctive as being a subordinate clause of indirect discourse: see § 336.]

NOTE. — Like other substantive clauses, the clause with quod may be used as subject, as object, as appositive, etc., but it is commonly either the subject or in apposition with the subject.

a. In colloquial language, the clause with quod sometimes appears as an accusative of specification, corresponding to the English WHEREAS (cf. § 326. a): as, — quod de domo scribis (Fam. xiv. 2), as to what you write of the house.

quod mihi de nostro statu gratularis, minime miramur te tuis praeclaris operibus laetari (Att. i. 5), as to your congratulating me on our condition, no wonder you are pleased with your own noble works.

b. Verbs of feeling and the expression of feeling take either quod, quia (Causal), or the accusative and infinitive (Indirect Discourse): as, — quod scribis . . . gaudeo (Q. F. iii. 1), I am glad that you write.

facio libenter quod eam non possum praeterire (Leg. i. 24), I am glad that I cannot pass it by.

quae perfecta esse vehementer laetor (Rosc. Am. 47), I greatly rejoice that this is finished.

REMARK. — MIROR and similar expressions are sometimes followed by a clause with *et*¹. This is apparently substantive, but really protasis (cf. § 331. e. 1. note 1). Thus, — miror sī quemquam amicum habēre potuit (Lael. 15), I wonder if he could ever have a friend. [Originally, If this is so, I wonder at it.]

5. Indirect Questions.

NOTE.—An Indirect Question is any sentence or clause which is introduced by an Interrogative word (pronoun, adverb, etc.), and which is itself the subject or object of a verb, or depends on any expression implying uncertainty or doubt. In grammatical form, exclamatory sentences are not distinguished from interrogative (see the third example below).

334. An Indirect Question takes its verb in the Subjunctive: as,— quid ipse sentiam expōnam (Div. i. 6), I will explain what I think.

[Direct: quid sentiō.]

id possetne fieri cōsultuit (id. 7), he consulted whether it could be done.

[Direct: potestne.]

quam sis audāx omnēs intellegere potuērunt (Rosc. Am. 31), all could understand how bold you are. [Direct: quam es audāx!]

doleam necne doleam nihil interest (Tusc. ii. 12), it is of no account whether I suffer or not. [Double question.]

rogat mē quid sentiam, he asks me what I think. [Cf. rogat mē sententiam, he asks me my opinion.] hōc dubium est, uter nostrū sit verēcundior (Acad. ii. 41, 126), this is doubtful, which of us two is the more modest.

incerti quātenus Volerō exercēret victōriam (Liv. ii. 55), uncertain how far Voloero would push victory. [As if, dubitantēs quātenus, etc.]

NOTE.—An Indirect Question may be the subject of a verb (as in the fourth example), the direct object (as in the first), the secondary object (as in the fifth), an appositive (as in the sixth).

The use of tenses in Indirect Question is illustrated by the following examples:—

dicō quid faciam, I tell you what I am doing.

dicō quid facturus sim, I tell you what I will do.

dicō quid fecerim, I tell you what I did (have done, was doing, had done).

dixi quid facerem, I told you what I was doing.

dixi quid fecissem, I told you what I had done.

dixi quid factūrus essem, I told you what I would do (was going to do).

dixi quid factūrus fuerim, I told you what I would have done.

a. Indirect Questions referring to future time take the subjunctive of the First Periphrastic conjugation: as,— prospiciō quī concursūs futūrī sint (Div. in Cæc.), I foresee what throngs there will be [Direct: quī erunt?]

quid sit futurum crās, fuge quaerere (Hor. Od. i. 9), forbear to ask what will be on the morrow. [Direct: quid erit or futūrum est?]

NOTE. — This periphrastic future avoids the ambiguity which would be caused by using the present subjunctive to refer to future time in such clauses.

b. The Deliberative Subjunctive (see § 268 and examples) remains unchanged in an Indirect Question, except sometimes in tense: as, — [quaeritur] utrum Carthāgō diruātur, ar Carthāginiēnsibus reddātur (De Inv. i. 12), [the question is] shall Carthage be destroyed, or restored to the Carthaginians.

nec quisquam satis certum habet, quid aut spēret aut timeat (Liv. xxii. 7), nor is any one well assured what he shall hope or fear. [Here the future participle with sit could not be used.]

incertō quid peterent aut vitārent (Liv. xxviii. 36), since it was doubtful (abl. abs.) what they should seek or shun.

c. In colloquial usage and in poetry the subject of an Indirect Question is often attracted into the main clause as object (accusative of anticipation): as, — nōstī Mārcellum quam tardus sit (Fam. viii. 10), you know how slow Marcellus is. [For nōstī quam tardus sit Mārcellus. Cf. I know thee who thou art.]

Cf. potestne igitur eārum rērum quārē futūrae sint ūlla esse praesēnsiō (Div. ii. 5), can there be, then, any foreknowledge as to those things, why they will occur? [A similar use of the objective genitive.]

REMARK. — In some cases the Object of anticipation becomes Subject by a change of voice, and an apparent mixture of relative and interrogative construction is the result: as, — quidam saepe in parvā pecūniā perspiciuntur quam sint levēs (Lael. 17), it is often seen, in a trifling matter of money, how unprincipled some people are (some people are often seen through, how unprincipled they are).

quemadmodum Pompēium oppugnārent ā mē indicātī sunt (Leg. Ag. i. 2), it has been shown by me in what way they attacked Pompey (they have been shown by me, how they attacked).

d. Indirect Questions often take the Indicative in early Latin and in poetry: as, — nōn reputat quid labōris est (Plaut. Am. 172), he does not consider what a task it is.

vineam quō in agrō cōseri oportet sic observātō (Cato R. R. 6), in what soil a vineyard should be set you must observe thus.

e. A few interrogative expressions are used parenthetically in an indefinite sense and do not take a subjunctive. Such are — nesciō quis (and kindred forms), I know not who, somebody or other, etc.

mīrum (nīmīrum) quam, marvellously (marvellous how).

mīrum quantum, tremendously (marvellous how much).

immāne quantum, monstrously (monstrous how much).

sanē quam, immensely.

valdē quam, enormously.

Examples are : — qui istam nesciō quam indolentiam māgnopere laudant (Tusc. iii. 6), who greatly extol that freedom from pain, whatever that is.

mīrum quantum prōfuit (Liv. ii. 1), it helped prodigiously.

ita fātō nesciō quō contigisse arbitror (Fam. xv. 13), I think it happened so by some fatality or other.

nam suōs valdē quam paucōs habet (Fam. xi. 13), for he has uncommonly few of his own.

sānō quam sum gāvisus (Id.), I was immensely glad.

vinō et lucernis Mēdus acinacēs immāne quantum discrepat (Hor. Od. i. 27. 5), is monstrously at variance.

f. An indirect question is occasionally introduced by sī in the sense of whether (like if in English, cf. § 333. b. Rem.): as, — circumfunduntur hostēs sī quem aditum reperire possent (B. G. vi. 37), the enemy pour round [to see] if they can find entrance.

visam sī domi est (Ter. Heaut. 118), I will go see if he is at home.

NOTE. — This is strictly a Protasis, but usually no Apodosis is thought of, and the clause is virtually an Indirect Question.

g. Forsit, forsitan, forsan, fortasse, fortasse an, perhaps, are often followed by the Subjunctive: as, — forsitan quaerātis qui iste terror sit (Rosc. Am. 2), you may perhaps inquire what this alarm is.

NOTE. — The Subjunctive Clause in this case was originally an Indirect Question. Thus, it would be a chance whether, etc. Fortasse is also followed by the Infinitive with Subject Accusative in Plautus.

III.—INDIRECT DISCOURSE.

NOTE. — The use of the Accusative and Infinitive in Indirect Discourse (oratiō obliqua) is a comparatively late form of speech, developed in the Latin and Greek only, and perhaps separately in each of them. It is wholly wanting in Sanskrit and Zend, but some forms like it have grown up in English and German.

[The essential character of Indirect Discourse is, that the language of some other person than the writer or speaker is compressed into a kind of Substantive Clause, the verb of the main clause becoming Infinitive, while modifying clauses, as well as all hortatory forms of speech, take the Subjunctive. The person of the verb is necessarily conformed to the new relation of persons.

The construction of the Indirect Discourse, however, is not limited to reports of the language of some person other than the speaker; it may be used to express what any one — whether the speaker or some one else — says, thinks, or perceives, whenever that which is said, thought, or perceived is capable of being expressed in the form of a complete sentence. For anything that can be said, etc., can also be reported indirectly as well as directly.

The use of the Infinitive in the main clause undoubtedly comes from its use as a case-form to complete or modify the action expressed by the verb of saying, etc., and its object together. This object in time came to be regarded as, and in fact to all intents became, the subject of the infinitive. A transition state is found in Sanskrit, which, though it has no indirect discourse proper, yet allows an indirect predication after verbs of saying and the like, by means of a predicative apposition, in such expressions as, "The maids told the king [that] his daughter [was] bereft of her senses."

The simple form of indirect statement with the accusative and infinitive was afterwards amplified by introducing dependent or modifying clauses; and in Latin it became a common construction, and could be used to report whole speeches, etc., which in other languages would have the direct form. (Compare the style of reporting speeches in English, where only the person and tense are changed, as is also occasionally the case in Sanskrit.)

The use of the Subjunctive in dependent clauses in Indirect Discourse probably came from regarding the statements contained in them as not absolutely true, but as conditioned upon the trustworthiness of the original speaker; that is, as Apodosis with an implied Protasis (if we may believe the speaker, or the like). So the French conditional is often equivalent to "it is said": as, ainsi il aurait à peu près doublé, "it is said to have nearly doubled," lit. "would have doubled," i.e. if we should believe the report. Cf. in German, Er soll krank sein, "he is said to be sick," lit. "he ought to be sick, unless the story is false."

The Subjunctive standing for hortatory forms of speech in Indirect Discourse is simply the usual hortatory subjunctive, with only a change of person and tense (if necessary), as in the reporter's style, and in Sanskrit.

335. A Direct Quotation gives the exact words of the original speaker or writer.

An Indirect Quotation adapts the words of the speaker or writer to the construction of the sentence in which they are quoted.

REMARK.—The term INDIRECT DISCOURSE (ôrātiô obliqua) is used in two senses. In the wider sense it includes all clauses—of whatever kind—which express the words or thought of any person indirectly; that is, in a form different from that in which the person said the words or conceived the thought. In the narrower sense the term Indirect Discourse is restricted to those cases in which some complete proposition is cited in the form of an Indirect Quotation, which may be extended to a narrative or an address of any length, as in the speeches reported by Cæsar and Livy. In this book the term is used in the restricted sense.

I. FORMAL INDIRECT DISCOURSE.

336. 1. Verbs and other expressions of knowing, thinking, telling, and perceiving,¹ govern the Indirect Discourse.

¹ Such are: (1) knowing, sciô, côgnôscô, compertum habeo, etc.; (2) thinking, putô, existimô, arbitror, etc.; (3) telling, dicô, nūntiô, referô, polliceor, prômittô, certiôrem faciô, etc.; (4) perceiving, sentiô, comperiô, videô, audiô, etc. So in general any word that denotes thought or mental and visual perception or their expression may govern the Indirect Discourse.

2. In the Indirect Discourse the main clause of a Declaratory Sentence is put in the Infinitive with Subject Accusative. All Subordinate clauses take the Subjunctive. Thus, — spērō mē liberātum [esse] dē metū (Tusc. iii. 27), I trust I have been freed from fear.

[dicit] esse nōnnūllōs quōrum auctōritās plūrimum valeat (B. G. i. 17), he says there are some, whose influence most prevails. [In direct discourse: sunt nōnnūlli . . . valet.]

nisi iūrāssēt, scelus sē factūrum [esse] arbitrābātur (Verr. i. 47), he thought he should incur guilt, unless he should take the oath. [Direct: nisi iūrāverō, faciam.]

Stōici negant quidquam [esse] bonum, nisi quod honestum sit (Fin. ii. 21), the Stoics assert that nothing is good but what is right. [The verb negō is used in preference to dicō with a negative.]

NOTE 1. — In the statement of all speech or thought, the Romans tended to use the Indirect Discourse, etc., with verbs of the classes mentioned, but: inquam, said I (etc.), is appropriated to the Direct Discourse except in poetry.

NOTE 2. — The verb of saying, etc., is often not expressed, but implied in some word or in the general drift of the sentence: as, — cōsulis alterius nōmen invisum civitātī fuit: nimium Tarquiniōs rēgnō adsuēsse; initium ā Priscō factum; rēgnāsse dein Ser. Tullium, etc. (Liv. ii. 2), the name of the other consul was hateful to the state; the Tarquins (they thought) had become too much accustomed to royal power, etc. [Here invisum implies a thought, and this thought is added in the Indirect Discourse.]

ōrāntēs ut urbibus saltem — iam enim agrōs dēplōrātōs esse — opem senātus ferret (Liv. xvi. 6), praying that the senate would at least bring aid to the cities — for the fields [they said] were already given up as lost.

NOTE 3. — Verbs of promising, hoping, expecting, threatening, swearing, and the like, regularly take the construction of Indirect Discourse (see § 330. f. and note).

1. Subject Accusative.

a. 1. The Subject of the Infinitive in Indirect Discourse must regularly be expressed, even if it is wanting in the direct: as, — ōrātor sum, I am an orator; dicit sē esse ōrātōrem, he says he is an orator.

NOTE. — But the subject is often omitted, if easily understood: as, — ignōscere imprudentiae dīxit (B. G. iv. 27), he said he pardoned their rashness.

rogāvi pervēnissentne Agrigentum: dīxit pervēnisse (Verr. iv. 12), I asked whether they (the curtains) had come to Agrigentum; he answered that they had.

REMARK. — After a relative, or quam (than), if the verb would be the same as that of the main clause, it is usually omitted, and its subject is attracted into the accusative: as, — tē suspicor eisdem rēbus quibus mēipsum commovērī (Cat. Maj. 1), I suspect that you are disturbed by the same things as I.

2. When the verb of saying, etc., becomes passive, the construction may be either Personal or Impersonal.

NOTE 1. — For rules in regard to the choice between these constructions, and for examples, see § 330. a-d.

NOTE 2. — An Indirect Narrative begun in the personal construction may be continued with the Infinitive and Accusative.

2. Subordinate Clauses.

b. A subordinate clause merely explanatory or containing statements which are regarded as true independently of the quotation, takes the Indicative: as, — quis neget haec omnia quae vidēmus deōrum potestate administrārī (Cat. iii. 9), who can deny that all these things we see are ruled by the power of the gods?

cūius ingeniō putābat ea quae gesserat posse celebrārī (Arch. 9), by whose genius he thought that those deeds which he had done could be celebrated.

[Here the fact expressed by quae gesserat, though not explanatory, is felt to be true without regard to the quotation: quae gessisset would mean, what Marius claimed to have done.]

NOTE. — It often depends merely upon the feeling of the writer whether he shall use the Indicative or Subjunctive in such clauses (cf. §§ 340-342).

c. Clauses introduced by a relative which is equivalent to a demonstrative with a conjunction are not properly subordinate, and hence take the Accusative and Infinitive in Indirect Discourse (see § 180. f): as, —

Mārcellus requisivisse dicitur Archimēdem illum, quem cum audisset interfectum permolestē tulisse (Verr. iv. 58), Marcellus is said to have sought for Archimedes, and when he heard that he was slain, to have been greatly distressed.

ūnumquemque nostrū cēnsent philosophī mundi esse partem, ex quō [= et ex eō] illud nātūrā cōsequī (Fin. iii. 19), the philosophers say that each one of us is a part of the universe, from which this naturally follows.

NOTE 1. — Really subordinate clauses occasionally take this construction: as, — quemadmodum sī nōn dedātur obses prō ruptō sē foedus habitūrum, sic deditam inviolatam ad suōs remissūrum (Liv. ii. 13), [he says] as in case the hostage is not given up he shall consider the treaty as broken, so if given up he will return her unharmed to her friends.

NOTE 2.—The infinitive construction is regularly continued after a comparative with quam: as,— addit sē prius occisum iri ab eō quam mē violātum iri (Att. ii. 20), he adds that he himself will be killed by him, before I shall be injured.

NOTE 3.—The Subjunctive with or without ut also occurs with quam (see § 332. b).

d. A subordinate clause in the Indirect Discourse occasionally takes the Indicative when the fact is emphasized: as,— factum ēius hostis periculum . . . cum, Cimbris et Teutonīs . . . pulsīs, nōn minōrem laudem exercitus quam ipse imperātor meritis vidēbātur (B. G. i. 40), that a trial of this enemy had been made when, etc., the army seemed, etc.

3. Tenses of the Infinitive.

336. A. The Present, the Perfect, or the Future Infinitive is used in Indirect Discourse, according as the time indicated is present, past, or future with reference to the verb of saying, etc., by which the Indirect Discourse is introduced. Thus,— cadō, I am falling: dicit } sē cadere, { he says } he { is } falling.

dixit } { he said } { was } cadēbam, I was falling } dicit } sē cecidissem, { he says } he was falling, cecidī, I fell } dixit } { he said } fell, had fallen.

cecidēram, I had fallen } cadam, I shall fall } dicit } sē cāsūrum [esse], { he says he shall fall.

dixit } { he said he should fall.

cecidērō, I shall have fallen } dicit fore ut ceciderit [rare], he says he shall have fallen.
dixit fore ut cecidisset [rare], he said he should have fallen.

NOTE 1.—All varieties of past time are usually expressed in Indirect Discourse by the Perfect Infinitive, which may stand for the Imperfect, the Perfect, or the Pluperfect Indicative of the Direct. But sometimes continued or repeated action in past time is expressed by the Present Infinitive, which in such cases stands for the Imperfect Indicative of the Direct Discourse, and is often called the Imperfect Infinitive (so regularly after mēmīnī): thus,— tē mēmīnī dīcere, I remember that you said. [Direct: dīcēbās.]

NOTE 2.—For various ways of expressing the Future Infinitive, see § 147. c.

4. Tenses of the Subjunctive.

336. B. The tenses of the Subjunctive in Indirect Discourse follow the rule for the Sequence of Tenses (§ 286). They depend for their sequence on the verb of saying, etc., by which the Indirect Discourse is introduced.

Thus in the sentence, dixit se Rōmam itūrum ut cōnsulem vidēret, he said he should go to Rome in order that he might see the consul, vidēret follows the sequence of dixit without regard to the Future Infinitive, itūrum [esse], on which it directly depends.

NOTE 1.—This rule applies not only to the subjunctive in subordinate clauses in indirect discourse, but also to that which stands for the imperative, etc. (see examples in § 339), and to that in questions (§ 338).

NOTE 2.—A subjunctive depending on a Perfect Infinitive is commonly in the Imperfect or Pluperfect, even if the verb of saying, etc., is in a primary tense (cf. § 287 i). Thus,—

Tarquinium dixisse ferunt tum exsulantem se intellēxisse quōs fidōs amīcōs habuisset (Lael. 15), they tell us that Tarquin said that then in his exile he had found out what faithful friends he had had. [Here the main verb of saying, ferunt, is primary, but the time is carried back by dixisse and intellēxisse, and the sequence then becomes secondary.] tantum profēcisse vidēmur ut ā Graecis nē verbōrum quidem cōpiā vince-rēmus (N. D. i. 4, 8), we seem to have advanced so far that even in fulness of words we ARE not surpassed by the Greeks.

a. The Present and Perfect Subjunctive are often used in dependent clauses of the Indirect Discourse even when the verb of saying, etc., is in a secondary tense: as,— dicēbant . . . totidem Nervīos (pollicērī) quī longissimē absint (B. G. ii. 4), they said that the Nervii, who live farthest off, promised as many.

NOTE 1.—This construction comes from the tendency of language to refer all time in narration to the time of the speaker (Repraesentātiō). In the course of a long passage in the Indirect Discourse the tenses of the subjunctive often vary, sometimes following the Sequence, and sometimes affected by Repraesentātiō. Examples may be seen in B. G. i. 13, vii. 20, etc.

NOTE 2.—Certain constructions are never affected by Repraesentātiō. Such are the Imperfect and Pluperfect Subjunctive with cum temporal, antēquam, and priusquam.

5. Conditions in Indirect Discourse.

337. Conditional sentences in Indirect Discourse are expressed as follows:—

1. The Protasis, being a subordinate clause, is always in the Subjunctive.
2. The Apodosis, if independent and not hortatory or optative, is always in some form of the Infinitive.
- a. The Present Subjunctive in the apodosis of less vivid future conditions (§ 307. b) becomes the Future Infinitive. Thus there is no distinction between more or less vivid future conditions in the Indirect Discourse.

Examples of conditional sentences in Indirect Discourse are:—

1. Simple Present Condition (§ 306).

(dixit) si ipse populō Rōmānō nōn praescriberet quemadmodum suō iūre ūteretur, nōn oportere sēsē ā populō Rōmānō in suō iūre impediri (B. G. i. 36), he said that if he did not dictate to the Roman people how they should use their rights, he ought not to be interfered with by the Roman people in the exercise of his rights. [Direct: si nōn praescribō . . . nōn oportet.]

praedicāvit . . . si pāce ūti velint, iniquum esse, etc. (B. G. i. 44), he asserted that if they wished to enjoy peace, it was unfair, etc. [Direct: si volunt . . . est. Present tense kept by Repraesentātiō (§ 336. B. a, note 1).]

2. Simple Past Condition (§ 306).

nōn dicam nē illud quidem, si māximē in culpā fuerit Apollōnius, tamen in hominem honestissimae civitātis honestissimum tam graviter animadverti causā indictā nōn oportuisse (Verr. II. v. 8, 20), I will not say this either, that, even if Apollonius was greatly in fault, still an honorable man ought not to have been punished so severely, etc. [Direct: si fuit . . . nōn oportuit.]

3. Future Conditions (§ 307).

Aeduis sē obsidēs redditūrum nōn esse, neque eis . . . bellum illātūrum, si in eō manerent, quod convēnisset, stipendiumque quotannis penderent: si id nōn fēcissent, longē eis frāternum nōmen populi Rōmāni abutūrum (B. G. i. 36), he said that he would not give up the hostages to the Aedui, but would not make war upon them if they observed the agreement, etc., and paid tribute yearly; but if they should not do this, the name of brothers to the Roman people would be far from aiding them. [Direct: reddam . . . inferam . . . si manēbunt . . . pendent: si nōn fēcierint . . . aberit.]

(dixit) quod si praeterea nēmō sequatur, tamen sē cum solā decimā legiōne itūrum (B. G. i. 40), but if nobody else should follow, still he would go with the tenth legion alone. [Direct: si sequetur . . . ibō. Present tense by Repraesentātiō.]

id Datamēs ut audivit, sēnsit, si in turbam exisset ab homine tam necessariō sē relictum, futūrum [esse] ut cēteri cōsiliū sequantur (Nep. Dat. 6), if it should get abroad that he had been abandoned by a man so closely connected with him, everybody else would follow his example. [Direct: si exierit . . . sequentur.]

(dixerunt) nisi mē civitatē expulissent, obtinere sē nōn posse licentiam cupiditātum suarum (Att. x. 4), they said that unless they drove me out of the state, they could not have free play for their desires. [Direct: nisi (Cicerōnem) expulerimus, obtinere nōn poterimus.]

b. In changing a Condition contrary to fact (§ 308) into the Indirect Discourse, the following points require notice.

1. The Protasis always remains unchanged in tense.
2. The Apodosis, if active, takes a peculiar infinitive form, made by combining the Participle in -ūrus with fuisse.
3. If the verb of the Apodosis is passive or has no supine stem, the periphrasis futūrum fuisse ut (with the Imperfect Subjunctive) must be used.
4. An Indicative in the Apodosis becomes Perfect Infinitive.

Examples are:—

nec sē superstitem filiae futūrum fuisse, nisi spem ulciscendae mortis eius in auxiliō commilitōnum habuisset (Liv. iii. 50), and that he should not now be a survivor, etc., unless he had had hope, etc. [Direct: nōn superstes essem, nisi habuissem.]

illud Asia cōgitet, nūllam a sē neque bellī externī neque discordiārum domesticārum calamitatem abfuturam fuisse, si hōc imperiō nōn tenēretur (Q. Fr. i. 1, 11), let Asia (personified) think of this, that no disaster, etc., would not be hers, if she were not held by this government. [Direct: abessem, si nōn tenērer.]

quid inimiciarum crēditis exceptūrum fuisse, si insontēs lacessissem (Q. C. vi. 10, 29), what enmities do you think I should have incurred if I had wantonly assailed the innocent. [excēpissēm . . . si lacessissem.]

invitum sē dicere, nec dictūrum fuisse, nī caritās rei publicae vinceret (Liv. ii. 2), that he spoke unwillingly and should not have spoken (at all), did not love for the commonwealth prevail? [Direct: nec dixissem . . . nī vinceret.]

quōrum si aetās potuisset esse longinquior, futūrum fuisse ut omnibus perfectis artibus hominum vita erudirētur (Tusc. iii. 28, 69), if life could have been longer, human existence would have been embellished by every art in its perfection. [Direct: erudita esset.]

si Cn. Pompēius privātus esset, tamen erat dēligendus (Manil. 17), if P. were a private citizen, still he ought to be chosen, would become dēligendum fuisse.

NOTE 1.—In Indirect Discourse Present Conditions contrary to fact are not distinguished in the apodosis from Past, but the protasis may keep them distinct.

NOTE 2.—The periphrasis futūrum fuisse ut is sometimes used from choice when there is no necessity for resorting to it.

NOTE 3.—Very rarely the Future Infinitive is used in the Indirect Discourse to express the Apodosis of a Present Condition contrary to fact. Only four or five examples of this use occur in classic authors: as,— Titurius clāmābat si Caesar adesset neque Carnūtēs, etc., neque Eburonēs tantā cum contemptiōne nostra ad castra ventūrōs esse (B. G. v. 29), Titurius cried out that if Caesar were present, neither would the Carnutes, etc., nor would the Eburones be coming to our camp with such contempt. [Direct: si adesset . . . venirēt.]

6. Questions in Indirect Discourse.

338. A Question in the Indirect Discourse may be either in the Subjunctive or in the Infinitive with Subject Accusative.

A real question, asking for an answer, is generally put in the Subjunctive; a rhetorical question, asked for effect and implying its own answer, in the Infinitive. Thus, — quid sibi vellet? cūr in suās possēssionēs venīret (B. G. i. 44), what did he want? why did he come into his territories? [Real question.

Direct: quid vis? cūr venis?]

num recentium iniuriarum memoriam [sc] dēpōnere posse (id. i. 14), could he lay aside the memory of recent wrongs? [Rhetorical Question. Direct: num possum?]

quem signum datūrum fugientibus? quem ausūrum Alexandrō succēdere (Q. C. iii. 5), who will give the signal on the retreat? who will dare succeed Alexander? [Rhetorical. Direct: quis dabit . . . audēbit.]

NOTE 1. — No sharp line can be drawn between the Subjunctive and the Infinitive in questions in the Indirect Discourse. Whether the question is to be regarded as rhetorical or real often depends merely on the writer's point of view. Thus, — utrum partem rēgni petītūrum esse, an tōtū cēptūrum (Liv. xlv. 19), will you ask part of the regal power (he said), or seize the whole?

quid tandem praetōri faciendum fuisse (id. xxxi. 48), what, pray, ought a praetor to have done?

quid repente factum [esse] cūr, etc. (id. xxxiv. 54), what had suddenly happened, that, etc.?

NOTE 2. — Questions coming immediately after a verb of asking are treated as Indirect Questions and take the Subjunctive (see § 334). This is true even when the verb of asking serves also to introduce a passage in the Indirect Discourse. The question may be either real or rhetorical. See quaesivit, etc. (Liv. xxxvii. 15).

NOTE 3. — For the use of tenses, see § 336. B, note 1.

a. A Deliberative Subjunctive in the Direct Discourse is always retained in the Indirect: as, — cūr aliquōs ex suis amitteret (B. C. i. 72), why (thought he) should he lose some of his men? [Direct: cūr amittam?]

7. Commands in Indirect Discourse.

339. All Imperative forms of speech take the Subjunctive in Indirect Discourse: as, — reminiscerētur veteris incommodi (B. G. i. 13), remember (said he) the ancient disaster. [Direct: reminiscere.]

finem faciat (id. 20), let him make an end. [Direct: fac.]

ferrent opem, adiuvarent (Liv. ii. 6), let them bring aid, let them help.

REMARK.—This rule applies not only to the Imperative of the direct discourse, but to the hortatory and the optative subjunctive as well.

NOTE 1.—Though these subjunctives stand for independent clauses of the direct discourse, they follow the rule for the sequence of tenses, being in fact dependent on the verb of saying, etc. (cf. §§ 286, 336. B, note 1).

NOTE 2.—A Prohibition in the Indirect Discourse is regularly expressed by nē with the Subjunctive, even when nōlī with the Infinitive would be used in the Direct: as,— nē perturbarentur (B. G. vii. 29), do not (he said) be troubled. [Direct: nōlīte perturbārī. But sometimes nōllet is found in Ind. Disc.]

The following example illustrates some of the foregoing principles in a connected address:—

INDIRECT DISCOURSE.

Si pācem populus Rōmānus cum Helvētiis faceret, in eam partem itūrōs atque ibi futūrōs Helvētiōs, ubi eōs Caesar cōstituisset atque esse voluisset: sin bellō persequi peraevēraret, reminiscerētur et veteris incommodi populi Rōmāni, et pristinae virtūtis Helvētiōrum. Quod imprōvisō ūnum pāgum adortus esset, cum ei quī flūmen trānsissent suis auxilium ferre nōn possent, nē ob eam rem aut suae māgnō opere virtūti tribueret, aut ipsōs dēspiceret: sē ita ā patribus māiōribusque suis didicisse, ut magis virtūte quam dolō contenderent, aut insidiis nīterentur. Quārē nē committeret, ut is locus ubi cōstitissent ex calamitate populi Rōmāni et interneciōne exercitūs nōmen caperet, aut memoriam prōderet.—B. G. i. 13.

DIRECT DISCOURSE.

Si pācem populus Rōmānus cum Helvētiis faciet, in eam partem ibunt atque ibi erunt Helvētiī, ubi eōs tū cōstitueris atque esse volueris: sin bellō persequi perseverābis, reminiscere [inquit] et veteris incommodi populi Rōmāni, et pristinae virtūtis Helvētiōrum. Quod imprōvisō ūnum pāgum adortus es, cum ei quī flūmen trānsierant suis auxilium ferre nōn possent, nē ob eam rem aut tuae māgnō opere virtūti tribueris, aut nōs dēspexeris: nōs ita ā patribus māiōribusque nostris didicimus, ut magis virtūte quam dolō contendāmus, aut insidiis nītāmur. Quārē nōlī committere, ut hīc lōcus ubi cōstitimus ex calamitate populi Rōmāni et interneciōne exercitūs nōmen capiat, aut memoriam prōdat.

II. INTERMEDIATE CLAUSES.

340. A Subordinate clause takes the Subjunctive, (1) when it expresses the thought of some other person than the speaker or writer (Informal Indirect Discourse), or (2) when it is an integral part of a Subjunctive clause or equivalent Infinitive¹ (Attraction).

1. Informal Indirect Discourse.

341. A subordinate clause takes the subjunctive when it expresses the thought of some other person than the writer or speaker. Thus:—

a. In subordinate clauses in formal indirect discourse (§ 336); but also in Informal Indirect Discourse in the following cases (b-d):—

b. When the clause depends upon another containing a wish, a command, or a question expressed indirectly, though not strictly in the form of Indirect Discourse: as,— animal sentit quid sit quod deceat (Off. i. 6), an animal feels what it is that is fit.

hunc sibi ex animō scrūpulum, quī sē diēs noctēsque stimulet ac pungat, ut ēvellātis postulat (Rosc. Am. 2), he begs you to pluck from his heart this doubt that goads and stings him day and night. [Here the relative clause is not a part of the Purpose expressed in ēvellātis, but is an assertion made by the subject of postulat.]

c. When the main clause of a quotation is merged in the verb of saying, or some modifier of it: as,— si quid dē his rēbus dicere vellet, fēci potestātem (Cat. iii. 5, 11), if he wished to say anything about these matters, I gave him a chance.

tulit dē caede quae in Appiā viā facta esset (Milo 5, 15), he passed a law concerning the murder which (in the language of the bill) took place in the Appian Way.

nisi restituissent statuās, vehementer eis minātur (Verr. iii. 67), he threatens them violently unless they should restore the statues. [Here the main clause, "that he will inflict punishment," is contained in minātur.]

eis auxilium suum pollicitus si ab Suēvis premerentur (B. G. iv. 19), he promised them his aid if they should be molested by the Suevi. [= pollicitus sē auxilium lātūrum, etc.]

prohibitio tollendī, nisi pāctus esset, vim adhibēbat pāctiōni (Verr. iv. 14), the forbidding to take away unless he came to terms gave force to the bargain.

d. When a reason or an explanatory fact is introduced by a relative or by quod (rarely quia) (see § 321).¹ Thus,— Pactus omnēs librōs quōs pater suus reliquisset mihi dōnāvit (Att. iii. 1), Patus presented me all the books which (he said) his father had left.

REMARK.—Under this head even what the speaker himself thought under other circumstances may have the Subjunctive. So also with quod even the verb of saying may be in the Subjunctive. Here belong also nōn quia, nōn quod, introducing a reason expressly to deny it. (See § 321. Rem. and note 2.)

¹ This usage probably originates in Apodosis, the condition being the supposed truth of the speaker, the main subject. (See Indirect Discourse, Note, p. 370.)

2. Subjunctive of Integral Part (Attraction).

342. A clause depending upon a Subjunctive clause or an equivalent Infinitive will itself take the Subjunctive if regarded as an integral part of that clause.¹ as, — imperat, dum res adiudicētur, hominem ut adservent: cum iudicātum sit, ad se adducant (Verr. iv. 22), he orders them, till the affair should be decided, to keep the man; when he is judged, to bring him to him.

etenim quis tam dissolutō animō est, qui haec cum videat, tacere ac neglegere possit (Rosc. Am. 11), for who is so reckless of spirit, that, when he sees these things, he can keep silent and pass them by?

mōs est Athēnis laudāri in contione eōs qui sint in proeliis interfecti (Or. 44), it is the custom at Athens for those to be publicly eulogized who have been slain in battle. [Here laudāri is equivalent to ut laudentur.]

a. But a dependent clause may be closely connected grammatically with a Subjunctive or Infinitive clause, and still take the Indicative, if it is not regarded as a necessary logical part of that clause: as, — quōdam modō postulat ut, quemadmodum est, sic etiam appellētur, tyrannus (Att. x. 4), in a manner he demands that as he is, so he may be called, a tyrant.

si mea in te essent officia solum tanta quanta magis a te ipso praedicari quam a me ponderari solent, verēcundius a te . . . peterem (Fam. ii. 6), if my good services to you were only so great as they are wont rather to be called by you than to be estimated by me, I should, etc.

natura fert ut eis faveamus qui eadem pericula quibus nos perfuncti sumus ingrediuntur (Mur. 2, 4), nature prompts us to feel friendly towards those who are entering on the same dangers which we have passed through.

ne hostes, quod tantum multitudine poterant, suos circumvenire possent (B. G. ii. 8), lest the enemy, because they were so strong in numbers, should be able to surround his men.

NOTE. — The use of the Indicative in such clauses sometimes serves to emphasize the fact, as true independently of the statement contained in the subjunctive or infinitive clause. But in many cases no such distinction between the Indicative and Subjunctive is perceptible.

¹ The Subjunctive in this use is in a manner of the same nature as the Subjunctive in the main clause. A dependent clause in a clause of Purpose is really a part of the purpose, as is seen from the use of should and other auxiliaries in English. In a Result clause this is less clear, but the result construction is a branch of the characteristic, to which category the dependent clause in this case evidently belongs, when it takes the Subjunctive.

It is often difficult to distinguish between Informal Indirect Discourse and the Integral Part. Thus in imperavit ut ea fierent quae opus essent, essent may stand for sunt, and then will be Indirect Discourse, being a part of the thought, but not a part of the order; or it may stand for erunt, and then will be Integral Part, being a part of the order itself.

IMPORTANT RULES OF SYNTAX.

1. A noun used to describe another, and denoting the same person or thing, agrees with it in Case (§ 183).
2. Adjectives, adjective pronouns, and participles agree with their nouns in gender, number, and case (§ 186).
3. A Relative pronoun agrees with its Antecedent in gender and number, but its case depends on the construction of the clause in which it stands (§ 198).
4. A Finite Verb agrees with its Subject in number and person (§ 204).
5. Superlatives (more rarely comparatives) denoting order and succession—also medius, cēterus, reliquus—usually designate not what object, but what part of it, is meant (§ 193).
6. The Personal Pronouns have two forms for the genitive plural, that in -ūm being used partitively, and that in -ī oftenest objectively (§ 194. b).
7. The Reflexive pronoun (sē), and usually the corresponding possessive (suus), are used in some part of the predicate to refer to the subject of the sentence or clause (§ 196).
8. The Possessive Pronouns are used instead of the genitive of a personal pronoun: (1) always instead of the possessive genitive, (2) rarely instead of an objective genitive (§ 197. a).
9. A Possessive representing a genitive may have a genitive in apposition (§ 197. c).
10. Adverbs are used to modify verbs, adjectives, and other adverbs (§ 207).
11. A question of simple fact, requiring the answer YES or NO, is formed by adding the enclitic -ne to the emphatic word (§ 210. a).
12. When the enclitic -ne is added to a negative word,—as in nōnne,—an affirmative answer is expected. The particle num suggests a negative answer (§ 210. c).
13. The subject of a finite verb is in the NOMINATIVE (§ 173. a).
14. A noun used to limit or define another, and not meaning the same person or thing, is put in the GENITIVE (§ 213).
15. The Subjective Genitive is used with a noun to denote (1) the Author or Owner, (2) the Source or the Material, (3) the Quality (§ 214).
16. Words denoting a Part are followed by the genitive of the Whole to which the part belongs (Partitive Genitive, § 216).
17. Nouns of action, agency, and feeling govern the genitive of the object (Objective Genitive, § 217).
18. Adjectives denoting desire, knowledge, memory, fulness, power, sharing, guilt, and their opposites; verbals in -āx, and participles in -ns when used as adjectives, govern the Genitive (§ 218. a, b).
19. Verbs of remembering, forgetting, take the Genitive of the object when they are used of a continued state of mind, but the Accusative when used of a single act (§ 219).

20. Verbs of accusing, condemning, and acquitting take the Genitive of the Charge or Penalty (§ 220).
21. The DATIVE is used of the object indirectly affected by an action (Indirect Object, § 224).
22. Most verbs meaning to favor, help, please, trust, and their contraries; also, to believe, persuade, command, obey, serve, resist, envy, threaten, pardon, and spare, take the Dative (§ 227).
23. Most verbs compounded with ad, ante, con, in, inter, ob, post, prae, prō, sub, super, and some with circum, are followed by the Dative of the indirect object (§ 228).
24. Many verbs of taking away, and the like, take the Dative (especially of a person) instead of the Ablative of Separation (§ 229).
25. The Dative is used with esse and similar words to denote Possession (§ 231).
26. The Dative of the Agent is used with the Gerundive, to denote the person on whom the necessity rests (§ 232).
27. The Dative is used to denote the Purpose or End, often with another Dative of the person or thing affected (§ 233. a).
28. The Dative is used with adjectives (and a few adverbs) of fitness, nearness, service, inclination, and their opposites (§ 234. a).
29. The Dative is often required, not by any particular word, but by the general meaning of the sentence (Dative of Reference, § 235).
30. The Direct Object of a transitive verb is put in the ACCUSATIVE (§ 237).
31. A neuter verb often takes an accusative of kindred meaning (§ 238).
32. Verbs of naming, choosing, appointing, making, esteeming, showing, and the like, may take a Predicate Accusative along with the direct object (§ 239. a).
33. Transitive verbs compounded with prepositions sometimes take (in addition to the direct object) a Secondary Object, originally governed by the preposition (§ 239. b).
34. Verbs of asking and teaching may take two Accusatives, one of the person, and the other of the thing (§ 239. c).
35. The subject of an Infinitive is in the Accusative (§ 173. 2).
36. Duration of Time and Extent of Space are expressed by the Accusative (§ 240. c).
37. The VOCATIVE is the case of direct address (§ 241).
38. Words signifying separation or privation are followed by the ABLATIVE, with or without a preposition (Ablative of Separation, § 243).
39. Opus and ūsus, signifying need, are followed by the Ablative (§ 243. c).
40. The ablative, with or without a preposition, is used to denote the source from which anything is derived or the material of which it consists (§ 244).

41. The Ablative, with or without a preposition, is used to express cause (§ 245).
42. Dignus and indignus, contentus, laetus, praeditus, etc., take the Ablative (§ 245. a).
43. The Voluntary Agent after a passive verb is put in the Ablative with ā or ab (§ 246).
44. The Comparative degree is followed by the Ablative (signifying than) (§ 247).
45. The Comparative may be followed by quam, than. When quam is used, the two things compared are put in the same case (§ 247. a).
46. The manner of an action is denoted by the Ablative, usually with cum, unless a limiting adjective is used with the noun (§ 248).
47. Accompaniment is denoted by the Ablative, regularly with cum (§ 248. a).
48. The Ablative is used to denote the means or instrument of an action (§ 248. c. 1).
49. The deponents, ūtor, fruor, fungor, potior, and vescor, with several of their compounds, govern the Ablative (§ 249).
50. With comparatives and words implying comparison the Ablative is used to denote the degree of difference (§ 250).
51. The quality of a thing is denoted by the Ablative with a modifier, usually an adjective or limiting genitive (§ 251).
52. The price of a thing is put in the Ablative (§ 252).
53. The Ablative of Specification denotes that in respect to which anything is or is done (§ 253).
54. A noun or pronoun, with a participle, may be put in the Ablative, to define the time or circumstances of an action (Ablative Absolute).
An adjective, or a second noun, may take the place of the participle in the ablative absolute construction (§ 255 and a).
55. Time when, or within which, is put in the Ablative; time how long in the Accusative (§ 256).
56. The place from which is denoted by the Ablative with ab, dē, or ex; the place to which (the end of motion), by the Accusative with ad or in (§ 258. c).
The names of towns or small islands from which, as also domus and rūs, are put in the Ablative without a preposition (§ 258. a).
The names of towns or small islands to which, as also domus and rūs, are put in the Accusative without a preposition (§ 258. b).
57. The place where is denoted by the Ablative with the preposition in (Locative Ablative); but names of towns and small islands are put in the Locative Case (§ 258. c).
The Locative Case is also preserved in domi, belli, militiae, humi, foris, rūri, terrā marique (§ 258. d).

58. The Infinitive, with or without a subject accusative, may be used with est and similar verbs (1) as the subject, (2) as in apposition with the subject, or (3) as a predicate nominative (§ 270).
59. The Infinitive, without a subject accusative, is used with verbs which imply another action of the same subject to complete their meaning (Complementary Infinitive, § 271).
60. The Infinitive, with subject accusative, is used with verbs and other expressions of knowing, thinking, telling, and perceiving (Indirect Discourse, see § 272).
61. The Infinitive is often used in narrative for the Imperfect Indicative, and takes a subject in the Nominative (Historical Infinitive, § 275).
62. SEQUENCE OF TENSES. In complex sentences, a primary tense in the main clause is followed by the Present or Perfect Subjunctive; a secondary tense by the Imperfect or Pluperfect (§ 286).
63. The tenses of the Infinitive denote time as present, past, or future with respect to the time of the verb on which they depend (§ 288).
64. PARTICIPLES denote time as present, past, or future with respect to the time of the verb in their clause (§ 290).
65. The GERUND and the GERUNDIVE are used, in the oblique cases, in many of the constructions of nouns (§ 297).

For particulars see §§ 298-301.

66. The Former SUPINE (in -um) is used after verbs of motion to express Purpose (§ 302).
67. The Latter SUPINE (in -ū) is used only with a few adjectives, with the nouns fās, nefās, and opus, and rarely with verbs, to denote an action in reference to which the quality is asserted (§ 303).
68. The Hortatory SUBJUNCTIVE is used to express an exhortation, a command, a concession, or a condition (§ 266).
69. The Subjunctive is used to express a wish. The present tense denotes the wish as possible, the imperfect as unaccomplished in present time, the pluperfect as unaccomplished in past time (Optative Subjunctive, § 267).
70. The Subjunctive is used in questions implying doubt, indignation, or an impossibility of the thing being done (Deliberative Subjunctive, § 268).
71. Prohibition is regularly expressed in classic prose (1) by nē with the second person of the Perfect Subjunctive, (2) by nōlī with the Infinitive, (3) by cave with the Present or Perfect Subjunctive (§ 269. a).
72. The Potential Subjunctive is used to denote an action not as actually performed, but as possible (§ 311. a).
73. Dum, modo, dummodo, and tantum, introducing a PROVISIO, take the Subjunctive (§ 314).
74. FINAL clauses take the Subjunctive introduced by ut (utī), negative ne (ut nē), or by a Relative (pronoun or adverb) (§ 317).

75. CONSECUTIVE clauses take the Subjunctive introduced by ut, so that (negative, ut nōn), or by a Relative (pronoun or adverb) (§ 319).
76. Dignus, indignus, aptus, and idōneus, take a clause of result with a relative (rarely with ut) (§ 320. f).
77. The Causal Particles quod, quia, and quoniam take the Indicative when the reason is given on the authority of the speaker or writer; the Subjunctive when the reason is given on the authority of another (§ 321).
78. Cum TEMPORAL, meaning when, takes the Imperfect and Pluperfect in the Subjunctive, other tenses in the Indicative (§ 325).
79. Cum CAUSAL or CONCESSIVE takes the Subjunctive (§ 326).
For other concessive particles, see § 313.
80. In the INDIRECT DISCOURSE the main clause of a Declaratory Sentence is put in the Infinitive with Subject Accusative. All subordinate clauses take the Subjunctive (§ 336. 2).
81. In the Indirect Discourse a real question is generally put in the Subjunctive; a rhetorical question in the Infinitive (§ 338).
82. All Imperative forms of speech take the Subjunctive in Indirect Discourse (§ 339).
83. A Subordinate clause takes the Subjunctive when it expresses the thought of some other person than the writer or speaker (Informal Indirect Discourse, § 341).
84. A clause depending on a Subjunctive clause or an equivalent Infinitive will itself take the Subjunctive if regarded as an integral part of that clause (Attraction, § 342).
For PREPOSITIONS and their cases, see §§ 152, 153.
For CONDITIONAL Sentences, see § 304. ff. (Scheme in § 305.)
For ways of expressing PURPOSE, see § 318.

CHAPTER VI.—Order of Words.

NOTE.—Latin differs from English in having more freedom in the arrangement of words for the purpose of showing the relative importance of the ideas in a sentence.

343. As in other languages, the Subject tends to stand first, the Predicate last. Thus,— Pausāniās Lacedaemonius māgnus homō sed varius in omni genere vitae fuit.

NOTE.—This happens because from the speaker's ordinary point of view the subject of his discourse is the most important thing in it, as singled out from all other things to be spoken of.

There is in Latin, however, a special tendency to place the verb itself last of all after all its modifiers. But many writers purposely avoid the monotony of this arrangement by putting the verb last but one, followed by some single word of the predicate.

344. In connected discourse the word most prominent in the speaker's mind comes first, and so on in order of prominence.

This relative prominence corresponds to that indicated in English by a graduated stress of voice (usually called emphasis).

NOTE.—This stress or emphasis, however, in English does not necessarily show any violent contrast to the rest of the words in the sentence, but is infinitely varied, constantly increasing and diminishing, and often so subtle as to be unnoticed except in careful study. So, as a general rule, the precedence of words in a Latin sentence is not mechanical, but corresponds to the prominence which a good speaker would mark by skilfully managed stress of voice. A Latin written sentence, therefore, has all the clearness and expression which could be given to a spoken discourse by the best actor in English.

REMARK.—Some exceptions to this rule will be treated later.

Thus the first chapter of Cæsar's Gallic War rendered so as to bring out so far as possible the shades of emphasis, would run thus:—

GAUL,¹ in the widest sense, is divided² into three parts,³ which are *inhabited*⁴ (as follows): *one*⁵ by the Belgians, *another*⁶ by the Aquitani, the third by a people called in *their own*⁷ language Celts, in ours Gauls.

THESE,⁸ in their language,⁹ institutions, and laws are all of them¹⁰ different. The GAULS¹¹ (proper) are separated¹² from the Aquitani by the river Garonne, from the Belgians by the Marne and Seine. Of THESE¹³ (TRIBES) the bravest of all¹⁴ are the Belgians, for the reason that they live *farthest*¹⁵ away from the CIVILIZA-

Gallia est omnis divisa in partēs trēs, quārum ūnam incolunt Belgae, aliam Aquitāni, tertiam qui ipsōrum linguā Celtæ, nostrā Galli appellantur. Hī omnes linguā, institūtis, lēgibus inter sē differunt. Gallōs ab Aquitānis Garumna flūmen, ā Belgis Mātrona et Sēquana dividit. Hōrum omnium fortissimi sunt Belgæ, propterea quod ā cultū atque hūmānitāte ¹ GAUL: emphatic as the subject of discourse, as with a title or the like.

² Divided: opposed to the false conception (implied in the use of omnis) that the country called Gallia by the Romans is one. This appears more clearly from the fact that Cæsar later speaks of the Galli in the narrower sense as distinct from the other two tribes, who with them inhabit Gallia in the wider sense.

³ Parts: continuing the emphasis begun in divisa. Not three parts as opposed to any other number, but into parts at all.

⁴ Inhabited: emphatic as the next subject, "The inhabitants of these parts are, etc."

⁵ One: given more prominence than it otherwise would have on account of its close connection with quārum.

⁶ Another, etc.: opposed to one.

⁷ Their own, ours: strongly opposed to each other.

⁸ THESE (tribes): the main subject of discourse again, collecting under one head the names previously mentioned.

⁹ Language, etc.: these are the most prominent ideas as giving the striking points which distinguish the tribes. The emphasis becomes natural in English if we say "these have a different language, different institutions, different laws."

¹⁰ All of them: the emphasis on all marks the distributive character of the adjective, as if it were "every one has its own, etc."

¹¹ GAULS: emphatic as referring to the Gauls proper in distinction from the other tribes.

¹² Separated: though this word contains an indispensable idea in the connection, yet it has a subordinate position. It is not emphatic in Latin, as is seen from the fact that it cannot be made emphatic in English. The sense is: The Gauls lie between the Aquitani on the one side, and the Belgæ on the other.

¹³ OF THESE: the subject of discourse.

TION and REFINEMENT of the Province, and because they are LEAST¹⁶ of all of them subject to the visits of traders,¹⁷ and to the (consequent) importation of such things as¹⁸ tend to *soften*¹⁹ their warlike spirit; and are also nearest²⁰ to the Germans, who live across the Rhine,²¹ and with whom they are *incessantly*²² at war. For the same reason the HELVETII, as well, are superior to all the other Gauls in valor, because they are engaged in almost daily battles with the Germans, either defending their own boundaries from them, or themselves making war on those of the Germans. Of ALL THIS country, one part, the one which as has been said the Gauls (proper) occupy, BEGINS at the river Rhone. Its boundaries are the river Garonne, the ocean, and the confines of the Belgians. It even REACHES on the side of the Sequani and Helvetians the river Rhine. Its general direction is towards the north. The BELGIANS begin at the extreme limits of Gaul; they reach (on this side) as far as the lower part of the Rhine. They spread to the northward and eastward.

AQUITANIA extends from the Garonne to the Pyrenees, and that part of the ocean that lies towards Spain. It runs off westward and northward.

prōvinciae longissimē absunt, minimēque ad eōs mercatōrēs saepe comēant atque ea quae ad effēmīnandōs animōs pertinent, important, proximīque sunt Germānis, qui trāns Rhēnum incolunt, quibuscum continenter bellum gerunt. Quā dē causā Helvētīi quoque reliquōs Gallōs virtūte praecedunt, quod ferē cotidiānis proeliis cum Germānis contendunt, cum aut suis finibus eōs prohibent, aut ipsi in eōrum finibus bellum gerunt. Eōrum ūna pars, quam Gallōs obtinēre dictum est, initium capit ā flūmine Rhodanō; continentur Garumnā flūmine, Ōceanō, finibus Belgārū; attingit etiam ab Sēquanis et Helvētīis flūmen Rhēnum; vergit ad septentrionēs. Belgae ab extrēmīs Galliae finibus oriuntur: pertinent ad inferiōrem partem flūminis Rhēnī; spectant in septentrionem et orientem sōlem. Aquitānia ā Garumnā flūmine ad Pyrēnaeōs montēs et eam partem Ōceanī, quae est ad Hispāniam, pertinent; spectat inter occāsū sōlis et septentrionēs.

¹⁶ LEAST: made emphatic here by a common Latin order, — the chiasmus (see f. p. 390).

¹⁷ traders: the fourth member of the chiasmus opposed to cultū and hūmānitāte.

¹⁸ Such things as: the importance of the nature of the importations overshadows the fact that they are imported, which fact is anticipated in "traders."

¹⁹ Soften: cf. what is said in note 15. They are brave because they have less to soften them, their native barbarity being assumed.

²⁰ Nearest: the same idiomatic prominence as in 16, but varied by a special usage (see f. p. 390) combining chiasmus and anaphora.

²¹ Across the Rhine; i.e. and so are perfect savages.

²² Incessantly: the continuance of the warfare becomes the all-important idea, as if it were, "and not a day passes in which they are not at war with them."

REMARK. — The more important word is never placed last for emphasis. The apparent cases of this usage (when the emphasis is not misconceived) are cases where a word is added as an afterthought, either real or affected, and so has its position not in the sentence to which it is appended, but, as it were, in a new one.

a. In any phrase the determining and most significant word comes first: as, —

1. Adjective and Noun: — omnēs hominēs decet, EVERY man ought (opposed to some who do not).

Lūcius Catilīna nōbili genere nātus fuit māgnā vi et animi et corporis sed ingeniō malō prāvōque (Sall. Cat. 5), Lucius Catiline was born of a NOBLE family, with GREAT force of mind and body, but with a NATURE that was evil and depraved. [Here the adjectives in the first part are the emphatic and important words, no antithesis between the nouns being as yet thought of; but in the second branch the noun is meant to be opposed to those before mentioned, and immediately takes the prominent place, as is seen by the natural English emphasis, thus making a chiasmus.]

2. Word with modifying case: — cui rei magis Epaminōndam, Thēbānōrum imperātōrem, quam victōriæ Thēbānōrum cōsulere decuit (Inv. i. 38), what should Epaminondas, commander of the THEBANS, have aimed at more than the VICTORY of the Thebans?

lacrimā nihil citius arēscit (id. i. 56), nothing dries quicker than a TEAR. nēmō ferē laudis cupidus (De Or. i. 4), hardly any one desirous of GLORY (cf. Manil. 3, avidī laudis, EAGER for glory).

b. Numeral adjectives, adjectives of quantity, demonstrative, relative, and interrogative pronouns and adverbs, tend to precede the word or words to which they belong: as, — cum aliquā perturbātiōne (Off. i. 38), with SOME disturbance. hōc ūnō praeſtāmus (De Or. i. 8), in THIS one thing we excel. cēterae ferē artēs, the OTHER arts.

NOTE. — This happens because such words are usually emphatic; but often the words connected with them are more so, and in such cases the pronouns, etc., yield the emphatic place: as, — causa aliqua (De Or. i. 58), some CASE. stilus ille tuus (id. i. 60), that STYLE of yours (in an antithesis; see passage).

Rōmam quae asportāta sunt (Verr. iv. 54), what were carried to ROME (in contrast to what remained at Syracuse).

c. When sum is used as the Substantive verb (§ 172, note), it regularly stands first, or at any rate before its subject: as, — est viri māgni pūnīre sontēs (Off. i. 24), it is the duty of a great man to punish the guilty.

- d.* The verb may come first, or have a prominent position either (1) because the idea in it is emphatic: as, — dicēbat idem Cotta (Off. ii. 17), Cotta used to SAY the same thing (opposed to others' boasting).

idem fēcit adulēscēns M. Antōnius (id. ii. 14), the same thing was DONE by M. Antonius in his youth. [Opposed to dixi just before.]

facis benignē (Lael.), you ACT kindly. [Cf. benignē facis, you are very KIND (you act KINDLY).]

- (2) or because the predication of the whole statement is emphatic: as, — prōpēnsior benignitās esse dēbēbit in calamitōsōs nisi forte erunt digni calamitātē (Off. ii. 18), unless perchance they REALLY DESERVE their misfortune.

praesertim cum scribat (Panaetius) (id. iii. 2), especially when he DOES SAY (in his books). [Opposed to something omitted by him.]

- (3) or the tense only may be emphatic: as, — fuimus Trōes, fuit Ilium (Æn. ii. 325), we have ceased to be Trojans, Troy is now no more.

loquor autem dē commūnibus amicitīis (Off. iii. 10), but I am speaking now, etc.

- e.* Often the connection of two emphatic phrases is brought about by giving the precedence to the most prominent part of each and leaving the less prominent parts to follow in inconspicuous places: as, — plūrēs solent esse causae (Off. i. 9), there are USUALLY SEVERAL reasons.

quōs amissimus civis eōs Mārtis vis perculit (Marc. 6), WHAT fellow-citizens we have LOST, have been stricken down by the violence of war.

māximās tibi omnēs grātiās agimus (Marc. 11), we ALL render you the WARMEST thanks.

haec rēs ūnius est propria Caesaris (Marc. 4), THIS exploit belongs to Caesar ALONE.

obiurgātiōnēs etiam nōnnunquam incidunt necessāriae (Off. i. 38), OCCASIONS FOR REBUKE also SOMETIMES occur which are unavoidable.

- f.* Antithesis between two pairs of ideas is indicated either (1) by placing the pairs in the same order (anaphora) or (2) in exactly the opposite order (*chiasmus*¹).

- (1) rērum cōpia verbōrum cōpiam gignit (De Or. iii. 3, 31), ABUNDANCE of MATTER produces COPIOUSNESS of EXPRESSION.

- (2) lēgēs supplicio improbōs afficiunt, dēfendunt ac tuentur bonōs (Fin. iii. 5), the laws VISIT PUNISHMENTS upon the WICKED, but the GOOD they DEFEND and PROTECT.

¹ So-called from the Greek letter X (chi), on account of the criss-cross arrangement. Thus $\begin{smallmatrix} \chi \\ \chi \end{smallmatrix}$.

NOTE. — Chiasmus is very common in Latin, and seems in fact the more inartificial construction. In an artless narrative one might hear, "The women were all drowned, they saved the men."

nōn igitur ūtilitātem amicitia sed ūtilitās amicitiam cōsecūta est (Lael. 14), it is not then that friendship has followed upon advantage, but advantage upon friendship. [Here the chiasmus is only grammatical, the ideas being in the parallel order.] (See also in the example from Cæsar, p. 388: longissimē, minimē, proximī.)

g. A modifier of a phrase or some part of it is often embodied within the phrase (cf. a): as, — dē commūni hominum memoriā (Tusc. i. 24), in regard to the UNIVERSAL memory of man.

h. A favorite order with the poets is the interlocked, by which the attribute of one pair comes between the parts of the other (synchysis): as, — et superiectō pavidæ nātārunt aequore dāmae (Hor. Od. i. 2. 11).

NOTE. — This is often joined with chiasmus: as, — arma nōndum expiātis ūncta cruōribus (id. ii. 1. 5).

i. Frequently unimportant words follow in the train of more emphatic ones with which they are grammatically connected, and so acquire a prominence out of proportion to their importance: as, — dictitābat sē hortulōs aliquōs emere velle (Off. iii. 14, 58), gave out that he wanted to buy some gardens. [Here aliquōs is less emphatic than emere, but precedes it on account of the emphasis on hortulōs.]

j. The copula is generally felt to be of so little importance that it may come in anywhere where it sounds well; but usually under cover of more emphatic words: as, — cōsul ego quæsi, cum vōs mihi essētis in cōsiliō (R. P. iii. 18, 28), as consul I held an investigation in which you attended me in council.

falsum est id tōtum (id. ii. 15. 28), that is all false.

k. Many expressions have acquired an invariable order: as, — rēs publica; populus Rōmānus; honōris causā; pāce tantī viri.

NOTE. — These had, no doubt, originally an emphasis which required such an arrangement, but in the course of time have changed their shade of meaning. Thus, senātus populusque Rōmānus originally stated with emphasis the official bodies, but became fixed so as to be the only permissible form of expression.

l. The Romans had a fondness for emphasizing persons, so that a name or a pronoun often stands in an emphatic place: as, — [dixit] vēnālis quidem sē hortōs nōn habēre (Off. iii. 14, 58), [said] that he didn't have any gardens for sale, to be sure.

m. Kindred words, as in figūra etymologica, often come together:

ita sēnsim sine sēnsū actās senēscit (C. M. 58), thus gradually, without being perceived, man's life grows old.

Special Rules.

345. The following are special rules of arrangement :—

a. 1. Prepositions (except tenus and versus) regularly precede their nouns ; 2. but a monosyllabic preposition is often placed between a noun and its adjective or limiting genitive : as, — quem ad modum ; quam ob rem ; māgnō cum metū ; omnibus cum cōpiis ; nulla in rē (cf. § 344. i).

b. Itaque regularly comes first in its sentence or clause ; enim, autem, vērō, quoque, never first, but usually second, sometimes third if the second word is emphatic ; quidem never first, but after the emphatic word ; nō . . . quidem include the emphatic word or words.

c. Inquam, inquit, are always used parenthetically, following one or more words. So often crēdō, opīnor, and in poetry sometimes precor.

d. The negative precedes the word it especially affects ; but if it belongs to no one word in particular, it generally precedes the verb ; if it is especially emphatic, it begins the sentence. (See example, 344. f, note.)

e. In the arrangement of clauses, the Relative clause more often comes first in Latin, and usually contains the antecedent noun : as, — quōs amissimus civīs, eōs Mārtis vis perculit (Marc. 6), those citizens whom we have lost, etc.

Structure of the Period.

NOTE.— Latin, unlike modern languages, expresses the relation of words to each other by inflection rather than by position. Hence its structure not only admits of great variety in the arrangement of words, but is especially favorable to that form of sentence which is called a Period. In a period, the sense is expressed by the sentence as a whole, and is held in suspense till the delivery of the last word.

An English sentence does not often exhibit this form of structure. It was imitated, sometimes with great skill and beauty, by many of the earlier writers of English prose ; but its effect is better seen in poetry, in such a passage as the following :—

“ High on a throne of royal state, which far Outshone the wealth of Ormus and of Ind,
Or where the gorgeous East with richest hand
Showers on her kings barbaric pearl and gold, Satan exalted sat.” — Paradise Lost, Book II. 1-5.

But in argument or narrative, the best English writers more commonly give short clear sentences, each distinct from the rest, and saying one thing by itself. In Latin, on the contrary, the story or argument is viewed as a whole ; and the logical relation among all its parts is carefully indicated. Hence—

346. In the structure of the Period, the following rules are to be observed :—

a. In general the main subject or object is put in the main clause, not in a subordinate one (according to § 344) : as, —

Hannibal cum recēnsuisset auxilia Gādēs profectus est, when Hannibal had reviewed, etc.

Volsci exiguam spem in armīs, aliā undique abscissā, cum tentāssent, prae-ter cētera adversa, locō quoque iniquō ad pūgnam congressi, iniquiōre ad fugam, cum ab omni parte caederentur, ad precēs a certāmine versi dēditō imperātore trāditisque armīs, sub iugum missi, cum singulis vestimentis, ignōminiae clādisque plēni dimittuntur (Liv. iv. 10). [Here the main fact is the return of the Volscians. But the striking circumstances of the surrender, etc., which in English would be detailed in a number of brief independent sentences, are put in the several subordinate clauses within the main clause, so that the passage gives a complete picture in one sentence.]

b. Clauses are usually arranged in the order of prominence in the mind of the speaker; so, usually, cause before result; purpose, manner, and the like, before the act.

c. In co-ordinate clauses, the copulative conjunctions are frequently omitted (asyndeton). In such cases the connection is made clear by some antithesis indicated by the position of words.

d. A change of subject, when required, is marked by the introduction of a pronoun, if the new subject has already been mentioned. But such change is often purposely avoided by a change in structure, — the less important being merged in the more important by the aid of participles or of subordinate phrases: as, — quem ut barbari incendium effūgisse vidērunt, tēlis ēminus ēmissis interfēcērunt, when the barbarians saw that he had escaped, THEY threw darts at HIM and killed HIM.

celeriter cōfectō negōtiō, in hiberna legiōnēs revertērunt, the matter was soon finished, AND the legions, etc.

e. So the repetition of a noun, or the substitution of a pronoun for it, is avoided unless a different case is required: as, — dolōrem si nōn poterō frangere occultābō, if I cannot conquer the pain, I will hide IT. [Cf. if I cannot conquer I will hide the pain.]

f. The Romans were careful to close a period with an agreeable succession of long and short syllables. Thus, — quod scis nihil prōdest, quod necis multum obest (Or. 49), what you know is of no use, what you do not know does great harm.

PART THIRD.—PROSODY (RULES OF VERSE).

CHAPTER I.—Quantity.

NOTE.—The poetry of the Indo-European people seems originally to have been somewhat like our own, depending on accent for its metre and disregarding the natural quantity of syllables. The Greeks, however, developed a form of poetry which, like music, pays close attention to the natural quantity of syllables; and the Romans borrowed their metrical forms in classical times from the Greeks. Hence Latin poetry does not depend, like ours, upon accent and rhyme; but is measured, like musical strains, by the length of syllables. Especially does it differ from our verse in not regarding the prose accent of the words, but substituting for that an entirely different system of metrical accent or ictus (see § 358. a). This depends upon the character of the measure used, falling regularly on certain long syllables. Each syllable is counted as either long or short in Quantity;¹ and a long syllable is generally reckoned equal in length to two short ones (for exceptions, see § 355. c-e).

The quantity of radical or stem-syllables—as of short a in pāter or of long a in māter—can be learned only by observation and practice, unless determined by the general rules of quantity. Most of the rules of Prosody are only arbitrary rules devised to assist the memory; the syllables being long or short because the ancients pronounced them so. The actual practice of the Romans in regard to the quantity of syllables is ascertained chiefly from the usage of the poets; but the ancient grammarians give some assistance, and in some inscriptions the long vowels are distinguished in various ways,—by marks over the letters, for instance, or by doubling.

Since Roman poets borrowed very largely from the poetry and mythology of the Greeks, numerous Greek words, especially proper names, make an important part of Latin poetry. These words are generally employed in accordance with the Greek, and not the Latin, laws of quantity. Where these laws vary in any important point, the variations will be noticed in the rules below.

1. General Rules.

347. The following are General Rules of Quantity (cf. § 18):—

a. VOWEL. A vowel before another vowel or h is short: as, via, trāhō.

¹ The terms long and short, when used of Latin sounds, apply to their quantity; when used of English sounds, to their quality.

EXCEPTIONS. 1. In the genitive form -ius, i is long, except usually in alterius. Thus, utrius, nūllius. It is, however, sometimes made short in verse (§ 83. b).

2. In the genitive and dative singular of the fifth declension, e is long between two vowels: as, diēi; but it is short in fidēi, rēi, spēi.

NOTE. — It was once long in these also: as, plēnu^s fidēi (Ennius, at end of hexameter).

A is also long before i in the old genitive of the first declension: as, aulāi.

3. In the conjugation of fiō, i is long except when followed by er. Thus, fiō, fiēbam, fiām, but fiēri, fiērem; so also fit, by § 354. a. 3.

4. In many Greek words the vowel in Latin represents a long vowel or diphthong, and retains its original long quantity: as, Trōes (Τρώες), Thālīa (Θαλιᾶ), hērōas (ἥρωας), āēr (ἄēr).

NOTE. — But many Greek words are more or less Latinized in this respect: as, Acadēmīa, chorēa, Malōa, platōa.

5. In āheu and dīus, and sometimes in Dīāna and ōhe the first vowel is long.

b. DIPHTHONG. A Diphthong is long: as, fōedus, cūi, dēinde.

EXCEPTION. The preposition prae in compounds is generally shortened before a vowel: as, prae-ūstis (Æn. vii. 524), prae-eunte (id. v. 186).

NOTE. — U following q, s, or g, does not make a diphthong with a following vowel (see § 4. n. 3).

c. CONTRACTION. A vowel formed by contraction (crasis) is long: as, nīl, from nihil; currūs, genitive for curruis.

But often two syllables are united by Synæresis without contraction: as when pāriētībūs is pronounced pariētibus.

d. POSITION. A vowel, though short, followed by two consonants or a double consonant, makes a long syllable: as, adventus, cortex.

But if the two consonants are a mute followed by l or r the syllable may be either long or short (common); as, alacris or alācris; patris or pātris.

NOTE 1. — Any vowel before l consonant makes a long syllable (except in blugis, quadrilugis).

But it is probable that in all such cases the vowel was long by nature. So also rēiciō, etc. (from rē-laciō), cf. note 2.

NOTE 2. — The compounds of iaciō, though written with one i, commonly retain the long vowel of the prepositions with which they are compounded, as if before a consonant, and lengthen the short as if by Position. (But how the syllables were pronounced is uncertain.) Thus, — oblōis hosti (at the end of a hexameter, Æn. iv. 549).

inict et saltū (at the beginning of a hexameter, Æn. ix. 552).

prōice tēla manū (at the beginning of a hexameter, Æn. vi. 836).

The later poets sometimes shorten the preposition in trisyllabic forms, and the prepositions ending in a vowel are sometimes contracted as if the verb began with a vowel. Thus:—

- (1) turpe pu|tās āb|ci (Ov. Pont. ii. 3, 37).
cūr an|nōs ōb|cis (Claud. Cons. Hon. iv. 364).
(2) rēicē cā|pellās (Ecl. iii. 96, at end).

REMARK.—The y or w sound resulting from synaeresis has the effect of a consonant in making position: as, abietis (abyetis), fluviorum (fluyōrum). Conversely, when the semivowel becomes a vowel, position is lost: as, silvae, for silvae.

c. In early Latin, s at the end of words was not sounded, and hence does not make position with another consonant.

REMARK.—A syllable made long by the rule in d, but containing a short vowel, is said to be long by POSITION: as in docētne. The rules of Position do not, in general, apply to final vowels.

2. Final Syllables.

348. The Quantity of Final Syllables is determined by the following Rules:—

1. Words of one syllable ending in a vowel are long: as, mē, tū, hī, nē.

The attached particles -nē, -quē, -vē, -cē, -ptē, and rē (rēd-) are short; sē- is long. Thus, sēcēdit, exercitumquē rēducit. But re- is often long in rēligiō (relligiō), rētuli (rettuli), rēpuli (reppuli).

2. Nouns and adjectives of one syllable are long: as, sōl, ōs (ōris), bōs, pār, vīs.

EXCEPTIONS. cōr (sometimes long), fēl, lāc, mēl, ōs (ossis), vīr, tōt, quōt.

3. Most monosyllabic Particles are short: as, ān, īn, cīs, nēc. But āc, crās, cūr, ēn, nōn, quīn, sīn—with adverbs in c: as, hīc, hūc, sīc—are long.

4. Final a in words declined by cases is short, except in the ablative singular of the first declension; in all other words final a is long. Thus, eā stellā (nom.), cum eā stellā (abl.); frūstrā, vocā (imperat.), posteā, trīgintā.

EXCEPTIONS. ēiā, itā, quiā, putā (suppose): and, in late use, trīgintā, etc.

5. Final e is short, as in nūbē, dūcitē, saepē. Except—

1. In nouns of the fifth declension: as, fīdē (also famē), hodiē (hoi diē), quārē (quā rē).

2. In Greek neuters plural of the second declension: as, cētē.

3. In adverbs formed from adjectives of the first and second declension, with others of like form: as, altē, miserē, apertē, saepissimā. So ferē, fermē, probably of same origin.

4. In the imperative singular of the second conjugation: as, vidē.

EXCEPTIONS. To 3: benē, malē; infernē, supernē. To 4: sometimes, cavē, habē, tacē, valē, vidē (cf. § 375. b).

6. Final i is long: as in turrī, fillī, audi.

But it is common in mihi, tibi, sibi, ibi, ubi; and short in nisī, quasī, cuī (when making two syllables), and in Greek vocatives, as Alexī.

7. Final o is common; but long in datives and ablatives, also, almost invariably, in verbs, and in nouns of the third declension.

EXCEPTIONS. citō, modō, licō, profectō, dummodō, immō, egō, duō, octō.

8. Final u is long. Final y is short.

9. Final as, es, os, are long; final is, us, ys, are short; as, nefās, rūpēs, servōs (acc.), honōs; hostis, amicūs, Tethys.

EXCEPTIONS. as is short in Greek plural accusatives, as lampadās; and in anās.

es is short in nouns of the third declension (lingual) having a short vowel in the stem¹: as, mīlēs (-itis), obsēs (-idis), — except abiēs, ariēs, pariēs, pēs; in the present of esse (ēs, adēs); in the preposition penēs, and in the plural of Greek nouns, as hērōēs, lampadēs.

os is short in compōs, impōs; in the Greek nominative ending, as barbitōs; also, in the old nominative ending of the second declension, as servōs (later servus).

is in plural cases is long, as in bonīs, nōbīs, vōbīs, omnīs (accusative plural).

is is long in fīs, sīs, vīs (with quīvīs, etc.), vellīs, māllīs, nōllīs; in the second person singular of the fourth conjugation, as audiīs (where it is the stem-vowel); and sometimes in the forms in -eris (perfect subjunctive), where it was originally long.

us is long (by contraction) in the genitive singular and nominative, accusative, and vocative plural of the fourth declension; and in nouns of the third declension having ū (long) in the stem: as, virtūs (-ūtis), incūs (-ūdis). But pecūs, -ūdis.

10. Of other final syllables, those ending in a consonant, except -c, are short. Thus, amāt, amātūr; but, istūc, ālēc.

EXCEPTIONS. đōnēc, fāc, nēc, sometimes hīc; āēr, aethēr, orātēr, liēn, splēn.

3. Penultimate Syllables.

349. A noun or adjective is said to increase, when in any case it has more syllables than in the nominative singular.

A verb is said to increase, when in any part it has more syllables than in the stem. Thus, amā-tis (stem, amā-), tegi-tis (stem, tege-), capi-unt (stem, capi-).

In such words as stellārum, corpōris, amātis, tegitis, the penultimate syllable is called the increment.¹ In itīnērīb^{us}, amāvērītis, the syllables marked are called the first, second, and third increments of the noun or verb.

NOTE. — In such words as Iūppiter, Iōvis; senex, sēnis, the syllables whose vowel-quantity is marked are called increments. These forms must be referred to lost nominatives from the same stems (cf. §§ 60, 61, foot-note). So itineribus has really only two increments as from titinus.

350. In increments of Nouns and Adjectives, a and o are generally long; e, i, u, y, generally short: as, — aetās, aetātis; honor, honoris; servos, servōrum; opus, opēris; carmen, carminis; murmur, murmūris; pecus, pecūdis; chlamys, chlamydis. Exceptions are: — a: short in baccar (-āris), hēpar (-ātis), lubar (-āris), lār (-lāris), mās (māris), nectar (-āris), pār (pāris), sāl (sālis), vas (vādis), daps (dāpis), fax (fācis), anthrax (-ācis).

o: short in neuters of the third declension (except ōs, ōris): as, corpus (-ōris); also in arbor (-ōris), scrobs (scrōbis), ops (ōpis), bōs (bōvis), memor (-ōris), Iūppiter (Iōvis), Hector (-ōris), and compounds of -pūs (as, tripūs, -pōdis).

e: long in increments of fifth declension: as, diēs, diēī; also in hērēs (-ēdis), lēx (lēgis), locuplēs (-ētis), mercēs (-ēdis), plēbs (plēbis), quiēs (-ētis), rēx (rēgis), vēr (vēris), crātēr (-ēris). But see § 347. 2.

i: long in most nouns and adjectives in ix: as, fēlīcis, rādīcis (except filix, nix, strix); also in dis (dītis), glīs (glīris), līs (lītis), vīs (vīrēs), Quirītes, Samnītēs.

u: long in forms from nouns in -ūs: as, palūs, palūdis; tellūs, tel-lūris; virtūs, virtūtis; also in lūx, lūcis; [frūx], frūgis; fūr, fūria.

¹ The rules of Increment are purely arbitrary, as the syllables are long or short according to the proper quantity of the Stem or of the formative terminations. The quantity of noun-stems appears in the schedule of the third declension (see § 67); and the quantity of inflection-endings is seen under the various inflections, where it is better to learn it. For quantities of Greek stems, see § 63.

351. In the increment of Verbs the characteristic vowels are as follows:—

1. In the first conjugation ā: as, amāre, amātur.
2. In the second conjugation ē: as, monēre, monētur.
3. In the third conjugation ē, ī: as, tegēre, tegitur.
4. In the fourth conjugation ī: as, audire, auditur.

EXCEPTION. đō and its compounds have ā: as, dāre, circumdābat

a. In other verbal increments (not stem-vowels)— a is always long: as, moneāris, tegāmus.

e is long: as, tegēbam, audiēbar.

NOTE.—But e is short before -ram, -rim, -rō; in the future personal endings -bēris, -bēre; and sometimes in the perfect -ērunt (as stētēruntque comae, Æn. ii. 774).

i is long in forms which follow the analogy of the fourth conjugation: as, petivī, lacessitū (in others short: as, monitū); also in the subjunctive present of esse and velle (sīmus, velīmus); and (rarely) in the endings -rimus, -ritis. It is short in the future forms amābītis, etc.

o is found only in imperatives, and is always long: as, monētō, etc.

u is short in sūmus, volūmus, quaesūmus; in the Supine and its derivatives it is long: as, solūtūrus.

đ. Perfects and Supines of two syllables lengthen the first syllable: as, iūvī, iūtum (iūvō), vīdī, vīsum (vīdō); fūgī (fūgiō).

EXCEPTIONS. bībī, dēdī, fidī, scīdī, stētī, stītī, tūlī;—cītum, dātum, itum, lītum, quītum, rātum, rūtum, sātum, sītum, stātum. In some compounds of stō, stātum is found (long), as prōstātum.

c. In reduplicated perfects the vowel of the reduplication is short; the following syllable is, also, usually short: as, cēcīdī (cādō), dīdīcī (dīscō), pūpūgī (pungō), cūcurrī (currō), tētendī (tendō), mōmordī (mordeō). But cēcīdī from caedō, pepēdī from pēdō.

352. The following terminations are preceded by a long vowel.

1. -al, -ar: as, vectīgal, pulvīnar.

EXCEPTIONS. anīmal, cāpītal, iūbar.

2. -brum, -crum, -trum: as, lāvācrum, dēlūbrum, vērātrum.

3. -dō, -ga, -gō: as, formīdō, aurīga, imāgō.

EXCEPTIONS. cādō, dīvidō, ēdō, mōdo, sōlīdō, spīdō, trēpīdō; calīga, fūga, tōga, plāga; āgō, tēgō, nēgō, rēgō, harpāgō, līgō, lēgō. So ēgō.

4. -le, -les (-lē), -lis: as, ancīle, mīles, crūdēlis, hostīlis.

EXCEPTIONS. mālē; *indōlē*s, *sūbōlē*s; grācīlīs, hūmīlīs, sīmīlīs, stērīlīs; and verbal adjectives in -līs: as, dōcīlīs, fācīlīs, terrībīlīs, āmābīlīs.

5. -ma, -men, -mentum: as, poēma, flūmen, īfumentum.

EXCEPTIONS. ānīma, lacrīma, victīma; tāmen, colūmen; with rēgīmen and the like from verb-stems in e.

6. -mus, -nus, -rus, -sus, -tus, -neus, -rius: as, extrēmus, stūpīnus, octōnī, sēvērus, fūmōsus, pēritus, sēnārius, extrāneus.

EXCEPTIONS. (a.) i before -mus: as, flnītīmus, mārītīmus (except vīmus, trīmus, quadrīmus, opīmus, mīmus, līmus); and in superlatives (except īmus, prīmus): also, dōmus, hūmus, nēmus, *cālāmū*s, *thālāmū*s.

(b.) i before -nus: as in orāstīnus, fraxīnus, etc. (except dīvīnus, mātūtīnus, vespertīnus, rēpentīnus); ācīnus, āsīnus, cōmīnus, cōphīnus, ēmīnus, dōmīnus, fācīnus, fraxīnus, prōtīnus, termīnus, vātīcīnus; also, manus, ōceānus, plātānus; gēnus, Vēnus. So ō in bōnus, ōnus, sōnus, tōnus.

(c.) ē before -rus (-ra, -rum): as, mōrus, hēdēra (except prōcērus, sincērus, sēvērus). In like manner, barbārus, chōrus, nūrus, pīrus; sātīra, amphōra, ancōra, lūra, pūra, purpūra; fōrum, suppārum, gārum, pārum.

(d.) lātus, mētus, vētus, anhēlītus, dīgītus, servītūs, spīrītus; quōtus, tōtus; arbūtus, hābītus, and the like.

7. -na, -ne, -nis: as, carīna, māne, inānis.

EXCEPTIONS. advēna, angīna, dōmīna, fēmīna, māchīna, mīna, gēna, pāgīna, pātīna, sarcīna, trūtīna, and compounds with -gena; bēne, sīne; cānis, cīnis, iūvēnis.

8. -re, -ris, -ta, -tis: as, altāre, sālūtāris, mōnēta, immītis.

EXCEPTIONS. māre, hīlāris, rōta, nōta, sātis, sītis, pōtis, and most nouns in -ita.

9. -tim, -tum, and syllables beginning with v: as, prīvātīm, quercētum, ōlīva.

EXCEPTIONS. affātīm, stātīm; nīvis (nix); brēvis, grāvis, lēvis (light); nōvus, nōvem; and several verb roots (as, iūvō, fāvēō); also, ōvis, bōvis, iōvis.

10. -dex, -lex, -mex, -rex, -dīx, -nīx: and the numeral endings -gintī, -gintā: as, iūdex, īlex, rādīx, vīgintī, trīgintā.

EXCEPTIONS. ōūlex, sīlex, rūmex.

353. The following terminations are preceded by a short vowel:—

1. -cus, -dus, -lus: as, rūsticus, cālidus, glādiōlus.

EXCEPTIONS. ōpācus, āmīcus; antīcus, apricus, ficus, mendīcus, postīcus, pūdīcus; fidus, nīdus, eidus; and ū before -dus: as, crūdus, nūdus; ē before -lus, as phāsēlus (except gēlus, scēlus); āsillus; lūcus.

2. -nō, -nor, -rō, -ror, in verbs: as, destīnō, crīmīnor, gērō, quērō.

EXCEPTIONS. dīvinō, festīnō, prōpīnō, sāginō, ōpīnor, inclinō, dēclārō, spērō, spīrō, ōrō, dūrō, mīror.

3. -ba, -bō, -pa, -pō: as, fāba, bībō, lūpa, crēpō.

EXCEPTIONS. glēba, scrība; būbō, nūbō, scrībō; pāpa, pūpa, rīpa, scōpa, stūpa; cāpō, rēpō, stīpō.

4. -tās (in nouns), -ter and -tus (in adverbs): as, cīvītās, fortīter, pēnītus.

5. -culus, -cellus, -lentus, -tūdō: as, fascīculus, ōcellus, lūcūlentus, māgnītūdō.

354. Rules for the quantity of Derivatives are:—

a. Forms from the same STEM have the same quantity: as, āmō, āmāvistī; gēnus, gēneris.

EXCEPTIONS. 1. bōs, lār, mās, pār, pēs, sāl, vās—also arbōs—have a long vowel in the nominative, though the stem-vowel is short (cf. genitive bōvis, etc.).

2. Nouns in -or, genitive -ōris, have the vowel shortened before the final r: as, honōr. (But this shortening is comparatively late, so that in Plautus and inscriptions these nominatives are often found long.)

3. Many verb-forms with vowel originally long shorten it before final -r or -t: as, amēr, dīcerēr, amēt (compare amēmus), dīcerēt, audīt, flīt.

NOTE.—The final syllable in -t of the perfect seems to have been originally long, but to have been shortened under this rule.

4. A few long stem-syllables are shortened, apparently under the influence of accent: as, ācer, ācerbus. So dē-iērō and pē-iērō, weakened from iūrō.

b. Forms from the same ROOT often show inherited variations of quantity (see § 10): as, dīcō (cf. maledīcus), dūcō (dūcis), fidō (perfidus), vōcis (vōcō), lēgis (lēgō).

c. COMPOUNDS retain the quantity of the words which compose them: as, oc-clīdō (cādō), oc-clīdō (caedō), in-īquus (aequus).

d. Greek words compounded with πρό have o short: as, prōphēta, prōlōgus. Some Latin compounds of prō have o short: as, prōficiator, prōfiteor. Compounds with nē vary: as, nēfās, nēgō, nēqueō, nēquis, nēquam.

CHAPTER II. — Rhythm.

NOTE. — The essence of Rhythm in poetry is the regular recurrence of syllables pronounced with more stress than those intervening. To produce this effect in its perfection, precisely equal times should occur between the recurrences of the stress. But, in the application of rhythm to words, the exactness of these intervals is sacrificed somewhat to the necessary length of the words; and, on the other hand, the words are forced somewhat in their pronunciation, to produce more nearly the proper intervals of time. In different languages these adaptations take place in different degrees; one language disregarding more the intervals of time, another the pronunciation of the words.

The Greek language early developed a very strict rhythmical form of poetry, in which the intervals of time were all-important. The earliest Latin, on the other hand,—as in the Saturnian and Fescennine verse,—was not so restricted. But the purely metrical forms were afterwards adopted from the Greek, and supplanted the native forms of verse. Thus the Latin poetry with which we have to do follows for the most part Greek rules, which require the formal division of words (like music) into measures of equal times, technically called Feet. The strict rhythm was doubtless more closely followed in poetry that was sung than in that which was declaimed or intoned. In neither language, however, is the time perfectly preserved, even in single measures; and there are some cases in which the regularity of the time between the ictuses is disturbed.

The Greeks and Romans distinguished syllables of two kinds in regard to the time required for their pronunciation, a long syllable having twice the metrical value of a short one. But it must not be supposed that all long syllables were of equal length, or even that in a given passage each long had just twice the length of the contiguous shorts. The ratio was only approximate at best, though necessarily more exact in singing than in recitation. Nor are longs and shorts the only forms of syllables that are found. In some cases a long syllable was protracted, so as to have the time of three or even of four shorts, and often one long or two shorts were pronounced in less than their proper time, though doubtless always distinguishable in time from one short (see § 355. c, d). Sometimes a syllable naturally short seems to have been slightly prolonged, so as to represent a long, though in most (not all) cases the apparent irregularity can be otherwise explained. In a few cases, also, a pause takes the place of one or more syllables to fill out the required length of the measure. This could, of course, take place only at the end of a word: hence the importance of Cæsure and Diæresis in prosody (see § 358).

1. Measures.

355. Rhythm consists of the division of musical sound into MEASURES or FEET.

The most natural division of musical time is into measures consisting of either two or three equal parts. But the ancients also distinguished measures of five equal parts.

REMARK.—The divisions of musical time are marked by a stress of voice on one or the other part of the measure. This stress is called the ictus (beat), or metrical accent (see § 358).

a. The unit of length in Prosody is one short syllable. This is called a MORA. It is represented by the sign \cup , or in musical notation by the quaver (♩).

b. A long syllable is regularly equal to two mora, and is represented by the sign $_$, or by the crotchet (♩).

c. A long syllable may be protracted, so as to occupy the time of three or four mora. Such a syllable, if equal to three mora, is represented by the sign $_$ (or $\text{♩} \cdot$); if equal to four, by $_$ (or ♩).

d. A long syllable may be contracted, so as to take practically the time of a short one. Such a syllable is sometimes represented by the sign $>$.

e. A short syllable may be contracted so as to occupy less than one mora.

f. A pause sometimes occurs at the end of a verse or a series of verses, to fill up the time. A pause of one mora in a measure is indicated by the sign \wedge ; one of two mora by the sign $\bar{\wedge}$.

g. One or more syllables are sometimes placed before the proper beginning of the measure. Such syllables are called an ANACRŪSIS or prelude.¹

The anacrusis is regularly equal to the unaccented part of the measure.

356. The measures most frequently employed in Latin verse, together with their musical notation, are the following:—

a. TRIPLE OR UNEQUAL MEASURES (♩).²

1. TROCHEE ($\angle \cup = \text{♩} \text{♩}$): as, rēgts.

2. IAMBUS ($\cup \angle = \text{♩} \text{♩}$): as, dūcēs.

3. TRIBRACH³ ($\cup \cup \cup = \text{♩} \text{♩} \text{♩}$): as, hōmīnīs.

¹ The same thing occurs in modern poetry, and in modern music any unaccented syllables at the beginning are treated as an anacrusis, i.e. they make an incomplete measure before the first bar. This was not the case in ancient music. The ancients seem to have treated any unaccented syllable at the beginning as belonging to the following accented ones, so as to make with them a foot or measure. Thus it would seem that the original form of Indo-European poetry was iambic in its structure, or at least accented the second syllable rather than the first.

² Called diplasic, the two parts (Thesis and Arsis) being in the ratio of 2 to 1.

³ Not found as a fundamental foot, but only as the resolution of a Trochee or Iambus.

b. DOUBLE OR EQUAL MEASURES (§).

1. DACTYL ($\angle \cup \cup = \overset{\bullet}{\text{P}} \text{P} \text{P}$): as, cōnsūlts.
2. ANAPÆST ($\cup \cup \angle = \text{P} \text{P} \overset{\bullet}{\text{P}}$): as, mōnītōs.
3. SPONDEE ($\angle _ = \overset{\bullet}{\text{P}} \text{P}$): as, rēgēs.

c. SIX-TIMED MEASURES (§).

1. IONIC ā māiōre ($_ _ \cup \cup = \text{P} \text{P} \text{P}$): as, cōnfēcērūt.
2. IONIC ā minōre ($\cup \cup _ _ = \text{P} \text{P} \text{P}$): as, rētūlissēt.
3. CHORIAMBUS ($_ \cup \cup _ = \text{P} \text{P} \text{P}$): as, cōntūllērāt.

d. QUINARY OR HEMIOLIC¹ MEASURES (§).

1. CRETIC ($_ \cup _ = \text{P} \text{P}$): as, cōnsūlēs.
2. PÆON primus ($_ \cup \cup \cup = \text{P} \text{P} \text{P}$): as, cōnsūlībūs.
3. PÆON quārtus ($\cup \cup \cup _ = \text{P} \text{P} \text{P}$): as, itīnērē.
4. BACCHILUS ($\cup _ _ = \text{P} \text{P}$): as, āmīcōs.

e. Several compound measures are mentioned by the grammarians, viz., Antibacchius ($_ _ \cup$), Proceleusmatic ($\cup \cup \cup \cup$), the 2d and 3d Pæon, having a long syllable in the 2d and 3d places, with three short ones; 1st, 2d, 3d, and 4th Epitritus, having a short syllable in the 1st, 2d, 3d, and 4th places, with three long ones. None of them, however, are needed to explain rhythmically all the forms of ancient verse.

f. Feet with these apparent quantities do not always occupy the same time in the measure, but may be contracted or prolonged to suit the series in which they occur. They are then called irrational, because the thesis and arsis do not have integral ratios. Such are:—

IRRATIONAL SPONDEE: $_ > = \text{P} \text{P} \cdot$

¹ Called hemiotic, the two parts being in the ratio of 1 to 1½, or of 3 to 2.

CYCLIC ANAPÆST : = the same reversed.

IRRATIONAL TROCHEE : — > = ♩.

NOTE.— Of feet and combinations of feet (sometimes extending to an entire verse, and controlled by a single leading accent), the following are recognized, assuming ♩ to be the unit of musical time :—

Narrative poetry was written for rhythmical recitation, or Chant, with instrumental accompaniment; and Lyrical poetry for rhythmical melody, or singing. It must be borne in mind that in ancient music—which in this differs widely from modern—the rhythm of the melody was identical with the rhythm of the text. The lyric poetry was to be sung; the poet was musician and composer, as well as author. To this day a poet is said conventionally to “sing.”

Thus a correct understanding of the rhythmical structure of the Verse gives us the exact time, though not the tune, to which it was actually sung. The exact time, however, as indicated by the succession of long and short syllables, was varied according to certain laws of so-called “Rhythmic,” as will be explained below. In reading ancient verse it is necessary to bear in mind not only the variations in the relative length of syllables, but the occasional pause necessary to fill out the measure; and to remember that the rhythmical accent is the only one of importance, though the words should be distinguished carefully, and the sense preserved. Do not scan, but read metrically.

357. In many cases measures of the same time may be substituted for each other, a long syllable taking the place of two short ones, or two short ones the place of one long one.

In the former case the measure is said to be contracted; in the latter, to be resolved. Thus :—

a. A Spondee (— —) may take the place of a dactyl (— ∪ ∪) or an anapæst (∪ ∪ —); and a Tribrach (∪ ∪ ∪) may take the place of a Trochee (— ∪) or an Iambus (∪ —). The optional substitution of one long syllable for two short ones is represented by the sign ∞.

b. Another form of dactyl when substituted for a trochee is represented thus, — ∞.

A spondee, similarly substituted for a trochee, is represented thus, — >.

c. When a long syllable having the Ictus (§ 358. a) is resolved, the ictus properly belongs to both the resulting short syllables; but for convenience the mark of accent is placed on the first : as, — nūnc expēriar | sītnr ācētō | tībī cōr ācrē in | pēctore. — Bacch. 405.

2. The Musical Accent.

358. That part of the measure which receives the stress of voice (the musical accent) is called the THESIS; the unaccented part is called the ARSIS.¹

a. The stress of voice laid upon the Thesis is called the ICTUS (beat). It is marked thus: $\angle \cup \cup$.

b. The ending of a word within a measure is called CÆSURA. When this coincides with a rhetorical pause, it is called the Cæsure of the verse, and is of main importance as affecting the melody or rhythm.

c. The coincidence of the end of a word with that of a measure in Prosody is called DIÆRESIS.

¹ The Thesis signifies properly, the putting down (thesis, from τίθημι) of the foot in beating time, in the march or dance ("downward beat"), and the Arsis, the raising (ápsis, from ἀείρω) of the foot ("upward beat"). By the Latin grammarians these terms were made to mean, respectively, the ending and beginning of a measure. By a misunderstanding which has prevailed till recently, since the time of Bentley, their true signification has been reversed. They will here be used in accordance with their ancient meaning, as has now become more common. This metrical accent, recurring at regular intervals of time, is what constitutes the essence of the rhythm of poetry as distinguished from prose, and should be constantly kept in mind.

The error mentioned arose from applying to trochaic and dactylic verse a definition which was true only of iambic or anapaestic.

CHAPTER III. — Versification.

1. The Verse.

359. A single line of poetry — that is, a series of measures set in a recognized order — is called a VERSE.¹

NOTE.—Most of the common verses originally consisted of two series (hemistichs), but the joint between them is often obscured. It is marked in Iambic verse by the Dieresis, in Dactylic Hexameter by the Cæsura.

a. A verse lacking a syllable at the end is called CATALECTIC, that is, having a pause to fill the measure; when the end syllable is not lacking, the verse is called ACATALECTIC, and has no such pause.

b. To divide the verse into its appropriate measures, according to the rules of quantity and versification, is called scanning or scansion (scānsiō, from scandō, a climbing or advance by steps).

REMARK.—In reading verse rhythmically, care should be taken to preserve the measure or time of the syllables, but at the same time not to destroy or confuse the words themselves, as is often done in scanning.

c. In scanning, a vowel or diphthong at the end of a word (unless an interjection) is partially suppressed when the next word begins with a vowel or with h. This is called ELISION (bruising).²

In reading it is usual entirely to suppress elided syllables. Strictly, however, they should be sounded lightly.

REMARK.—Elision is sometimes called by the Greek name Synalœpha (smearing).

Rarely a syllable is elided at the end of a verse when the next verse begins with a vowel: this is called Synapheia (binding).

¹ The word Verse (versus) signifies a turning back, i.e. to begin again in like manner, as opposed to Prose (prorsus or pröversus), which means straight ahead.

² The practice of Elision is followed in Italian and French poetry, and is sometimes adopted in English, particularly in the older poets: as,—

T' inveigle and invite th' unwary sense. — Comus, 538.

In early Latin poetry a final syllable ending in s often loses this letter even before a consonant (cf. § 13. b): as,— seniō cōfectus quiescit. — Ennius (C. M. 5).

d. A final -m, with the preceding vowel, is suppressed in like manner when the next word begins with a vowel or h:¹ this is called ECTHLIPSIS (squeezing out): as, — mōnstrum horrendum, informē, ingēns, cui lūmen ademptum.

— Æn. iii. 658.

Final -m has a feeble nasal sound, so that its partial suppression before the initial vowel of the following word was easy.

REMARK.—The monosyllables dō, dem, spē, spem, sim, stō, stem, qui (plural) are never elided; nor is an iambic word elided in dactylic verse. Elision is often evaded by skilful collocation of words.

e. Elision is sometimes omitted when a word ending in a vowel has a special emphasis, or is succeeded by a pause. This omission is called HIATUS (gaping).

The final vowel is sometimes shortened in such cases.

f. A final syllable, regularly short, is sometimes lengthened before a pause:² it is then said to be long by Diastole: as, — nostrum obruimur, — oriturque miserrima caedēs.

g. The last syllable of any verse may be indifferently long or short (syllaba anceps).

FORMS OF VERSE.

360. A verse receives its name from its dominant or fundamental measure: as, Dactylic, Iambic, Trochaic, Anapæstic; and from the number of measures (single or double) which it contains: as, Hexameter, Tetrameter, Trimeter, Dimeter.

REMARK.—Trochaic, Iambic, and Anapæstic verses are measured not by single feet, but by pairs (dipodia), so that six Iambi make a Trimeter.

361. A Stanza, or Strophe, consists of a definite number of verses ranged in a fixed order.

Many stanzas are named after some eminent poet: as, Sapphic (from Sappho), Alcaic (from Alcæus), Archilochian (from Archilochus), Horatian (from Horace), and so on.

1. Dactylic Hexameter.

362. The Dactylic Hexameter, or Heroic Verse, consists theoretically of six dactyls. It may be represented thus:—

¹ Hence a final syllable in -m is said to have no quantity of its own—its vowel, in any case, being either elided or else made long by Position.

² This usage is comparatively rare, most cases where it appears to be found being caused by the retention of an originally long quantity

$\angle \cup \cup \cup \mid \angle \cup \cup \cup \mid \angle \parallel \cup \cup \cup \mid \angle \cup \cup \cup \mid \angle \cup \cup \cup \mid \angle \cup$ or in musical notation as follows :—

a. For any one of the feet, except the fifth, a spondee may be substituted, and must be for the last.

Rarely a spondee is found in the fifth place; the verse is then called spondaic. Thus in Ecl. iv. 49 the verse ends with incrēmentum.

NOTE.—In reality the last foot is a trochee standing for a dactyl, but the final syllable is not measured, and the foot is usually said to be a spondee.

b. The hexameter has always one principal cæsura—sometimes two—almost always accompanied by a pause in the sense.

The principal cæsura is usually after the thesis (less commonly in the arsis) of the third foot, dividing the verse into two parts in sense and rhythm.

It may also be after the thesis (less commonly in the arsis) of the fourth foot. In this case there is often another cæsura in the second foot, so that the verse is divided into three parts: as,— partē fē | rōx || ār | dēnsquē ōcū | lis || et | sibilā | collā. — Æn. v. 277.

REMARK.—Often the only indication of the principal among a number of cæsuras is the break in the sense.

A cæsura occurring after the first syllable of a foot is called masculine. A cæsura occurring after the second syllable of a foot is called feminine (as in the fifth foot of the 3d and 4th verses in c). A cæsura may also be found in any foot of the verse, but a proper cæsural pause could hardly occur in the first or sixth.

When the fourth foot ends a word, the break (properly a diæresis) is sometimes improperly called bucolic cæsura, from its frequency in pastoral poetry.

c. The introductory verses of the Æneid, divided according to the foregoing rules, will appear as follows. The principal cæsura in each verse is marked by double lines:—

Armā vi|rūmqū cā|nō || Trō|iae quī | primū āb | ōris
 Itālī|am fā|tō prōfū|gus || Lā|viniāquē | vēnit litōrā, | multūm ille | et ter|ris || iac|tātus ēt | altō vi sūpē|rūm sac|vae || mēmō|rem lū|nōnis ōb | irām;
 multā quō|que et bel|lō pas|sus || dum | condērēt | urbēm, infer|retquē dē|ōs Lātī|ō, || gēnūs | undē Lā|tinum,
 Albā|niquē pā|trēs, || at|que altæ | moeniā | Rōmac.

The feminine cæsura is seen in the following:—

Dis gēnī|ti pōtū|ērē: || tē|nent mēdī|e omniā | silvae. — Æn. vi. 131.

NOTE.—The Hexameter is thus illustrated in English verse:—

"Over the sea, past Crete, on the Syrian shore to the southward, Dwells in the well-tilled lowland a dark-haired Æthiop people, Skilful with needle and loom, and the arts of the dyer and carver, Skilful, but feeble of heart; for they know not the lords of Olympus, Lovers of men; neither broad-browed Zeus, nor Pallas Athené, Teacher of wisdom to heroes, bestower of might in the battle;

Share not the cunning of Hermes, nor list to the songs of Apollo, Fearing the stars of the sky, and the roll of the blue salt water."

— Kingsley's Andromeda

2. Elegiac Stanza.

363. The Elegiac Stanza consists of two lines, — an hexameter followed by a pentameter.¹

The Pentameter verse is the same as the hexameter, except that it omits the last half of the third foot and of the sixth foot. Thus, —

∠ ∞ | ∠ ∞ | ∠ ∞ || ∠ ∪ ∪ | ∠ ∪ ∪ | ∠ ∞
 ♪ ♪ | ♪ ♪ | ♪ ~ | ♪ ♪ | ♪ ♪ | ♪ ~

a. The Pentameter verse is thus to be scanned as two half-verses, the second of which always consists of two dactyls followed by a single syllable.

b. The Pentameter has no regular Cæsura; but the first half-verse must always end with a word, which is followed by a pause to complete the measure.²

c. The following verses will illustrate the forms of the Elegiac Stanza:—

cum sūbit | illi|us trīs|tissimā | noctīs ī|māgō quā mihī | suprē|mum ∞ || tempūs īn | urbē fū|īt, cum rēpē|tō noc|tem quā | tot mihī | cārā rē|liqui, lābitūr | ex ōcū|lis ∞ || nunc quōquē | guttā mē|is.
 iam prōpē | lūx ādē|rat quā | mē dis|cēdērē|Caesar finibūs | extrē|mae ∞ || iūssērāt | Ausōnī|ae.

— OVID, Trist. i. 3.

NOTE. — The Elegiac Stanza differs widely in character from hexameter verse (of which it is a mere modification) by its division into Distichs, each of which must have its own sense complete. It is employed in a great variety of compositions, — epistolary, amatory, and mournful, — and was especially a favorite of the poet Ovid. It has been illustrated in English verse, imitated from the German: —

"In the Hex|ameter | rises the | fountain's | silvery | column;
 In the Pen|tameter | aye || falling in | melody | back."

¹ Called pentameter by the old grammarians, who divided it, formally, into five feet (two dactyls or spondees, a spondee, and two anapæsts), as follows:—

|| ∪ ∪ ∪ | ∪ ∪ ∪ | ∪ ∪ | ∪ ∪ ∪ | ∪ ∪ ∪ ||

² The time of this pause, however, may be filled by the protraction of the preceding syllable, thus:—

∪ ∪ ∪ | ∪ ∪ ∪ | ∪ ∪ || ∪ ∪ ∪ | ∪ ∪ ∪ | ∪ ∪ ∪ ∞

3. Other Dactylic Verses.

364. Other dactylic verses or half-verses are occasionally used by the lyric poets. Thus:—

a. The Dactylic Tetrameter alternates with the hexameter, forming the Alcmanian Strophe, as follows:—

Ō for|tēs pē|iōrāquē | passi, mēcum | saepē vi|ri || nunc | vinō | pellitē | cūras;
crās in|gēns itē|rābimūs | aequor.

— HOR. Od. i. 7 (so 28; Ep. 12).

NOTE.—This verse is a single measure, its time being represented by ♪ (§ 356, f. note).

b. The Dactylic Penthemim (five half-feet) consists of half a pentameter verse. It is used in combination with the Hexameter to form the First Archilochian Strophe: as,— diffū|gērē nī|vēs || rēdē|unt iam | grāminā | campīs, arbōri|busquē cō|mae;

mūtāt | terrā vi|cēs || et | dēcrēs|centiā | ripās flūminā | praetērē|unt. — HOR. Od. iv. 7.

[For the Fourth Archilochian Strophe (Archilochian Heptameter, alternating with iambic trimeter catalectic), see § 372. 11.]

4. Iambic Trimeter.

365. The Iambic Trimeter is the ordinary verse of dramatic dialogue. It consists of three measures, each containing a double iambus (iambic dipody). Thus,—

♫ — ♫ — ♫ — ♫ — ♫ — ♫ — ♫ — ♫ —

It is seen in the following:—

iam ~~iam~~ effīcā|ci dō mănūs | scientīae supplex ēt ō|rō rēgnā per | Prōserpīnae, pēr et Dīā|nae nōn mōven|dā nūmīna,

Cānidrā par|cē vōcībūs | tandem sācris,
cītumquē re|trō retrō sol|vē turbinem. — HOR. Epod. 17.

The last two lines may be thus translated, to show the movement in English:—

“Oh! stay, Canidia, stay thy rites of sorcery, Thy charm unbinding backward let thy swift wheel fly!”

a. The Iambic Trimeter is often used in lyric poetry, alternating with the Dimeter to form the Iambic Strophe, as follows:—

bēātūs ſ|ſ qui prōcul | nēgōtīis,
 ūt priſcā gēns | mortālīum,
 pāternā rū|rā būbūs ex|ercet ſūis,
 ſolūtūs om|ni fēnōrē;
 nēquē excitā|tur clāſſicō | mīles trūci,
 nēquē horrēt i|rātum mārē. — HOR. Epod. 2.

b. In the Iambic Trimeter an irrational spondee (> —) or its equivalent (a cyclic anapaest ∪ ∪ — or an apparent dactyl > ∪ ∪ (§ 356. f)) may be regularly substituted for the first iambus of any dipody. A Tribrach (∪ ∪ ∪) may stand for an Iambus anywhere except in the last place.

In the comic poets any of these substitutions may be made in any foot except the last: as, —

Ō lūcis al|mē rēctor || et | caelī dēcūs!
 quē alternā cur|rū spātiā || flam|miferē ambiēns,
 illūstrē lae|tīs || exsēris | terrīs cāpūt.
 — SENECA, Herc. Fur. 592–94.

quid quāerīs? an|nōs || séxāgin|tā nātūs es.
 — TERENCE, Heaut. 10.

hōmō sum: hūmā|ni || nihīl ā mē ālī|ēnūm pūtō.
 vel mē monē|re hōc || vél percon|tārf pūtā.
 — Heaut. 77, 78.

c. The CHOLIAMBIC (lame Iambic) substitutes a trochee for the last iambus: as, —

|| ∪ — ∪ — | ∪ — ∪ — | ∪ — ∪ — | — ^ ||
 aeque ést bēā|tus āc pōē|mā cūm scrībīt:
 tam gaūdēt in | sē, tūmqūē sē ip|sē mirātur.
 — CATULL. xxii. 15, 16.

d. The Iambic Trimeter Catalectic is represented as follows: —

|| ∪ — ∪ — | ∪ — ∪ — | ∪ — ∪ ||

It is used in combination with other measures (see § 372. 11), and is shown in the following: —

Vulcānūs ār|dēns urīt of|ficinās. — HOR. Od. i. 4.

or in English: —

“On purple peaks a deeper shade descending.” — Scott.

NOTE.—The Iambic Trimeter may be regarded, metrically, as “a single foot” (its time being represented by 4th), consisting of three dipodies, and having its principal accent, probably, on the second syllable of the verse, though this is a matter of dispute. The spondee in this verse, being a substitute for an iambus, is irrational, and must be shortened to fit the measure of the iambus (represented by > —).

5. Other Iambic Measures.

366. Other forms of Iambic verse are the following:—

a. The Iambic TETRAMETER Catalectic (Septēnārius). This consists of seven iambic feet, with the same substitutions as in Iambic Trimeter. It is used in lively dialogue: as, — nam idcirco arces|sor, nūptiās | quod mī ādpārā|rī sēnsit.

quibus quidē quam faci|lē pōtūerat | quiesci sī hic | quiesset!
— TER. Andria, 690, 691.

The rhythm of the Iambic Septenarius may be thus represented according to our musical notation (see p. 403, foot-note 1):—

|| ∪ : ∪ ∪ — ∪ | ∪ ∪ — ∪ | ∪ ∪ — ∪ | ∪ — ∪ ||
6/8 ♪ | ♪ ♪ ♪ ♪ | ♪ ♪ ♪ ♪ | ♪ ♪ ♪ ♪ | ♪ ♪ ♪ |

Its movement is like the following:—

“In goód king Chárles’s gólden dāys, when lóyaltý no hárm meant,” etc.
— Vicar of Bray.

b. The Iambic Tetrameter Acatalectic (Octōnārius). This consists of eight full iambic feet with the same substitutions as in Iambic Trimeter. It is also used in lively dialogue: as, — hócīnēst hūmā|nūm fáctū aut in|ceptū? hócīnēst of|ficiūm patrīs?

quid illūd est? prō | dēūm fidem, | quid est, sī hóc nōn con|tūmēliast?
— Andria, 236, 237.

c. The Iambic DIMETER. This may be either acatalectic or catalectic.

1. The Iambic Dimeter Acatalectic consists of four iambic feet. It is used in combination with some longer verse (see § 365. a).

2. The Iambic Dimeter Catalectic consists of three and a half iambic feet. It is used only in choruses: as, — quōnām cruen|tā Maénās,

præcéps āmō|rē saévō,
rāpītúr quōd im|pōtēnti
fācinūs parat | fūrōrē? — SEN. Medea, 850–853.

6. Trochaic Verse.

367. The most common form of Trochaic verse is the Tetrameter catalectic (Septēnārius), consisting of four dipodies, the last of which lacks a syllable. It is represented metrically thus, —

|| ∠ ∪ — > | ∠ ∪ — > || ∠ ∪ — > | ∠ ∪ — ∧ ||

or in musical notation,

$\frac{6}{8}$ ♪ ♪ ♪ ♪ | ♪ ♪ ♪ ♪ | ♪ ♪ ♪ ♪ | ♪ ♪ ♪ ♪ | ♪ ♪ ♪ ♪ |

ad u' adveniō, spēm, salūtem, || cōnsiliūm auxiliūm expetēns.

— TER. Andr. ii. 18.

In English verse:—

"Tell me not in mournful numbers life is but an empty dream."

— Longfellow.

a. The spondee and its resolutions can be substituted only in the even places; except in comic poetry, which allows the substitution in any foot but the last: as,— fidem habet petasum ac vestitum: | tam cōsimilist | atque ego.

sūra, pēs, sta|tūra, tōnsus, | oculi, nāsus, | vél labra, mālae, mentum, | bārba, collus; | tōtus! quid ver|bīs opust?
sū tergum ci|cātricōsum, | nihīl hōc similist | similius.

— PLAUT. Amphitr. 443-446.

b. Some other forms of trochaic verse are found in the lyric poets, in combination with other feet, either as whole lines or parts of lines: as,— nōn ebur ne|que adreum. [Dimeter Catalectic.]

meā reni|det in domō|la cūnar. [Iambic Trimeter Catalectic.]

— HOR. Od. ii. 18.

7. Mixed Measures.

NOTE. — Different measures may be combined in the same verse in two different ways. Either (1) a series of one kind is simply joined to a series of another kind (compare the changes of rhythm not uncommon in modern music); or (2) single feet of other measures are combined with the prevailing measures, in which case these odd feet are adapted by changing their quantity so that they become irrational (see § 356, Note).

When enough measures of one kind occur to form a series, we may suppose a change of rhythm; when they are isolated, we must suppose adaptation. Of the indefinite number of possible combinations but few are found in Latin poetry.

368. The following verses, combining different rhythmical series, are found in Latin lyrical poetry:—

1. GREATER ARCHILOCHIAN (Dactylic Tetrameter; Trochaic Tripody):—

|| — ∞ | — ∞ | — ∞ | — ∞ || — ∪ | — ∪ | — > ||

solvitur | acris hī|ems grā|tā vicē || vēris | et Fa|vōni. — HOR. Od. i. 4.

NOTE. — It is possible that the dactyls were cyclic; but the change of measure seems more probable.

2. Verse consisting of Dactylic Trimeter catalectic (Dactylic Penthemim); Iambic Dimeter:—

|| — ∪ ∪ | — ∪ ∪ | — || ∪ — ∪ — | ∪ — ∪ — ||

scribĕrĕ | versĭcŭ|lŏs || āmōrĕ per|culsum iūvat.—id. Ep. 11.

B. Logædic Verse.

369. Trochaic verses containing in regular prescribed positions, irrational measures or irrational feet, are called LOGÆDIC. The principal logædic forms are:—

1. Logædic Tetrapody (four feet): GLYCONIC.

2. Logædic Tripody (three feet): PHERECRATIC.

3. Logædic Dipody (two feet): this may be regarded as a short Pherecratic.

NOTE.—Irrational measures are those in which the syllables do not correspond strictly to the normal ratio of length (see § 355). Such are the Irrational Spondee and the Cyclic Dactyl. This mixture of various ratios of length gives an effect approaching that of prose: hence the name Logædic (λόγος, δειδή). These measures originated in the Greek lyric poetry, and were adopted by the Romans. All the Roman lyric metres not belonging to the regular iambic, trochaic, dactylic, or Ionic systems, were constructed on the basis of the three forms given above: viz., Logædic systems consisting respectively of four, three, and two feet. The so-called Logædic Pentapody consists of five feet, but is to be regarded as composed of two of the others.

370. Each logædic form contains a single dactyl,¹ which may be either in the first, second, or third place. The verse may be catalectic or acatalectic. Thus,— Glyconic.

Pherecratic.

i. — ∪ ∪ | — ∪ | — ∪ | — (∪) || — ∪ ∪ | — ∪ | — (∪) ||

ii. — ∪ | — ∪ ∪ | — ∪ | — (∪) || — ∪ | — ∪ ∪ | — (∪) ||

iii. — ∪ | — ∪ | — ∪ ∪ | — (∪) || — ∪ ∪ | — (∪) ||

NOTE.—The shorter Pherecratic (dipody), if catalectic, appears to be a simple Choriambus (— ∪ ∪ | — ^); and, in general, the effect of the logædic forms is Choriambic. In fact, they were so regarded by the later Greek and Latin metrists, and these metres have obtained the general name of CHORIAMBIC. But they are not true choriambic, though they may very likely have been felt to be such by the composer, who imitated the forms without much thought of their origin. They may be read (scanned), therefore, on that principle. But it is better to read them as logædic measures; and that course is followed here, in accordance with the most approved opinion on the subject.

¹ Different Greek poets adopted fixed types in regard to the place of the dactyls, and so a large number of verses arose, each following a strict law, which were imitated by the Romans as distinct metres.

371. The verses constructed upon the several Logæædic forms or models are the following:—

1. GLYCONIC (Second Glyconic, catalectic):—

|| — ∪ | — ∪ | — ∪ | — || ♀ ♀ | ♀ · ♀ ♀ | ♀ ♀ | ♀ · (or ♀ ~) |

Rōmae | principis | urbi | um.

In English:—

“Forms more real than living man.” — Shelley.

NOTE.—In this and most of the succeeding forms the first foot is always irrational in Horace, consisting of an apparent spondee (— >).

2. ARISTOPHANIC (First Pherecratic):—

|| ~ ∪ | — ∪ | — ∪ || ♀ · ♀ ♀ | ♀ ♀ | ♀ ♀ |

temperat | ōra | frēnis. — Hor.

NOTE.—It is very likely that this was made equal in time to the preceding by protracting the last two syllables: thus,—

|| ~ ∪ | — ∪ | — ∪ | — ∪ || ♀ · ♀ ♀ | ♀ ♀ | ♀ · | ♀ ~ |

3. ADONIC (First Pherecratic, shortened):—

|| ~ ∪ | — ∪ || ♀ · ♀ ♀ | ♀ ♀ |

Terruit | urbem. — Hor.

Or perhaps:—

|| ~ ∪ | — ∪ | — ∪ || ♀ · ♀ ♀ | ♀ · | ♀ ~ |

4. PHERECRATIC (Second Pherecratic):—

|| — > | — ∪ | — ∪ | — ∪ || ♀ ♀ | ♀ · ♀ ♀ | ♀ · | ♀ ~ |

crās dōnāberis haédō. — Hor.

5. LESSER ASCLEPIADIC (Second and First Pherecratic, both catalectic):—

|| — > | — ∪ | — ∪ | — ∪ || ~ ∪ | — ∪ | — ∪ ||

Maécēnās atavīs édite rêgibūs. — Hor.

6. GREATER ASCLEPIADIC (the same, with a Logæædic Dipody interposed):—

7. LESSER SAPPHIC (Logæædic Pentapody, with dactyl in the third place):—

Or in English:—

“Brilliant hopes, all woven in gorgeous tissues.”—Longfellow.

8. GREATER SAPPHIC (Third Glyconic; First Pherecratic):—

|| _ _ | _ > | _ _ | _ || _ _ | _ _ | _ _ | _ _ ||

tē deſs ōrō Sybarin || cūr properās amándō. — Hor.

9. LESSER ALCAIC (Logædic Tetrapody, two dactyls, two trochees):—

|| _ _ | _ _ | _ _ | _ _ ||

In English (nearly):—

“Blossom by blossom the Spring begins.”—Atalanta in Calydon.

10. GREATER ALCAIC (Logædic Pentapody, catalectic, with Anacrusis, and dactyl in the third place, — compare Lesser Sapphic):—

|| _ : _ _ | _ > | _ _ | _ _ | _ _ | _ _ ||

iūst^{um} ēt tenācem prōpositū virūm. — Hor.

NOTE. — Only the above Logædic forms are employed by Horace.

11. PHALÆCIAN (Logædic Pentapody, with dactyl in the second place):—

|| _ > | _ _ | _ _ | _ _ | _ _ | _ _ ||

quænam tē mala mēns, misēlli Rāuidī, āgit prācipit^{um} īn meīs iāmbōs? — Catull. xl.

In English:—

“Gorgeous flowerets in the sunlight shining.”—Longfellow.

12. GLYCONIC PHERECRATIC (Metrum Satyricum):—

|| _ _ | _ _ | _ _ | _ || _ _ | _ _ | _ _ | _ _ ||

Ō Colōna quæc cupis || pōnte lūdere lóngō. — Catull. xvii.

9. Metres of Horace.

372. The Odes of Horace include nineteen varieties of stanza; these are:—

I. ALCAIC, consisting of two Greater Alcaics (10), one Trochaic Dimeter with anacrusis, and one Lesser Alcaic (9)¹: as, — iūst^{um} ēt tenācem prōpositū virūm nōn cliv^{um} ārdor prāva iubēntiūm nōn vāltus īstantis tyrānni mēnte quatit solidā nequ^e Aūster. — Od. iii. 3.

¹ The figures refer to the foregoing list (§ 371).

NOTE. — The Alcaic Strophe was a special favorite with Horace, of whose Odes thirty-seven are in this form.¹ It is sometimes called the Horatian Stanza. The verses were formerly described as, 1, 2. spondee, bacchius, two dactyls; 3. spondee, bacchius, two trochees; 4. two dactyls, two trochees.

2. SAPPHIC (minor), consisting of three Lesser Sapphics (7) and one Adonic (3): as, —

Mm satls terrls nivls átque dítrac grándinls mislt pater ét rubénle déterâ sacrâs iaculátus árcês térruit úrbem. — Od. i. 2.

(Found in Od. i. 2, 10, 12, 20, 22, 25, 30, 32, 38; ii. 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, 16; iii. 8, 11, 14, 18, 20, 22, 27; iv. 2, 6, 11. Carm. Sec.)

NOTE. — The Sapphic Stanza is named after the poetess Sappho of Lesbos, and was a great favorite with the ancients. It is used by Horace in twenty-five Odes — more frequently than any other except the Alcaic. The Lesser Sapphic verse was formerly described as consisting of a Choriambus preceded by a trochaic dipody and followed by a bacchius.

3. SAPPHIC (major), consisting of one Aristophanic (2) and one Greater Sapphic (8): as, —

I.ýdia díc, per ómnēs tē deós órō, Sybarín cūr properâs amándō. — Od. i. 8.

4. ASCLEPIADEAN I. (minor), consisting of Lesser Asclepiadics (5): as, — éxēgē monuméntum aère perénniús régálque sitū — pýramidum áltiús. — Od. iii. 30.

(Found in Od. i. 1; iii. 30; iv. 8.)

5. ASCLEPIADEAN II., consisting of one Glyconic (1) and one Lesser Asclepiadic (5): as, —

Návis quæ tibi créditúm dēbēs Vírgiliúm, — snibus Atticis réddās incolumém, precór, ét servēs animæ — dímidium meæ. — Od. i. 3.

(Found in Od. i. 3, 13, 19, 36; iii. 9, 15, 19, 24, 25, 28; iv. 1, 3.)

6. ASCLEPIADEAN III., consisting of three Lesser Asclepiadics (5) and one Glyconic (1): as, —

Quís dēsideriō slt pudor aut modús tám cārī capitis? — præcipe lígubrēs cántūs, Mélpomenē, — cū liquidám patér vócem cūm cythará dedít. — Od. i. 24.

(Found in Od. i. 6, 15, 24, 33; ii. 12; iii. 10, 16; iv. 5, 12.)

7. ASCLEPIADEAN IV., consisting of two Lesser Asclepiadics (5), one Pherecratic (4), and one Glyconic (1): as, —

Ō fōns Bāndusiaē splēndidiōr vitrō, dālcī dīgne merō, nōn sine flōribūs, crās dōnāberis haēdō cui frōns tūrgida cōrnibūs. — Od. iii. 13.

(Found in Od. i. 5, 14, 21, 23; ii. 7; iii. 7, 13; iv. 13.)

8. ASCLEPIADEAN V. (major), consisting of Greater Asclepiadics (6): as, — tū nē quaēsieris — scire nefās! — quēmi mihi, quēmi tibi finem dī dederint — Lēuconoē — nec Bābylōniōs tētārīs numerōs. — Od. i. 11.

(Found in Od. i. 11, 18; iv. 10.)

9. ALCMANIAN, consisting of Dactylic Hexameter (§ 362) alternating with Tetrameter (§ 364. a). (Od. i. 7, 28; Epod. 12.)

10. ARCHILOCHIAN I., consisting of Dactylic Hexameter alternating with Trimeter Catalectic (Dactylic Penthemim, see § 364. b). (Od. iv. 7.)

11. ARCHILOCHIAN IV., consisting of a Greater Archilochian (heptameter, § 368. 1), followed by Iambic Trimeter Catalectic (§ 365. d). The stanza consists of two pairs of verses: as, — sōlvitur ācris hiēms grātā vice || Vērīs ét Favōnī, trahūntque siccās māchinae carīnās;

āc neque iām stabulīs gaudēt pecus, || aut arātor igni, nec prāta cānis ālbicant prūnis. — Od. i. 4.

12. Iambic Trimeter alone (see § 365). (Ep. 17.)

13. Iambic Strophe (see § 365. a). (Ep. 1–10.)

14. Dactylic Hexameter alternating with Iambic Dimeter: as, — nōx erat, ét caelō fulgēbat lūna serēnō intēr minōra sīdera, cūm tū, māgnōrūm nūmēn laesūra deōrum, in vērba iūrābās mea. — Epod. 15. (So in Ep. 14.)

15. Dactylic Hexameter with Iambic Trimeter (§ 365); as, — āltera iām teritur bellīs civilibus aētās, sulc et ipsa Rōma viribūs ruit. — Epod. 16.

16. Verse of Four Lesser Ionics: as, — miserār^{um} est | nequ^e amōrī | dare lūdum | neque dulci mala vinō | laver^e aut exanimārī | metuentēs. — Od. iii. 12.

17. Iambic Trimeter (§ 365); Dactylic Penthemim (§ 364. b); Iambic Dimeter: as, — Pectf nihil mē sicut antea iuvat scribere vérsiculōs — amōre percussūm gravi. — Epod. 11.

18. Dactylic Hexameter; Iambic Dimeter; Dactylic Penthemim (§ 364. b): as, — hórrida témpetās caelūm contráxit, et ímbrēs nivēsque dēdūcunt Iovem: núnc mare, núnc silūae. . . .

— Epod. 13.

19. Trochaic Dimeter, Iambic Trimeter, each catalectic (see § 367. b).

| 9. Quando repostum : 13. | |

373. Other lyric poets use other combinations of the above-mentioned verses. Thus, —

a. Glyconics with one Pherecratic (both imperfect) : as, —

Diā|nae sūmūs | in fidē
pūel|læ et pūēri | intēgri:
Diā|nam, pūēri | intēgri
pūel|laequē cā|nā|mus. — CATULL. 34.

b. Sapphics, in a series of single lines, closing with an Adonic : as, —

An mā|gis di|rī trēmū|ēre | Mānēs
Hercū|lēm? et vi|sum cānis | infē|rōrum

fūgīt | abrup|tis trēpī|dus cā|tēnis?
 falli|mur: lae|tē vēnit | eccē | vultū,
 quem tū|lit Poe|ās; hūmē|risquē | tēla
 gestāt | et nō|tās pōpū|lis pha|retrās

Herculis | hērēs. — SEN. Herc. Œl. 1600-6.

c. Sapphics followed by Glyconics, of indefinite number (id. Herc. Fur. 830-874, 875-894).

10. Miscellaneous.

374. Other measures occur in various styles of poetry: viz., —

a. ANAPÆSTIC verses of various lengths are found in dramatic poetry. The spondee, dactyl, or proceleusmatic may be substituted for the anapæst: as, —

hīc hōmōst | omni^{um} hōmī|num prae|cipuōs vōlūptā|tibūs gau|diisquē an|tēpōtēns.
 itā com|mōdā quae | cūpī^{us} ē|vēniunt,
 quōd agō | sūbīt, ad|sēcūē | sēquitūr:
 itā gau|diū sup|pēditat. — PLAUT. Trin. 1115-19.

b. BACCHIAC verses (five-timed) occur in the dramatic poets, — very rarely in Terence, more commonly in Plautus, — either in verses of two feet (Dimeter) or of four (Tetrameter). They are treated very freely, as are all measures in early Latin. The long syllables may be resolved, or the molossus (three longs) substituted: as, — multās rēs | simit^{us} in | mēō cor|dē vorsō, mult^{um} in cō|gītandō | dōlōrē^m in|dīpiscor ēgōmet mē | cōg^o et mā|cēr^{us} et dē|fātigō;

 māgister | mīhⁱ exer|cītōr ānī|mūs nunc est.

— PLAUT. Trin. 223-226.

c. CRETIC measures occur in the same manner as the Bacchiac, with the same substitutions. The last foot is usually incomplete: as, — āmōr āmī|cus mīhi | nē fūās | unquam.

 his ēgō | d^e artībūs | grātiam | faciō.
 nil ēgō is|tōs mōror | faecēōs | mōrēs. — id. 267, 293, 297.

d. SATURNIAN VERSE. In early Latin is found a rude form of verse, not borrowed from the Greek like the others. The rhythm is Iambic Tetrameter (or Trochaic with Anacrusis), but the Arsis is often synco-pated, especially in the middle and at the end of the verse: as, — dabōnt | malūm | Metē|lī — || Naēvi|ō po|ētae.

11. Early Prosody.

375. The prosody of the earlier poets differs in several respects from that of the later.¹

a. At the end of words a was only feebly sounded, so that it does not make position with a following consonant, and is sometimes cut off before a vowel. This usage continued in all poets till Cicero's time (§ 347. e).

b. The last syllable of any word of two syllables may be made short if the first is short. (This effect remained in a few words like putā, cavē, valē, vidē; cf. § 348.) Thus, — ābēst (Cist. ii. 1. 12); āpūd tēst (Trin. 196); sōrōr dictast (Enn. 157); bōnās (Stich. 99); dōmī dēaeque (Pseud. 37); dōmī (Mil. 194).

c. In the same way a long syllable may be shortened when preceded by a short monosyllable: as, — id ēst profectō (Merc. 372); ērit et ūbī ēxoptātum (Mil. 1011); si quidem hērcle (Asin. 414); quid ēst sī hōc (Andria, 237).

d. In a few isolated words position is often disregarded.² Such are ille, iste, inde, ūnde, nēmpē, esse (?). Thus, — ēcquis his in aedibust (Bacch. 581).

e. In some cases the accent seems to shorten a syllable preceding it in a word of more than three syllables, as in senēctātī, Syrācūsae.

f. At the beginning of a verse many syllables long by position stand for short ones: as, — idnē tū (Pseud. 442); ēstne cōsimilis (Epid. v. 1. 18).

g. The original long quantity of many final syllables is retained. Thus: —

1. Final -a of the first declension is often long: as, — nē epīstulā quidem ūlla sit in aedibus (Asin. 762).

2. Final -a of the neuter plural is sometimes long (though there seems no etymological reason for it): as, — nūnc et amicō | prōsperāb et | gēniō meō mul | tā bona faciam (Pers. 263).

¹ Before the Latin language was used in literature, it had become much changed by the loss of final consonants and the shortening of final syllables under the influence of accent (which was originally free in its position, but in Latin became limited to the penult and antepenult). This tendency was arrested by the study of grammar and by literature, but shows itself again in the Romance languages. In many cases this change was still in progress in the time of the early poets.

² Scholars are not yet agreed upon the principle or the extent of this irregularity.

3. The ending -or is retained long in nouns with long stem-vowel (original r-stems or original s-stems): as, — módo quom dict^o in m^o ingerēbās ódium nōn uxōr eram (Asin. 927).

íta mⁱ in pector^e átque corde, fácit amōr incéndium (Merc. 500).

átque quantō nōx fuisti lóngiōr hāc próxumā (Amph. 548).

4. The termination -es (-itis) is sometimes retained long, as in mīlēs, superstēs.

5. All verb-endings in -r, -s, and -t may be retained long where the vowel is elsewhere long in inflection: as, — régrediōr audísse mē (Capt. 1023); átque ut qui fueris et qui nunc (Id. 248); mē nōmināt haec (Epid. iv. 1. 8); faciāt ut semper (Poen. ii. 42); infuscābāt, amābō (Cretics, Cist. i. 21); qui amēt (Merc. 1021); ut fit in bellō capitur alter filius (Capt. 25); tibi sit ad mē revísas (Truc. ii. 4. 79).

h. The hiatus is allowed very freely, especially at a pause in the sense, or when there is a change of the speaker.¹

¹ The extent of this license is still a question among scholars; but in the present state of texts it must sometimes be allowed.

MISCELLANEOUS.

1. Reckoning of Time.

NOTE. — The Roman Year was designated, in earlier times, by the names of the Consuls; but was afterwards reckoned from the building of the City (ab urbe conditâ, annò urbis conditæ), the date of which was assigned by Varro to a period corresponding with B.C. 753. In order, therefore, to reduce Roman dates to those of the Christian era, the year of the city is to be subtracted from 754: e.g. A.U.C. 691 (the year of Cicero's consulship) = B.C. 63.

Before Cæsar's reform of the Calendar (B.C. 46), the Roman year consisted of 355 days: March, May, Quintilis (July), and October having each 31 days; February having 28, and each of the remainder 29. As this Calendar year was too short for the solar year, the Romans, in alternate years, at the discretion of the Pontifices, inserted a month of varying length (mensis intercalâris) after February 23, and omitted the rest of February. The "Julian year," by Cæsar's reformed Calendar, had 365 days, divided into months as at present. Every fourth year the 24th of February (vi. kal. Mârt.) was counted twice, giving 29 days to that month: hence the year was called Bissextilis. The month Quintilis received the name Iulius (July), in honor of Julius Cæsar; and Sextilis was called Augustus (August), in honor of his successor. The Julian year (see below) remained unchanged till the adoption of the Gregorian Calendar (A.D. 1582), which omits leap-year three times in every four hundred years.

376. Dates, according to the Roman Calendar, are reckoned as follows:—

- a. The first day of the month was called Kalendæ (Calends).

NOTE. — Kalendæ is derived from calâre, to call, — the Calends being the day on which the pontiffs publicly announced the New Moon in the Comitia Calâtæ, which they did, originally, from actual observation.

- b. On the fifteenth day of March, May, July, and October, but the thirteenth of the other months, were the Idûs (Ides), the day of Full Moon.

- c. On the seventh day of March, May, July, and October, but the fifth of the other months, were the Nōnæ (Nones or ninths).

- d. From the three points thus determined, the days of the month were reckoned backwards as so many days before the Nones, the Ides, or the Calends. The point of departure was, by Roman custom, counted in the reckoning, the second day being three days before, etc. This gives the followi 1 for determining the date:—

If the given date be Calends, add two to the number of days in the month preceding, — if Nones or Ides, add one to that of the day on which they fall, — and from the number thus ascertained subtract the given date: thus, — viii. Kal. Feb. (33-8) = Jan. 25.

iv. Nōn. Mār. (8-4) = Mar. 4.

iv. Īd. Sept. (14-4) = Sept. 10.

For peculiar constructions in dates, see § 259. c.

c. The days of the Roman month by the Julian Calendar, as thus ascertained, are given in the following Table: —

NOTE. — Observe that a date before the Julian Reform (B.C. 46) is to be found not by the above table, but by taking the earlier reckoning of the number of days in the month.

2. Measures of Value, etc.

377. The money of the Romans was in early times wholly of copper. The unit was the ās, which was nominally a pound in weight, but actually somewhat less. It was divided into twelve unciae (ounces).

In the third century B.C. the ās was gradually reduced to one-half of its original value. In the same century silver coins were introduced, — the Dēnārius and the Sēstertius. The Denarius = 10 asses; the Sestertius = $2\frac{1}{2}$ asses.

378. The Sestertius was probably introduced at a time when the ās had been so far reduced that the value of the new coin ($2\frac{1}{2}$ asses) was equivalent to the original value of the ās. Hence, the Sestertius (usually abbreviated to IIS or HS) came to be used as the unit of value, and nummus, coin, often means simply sēstertius. As the reduction of the standard went on, the sestertius became equivalent to 4 asses. Gold was introduced later, the aureus being equal to 100 sesterces. The value of these coins is seen in the following table: —

$2\frac{1}{2}$ asses	= 1 sēstertius or nummus (HS), value nearly 5 cents.
10 asses or 4 sēstertii	= 1 dēnārius " 20 "
1000 sēstertii	= 1 sēstertium " $50.00.

NOTE. — The word sēstertius is a shortened form of sēmīs-tertius, the third one, a half. The abbreviation IIS or HS = duo et sēmīs, $2\frac{1}{2}$, two and a half.

379. The Sēstertium (probably originally the genitive plural of sēstertius) was a sum of money, not a coin; the word is inflected regularly as a neuter noun: thus, tria sēstertia = $150.00.

When sēstertium is combined with a numeral adverb, centēna mīlia, hundreds of thousands, is to be understood: thus decīens sēstertium (decīens HS) = $50,000.

In the statement of large sums sēstertium is often omitted: thus sexāgiēns (Rosc. Am. 2) signifies, sexāgiēns [centēna mīlia] sēstertium (6,000,000 sesterces) = $300,000 (nearly).

380. In the statement of sums of money in cipher, a line above the number indicates thousands; lines above and at the sides also, hundred-thousands. Thus HS. DC. = 600 sēstertii; HS. DC. = 600,000 sēstertii, or 600 sēstertia; H.S. [DC] = 60,000,000 sēstertii.

381. The Roman Measures of Length are the following: —

- 12 inches (unciae) = 1 Roman Foot (pēs: 11.65 English inches).
- $1\frac{1}{2}$ Feet = 1 Cubit (cubitum). — $2\frac{1}{2}$ Feet = 1 Degree or Step (gradus).
- 5 Feet = 1 Pace (passus). — 1000 Paces (mille passuum) = 1 Mile.

The Roman mile was equal to 4850 English feet.

The Iugerum, or unit of measure of land, was an area of 240 (Roman) feet long and 120 broad; a little less than $\frac{1}{2}$ of an English acre.

382. The Measures of Weight are —

12 unciae (ounces) = one pound (libra, about $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. avoirdupois).

Fractional parts (weight or coin) are —

- | | | |
|---|--|---|
| 1. ($\frac{1}{12}$), uncia . | 5. ($\frac{5}{12}$), quincunx . | 9. ($\frac{3}{4}$), dōdrāns . |

The Talent (talentum) was a Greek weight (τάλαντον) = 60 librae.

383. The Measures of Capacity are —

12 cyathī = 1 sextārius (nearly a pint).

16 sextārii = 1 modius (peck).

6 sextārii = 1 congius (3 quarts, liquid measure).

8 congii = 1 amphora (6 gallons).

384. The following are some of the commonest abbreviations found in Latin inscriptions and sometimes in editions of the classic authors.

GLOSSARY

OF TERMS USED IN GRAMMAR, RHETORIC, AND PROSODY

NOTE.—Many of these terms are pedantic names given by early grammarians to forms of speech used naturally by writers who were not conscious that they were using figures at all—as, indeed, they were not. Thus when one says, "It gave me no little pleasure," he is unconsciously using Litotes; when he says, "John went up the street, James down," Antithesis; when he says, "High as the sky," Hyperbole. Many were given under a mistaken notion of the nature of the usage referred to. Thus mēd and tēd (§ 98. c) were supposed to owe their d to Paragoge, sūmps its p to Epenthesis. Such a sentence as "See my coat, how well it fits!" was supposed to be an irregularity to be accounted for by Prolepsis.

Many of these, however, are convenient designations for phenomena which often occur; and most of them have a historic interest, of one kind or another.

385. I. GRAMMATICAL TERMS.

Anacoluthon: a change of construction in the same sentence, leaving the first part broken or unfinished.

Anastrophe: inversion of the usual order of words.

Apodosis: the conclusion of a conditional sentence (see Protasis).

Archaism: an adoption of old or obsolete forms.

Asyndeton: omission of conjunctions (§ 208. b).

Barbarism: adoption of foreign or unauthorized forms.

Brachylogy: brevity of expression.

Crasis: contraction of two vowels into one (§ 10. c).

Ellipsis: omission of a word or words necessary to complete the sense (§ 177. note).

Enallage: substitution of one word or form for another.

Epenthesis: insertion of a letter or syllable (§ 11. c).

Hellenism: use of Greek forms or constructions.

Hendiadys (ἑν διὰ δύοιν): the use of two nouns, with a conjunction, instead of a single modified noun.

Hypallage: interchange of constructions.

Hysteron proteron: a reversing of the natural order of ideas.

This term was applied to cases where the natural sequence of events is violated in language because the later event is of more importance than the earlier and so comes first to the mind. This was supposed to be an artificial embellishment in Greek, and so was imitated in Latin. It is still found in artless narrative; cf. "Bred and Born in a Brier Bush" (Uncle Remus).

Metathesis: transposition of letters in a word (§ 11. d).

Paragoge: addition of a letter or letters to the end of a word.

Parenthesis: insertion of a phrase interrupting the construction.

Periphrasis: a roundabout way of expression (circumlocution).

Pleonasm: the use of needless words.

Polysyndeton: the use of an unnecessary number of copulative conjunctions.

Prolepsis: the use of a word in the clause preceding the one where it would naturally appear (anticipation).

Protasis: a clause introduced by a conditional expression (if, when, whoever), leading to a conclusion called the Apodosis (§ 304).

Syncope: omission of a letter or syllable from the middle of a word (§ 11. b).

Synesis (cōnstructiō ad sēnsum): agreement of words according to the sense, and not the grammatical form (§ 182).

Tmesis: the separation of the two parts of a compound word by other words (cutting).

This term came from the earlier separation of prepositions (originally adverbs) from the verbs with which they were afterwards joined; so in per ecastor scitus puer, a very fine boy, egad! As this was supposed to be intentional, it was ignorantly imitated in Latin; as in cere- comminuit -brum (Ennius).

Zeugma: the use of a verb with two different words, to only one of which it strictly applies (yoking).

386. II. RHETORICAL FIGURES.

Allegory: a narrative in which abstract ideas figure as circumstances, events, or persons, in order to enforce some moral truth.

Alliteration: the use of several words that begin with the same sound.

Analogy: argument from resemblances.

Anaphora: the repetition of a word at the beginning of successive clauses (§ 344. f).

Antithesis: opposition, or contrast of parts (for emphasis: § 344).

Antonomasia: use of a proper for a common noun, or the reverse: as, — sint Maecēnātēs nōn deerunt Flacce Marōnēs, so there be patrons (like Maecenas), poets (like Virgil) will not be lacking. illa furia et pestis, that fury and plague (i.e. Clodius); Homēromastix, scourge of Homer (i.e. Zoilus).

Aposiopesis: an abrupt pause for rhetorical effect.

Catachresis: a harsh metaphor (abūsiō, misuse of words).

Chiasmus: a reversing of the order of words in corresponding pairs of phrases (§ 344. f).

Climax: a gradual increase of emphasis, or enlargement of meaning.

Euphemism: the mild expression of a painful or repulsive idea: as, — sī quid ei acciderit, if anything happens to him (i.e. if he dies).

Euphony: the choice of words for their agreeable sound.

Hyperbaton: violation of the usual order of words.

Hyperbole: exaggeration for rhetorical effect.

Irony: the use of words which naturally convey a sense contrary to what is meant.

Litotes: the affirming of a thing by denying its contrary (§ 209. c).

Metaphor: the figurative use of words, indicating an object by some resemblance.

Metonymy: the use of the name of one thing to indicate some kindred thing.

Onomatopœia: a fitting of sound to sense in the use of words.

Oxymoron: the use of contradictory words in the same phrase: as, — insāniēns sapientia, foolish wisdom.

Paronomasia: the use of words of like sound.

Prosopopœia: personification.

Synchysis: the interlocked order (§ 344. h).

Synecdoche: the use of the name of a part for the whole, or the reverse.

387. III. TERMS OF PROSODY.

Acatalectic: complete, as a verse or a series of feet (§ 359. a).

Anacalasis: breaking up of rhythm by substituting different measures.

Anacrusis: the unaccented syllable or syllables preceding a verse (§ 355. g).

Antistrophe: a series of verses corresponding to one which has gone before (cf. strophe).

Arsis: the unaccented part of a foot (§ 358).

Basis: a single foot preceding the regular movement of a verse.

Cæsuræ: the ending of a word within a metrical foot (§ 358. b).

Catalexis: loss of a final syllable (or syllables) making the series catalectic (incomplete, § 359. a).

Contraction: the use of one long syllable for two short (§ 357).

Correption: shortening of a long syllable, for metrical reasons.

Dieresis: the coincidence of the end of a foot with the end of a word (§ 358. c).

Dialysis: the use of i (consonant) and v as vowels (silūa = silva § 347. d. Rem.).

Diastole: the lengthening of a short syllable by emphasis (§ 359. f).

Dimeter: consisting of two like measures

Dipody: consisting of two like feet.

Distich: a system or series of two verses.

Ecthlipsis: the suppression of a final syllable in -m before a word beginning with a vowel (§ 359. d').

Elision: the cutting off of a final before a following initial vowel (§ 359. c').

Heptameter: consisting of seven feet.

Hexameter: consisting of six measures.

Hexapody: consisting of six feet.

Hiatus: the meeting of two vowels without contraction or elision (§ 359. e').

Ictus: the metrical accent (§ 358. a').

Irrational: not conforming strictly to the unit of time (§ 356. note).

Logædic: varying in rhythm, making the effect resemble prose (§ 369).

Monometer: consisting of a single measure.

Mora: the unit of time = one short syllable (§ 355. a').

Pentameter: consisting of five measures.

Pentapody: consisting of five feet.

Penthemimeris: consisting of five half-feet.

Protraction: extension of a syllable beyond its normal length (§ 355. c').

Resolution: the use of two short syllables for one long (§ 357).

Strophe: a series of verses making a recognized metrical whole (stanza), which may be indefinitely repeated.

Synæresis: i (vowel) and u becoming consonants before a vowel.

Synalæpha: the same as elision (§ 359. c. Rem.).

Synapheia: elision between two verses (§ 359. c. Rem.).

Synizesis: the combining of two vowels in one syllable (§ 347. c').

Syncope: loss of a short vowel.

Systole: shortening of a syllable regularly long.

Tetrameter: consisting of four measures.

Tetrapody: consisting of four feet.

Tetrastich: a system of four verses.

Thesis: the accented part of a foot (§ 358).

Trimeter: consisting of three measures.

Tripody: consisting of three feet.

Tristich: a system of three verses.

APPENDIX

LATIN was originally the language of the plain of Latium, lying south of the Tiber, the first territory occupied and governed by the Romans. This language, and, together with it, Greek, Sanskrit, Zend (Old Persian), the Slavonic and Teutonic families, and the Celtic, are shown by comparative philology to be offshoots of a common stock, a language once spoken by a people somewhere in the interior of Asia, whence the different branches, by successive migrations, passed into Europe and Southern Asia.

This Parent Speech is called the Indo-European, and the languages descended from it are known collectively as the Indo-European Family. By an extended comparison of the corresponding roots, stems, and forms, as they appear in the different languages of the family, the original Indo-European root, stem, or form can in very many cases be determined. A few of these forms are given in the grammar for comparison (see, especially, p. 83). Others are here added for further illustration:—

The emigrants who peopled the Italian peninsula also divided into several branches, and the language of each branch had its own development, until all the rest were crowded out by the dominant Latin. These dialects have left no literature, but fragments of some of them have been preserved, in inscriptions, or as cited by Roman antiquarians; and other fragments were probably incorporated in that popular or rustic dialect which formed the basis of the modern Italian. The most important of these ancient languages of Italy were the Oscan of Campania, and the Umbrian of the northern districts. To these should be added the Etruscan, which is of uncertain origin. Some of their forms, as compared with the Latin, may be seen in the following:—

Fragments of early Latin are preserved in inscriptions dating back to the third century before the Christian era; and some Laws are attributed to a much earlier date,—to Romulus (B.C. 750), to Numa (B.C. 700); and especially to the Decemvirs (Twelve Tables, B.C. 450); but in their present form no authentic dates can be assigned to them. Specimens of these are usually given in a supplement to the Lexicon. (See also Cic. De Legibus, especially ii. 8; iii. 3, 4.)

An instructive collection of them is given in "Remnants of Early Latin," by F. D. Allen: Ginn & Co.

Latin did not exist as a literary language until about B.C. 200. The language was then strongly influenced by the writings of the Greeks, which were the chief objects of literary study and admiration. The most popular plays, those of Plautus and Terence, were simply translations from the Greek, introducing freely, however, the popular dialect and the slang of the Roman streets. As illustrations of life and manners they belong as much to Athens as to Rome. Thus the natural growth of a genuine Roman literature was very considerably checked. Orations, rhetorical works, letters, and histories, — dealing with practical affairs and the passions of politics, — seem to be nearly all that sprang direct from the native soil. The Latin poets of the Empire were mostly court-poets, writing for a cultivated and luxurious class; satires and epistles alone keep the flavor of Roman manners, and exhibit the familiar features of Italian life.

In its use since the classic period, Latin is known chiefly as the language of the Civil Code, which gave the law to a large part of Europe; as the language of historians, diplomatists, and philosophers during the Middle Ages, and in some countries to a much later period; as the official language of the Church and Court of Rome, down to the present day; as, until recently, the common language of scholars, so as still to be the ordinary channel of communication among many learned classes and societies; and as the universal language of Science, especially of the descriptive sciences, so that many hundreds of Latin terms, or derivative forms, must be known familiarly to any one who would have a clear knowledge of the facts of the natural world, or be able to recount them intelligibly to men of science. In some of these uses it may still be regarded as a living language; while, conventionally, it retains its place as the foundation of a liberal education.

During the classical period of the language, Latin existed not only in its literary or urban form, but in local dialects, known by the collective name of lingua rústica, far simpler in their forms of inflection than the classic Latin. These dialects, it is probable, were the basis of modern Italian, which has preserved many of the ancient words without aspirate or case-inflection: as, orto (hortus), gente (gentem). In the colonies longest occupied by the Romans, Latin, in its ruder and more popular form, came to be the language of the common people. Hence the modern languages called "Romance" or "Romanic"; viz., Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, and French, together with the Catalan of Northeastern Spain, the Provençal or Troubadour language of the South of France, the "Rouman" or Wallachian of the lower Danube (Roumania), and the "Roumansch" of some districts of Switzerland.

A comparison of words in several of these tongues with Latin will serve to illustrate that process of phonetic decay to which reference has been made in the body of this Grammar (§ 8. 2), as well as the degree in which the substance of the language has remained unchanged. Thus, in the verb to be the Romance languages have preserved from the Latin the general tense-system, together with both the stems on which the verb is built. The personal endings are somewhat abraded, but can be traced throughout. The following table shows the forms assumed by sum in five of the Romance languages. In the others, the alterations are more marked.

INDEX OF VERBS.

In this index are given all the simple irregular verbs that the student will find in his reading. Compounds are to be looked for under simple verbs. If the simple verb is given with no mention of compounds, the compounds are conjugated like the simple verb. If to the simple verb a compound form is added (as "statuō [cōnstituō]"), the compounds vary from the simple verb, as may be seen under the particular compound mentioned. If different compounds of the same verb present different irregularities, several specimens are appended to the simple verb (see e.g. agō). Full-face figures (thus, 91) designate the most important among several references. References are to sections, unless "p." is used.

LATIN TEXT-BOOKS.

Allen and Greenough's Latin Grammar.

For Schools and Colleges. Founded on comparative grammar, revised and enlarged by JAMES BRADSTREET GREENOUGH assisted by GEORGE L. KITTREDGE, Professors in Harvard University. Copyright Edition of 1888. 12mo. Half leather. xiii + 488 pages. Mailing price, $1.30; for introduction, $1.20.

THIS is offered as a thoroughly satisfactory manual for preparatory schools and colleges, and it is believed to combine excellences of diverse kinds in such a way as to be the closest possible approach to an ideal grammar.

1. This has always been regarded as the truest and soundest of Latin grammar manuals. Instead of making arbitrary laws and distinctions in order to secure an artificial clearness of statement, this grammar has been faithful to the spirit and the facts of the language. This is its fundamental excellence. The grammar explains the language instead of trying to make the language bear out the grammar.

2. The present edition is as strong in class-room availability as it is for linguistic truth. Mr. George L. Kittredge, formerly Instructor in Latin in Phillips Exeter Academy and now Professor of English at Harvard, was associate reviser, and largely on account of his combining special qualifications in Latin and in English, the style of the grammar was radically improved. It is believed to be now much clearer, more crisp and definite, more interesting and learnable, than any other grammar.

3. Even in all the little points, the closest care was taken in the revision, and scarcely a book can be found in which the excellence is so uniform and in which the finish reaches so faithfully to the minutest details.

4. In a word, the consensus of competent opinion seems to justify fully the belief that Allen and Greenough's Latin Grammar is clearly the best: best for scholarship, convenience, completeness, and beauty; best for reference; and best for regular study.

5. Substantially all changes in the usage of schools and colleges since its revision in 1888, have been in favor of Allen and Greenough.

W. D. Whitney, Prof. of Comparative Philology, Yale College: I have no hesitation in saying that Allen and Greenough's Grammar has impressed me more favorably than any other I have seen that is published in this country.

F. D. Allen, Prof. of Classical Philology, Harvard College: I am satisfied that it is in many important respects in advance of any other school grammar of the Latin language which I have ever examined, whether published in this country or elsewhere.

Tracy Peck, Prof. of Latin, Yale University: I notice that the essential facts of the language are stated with greater clearness, and that there is a richer suggestiveness as to the rationale of constructions. The book will thus be of quicker service to the younger students, and a better equipment and stimulus to teachers and more advanced scholars.

D. Y. Comstock, Prof. of Latin, Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn.: Allen and Greenough's Latin Grammar has, in my opinion, now attained a degree of excellence which not only places it in the front rank of manuals in this department intended for the practical use of students, but makes it facile princeps among its rivals.

E. W. Hopkins, Prof. of Comparative Philology, etc., Bryn Mawr College: It seems to me the best practical Latin Grammar offered to our undergraduate students.

Edwin Post, Prof. of Latin, De Pauw University: I said long ago that for the student who will or thinks he must use one grammar, I know of none so good as this. More I can hardly say now except to express my gratification that the revised book is better than ever.

James C. Mackenzie, Head Master of Lawrenceville School, N. J.: I have no hesitation in pronouncing it the best Latin Grammar for high school and preparatory work.

J. W. Scudder, Teacher of Latin, Albany Academy, N. Y.: The Grammar is now scholarly and up to the times. It is by far the best grammar published in America for school work.

All who care to do so are invited to send for a circular entitled "Some Facts about a Latin Grammar," which gives some interesting information about the comparative standing and extent of use of this grammar. For one thing, it shows that of all places in New England having a population of 10,000 or more, this grammar is used in the high schools of over 70 per cent, including over 74 per cent of the pupils. The preference of the special preparatory schools is even more emphatic. For New York, a series of letters from all the Protestant colleges is given—16 in number—of which 13 recommend Allen and Greenough; one each is for two other grammars, and one is divided in preference. The best scholars in the rest of the country are of the same opinion.

The Beginner's Latin Book.

Complete with Grammar, Exercises, Selections for Translating, and Vocabulary.

By WILLIAM C. COLLAR, A.M., Head Master Roxbury Latin School, and
M. GRANT DANIELL, A.M., Principal Chauncy-Hall School, Boston.
12mo. Cloth. xii + 283 pages. Mailing price, $1.10; for introduction, $1.00.

NOW that the Beginner's Latin Book has been before the public nearly six years, the publishers are able to say without hesitation that it has been far more successful than any other introductory Latin book ever published in this country. This remarkable result is due to a combination of excellences so skilfully blended that effects are more patent than causes. While the book may be used as an introduction to Cæsar, it is more than this,—it is an introduction to Latin as a language. It prepares the student not only to begin the study of Cæsar, but, with proper guidance, to make remarkably rapid and satisfactory progress in reading and understanding Latin. The skill of the authors as teachers has enabled them to secure these larger results without deviation from the main line or increase of difficulties. The fundamental idea was to combine the utmost practice with the minimum of theory, on the principle that a thorough acquisition of the elements of Latin by the young learner must be more a process than a science, more the work of observation, comparison, and imitation than the mechanical following of rules or the exercise of analysis and conscious inductive reasoning. There are therefore abundant and varied exercises on the forms and more important constructions of the language. The skilful choice of words has made it possible to provide exercises that are in themselves interesting. The colloquia (simple Latin dialogues), the extracts for translation, introduced as early as possible, and the mode of treatment throughout are made to impart attractiveness, freshness, and variety, though there is no sacrifice of rigorous scientific method. Even if the time allowed for Latin the first year is quite limited, teachers may still be able to carry classes through the book by omitting certain detachable portions of the course. Provision has been made for the practical use of Latin in oral teaching.

Note the testimony of those who have used it.

Andrew F. West, Prof. of Latin, Princeton College. It is decidedly the best beginner's book with which I am acquainted.

H. A. Bennert, Instr. in Ancient Lang., University of Pennsylvania: I have never seen a book that made the beginning of Latin so interesting, nor one in which every fact of the language is so well explained.

Richard A. Metcalf, Principal High School, Princeton, Ill.: We have used it in our high school for several years. This continuous use has enabled us to fully test its merits.

M. S. Bartlett, High School, Haverhill, Mass.: I am using it with a large class, and find it altogether the most satisfactory book that I know of for beginners in the study of Latin.

John H. Peck, Prin. New Britain High School, New Britain, Conn.: I am free to say that I am perfectly satisfied with it; at least, I have never used a beginner's Latin book that I liked nearly so well.

C. T. Bonney, Jr., Teacher of Latin, High School, New Bedford, Mass.: We have used it for two years, and consider it by far the best book we have tried yet.

E. C. Adams, Prin. High School, Newburyport, Mass.: The longer I use the book, the more it pleases me.

G. W. Manley, Prof. of Latin, Wake Forest College: It impresses me as the best thing in the market for first-year students in Latin.

S. E. Thompson, Prof. of Latin, Baylor University, Texas: The enthusiasm with which our beginners have been inspired this year leads me to say that instead of being a dead language, Latin is now one of the liveliest languages taught in our course.

Latine Reddenda.

The English-Latin Exercises from The Beginner's Latin Book.

With Glossarium Grammaticum. 12mo. 41 pages. Paper. Price by mail and for introduction, 20 cents.

With Glossarium Grammaticum and English-Latin Vocabulary. 12mo. 58 pages. Cloth. Mailing price, 33 cents; for introduction, 30 cents.

The Gate to Cæsar.

By WILLIAM C. COLLAR, A.M., Head Master of the Roxbury Latin School, Boston. With map, and head of Cæsar. Square 16mo. Cloth. xii + 141 pages. Mailing price, 45 cents; for introduction, 40 cents.

THE object of this little book is to save time and labor by distributing difficulties. The text of the second book of Cæsar's Gallic War is simplified, chiefly by omissions; but after the simplified text is given the full text, which may be studied in immediate succession, or be deferred till the learner's wings are grown. Synonymous Latin words are given at the foot of the page, explanatory notes follow the text, and on each chapter of the simplified text, a brief exercise is given for translation into Latin. The etymological vocabulary has proved of great value.

John Tetlow, Head Master Girls' High and Latin Schools, Boston: It is so necessary and so clever a piece of work that it seems a wonder it was not done long ago.

Allen & Greenough's New Cæsar.

Seven Books. Illustrated. With Six double-page colored maps.

Edited by W. F. ALLEN, late Prof. in University of Wisconsin, J. H. ALLEN, of Cambridge, and H. P. JUDSON, Professor of History, University of Chicago, with a special Vocabulary, by Prof. J. B. GREENOUGH, of Harvard College. 12mo. xxvi + 543 pages, red edges, bound in half-morocco. Illustrated. Mailing price, $1.35; for introduction, $1.25.

ATTENTION is invited to these features, which, with other merits, have gained this edition an extraordinary success:—

1. The judicious notes,—their full grammatical references, crisp, idiomatic renderings, scholarly interpretations of difficult passages, clear treatment of indirect discourse, the helpful maps, diagrams, and pictures; in particular, the military notes, throwing light on the text, and giving life and reality to the narrative.

2. The vocabulary,—convenient, comprehensive, and scholarly, combining the benefits of the full lexicon with the advantages of the special vocabulary, and every way superior to the ordinary vocabulary.

3. The mechanical features of the volume, its clear type, convenient size and shape, superior paper, and attractive binding.

4. In general, this edition represents the combined work of several specialists in different departments, and so ought to excel an edition edited by any single scholar.

The Notes on the second book have just been rewritten to adapt them for those who begin Cæsar with this book. Full grammatical references have been given.

Tracy Peck, Prof. of Latin, Yale College: With quite unusual satisfaction I have noticed the beautiful paper and type; the carefully edited text; the truly helpful notes, which neither tend to deaden enthusiasm with superfluous grammar, nor blink real difficulties; the very valuable illustrations and remarks on the Roman military art; and the scholarly and stimulating vocabulary.

John Tetlow, Prin. of Girls' High and Latin Schools, Boston: The clear type, judicious annotation, copious pictorial illustration, full explanation of terms and usages belonging to the military art, and excellent vocabulary, combine to make this edition easily first among the school editions of Cæsar.

W. B. Corbyn, Principal High School, Quincy, Ill.: We have used it for several years, and find it as a text-book perfectly satisfactory.

J. L. Lampson, Teacher of Latin, State Normal College, Nashville, Tenn.: It is the best Cæsar published.

Allen & Greenough's New Cicero.Thirteen Orations. Illustrated.

Edited by W. F. ALLEN, late Prof. in University of Wisconsin, J. H. ALLEN, of Cambridge, and Prof. J. B. GREENOUGH, of Harvard University. With a special Vocabulary by Professor Greenough. 12mo. Half-morocco. xix + 670 pages. Mailing price, $1.40; for introduction, $1.25. Illustrated.

THIS edition includes thirteen orations arranged chronologically, and covering the entire public life of Cicero. The introductions connect the orations, and, with them, supply a complete historical study of this most interesting and eventful period. The Life of Cicero, List of his Writings, and Chronological Table will be found of great value. The orations are: Defence of Roscius, Impeachment of Verres (The Plunder of Syracuse and Crucifixion of a Roman Citizen), The Manilian Law, the four orations against Catiline, For Archias, For Sestius, For Milo, The Pardon of Marcellus, For Ligarius, and the Fourteenth Philippic.

The notes have been thoroughly rewritten in the light of the most recent investigations and the best experience of the classroom. Topics of special importance, as, for instance, the Antiquities, are given full treatment in brief essays or excursions, printed in small type. References are given to the grammars of Allen & Greenough, Gildersleeve, and Harkness.

A. E. Chase, Prin. of High School, Portland, Me.: I am full better pleased with it than with the others of the series, although I thought those the best of the kind.

F. E. Rockwood, Prof. Latin, Bucknell University, Pa.: The work of editing seems to have been done with the utmost care. The result is a model text-book.

O. D. Robinson, Prin. of High School, Albany, N.Y.: I find it a worthy companion, in every way, of its two predecessors, the Virgil and the Cæsar. I can say no more than this in its praise, for I have already spoken sincerely, in almost unqualified terms, of these two books.

John L. Lampson, Prof. of Latin, State Normal College, Nashville, Tenn.: The text, in appearance and authority, is the best; the notes, ample, judicious, modern; the vocabulary is the best school-book vocabulary published.

L. B. Wharton, Prof. Latin, College of William and Mary: It is the best school edition of Cicero's Orations that I have ever seen. The vocabulary is admirable.

Allen & Greenough's Cicero. The Old Edition.

Eight Orations and Notes, with Vocabulary. Mailing price, $1.25; for introduction, $1.12.

Allen & Greenough's New Ovid.

Revised edition. Edited by HAROLD N. FOWLER, Professor of Greek, Adelbert College, Ohio; with a special vocabulary by JAMES B. GREENOUGH, of Harvard University. 12mo. Half leather. Illustrated.

I. With vocabulary, by mail, $1.65; for introduction, $1.50.

II. Without vocabulary, by mail, $1.25; for introduction, $1.12.

THE selections were chosen with a view to making the study of Latin interesting. Most of them are from the Metamorphoses, of which about one-third has been taken. By help of the argument, which is given in full, the editor has endeavored to put before the reader something like a complete picture of the Greek mythology, at least of those narratives which have held their permanent place in the modern mind and have entered more or less into every modern literature.

Professor Greenough's vocabulary, similar in style and character to his Cæsar, Cicero, and Virgil vocabularies, adds greatly to the value of the edition, and the illustrations will be found truly illustrative.

William A. Packard, Prof. of Latin, College of New Jersey, Princeton, N.J.: The abundant illustrations of mythology, now introduced, so specially appropriate and indeed necessary to the student's best appreciation of these poems, make this book peculiarly attractive and useful.

Mary S. Anthony, Teacher of Latin and Greek, Bradford Academy, Mass.: I find that it is admirably arranged for a comprehensive study of the Metamorphoses. I like, in fact, the entire Allen and Greenough series, and have introduced them into my work here in the Academy.

Allen and Greenough's Latin Composition.

An Elementary Guide to Writing in Latin. Part I., Constructions of Syntax; Part II., Exercises in Translation. 12mo. Cloth. 194 pages. Mailing price, $1.25; introduction, $1.12.

THE special feature of the Composition is, that its instructions are given throughout from the English point of view.

Allen & Greenough's Sallust.

The Conspiracy of Catiline as related by Sallust. With Introduction and Notes explanatory and historical. 12mo. Cloth. 96 pages. Mailing price, 65 cents; for introduction, 60 cents.

Allen & Greenough's De Senectute.

Cicero's Dialogue on Old Age. With Introduction (on the adoption in Rome of the Greek philosophy) and Notes. 12mo. Cloth. 67 pages. Mailing price, 55 cents; for introduction, 50 cents.
